City budget up for discussion on Tuesday

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

City Council will meet this Tuesday with an agenda that talks about council procedures, remote access meetings, budget and honoring a former Councilman.

REMOTE ACCESS

Council will have a connected set of discussions regarding public participation at civic meetings and streamlining the meeting process.

Part of the discussion will focus on remote meetings.

While Council itself has returned to a hybrid meeting model that allows for in-person participation and remote access, the City's boards and commissions have remained entirely remote. Without specific action, those meetings will revert to in-person only access sometime around July.

"Members of Boards and Commissions previously voiced concern about being required to return to in-person meetings given that, as validated by the Health Officer Order, many people, including those with identified underlying medical conditions, unvaccinated older adults, people from ethnic and racial minority groups, remain at risk for severe illness from COVID-19 (more likely to be hospitalized, need intensive care, require a ventilator to help them breathe, or die)," said the report.

However, staff said remote

Alzheimer's advocacy

Alzheimer's Association California Southland Chapter

WASHINGTON: Advocates and Santa Monica residents Miki Lamm & Elizabeth Gelfand Stearns at the Alzheimer's Impact Movement (AIM) 2022 Forum in Washington, DC ready to discuss The NAPA Reauthorization Act (S. 4203/H.R. 7775) & The Alzheimer's Accountability and Investment Act (S. 4202/H.R. 7773) with Congress Member Ted Lieu.

AIM Advocates met with Federal legislators in Washington, DC, in the hopes of securing their support of key legislation toward Alzheimer's care, treatment, prevention and, ultimately, a cure for Alzheimer's disease and all dementia.

Today, more than 6 million Americans are living with Alzheimer's disease. In California alone, more than 690,000 people are living with the disease. Additionally, more than 11 million family members and friends serve as caregivers nationwide with more than 1.1 million Californians serving as dementia caregivers.

Local government representatives pen coastal bills

EMILY SAWICKI

Santa Monica's representatives have been busy in Sacramento drawing up environmental and housing bills this legislative session, a number of which apply to the Coastal Zone (which covers nearly all of California's coast from Oregon to Mexico).

Every month, the California Coastal Commission staff present a report to the 12-member commission on the latest pieces of legislation introduced in Sacramento that may affect their jurisdiction along the California coast; this month, three potential new laws drawn up by State Senator Ben Allen and one written by Assemblymember Richard Bloom appeared in the 28-page report. Alongside them were bills introduced by other state lawmakers including two LA County Supervisorial candidates: Henry Stern (of Calabasas) and Bob Hertzberg (of the San Fernando Valley), both current CA senators.

One of Stern's pending bills, SB 1292, seeks to allow local jurisdictions — cities and/or counties — to restrict housing developments in "moderate, high and very high fire hazard severity zones," while agreeing to double the development of housing elsewhere in the community outside the fire danger areas.

Hertzberg's SB 989 "would seek to establish a new program, beneath the Strategic Growth Council, which would require the council "to fund grants for multi-meetings are more expensive to conduct and the evidence suggests remote participation at boards/commissions has not increased public participation.

"Factoring the staffing and technology requirements against the consistent levels of public participation, staff recommends boards and commissions return to strictly in-person meeting participation with an anticipated start date of July 1 or when it is determined to be safe. Until that time, remote meeting participation will continue to be supported," said the report.

Until that time, staff are recommending Council authorize remote meetings through June 23.

COUNCIL AGENDAS

In response to Council direction to look at ways Council meetings can conclude by 11 p.m., staff are presenting several options including changing meeting start times, establishing a fixed public meeting start time, modifying public comment procedures, setting separate special meetings for appeals or study sessions, establishing an earlier deadline to submit Councilmember items and requiring Council Ad Hoc Committees to report back to the full Council quarterly.

All of the options would do something to shorten meeting times but all have drawbacks such as increased costs or more frequent meetings. Should council approve any of the options, staff will return with a formal proposal at a future date.

BUDGET

The City is about to begin the second year of its regular budget cycle. The current discussion focuses on what services can be restored as the economy improves but with an understanding that the city is years away from full recovery.

"Given all of this, the FY 2022-23 Proposed Budget is primarily focused on no-cost operational adjustments to improve service delivery, as well as incorporating previous Council direction to continue the Pier Vending Task Force for another year, and some required budget corrections," said the report.

The budget calls for adding about 47 FTE positions across a variety of services and pushing for an increased tax on individuals staying in hotels.

"While General Fund revenues are growing, they are far below the levels they would have been had the economy not been disrupted by the pandemic," said the report. "When comparing updated revenue projections for the General Fund to those staff had projected for the same period in February 2020, current projections for FY 2022-23 are $43 million lower. This gap indicates the minimum amount of additional revenues the City would need annually in order to provide the same level of services provided before the pandemic, without accounting for the significant inflation that has increased costs further over this time."

PARK NAME

The Recreation and Parks Commission has recommended renaming Goose Egg Park to Bob Holbrook Park but as all naming decisions are at Council's discretion, the idea will get a formal hearing this week.

"Former Santa Monica Mayor and Councilmember Bob Holbrook was the longest-serving

Councilmember, first elected in 1990 and retiring in 2014," said the staff report. "Mayor Holbrook was a Santa Monica native who was particularly proud of his work to expand and invest in our City parks and who has a particular attachment to Goose Egg Park from when he was a child. In total, Mayor Holbrook dedicated 32 years to public service, serving both on the City Council and the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District School Board. Mayor Holbrook passed away December 11, 2020, at the age of 79."

Closed session of the meeting will begin at 5:30 p.m. in the City Hall Council Chambers (1685 Main Street). Meetings are also available on the City's Youtube channel.

SMC's Drescher Planetarium Continues Free, Live Virtual Shows

Santa Monica College's John Drescher Planetarium continues its Friday evening events in June 2022 with free, live virtual shows presented online at smc.edu/planetarium. This month's friendly presentations will explore the "NASA's Eyes" website, present the latest information on the Commercial Human Spaceflight Program, take a look at the new Peregrine lunar probe, and offer an update on the Starship.

The Friday evening shows are at 8 p.m. and are preceded by a streamlined virtual digest of the popular Night Sky Show at 7 p.m., offering the latest news in astronomy and space exploration. The shows include the chance to chat with the planetarium lecturers and ask questions.

Planetarium lecturers are currently using the Zoom platform to present shows while the actual on-campus planetarium remains closed due to the COVID-19 pandemic. To attend the shows, the Zoom software must be installed on the viewer's computer. A free download is available at zoom.com.

The June 2022 shows are:

• Friday, June 3, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): Solar System Survey with "NASA's Eyes" — Associate Lecturer Sarah Vincent. "The eyes of NASA are upon you." The show explores the "NASA's Eyes" website — one network to see spacecraft, one network to collect the science and guide them in the darkness, and one network to run them all — powered by the Deep Space Network, and providing a real-time look at major missions around the solar system. Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium.

• Friday, June 10, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): Commercial Human Spaceflight Update — Senior Lecturer Jim Mahon. With NASA soliciting studies for commercial successors to the International Space Station, and privately booked missions already flying on vehicles like the SpaceX Crew Dragon, the United States has entered a new era of human space flight. The show will survey this dynamic

Angelini

There are a number of "A" restaurants in Santa Monica, not the least of which are Mélisse and Giorgio Baldi. But until now there were none in Pacific Palisades. There are a number of "B+" restaurants in the Palisades, including several very good Italians, but each just misses the mark. Now, with the opening of Angelini in Rick Caruso's Palisades Village, the Palisades has hit the bullseye.

What makes an "A" restaurant is a combination of comfort, service, menu selection, wine selection, and a top chef who creates consistently quality food. Angelini has it all.

The space is attractive, while not too large, which is nice for noise control. Much of the seating for now is outside, I'm not sure how the restaurant will fare if we ever have another rainy season. The service is very professional, and my last waiter came from Milan, Italy and was obviously there as a career, not someone waiting for a movie part to come his way. I noticed that the bar is very popular and many guests were drinking the same red or pink cocktail - I didn't try it.

I've had the insalata di Polipo for an antipasto, and the tartare di tonno, both prepared to perfection. I loved both the pasta with sea urchin, "linguini ricci di mare" and the lasagna verde, a spinach pasta with meat ragu. I loved the preparation of the Dover sole, and I salivated at the branzino roasted in sea salt at the next table, which looked equally as good. The portions are good sized, so I skipped dessert, but saw a delicious looking Italian bread pudding which made me second guess my decision.

On one occasion the manager of the day, Natalie from Brazil stopped by to make sure everything was going well. Another time one of the owners, Tancredi stopped by and introduced himself. There is no lack of service.

And now we turn to perhaps the most surprising part: the wine list. The list on the back of the menu is well selected, and one can find a good wine at between $60-$100.

For example there are four white wines from Italy and one California Chardonnay. My favorite is the Vermentino Bolgheri, 2020, at $18 a glass or $74 for the bottle. As for the red wines on the back of the menu, there are six Italian wines and two from California. There is a nice geographical diversity of the Italian wines, although it is missing a nice Brunello. I'm always concerned about a Barolo on a restaurant wine list, since they usually take a few hours to open up, and the restaurant doesn't answer the telephone all the time so it might be hard to get it decanted before you arrive.

Merv Hecht

STAFF: The service at Angelini is as good as the food.

Take a look at the wine cabinet inside the restaurant. Some of the finest Italian wines in all of Italy reside there, at some of the highest prices. But since Valentino closed I don't know where else you could find such a selection for those special events when you want to splurge. For me, just looking at them was deeply pleasurable!

Merv Hecht, like many Harvard Law School graduates, went into the wine business after law. In 1988, he began writing restaurant reviews and books. His latest book "The Instant Wine Connoisseur, 3d edition" is available on Amazon. He currently works for several companies that source and distribute food and wine products internationally. CRIME WATCH

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON FRIDAY, MAY 6 AT 11:45 A.M.

Officers responded to a petty theft that occurred at the Apple Store on the 3rd Street Promenade. Dispatch relayed that a female suspect was accused of stealing an iPhone from the store. Upon arrival officers learned that the suspect, later identified as Chianti Morgan entered the store and told a store employee that her phone was inside. She then attempted to take the phones that were placed on top of the display cases. After failing multiple times to remove the phones due to their security cords, Morgan successfully removed an iPhone 13 mini from the case and exited the store. The suspect was later located near the Santa Monica Pier, detained, positively identified by an employee from the store and placed under arrest. The stolen iPhone was recovered with the security cord still attached. Edwards was booked into the Santa Monica Jail and ultimately issued a citation.

benefit, community-level, climate-beneficial projects to support community and landscape resiliency and workforce development. Joint Powers Authorities, Tribes, Special Districts, and NGOs would be among the entities eligible to apply for competitive grants."

SB 1078

The first of Allen's draft pieces of legislation put before the Coastal Commission, SB 1078 proposes the establishment of a "Sea Level Rise Revolving Loan Fund." The fund is designed "to provide low-interest loans to local governments for the purchase of coastal properties vulnerable to sea level rise in communities of color, low-income and tribal communities, and other disproportionately affected communities and populations who bear the brunt of impacts from climate changes," according to Coastal Commission staff's legislative report.

Funding would be allocated by the California Coastal Conservancy and the Ocean Protection Council. The California Senate Committee on Appropriations analysis anticipated ongoing costs of nearly $1 million annually for additional staffing to support the pilot program, "as well as unknown costs to retain outside specialist expertise."

An analysis from the Senate Natural Resources and Water Committee provided this argument in favor of the bill: "We know the impacts of climate change, ranging from fire to flood to extreme heat, are already straining local budgets. The longer we fail to act, the greater the chance that coastal communities will be left without insurance options, banks will refuse to provide mortgages, and taxpayers will be further burdened. California must develop proactive strategies to support at-risk homeowners and give local governments the tools they need to address impending crises." That Committee did not receive any arguments against the bill.

Currently before the Assembly Rules Committee, Allen's Plastic Pollution Producer Responsibility Act would ban the sale or distribution of non-recyclable single-use packaging beginning in January 2031.

"Existing law makes a legislative declaration that it is the policy goal of the state that, annually, not less than 75% of solid waste generated be source reduced, recycled, or composted," the text of the bill, SB 54, states.

"This bill would establish the Plastic Pollution Producer Responsibility Act, which would prohibit producers of single-use, disposable packaging or single-use, disposable food service ware products from offering for sale, selling, distributing, or importing in or into the state such packaging or products that are manufactured on or after January 1, 2032, unless they are recyclable or compostable."

The bill, introduced by Allen, Stern and San Francisco Senator Scott Wiener, has received wide support from progressive communities and organizations including the City of Santa Monica, according to Senate Floor Analysis.

Questions remain about how the proposed law may be implemented and enforced, according to the analysis document.

AB 2762

Richard Bloom's AB 2762, focuses not on coastal resources but on the housing and homelessness crisis seen up and down the California coast. It "is an intent bill that would authorize local governments to build affordable housing on parking lots that serve parks and recreational facilities," per the California Coastal Commission staff.

As an "intent bill," it is designed to express legislative objectives; in this case, that the California State Assembly intends to draft laws that "allow local agencies to build affordable housing on parking lots that serve public parks and recreational facilities," "specify that nothing in the act would be interpreted to allow housing to be built on open space and active recreational spaces or as changing the zoning of parks and recreational facilities," and "authorize a local agency to require that surface parking is provided for public access to parks or recreational activities," according to the bill's text.

In other words, it supports the idea of constructing housing in parking lots, but not other areas and not to the detriment of the normal uses of parks and recreation centers.

PLACE YOUR CLASSIFIED HERE

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 23)

Visionary powers will be at a high this year. You'll fantasize consistently in one direction, then you'll see your world change shape to fit your dream. You have a talent for getting people charged up. You'll lead, manage and inspire groups. Your power will be reflected in the sizes of the smiles of the people around you. Libra and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 9, 29, 22 and 16.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You'll make a significant dent in a big project. You won't finish it all in a day, but at this rate you'll get to the next milestone ahead of schedule and be celebrated for your timing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Maybe there's an obstacle in the environment to complicate this journey, but it's more surmountable than the internal limits you have in place. These are self-created, and once you discover them, they will be self-eliminated.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Everything around you has the potential to spend your attention, which is a finite resource. Cutting just one thing will allow you to spend your attention in your preferred way.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Falling in love is a wonderful sensation. Whether you're falling for a person, place or activity, it's the same rush, accompanied by music only you and your love can hear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Feelings have a way of forcing you to deal with them today. Tamp them down in one situation and they'll find a way to burble up in another. Treat it like a project. It will be worth whatever time it takes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You have questions, and the people around you will have the obvious answers. Go wide. Throw the problem out to the universe at large. You'll love the variety pack of possible solutions that comes back to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Your moral sense makes it painful for you to do anything but the right thing... so long as you know what that is. Today's situation doesn't make it obvious. If you decide not to decide yet, it's a fine decision indeed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Be a little selfish with your time now or you could be snagged into a strange obligation. If you take on too much, or the wrong thing, you'll become reacquainted with the amorphous weightiness know as dread.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Your brain is firing brilliantly. Ask yourself to solve a problem and you will. Aim your bold fantasies at the future; shoot your brilliant imaginings into the sky.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). No one is you. People fulfill similar roles and jobs and have other facts in common, but you're the only one bringing it all together in your particular way, and that is your power. Lean into your uniqueness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). To carry out the strategy best for your particular strengths, you will need to prepare differently from the way the others are. There's no need to show anyone, though nosey competitors would love to know.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). While the people around you may not get along with one another so well now, you'll be on friendly terms with everyone. You've gotten this far by not taking sides, and you'll do well to remain neutral.
