Commissioners applaud big changes coming to 17th Street

KATE CAGLE
Daily Press Staff Writer

Students and teachers who use the Expo Line to commute to Santa Monica College will likely love the planned changes heading to 17th Street as the City looks to add a protected bike lane, more lighting, curb extensions and other improvements for carless commuters. The only problem - many students will have already received their diplomas by the time construction on the project ends. City staff anticipate finishing the project by fall of 2021.

"Why does it take so long to do something that's so on message?" Planning Commissioner Richard McKinnon asked at a recent meeting where city staff unveiled the plans. City leadership has signed onto Vision Zero, a commitment to eliminating traffic fatalities. Eight pedestrians and one cyclist were killed by cars in Santa Monica last year. "In a city where people are being killed and people are being injured on the street and people are afraid to walk or ride a bike because of safety issues...it's just wrong."

Mobility Director Francie Stefan said the strings attached to Federal funding to help pay for the $7 million streetscape project meant an extra year of planning.

"We'd like to see it happen over night as well," Stefan said.

The number of people walking the path between the train stop and the college has skyrocketed by 1600 percent since the Expo Line opened in 2016, according to a city report. Biking along 17th Street is up 82 percent. During the same time frame the number of cars on the street increased 20 percent.

Indigenous Artists Reinforce History and Presence at Tongva Park

On Wednesday, May 30, Santa Monica Cultural Affairs presents the 2018 Art @ Tongva season finale, Indigenous Now, an evening of performance, music and art by Los Angeles-based indigenous artists. The program is a collaboration with the Art @ Tongva Indigenous Advisory Committee, comprised of Lazaro Arvizu (Tongva), Los Angeles Unified School District Indigenous Advisor; Clementine Bordeaux (Sicangu Lakota Oyate), PhD in World Arts and Cultures/Dance UCLA; and Michelle Enfield (Diné - Navajo), Red Circle Program Coordinator, Special Initiatives and APLA Program Coordinator.

"This program shares work of current artists, who are fellow indigenous friends. Celebrating the work they are making now reinforces the histories and presence of indigenous people's existence, a fight for visibility that is never complete," says Lazaro Arvizu.

A special opening ritual at 7:30 p.m. opens this varied, inspirational, and galvanizing evening, which includes musical performances by award-winning singer-songwriter and activist Raye Zaragoza, whose music is deeply informed by her multinational heritage (O'odham, Mexican, Taiwanese and Japanese). Zaragoza's viral protest song, In the River, won the 2017 Global Music Award for Protest Music and the Honesty Oscar for Activist Anthem.

Felicia 'Fe' Montes, also known as Fe Evaone, is a Xicana artist, activist, educator, and poet from East Los Angeles. Her work with Joel 'Rageone' Garcia, The Politricked Public Art Cart, embodies the "P's of Public Art" – Posters, Projections, Performance, Poetry, and Politics. Montes' mobile art cart, made in the style of the elote, or corn vendor cart, empowers participants through education, information, and art.

Artist and filmmaker Pamela J. Peters (Navajo) curates a program of poetry and spoken word with writers and performers from diverse tribal backgrounds, celebrating, mourning and recognizing the indigenous narratives in our communities.

Singer-songwriter Stephanie Mushrush (Washoe Tribe of NV & CA), a brilliant voice in contemporary music, finds inspiration in family, tribe, ancestors, prayers, and in the indigenous nations of the world.

Artist Jaque Fragua, from Jemez Pueblo, New Mexico, using imagery drawn from traditional Native American ceramics, blankets, tattoo designs, etc., repurposes his culture's iconography, subverting the misappropriation of Native American identity. Over the course of the evening, Fragua will create a new graphic work specifically designed for this event.

Audiences are invited to find their way freely through the space, encountering each performance in their own order at their own pace. The program highlights Tongva Park's unusual geography of gardens, winding paths, and urban vistas, reimagining the small, exquisite spaces of the park.

Free and open to the public. For more information, visit smgov.net/tongvapark/events.

Visit bigbluebus.com for bus routes to Tongva Park. Ample bike parking is located near each park entrance (Ocean Ave., Main St., and Olympic Blvd.).

Parking is available at the Civic Center Parking Structure, 333 Civic Center Dr. First 30 minutes free, $1 per each additional hour. $5 maximum per day.

Art @ Tongva is a series of intimate and informal events in Tongva Park presented by Santa Monica Cultural Affairs and co-produced by Dyson & Womack. Tongva Park is located at 1615 Ocean Ave. The event will be held from 7:30 – 9 p.m.

Agency recognized for enhancing the lives of residents and staff

The Community Development Commission/Housing Authority of the County of Los Angeles (CDC/HACoLA) is the recipient of two 2018 Achievement Awards from the National Association of Counties (NACo). The awards honor innovative, effective county government programs that strengthen services for residents.

NACo recognized the South County Family Homeless Initiative Program, which was implemented in July 2016, to help house homeless families in units at the South Scattered Sites Family Public Housing Developments as they become available. As of February 22, 2018, this initiative has housed 28 homeless families, totaling 117 household members. Virtual Desktop Infrastructure (VDI) Implementation received the second 2018 Achievement Award. Led by the CDC/HACoLA's Information Technology Unit, the VDI Implementation improved staff performance and productivity, streamlined desktop experience, and saved money for the agency.

"It's an honor to be recognized by NACo for our efforts. We are committed to developing and implementing programs that further our mission of Building Better Lives and Better Neighborhoods – and these programs exemplify this mission," said CDC/HACoLA Executive Director Monique King-Viehland.

NACo President Roy Charles Brooks said, "Counties seize opportunities to deliver services more efficiently and build stronger communities every day. Achievement Award-winning programs are examples for counties that are determined to enhance services for our residents."

Nationally, awards are given in 18 different categories that reflect the vast, comprehensive services counties provide. The categories include children and youth, criminal justice, county administration, information technology, health, civic engagement and many more.

NACo will recognize award-winning counties at its 2018 Annual Conference and Exposition July 13-16, 2018, in Nashville/Davidson County, Tennessee.

Sustainable hydration options

Dear EarthTalk:

It's finally time for me to retire my trusty old Nalgene and upgrade my water bottle. Are any brands or models particularly greener than others?

– Cyndi Bland
Tempe, AZ

Plastic water bottles were once ubiquitous on college campuses and beyond where people wanted to stay hydrated without buying wasteful single-use plastic water bottles. But today we have many more options for going green when it comes to water bottles. When evidence started coming out that Bisphenol A (BPA) and other chemical additives in even reusable plastic water bottles could be harmful to human health, consumers started looking for other, safer materials. These days it's hard to find a reusable water bottle made out of plastic as glass and metal versions have become the more popular choices.

Glass is readily available and easy to recycle. Contigo's Purity glass water bottle is wrapped in a silicone sleeve to make it easier to handle and pad it in case it takes a tumble. Soma Bottles are likewise made from glass and wrapped in rubber for protection and a better grip. The Zing Anything Citrus Zinger glass water bottle comes with a built-in juicer so that you can infuse your water with fruit essences.

Stainless steel is another popular water bottle choice among eco-conscious consumers, given its ruggedness and insulation as well as how easy it is to recycle. S'well's bottles come in a variety of designs but all share a base made out of recyclable stainless steel. Mira's stainless steel bottles have similar but more basic designs — but for half the price. Klean Kanteen also sells a variety of sleek stainless-steel based bottles with cool modern styling.

In those situations where you don't have your own reusable water bottle handy, it would be nice to know that you could buy water in a disposable container that neither comes from petroleum nor requires lots of transport and energy to recycle. Boxed Water Is Better and Just Water think they have the solution: paper cartons (like for milk) derived from sustainably harvested timber. These paper cartons are better than their plastic counterparts in many ways. For starters they can be shipped empty and flat and are so light that their transportation carbon footprint is much less than glass or plastic. But they have proven difficult to recycle (let alone compost) given that they include not only paper but also aluminum foil (to shield the contents from light and oxygen which could contaminate the water) and plastic inlays for strength.

Another improvement on the single-use plastic water bottle is one made from biodegradable plant-based material, like the algae-derived prototype developed by Ari Jónsson, a student at the Iceland Academy of the Arts. Jónsson's bottle is derived from red algae powder and water to form a gelatin-like substance that can be shaped into the form of a bottle after a process of heating, molding, cooling and then filling with water. The bottle keeps its shape as long as it has water in it; when it's empty, it loses its rigidity and begins to decompose — you can bury it or throw it in your compost bin. While the concept is far from mainstream, and probably never will be, it nevertheless proves that single-use bottles don't have to be such a burden on the environment.

Click It Or Ticket Campaign

Memorial Day weekend is an unofficial start to the summer season and a busy time for Californians. Each year, the highways fill with families in vehicles, on their way to start their summer vacations.

To help keep drivers and passengers safe, the Santa Monica Police Department (SMPD) is reminding motorists to Click It or Ticket. SMPD will deploy additional officers May 21- June 3, 2018 on special traffic patrols to stop and ticket both drivers and passengers for failing to use the vehicle's safety belt restraints. This will also include drivers who fail to secure children in the proper child restraint seats.

"If you know a friend or a family member who does not buckle up when they drive, please ask them to consider changing their habits," said Chief Cynthia Renaud. "Help us spread this lifesaving message before one more friend or family member is killed as a result of this inaction. Seat belts save lives, and everyone needs to remember to buckle up—every trip, every time."

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, nearly half (48%) of the passenger vehicle occupants killed in crashes in 2016 were unrestrained. At night from 6 p.m. to 5:59 a.m., that number soared to 56 percent of those killed resulting in a focus of the Click It or Ticket campaign to nighttime enforcement.

Police, Sheriff and the CHP will be taking a no excuses approach to seat belt law enforcement, writing citations day and night. In California, the minimum penalty for a seat belt violation is $162.

"This Memorial Day period and, in fact, every day, we want everyone in every vehicle to remember that buckling up could be their greatest defense in a crash," said Rhonda Craft, Director of the California Office of Traffic Safety. "Putting on a seat belt is one of the quickest, simplest and most effective ways to ensure you and your loved ones remain safe and sound on the road."

This enforcement effort is funded by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, and remember - Report Drunk Drivers - call 911.

The Jewish Federation Of Greater Los Angeles raises over $3 million for critical causes

The Jewish Federation hosted its annual Real Estate & Construction (REC) Division dinner on May 9, at the Barker Hanger. The dinner honored Michael Hackman, Founder & CEO of Hackman Capital Partners, for his leadership and contributions to the Federation and the Jewish community. The record-breaking dinner brought together over 1500 professionals and community members and raised over $3 million for Federation's impactful work. Hackman Capital Partners is a privately held real estate investment and operating company that focuses on commercial and industrial properties in major U.S. markets.

Jay Sanderson, President & CEO of The Jewish Federation of Greater Los Angeles said, "Our Federation's Real Estate & Construction Division Dinner was an overwhelming success, due in large part to the leadership and support of Michael Hackman, this year's honoree and ultimate mensch. The leaders of our Federation's Real Estate & Construction Division are incredible partners, helping achieve and make a reality the important work of the Federation on a daily basis. We are overwhelmed by the outpouring of support from the real estate group and the community-at-large. Congratulations again to Michael Hackman!"

Michael Hackman, honoree, said, "It was a wonderful evening for the Real Estate industry and those who are leading the way in support of The Jewish Federation. I would like to thank all those who invest in our future, help the most vulnerable, and support our community. I am humbled by the outpouring of support [and fun] that was had at this record-setting event, and would like to thank all of the sponsors, donors, and attendees for stepping up in such a big way."

The dinner was co-chaired by Bryan Berkett, Brent Iloulian, David Chasin, and Reuben Robin. Jonathan Klein, Real Estate & Construction Division Chair, shared remarks, as well as Jay Sanderson, President & CEO of The Jewish Federation of Greater Los Angeles. The evening began with a cocktail hour filled with networking and mingling, followed by an acapella performance by the Pellas. Richard Pachulski presented the award to Michael Hackman, who shared remarks with the audience. Following the dinner, many guests attended the after-party.

Based on Jewish values, The Jewish Federation of Greater Los Angeles convenes and leads the community and leverages its resources to assure the continuity of the Jewish people, support a secure State of Israel, care for Jews in need here and abroad, and mobilize on issues of concern to the local community, all with our local, national, and international partners. PLAN

English learner success.

According to staff, a master plan for English learners (EL) was last approved during the 2004-2005 school year. Within the last four years, educational services members and staff have refined that plan. The State Board of Education adopted the California Roadmap for English Learners policy in July 2017, prompting further refinements as recent as 2016 and this year.

This revised plan intends to support the district's 8.5% of EL students through identification, placement, assessment, and progress monitoring. Additionally, the plan will provide resources for students, staff, and EL families.

Dr. Irene Gonzalez-Castillo and Dr. Amy Tepin, Director of Curriculum & Instruction for the district and Literacy and Language Coordinator for the district respectively, led the presentation of the new plan.

They began their presentation with a quote to illustrate benefits bilingual proficiency has brought students.

"Being bilingual has given me the strength to be who I am while providing me with a window into the diverse community that surrounds me. It has opened my ears to voices from far-away lands and given me a larger perspective of culture and place within it," a 12th-grade, singular named student named Jade is quoted as saying.

"[The quote] establishes the 'why' of why we support our English language learners," Gonzalez-Castillo said. "Seeing another language, the language they bring to us is a strength and asset we want to build and foster."

Dr. Teplin said the new plan would be more than "just a book of procedures," anchored by a set of core beliefs to drive decision-making policies and practices to engage and monitor EL students' progress throughout their educations in the district.

Before the new systemized approach to student progress monitoring, Teplin said a student could go from an elementary school to middle school, and then to high school "needing different kinds of support" unbeknownst to the separate schools at a detriment to the student's education.

Teplin hopes with the new, systematic approach, educators can create unifying criteria and guidelines for students.

In collaboration with the district's IT department, Teplin helped create specific monitoring tools to track and document EL student development. "We can see what they've accomplished and what they still need," Teplin said.

To identify EL students, parents will take the Home Language Survey and their student will be verified as EL depending on the survey. After an English language proficiency assessment, a primary language evaluation will take place to supplement the proficiency assessment results.

An assessment score will be filed in a student's cumulative folder. Staff can then request that folder and review any information to assist in a students placement. Students will be assessed annually on their English language proficiency.

EL students are "clustered as much as possible" in classes according to their proficiency levels. This is meant to give EL students a "welcoming and supportive environment where language difference is celebrated, bilingualism is valued, and students of all language levels can thrive."

Teplin and Gonzalez-Castillo also look to further partnerships within the EL community, saying they've met with the District English Learners Advisory Committee (DELAC) to seek feedback, with DELAC asking for a formal method of evaluating the program.

The program will continue to be refined as it's rolled out. Staff said program updates will be shared with the Board.

BUDGET

years has been less than four percent.

Hotel tax remains reliable revenue for City Hall, as Transient Occupancy Taxes continue to increase about 9 percent a year. The city recently added two hotels with 260 rooms and a third under construction will bring 271 more.

City sales tax growth is expected to be modest, as fewer shoppers visit brick-and-mortar stores and auto sales slow. Parking revenue from structures and lots are expected to decrease 7 percent this fiscal year.

"This is primarily a result of EXPO light rail and ridesharing services providing alternative modes of transportation for visitors and community members," the report said. "However, recent Council-approved rate revisions should restore parking revenues to previous levels."

The proposed budget for fiscal year 2018-19 is $732.5 million.

The weakest spot in the City's financial health is a $461 million unfunded pension liability. The City made an advanced payment of $45 million to CalPERS in 2017.

"The magnitude of the remaining shortfall, however, will require additional tangible and likely painful diversion of funding to address this threat to our fiscal health," the report said. "The year ahead will provide the opportunity for dialogue with our community and our workforce about how together we address this need and set the bases for Council to establish specific and measurable policy goals to ensure our pension obligations are adequately funded."

In order to offset rising costs, most City fees will increase by 4.4 percent July 1. In addition to the increases, staff proposes five new fees, including a $361 Address Assignment Fee and a $95 Mobility Impound Fee for electric scooters and bikes left in the public right of way, among others.

Several of the city's funds are struggling. The Big Blue Bus's revenue from passengers has declined three straight years. The Housing Authority Fund has a projected operational deficit of about a million dollars. It will require a subsidy from affordable housing funds this year. The Cemetery Fund will likely need a loan from the General Fund to continue to operate. Finally, the Pier Fund faces decreasing lease revenue because of upcoming construction.

The City Council will review the report at their May 22 public meeting. The Council will meet at 5:30 p.m. in Council Chambers at City Hall, 1685 Main Street, Room 213. Public items will be heard no earlier than 6:30 p.m.

Mars Mission scientist to Speak at SMC

Dr. Suzanne Smrekar – Principal Scientist and Deputy Principal Investigator for NASA's InSight mission to Mars – will give a lecture at Santa Monica College (SMC) on Thursday, May 31 at 11:15 a.m. in Art 214 on SMC's main campus, located at 1900 Pico Blvd. The lecture, titled "NASA's InSight Mission to Mars: Investigating the Early Evolution of Rocky Planets" is free and open to the public.

Dr. Smrekar is an award-winning geophysicist with a specialty in the tectonics and geodynamics of Venus and Mars. Her research interests include modeling of mantle upwelling and tectonic processes to understand the different evolutionary paths of Venus, Mars, and Earth; using numerical and analytic models of deformation; as well as the development of instruments to measure thermal properties and heat flow on other planets, among others.

She holds a B.S. in Geophysics/Applied Math from Brown University, and a Ph.D. in Geophysics from Southern Methodist University. Dr. Smrekar conducted post-doctoral research at MIT before joining NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) in 1992. Since then she has balanced research with project responsibilities, including Project Scientist for Deep Space 2, pre-project scientist for the Mars Science Laboratory Rover, and Deputy Project Scientist for Mars Reconnaissance Orbiter.

The lecture is sponsored by the SMC chapter of the Phi Theta Kappa honor society. Street parking is restricted around the SMC main campus. Attendees are encouraged to arrive via the Expo line, the bus, or a ride-sharing service. For a map of SMC's main campus, see: smc.edu/MapsDirections. For more information, please call Hari Vishwanadha at (310) 434-4242.

Santa Monica College is a California Community College accredited by the Accrediting Commission for Community and Junior Colleges (ACCJC) of the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC).

VJCC Announces Annual Natsu Matsuri Fest

The Venice Japanese Community Center will present its annual Natsu Matsuri, or summer festival, on Sat., June 23 and Sun., June 24.

The event celebrates the area's deep-rooted Japanese American community with Japanese cuisine and cultural exhibitions, as well as American-style foods and treats.

Every summer the VJCC's parking lot is transformed into a carnival of easy-going, child-friendly games for youngsters, plus a baseball-throw dunking booth for older kids.

The food booths will also sell perennial favorites like teriyaki chicken, spam musubi and udon (Japanese noodles), as well as chirashi zushi, inari zushi and maki zushi.

The center's basketball court is filled with communal tables and chairs to dine, take a rest, visit with friends and watch the events that unfold throughout the day on the VJCC's main stage, including demonstrations by the center's various martial arts clubs and short programs by Venice Gakuen, hula dancing and line dancing, Japanese zither, and Japanese calligraphy. Also performing both days will be Koshin Taiko.

On Saturday will be the announcement of this year's Miss Western Los Angeles, Nisei Week Queen Candidate representing VJCC and the Venice-WLA JACL. VJCC scholarship winners will also be announced. Sunday will feature a doughnut-eating contest at 2:30 p.m. and later that day, the winners of the raffle will be announced.

Featured both days in the VJCC's main hall and classrooms will be the "Pioneer General Store." Walk over to the Cultural Expo and view photography and cultural exhibits of bonsai, watercolor, shodÿ, sumi-é, and ikebana.

The VJCC is located at 12448 Braddock Dr., near the intersection of Braddock Drive and Centinela Avenue. Admission is free. Parking is available at Marina del Rey Middle School, as well as on the streets adjacent to the VJCC.

Saturday hours are noon–9 p.m. and Sunday hours are 11 a.m. – 8 p.m.

Unless it is a certified service animal, such as a seeing-eye dog, pets or other animals, including emotional support critters, are prohibited.

For more information, visit vjcc.com, send an email to office@vjcc.com or call the VJCC office at (310) 822-8885.

STREET

In response to the change in traffic patterns, a 1.1 mile stretch of 17th Street between Wilshire Boulevard and Pico Boulevard will have Santa Monica's first protected bike lane, connecting the rail stop, Memorial Park and the college. The bike lane will be placed between the sidewalk and parking spaces with a raised median separating cyclists from vehicles. The changes mean the corridor will lose about 94 parking spaces.

The improvements will also protect Bird riders, who are prohibited from zipping along sidewalks by the California Vehicle Code. At least two Bird riders have been involved in serious crashes involving cars since the service launched in Santa Monica late last year.

"These are streets that are comfortable for drivers, bikers, pedestrians, Bird riders and whatever people choose," said Bird's Director of Government Affairs Carl Hanson, who spoke at the meeting.

Michigan Avenue will also receive improvements under the plan, including curb extensions to shorten the distance pedestrians have to cross the street, better lighting, and small traffic circles to slow the speed of drivers.

Commissioner Mario Fonda-Bernardi applauded the plans for striking the right balance between the needs of drivers and other commuters. The plan includes so-called Dutch intersections that are designed help bicyclists make left turns without needing to weave between cars

"This is the most exciting thing to happen to Santa Monica transportation since the train, hands down. I've think you've actually nailed it perfectly," Fonda-Bernardi said.

The plan heads to the City Council next. The city will submit a Request For Proposal for the final design in early 2019.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 21)

You include new people in your decisions this year, just to keep things playful, interesting and exciting. There's a twist in July that will favor you tremendously, but this will be hard to see in the early stages, so have faith. Your strength attracts other strong people, and together you'll accomplish impressive feats. Pisces and Virgo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 40, 33, 28 and 4.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
You aim to exceed expectations. It starts with being very careful about what you set up in a person's mind to begin with. After that, you must be vigilant about delivering on that and then some.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Patience isn't about timing; it's about attitude. Patience is a manner of graciously accepting life as it presents itself instead of trying to bully your own agenda onto it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
Part of the appeal of growing things is that it feels good to know that you can do what's needed for your own survival and thriving. Explore this and/or other kinds of self-reliance to unlock a new level of confidence in yourself.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
You've stood at those intersections in the road where the buttons seem like a ruse. You push to walk, and nothing happens. You're dubious about your ability to influence today's pattern, too, but you have to at least try.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Don't be too quick to judge, especially in matters of art or personal taste. Styles come and go, and their appeal can strike you in unexpected ways, depending on the appetites and moods of the moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
It will be clear from your way of managing challenges big and small that when you decide to be adaptable, you can get used to almost anything. Now it's just a matter of deciding what's acceptable and what's not.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
The worthwhile thing you're doing needs an audience who cares; otherwise, the work, no matter how exquisite, will be incomplete. Sharing is an essential part of the process.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)
The recipe for a good mood will include sunshine, music and exciting ideas. Thinking of a better future will also be a worthy pastime, especially if you're willing to organize these thoughts onto paper and make a plan.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
All support networks are not equal. The ideal network is a mix of different ages, employment situations and cultures. This is the kind of network that makes you stronger and better.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
You can't get out of a bad mood by deciding what's wrong with your life, so it's a waste of time to dwell there, especially today. Focus on what's going right and also on self-care. You'll lift yourself and all around you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
For the social connection to be strong, it has to have mutual benefit. This requires you to be honest about what you hope to get out of it and what you're willing to put into it.

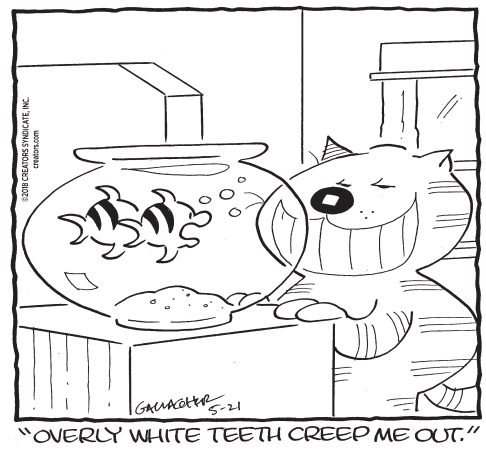

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
To say that freedom is important to you would be a colossal understatement. You are inwardly revolting against the restrictions placed on you, and that revolt is about to get very "outward" indeed.

Opening Moves of the Gemini Sun

Maybe money can't buy happiness, but financial lack and debt are sure to create unhappiness. On these first days of the Gemini sun, which focuses on communication and the transactions of domestic life, whatever is done to alleviate material concerns, though it may not feel like joy exactly, will certainly count toward it.

COMMUNITY BRIEFS

Malibu

Malibu homelessness plan to be discussed

The City's efforts to address public safety and public health concerns about homeless encampments, as well as other aspects of the City's Homelessness Strategic Plan, will be discussed during a community meeting on May 24 at Malibu City Hall.

"Dealing with encampments compassionately but effectively is a huge challenge, but one we must face," Mayor Rick Mullen said. "We are working to find ways to provide effective, meaningful assistance to people experiencing homelessness while addressing public safety and public health concerns. Wildfire is the single most dangerous public safety threat we face here in Malibu, and we cannot afford the risk that a wildfire could start from a homeless encampment."

City representatives and the Malibu Homelessness Strategic Plan Community Advisory Group will present the City's draft Strategic Plan on Homelessness for community review during the meeting on Thursday, May 24 at 7 p.m. at City Hall (23825 Stuart Ranch Road, Malibu). All community members are encouraged to attend, ask questions and give their feedback on the Draft Plan. No RSVPs are needed.

The proposed Homeless Encampment Management Initiative is part of the draft Homelessness Strategic Plan. One of the most urgent public safety concerns involving homelessness in Malibu is the potential for fires used for warmth or cooking in homeless encampments to spark wildfires that could threaten lives and homes.

The three-year Strategic Plan is a roadmap designed to improve the effective use of existing resources, align our local efforts with those of the Los Angeles County region and balance the need to protect public safety while addressing the humanitarian and long-term needs of homeless individuals.

The Advisory Group worked with a consultant to draft the Strategic Plan, which is the result of a community survey, targeted questionnaires and three half-day strategic planning workshops. The Advisory Group included representatives from the City, Malibu residents, the Sheriff's Department, the faith community, CART (Community Action Resource Team), the People Concern, the Malibu Homeless Outreach Team, S.O.S. (Standing on Stone), the business community, California State Parks, the County of Los Angeles Public Library, St. Joseph's Center (Malibu's Coordinated Entry System partner), and the Pacific Palisades Task Force on Homelessness.

The City's effort was funded by a grant of $50,000 through the County of Los Angeles Measure H to develop a Strategic Plan to address Homelessness. The draft Strategic Plan is expected to be presented to the City Council for adoption in late June.

The City recently created a dedicated web page at https://www.malibucity.org/homelessness to provide information and resources about homelessness in Malibu, information about the Homelessness Strategic Plan, links to staff reports, information on public safety questions, contact information for organizations that work on homeless outreach and services, ways to get involved and upcoming events.
