THE SO, SO WINDY ISSUE

Accused chef's co-author says 'it doesn't add up'

CHRISTINA HOAG
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES The former "Calorie Commando" TV chef accused of trying to hire homeless men to kill his attorney wife was completely in love with her and devoted to her, his co-author on a new cookbook said Thursday.

"It's all so crazy. It just doesn't add up," said Amy Reiley, who wrote the aphrodisiac cookbook "The Love Diet" with former Food Network personality Juan-Carlos Cruz. "He was very positive about her."

Cruz was arrested last week by Santa Monica police after homeless men told an officer that a man had approached them to hire them to kill his wife, Jennifer L. Campbell, 47, a trusts and taxation lawyer.

The 48-year-old chef has pleaded not guilty to attempted murder and solicitation of murder, and is being held on $2 million bail.

Reiley told The Associated Press she has known Cruz for six years and worked on the book with him intensely for nine months.

She said Cruz and Campbell were high school sweethearts who have been together for 33 years. Cruz was born in the Dominican Republic and came to the United States when he was 3, she said.

The couple, who lived in a modest condominium on Los Angeles' west side, have no children. "They came to terms with that a long time ago," Reiley said. "They jokingly referred to their dogs as their kids."

The author said she never detected any disharmony in the marriage.

When she and Cruz worked on recipes, the couple was in constant contact with phone calls and text messages, she said.

When Campbell was sick with the flu once, Cruz set his alarm to go off every two hours to make sure he called her to remind her to take her medicine. "It was really sweet," Reiley said.

Reiley said Cruz's career was also moving. She and Cruz were already talking to a production company to do a TV show based on "The Love Diet," which is due to be published next month.

"He was very much looking forward,"

Gold company investigated by City Attorney

BY LENIKA CRUZ
Special to the Daily Press

CITY HALL The Santa Monica City Attorney's office last week confirmed that a local gold company is under investigation after receiving complaints that the business was possibly scamming customers.

The company, Superior Gold Group (SGG), is apparently based in Nevada although it also operates out of an office on Wilshire Boulevard in Santa Monica.

One of the complainants, Mr. Roberts from Tennessee, who preferred to use only his last name, said that after seeing a commercial for the company on Fox News last December, he and his wife looked into investing their savings in gold coins.

Convinced of the company's legitimacy, they called a hotline and received a brochure in the mail. After speaking with a representative, they sent in a cashier's check for $10,000 worth of gold.

Four months later, they still have not received their order.

After the promised delivery date came and went, Roberts called the company only to find that his account executive no longer worked there. He then spoke to other representatives who told him that his order would be shipped shortly.

When the coins still did not arrive, Roberts finally managed to contact the listed president, Art Jackson, who assured him that he would personally make sure that the order was shipped immediately.

"Now when I call the company and try to talk to Mr. Jackson, he says 'Leave a message and I'll get back to you within 24 hours,'" said Roberts. "But that doesn't happen."

After deciding they had been scammed, Roberts tried to contact the Better Business Bureau (BBB), but to no avail.

Roberts' story bears strong resemblance to that of another ex-customer.

"My client found it totally impossible to get in touch with anyone from the company," said Matt Ferguson, an attorney from

City Council is considering Arizona boycott

BY NICK TABOREK
Daily Press Staff Writer

CITY HALL Santa Monica could become the latest city to boycott Arizona over that state's tough new immigration law that critics say will lead to racial profiling.

The City Council on Tuesday will consider joining San Diego, Oakland and San Francisco by passing a measure in protest of the law, which makes state law enforcement agencies responsible for checking immigration papers if they have "reasonable suspicion" someone they stop is in the country illegally. The law was revised to prohibit police from using race as a basis for stopping people, but critics have said the change will have no practical effect.

Santa Monica Councilman Terry O'Day, who placed the item on the agenda, wants to ban official travel to Arizona and wants businesses in the state to be out of the running for future City Hall contracts.

And the proposal isn't just for show, he said.

An international company under contract with the Big Blue Bus called Trapeze Group has an operation near Phoenix and had been the front runner for a new contract to provide digital message boards at bus stops that would carry information for riders including live arrival times, O'Day said.

If the boycott passes, that contract — worth about $2 million, according to O'Day — would be in doubt. The council had been expected to approve the deal next month.

O'Day said the decision Tuesday night will likely come down to whether a boycott that directly impacts a small number of businesses is an effective way to advocate for political change.

"That's a real question we're going to discuss. Does a boycott properly target the individuals who brought about the change you're trying to affect?" he said. "I think that's really going to be the nature of the debate on Tuesday."

When the Los Angeles City Council voted 13-1 this month to boycott Arizona companies until the state's immigration law is repealed, officials said the move was likely to affect $7 million to $8 million in contracts. The city has contracts worth about $52 million with Arizona companies, but it was con-

Producer wanted for questioning returns to U.S.

CHRISTOPHER WEBER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES A former "Survivor" producer wanted for questioning in Mexico about his wife's death has returned to the United States, his lawyer said Sunday.

Bruce Beresford-Redman returned to Los Angeles County "to be with his children and attend to family and personal matters," attorney Richard Hirsch said in a statement.

Hirsch said Beresford-Redman, who has not been charged with a crime, had no legal obligation to remain in Mexico while authorities investigate the death of his wife, Monica, whose body was found in a sewer at the Moon Palace Resort in Cancun in April.

"He is devastated by the loss of his wife, best friend, and the mother of his children," Hirsch said.

Beresford-Redman's passport had been confiscated and police in Mexico had described him as a suspect. Mexican officials previously said Beresford-Redman was barred from leaving the country.

However, Francisco Alor, the attorney general for Quintana Roo state, where Cancun is located, said Sunday there was no court order barring Beresford-Redman from leaving Mexico, although prosecutors have taken his passport.

"It's a migratory restriction," Alor said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

The family of the victim, Monica Beresford-Redman, strongly criticized Mexican investigators earlier this month, saying it had taken too long to make an arrest. They expressed concerned Bruce Beresford-Redman might flee Mexico or the case could fall apart if too much time passes.

Beresford-Redman reported his wife missing two days before her body was found, prosecutors have said. He told police he last saw her when she left the exclusive resort to go shopping and never returned, according to investigators.

Investigators have said the victim's body showed signs of asphyxiation and evidence of a heavy blow to the right temple.

Alor said he has received no notification that the television producer has left Mexico and the investigation into his wife's death would continue. Investigators have received the results of new forensic results and were preparing to turn over the evidence to a

Better schools for 55 cents a day

Editor:

In the past weeks I've been inundated with material seeking my vote in favor of Measure A, to help fund the Santa Monica/Malibu schools. Lots of mailers, e-mails, editorials. Perhaps because I'm a Samohi parent I get more than most. They tell of teachers that would be let go, increases in class size, dropping of arts and sports programs, etc. These are all very valid arguments to vote YES on the measure. I certainly did so. Though much less than was cut by the state, $5,800,000 directly to the school will be an enormous help.

However, for the 80 percent of the Santa Monica voters without children in our schools, I hope they are aware of another picture, the direct relationship between good schools and property values, desirability of the city, and related quality of life. Property values in Santa Monica are high, not in small measure due to the quality of schools. I get frequent calls from friends moving to he L.A. area wanting to know about housing in Santa Monica. "We hear the public schools are good there." There have been many studies done over past years to this end. The results are consistent: Better schools, higher property values; worse schools lower property values.

I hear complaints about being "nickel and dimed." Well, the Measure A assessment comes out to less than 55 cents per day. How much does everyone spend every day on one coffee, one parking meter, a soda, stamps on letters, etc.? It's sad to think that anyone in our city is objecting to this trivial amount for the education of children who will contribute to our city and our country as a whole.

Let's not dwell on whatever principles or imperfection that can be found in this measure and walk away from it out of spite. Bottom line is our schools need money, and maybe it's worth as much as that half cup of coffee or that extra pack of gum.

Rent wars rage on

SANTA MONICA'S GONZO ACTION Apartment Association is up to its old tricks. They've filed another lawsuit in Santa Monica Superior Court challenging Santa Monica's 31-year-old rent control laws. And, yes Virginia, it's an election year.

Action's latest complaint contends that apartment owners haven't been allowed to "pass through" to tenants the full cost of five property tax surcharges established since 1979 when rent control took effect.

Action's attorney Rosario Perry says the formula used by Rent Control Administration to determine annual rent increases does not take into account the real costs of this tax liability even though the current formula does add two percent annually each year to a property's accessed value. If Action prevails, it is predicted that rents in a rent-controlled building would rise by $140 per month for the average tenant.

Perry claims owners can only add these costs on to new rentals by charging higher rents to incoming tenants while older, established tenants get a free pass, But, I'm thinking that most owners have probably been adding these tax costs on to their new tenants' "market rate" rents for years. Nevertheless, Perry still claims it's unequal treatment and "unfair and unjustified"

Hello! All this time, I thought landlords were just asking for high rents because new tenants would pay them. And, isn't the key reason for rent control to protect long-term, senior and low-income tenants and preserve their housing?

Perhaps Perry could convince owners to rent out their vacant units at lower "rent control rates" instead of at inflated market rates. Then everything would be "fair and equal." Fat chance that's going to happen.

Costs of taxes such as college and school bond, school parcel taxes and 2006's "Clean Beaches and Ocean" taxes are now fully passed on to tenants. Owners don't pay one cent of these "voter approved" taxes. So, in the interest of equality and fair play, maybe City Hall should require landlords to pay a percentage of these costs, too? How about it, Rosario?

Since 1979, apartment buildings have substantially increased in value. Most property owners are enjoying handsome capital gains. Isn't it "only fair and equitable" they share their gains with tenants? Anybody want to sue landlords on this issue?

Action Apartment Association has been in the forefront with numerous legal challenges to the city's rent control laws since the beginning of rent control. They haven't prevailed in most cases. A similar complaint dealing with constitutionality issues was dismissed by the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, In December of 2007

In July 2004, Action sued City Hall stating that Santa Monica's rent control laws were allegedly in violation of the 5th amendment. Action's WAM newsletter trumpeted, "This lawsuit is the mother of all lawsuits and we will seek to have the federal court declare that Santa Monica, West Hollywood and Los Angeles' rent control laws are unconstitutional. Once and for all, we will wipe out the regulatory processes of this SMRR (Santa Monicans for Renters' Rights) city council (sic) which seeks to harbor rich tenants on our properties to enrich their economic life style." Oh, brother.

Action lost and their badly-timed legal assault and their "chest-thumping" handed SMRR a big victory in the fall elections. It appears that Action and its counsel were so self-centered and selfish, they didn't care about the blowback.

In the meantime, Rent Control Administration has recommended a two percent annual rent increase for September 2010 through August 2011 for rent controlled units. While I'm sure apartment owners will piss and moan about being "robbed," it's a reasonable compromise. A person paying $900 monthly rent will face an $18 increase.

Congratulations to the Rent Control Administration for its good work. The full Rent Control Board will vote on the recommendation at its June 1 meeting and City Council will officially certify the increase this summer.

BIGGER AND DUMBER

Item 8-B on this week's City Council agenda is the review of Development Agreement for a 284-room hotel/commercial project at Seventh Street and Wilshire Boulevard. The project would retain and remodel the landmark Santa Monica Professional Building and add a seven floor (81-feet high) tower with a rooftop pool at the rear of the property.

Required community benefits proposed include a mixed-use, deed-restricted (affordable/ workforce/senior) housing project with ground floor retail and on a separate property at 1218 Lincoln Blvd. Improvements to Reed Park, on-site bike and car rental and local recruiting and hiring preference are also possibilities. The benefits are insufficient for this oversized project.

Holy political correctness! Item 13- C is interim Councilmember Terry O'Day's request that council adopt a resolution denouncing Arizona's recently approved anti-Illegal immigration law and approve a boycott of Arizona businesses. Please, Terry. You're not running for the Senate ... yet.

Instead of this inanity, "environmentalist" O'Day should call for boycotting Japan because of their ongoing slaughters of whales, dolphins and other endangered sea creatures. Remember "The Hump?"

Reiley said.

A former pastry chef at Los Angeles' posh Hotel Bel-Air, Cruz's inadvertent weight gain led to a new career after he shed the pounds on the Discovery Health Network's "Body Challenge 3."

That led to a show on the Food Network called "Calorie Commando," which focused on remaking favorite recipes in low-calorie versions. The show lasted 39 episodes and ended in 2006.

Cruz then published "The Calorie Countdown Cookbook."

Campbell's attorney, Blair Berk, has declined comment. Food Network said it has no current relationship with Cruz.

Getting tough on smokers

There is a movement afoot to expand Santa Monica's already strict smoking laws. The new rules would restrict smoking on patios and balconies of multi-unit residences.

So, this week's Q-Line question asks:
Would you support such a rule, or do you think it goes too far?

Call (310) 285-8106 before Friday at 5 p.m. and we'll print your answers in the weekend edition of the Daily Press.

judge, he said.

"The judge will decide whether to issue an arrest order against whoever is responsible," Alor said. "And we would execute that and locate whoever is responsible."

Quintana Roo deputy attorney general Rodolfo Garcia said Friday that investigators had tried twice to summon the television producer for questioning but could not locate him.

Investigators asked the U.S. consulate in Merida, another city on the Yucatan peninsula, to "present" Beresford-Redman but were told he was not in the custody of the diplomatic mission, Garcia said.

The U.S. Embassy has referred inquiries about the case to the State Department. A State Department official said he had no immediate information about the case.

According to the Department of Homeland Security, U.S. citizens entering the United States by air must show a passport. However, citizens entering by land and or sea can show several other types of documents, including an enhanced driver's license.

Beresford-Redman has retained legal representation in both countries, Hirsch said Sunday in the statement.

the Colorado law firm Garfield & Hecht.

Ferguson's client, Ray Larsen from Miami Beach, Fla., is currently suing SGG for allegedly accepting a $250,000 payment for gold coins and failing to deliver the product or return his money.

According to a complaint filed by Larsen last December, "Upon information and belief, SGG and [their president John] March have used and/or lost Larsen's money in a Ponzi-type scheme and/or have used Larsen's money to capitalize on the run-up in the price of gold for Defendants' own illegal benefit."

Larsen and Ferguson are still waiting to go to court, a process which has been further complicated by difficulties in contacting representatives from SGG. Ferguson expressed that interaction with the company's attorney has been less than straightforward.

"I've spoken to him and haven't got much help out of him," said Ferguson. "I'm not sure where he is actually located."

The case will go to court in the coming months.

According to Ferguson, reports of fraud have been emerging across the country.

"We've spoken to people in Arizona, the Carolinas, Georgia, and we're suing them in Florida," said Ferguson. "We've been contacted from people all over."

Calls to the company's attorney for comment have not been returned.

SGG's website claims that the company "has been in business for 10 years without complaint," though it mentions that "a disgruntled employee" has posted negative reviews on the Internet. The website further asserts that the "employee" is being sued.

The company's website claims that they have maintained a "stellar reputation" over their 10 year history, receiving "nothing short of glowing praise" through the Federal Trade Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, and the Better Business Bureau (BBB).

The BBB has given the company an "F" rating, partly based on the fact that out of 25 complaints, six have gone unanswered.

"It's common for this kind of business to have occasional complaints," commented an official from the City Attorney's office. "Even legitimate businesses have complaints from time to time. Still, the rating is not the only thing you want to look at."

News of SGG's investigation came to light shortly after New York Congressman Anthony Weiner publicly attacked Gold Line International — another gold company based in Santa Monica — claiming that it overcharges for its coins and uses unethical marketing tactics that play on customers' fears of the troubled U.S. economy.

Weiner also criticized talk show host Glenn Beck, a professed client of Gold Line International whose show is also sponsored by the company. Superior Gold Group has also run commercials during Beck's show.

Though the controversy over gold coins is as political as it is financial, for others like Roberts, it is very personal.

"I'm 73 years old and in bad health," Roberts said. "I could try to get a lawyer and go to court but that would probably cost me more than what I've already lost."

Representatives from SGG could not be reached for comment after several phone calls and visits to their Santa Monica office.

sidered impractical to cancel the bulk of the deals, officials said.

O'Day said the boycott he's proposing would not be "unnecessarily costly to the city or disruptive of its process."

The proposal already has an additional supporter in Councilman Kevin McKeown.

"Los Angeles and San Francisco stepped up long before we had a chance to, so our action as a much smaller city will be more symbolic than effective, but I'll support it," he said of the proposal last week.

CLEANER AIR: Governments have been loathe to impose new environmental restrictions on the ailing airline industry, but some airlines and plane makers are taking steps to improve their eco-footprints. The Boeing Dreamliner 787, pictured here and due to debut in late 2010, is 20 percent more fuel efficient than older models due to more efficient engines, aerodynamic improvements and the widespread use of lighter composite materials to reduce weight.

Flying the cleaner skies

Dear EarthTalk

Can airplanes be run on cleaner fuels or be electric powered? Are there changes afoot in the airline business to find cleaner fuels?

Reema Islam
Dhaka, Bangladesh

GIVEN AIR TRAVEL'S HUGE CONTRIBUTION to our collective carbon footprint — flying accounts for about three percent of carbon emissions worldwide by some estimates — and the fact that basic passenger and cargo jet designs haven't changed significantly in decades, the world is certainly ready for greener forms of flying.

But since air travel emissions were not regulated under the Kyoto Protocol, the international agreement signed in 1997 that set binding targets for reducing greenhouse gas emissions, the friendly skies aren't much greener than they were a few decades ago. And most national governments have been reluctant to impose new environmental restrictions on the already ailing airline industry.

Nonetheless, some airlines and airplane manufacturers are taking steps to improve their eco-footprints. Southwest and Continental have implemented fuel efficiency improvements, waste reduction programs and increased recycling, and are investing in newer, more fuel efficient airplanes. Another airline on the cutting edge of green is Virgin Atlantic, which made news in early 2008 when it became the first major carrier to test the use of biofuels (liquid fuels derived from plant matter) on passenger jet flights. Now Air New Zealand, Continental, Japan Airlines (JAL), JetBlue, and Lufthansa are also testing biofuels.

Even airplane maker Boeing is getting in on the act by developing a carbon-neutral jet fuel made from algae. Boeing's newest commercial jet, the much vaunted 787 Dreamliner (now in final testing before late 2010 delivery to several airlines), is 20 percent more fuel efficient than its predecessors thanks to more efficient engines, aerodynamic improvements and the widespread use of lighter composite materials to reduce weight. Airbus is also incorporating more lightweight composite materials into its new planes.

On the extreme end of the innovation spectrum are zero-emission airplanes that make use of little or no fuel. The French company, Lisa, is building a prototype small plane, dubbed the Hy-Bird, that uses solar power (via photovoltaic cells on the elongated wingspan) and hydrogen-powered fuel cells to fly with zero emissions — and nearly no engine noise. The company claims the Hy-Bird is the first 100 percent eco-friendly plane, and is readying a round-the-world flight punctuated by 30 event-filled stopovers.

Even more unusual is the proposed fuel-free plane dreamed up by Mississippi-based Hunt Aviation. The company is working on a prototype small plane that harnesses the natural forces of buoyancy (thanks to helium-filled pontoons) for lift-offs and gravity for landings — along with an on-board wind turbine and battery to power everything in between — to achieve flight without any fuel whatsoever.

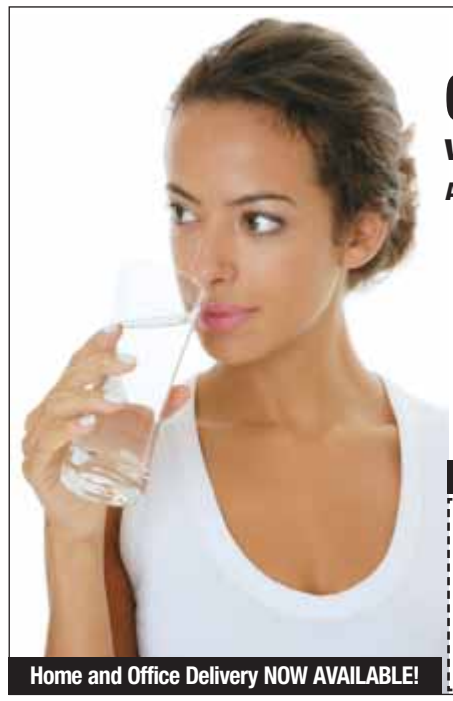

Don't look for these futuristic planes on airport runways anytime soon. It will likely be decades before this technology filters its way up to the big leagues. Until then, take a train or bus instead. If you must fly, compensate for your flight's emissions by buying a "carbon offset" from TerraPass or CarbonFund.org, which will use the money to fund alternative energy and other greenhouse-gas reduction projects.

Gulf spill soils marshes

GREG BLUESTEIN
MATTHEW BROWN
Associated Press Writers

COVINGTON, La. The dire impact of the massive Gulf spill was apparent Sunday on oil-soaked islands where pelicans nest as several of the birds splashed in the water and preened themselves, apparently trying to clean crude from their feet and wings.

Pelican eggs were glazed with rust-colored gunk in the bird colony, with thick globs floating on top% of the water. Nests sat precariously close the mess in mangrove trees. As oil crept farther into the delicate wetlands in Barataria Bay off Louisiana, BP officials said Sunday that one of their efforts to slow the leak wasn't working as effectively as before.

BP spokesman John Curry told The Associated Press on Sunday that a mile-long tube inserted into the leaking well siphoned some 57,120 gallons of oil within the past 24 hours, a sharp drop from the 92,400 gallons of oil a day that the device was sucking up on Friday. However, the company has said the amount of oil siphoned will vary widely from day to day.

Engineers are working furiously to stem the growing ooze as more wildlife and delicate coastal wetlands are tainted despite the oil-absorbing booms placed around shorelines to protect them.

A pelican colony off Louisiana's coast was awash in oil Saturday, and an Associated Press photographer saw several birds and their eggs coated in the ooze while nests rested in mangroves precariously close to the crude that had washed in. Workers had surrounded the island with the booms, but puddles of oil had seeped through the barrier.

Meanwhile, three top Obama administration officials are returning to the Gulf Coast to monitor the spill response.

Anger with the government and BP, which leased the rig and is responsible for the cleanup, has boiled over as the spill spreads.

Former Dodger Lima dies

BETH HARRIS
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES Jose Lima, the energetic All-Star right-hander who was a 21-game winner and dubbed his outings on and off the mound as "Lima Time," died Sunday, the Los Angeles Dodgers said. He was 37.

Lima, who won 13 games with the Dodgers in 2004, died of an apparent heart attack, according to the Aguilas Cibaenas, a winter ball team that Lima had played for in the Dominican Republic.

"Lima was an exceptional man. This is a great loss for Dominican baseball and the country," team president Winston Llenas said.

Lima posted his best season in 1999 when he was selected to the All-Star game as a Houston Astro. He went 21-10 in 35 starts with a 3.58 ERA for the NL Central champions.

"It saddened me greatly to hear of Jose's passing," Astros owner Drayton McLane said. "He was truly a gifted person both on the field and off of it. He could dance, he could sing, but his best gift of all was that he was an extremely happy person. He just lit up our clubhouse with his personality, which was his greatest asset. Jose was not shortchanged in life in any way. He lived life to the fullest every day."

Heal the Bay is a non-profit environmental organization dedicated to making Santa Monica Bay and Southern California coastal waters safe and healthy for people and marine life.
Heal the Bay

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card® is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Look past the obvious, Aquarius

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Defer to others, but keep your instincts intact. You cannot change others, or their decisions. A meeting proves to be inspiring and triggers your imagination. The unexpected occurs, though you might not choose to discuss it. Know that everything will work out. Tonight: Defer to others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Lie low. Give yourself a chance to understand what is happening in your daily life. You might need to grasp the dynamics of a meeting. This information might be more important than you realize. Tonight: Follow another's suggestion.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Your ability to get past an issue needs to come into play. You have a unique way of taking an idea then spinning out from that point. Investigate options that surround a situation. A boss could be unpredictable. Let it go. Tonight: Let your hair down.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Keep up with the basics. Listen to feedback from partners, associates and wise ones. The combination could draw quite a bit of possibilities and options. You are getting only part of the story. Tonight: Happily head home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You might want to touch base more frequently. Creativity comes from those you contact with greater frequency. Your imagination knows no limits. As a result, you have an unpredictability that delights others. Tonight: Talking up a storm.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ Defer to others, at least for the moment. Remember, you aren't signing any papers or making ironclad agreements. At least, you need to delay any agreements. Let others see more of what is going on. Tonight: Say "yes" to an offer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Others can only talk about what you feel and think. You alone know. The level of speculation is such that you cannot keep everyone guessing. Be willing to state your case clearly and loudly. What do you really have to lose? Tonight: Add a quality of playfulness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Much is cooking behind the scenes. You might want to rethink a decision involving a family member. You don't have the complete story. Someone is hiding some details. Wait to see if you get more facts. The unexpected occurs. Tonight: Could be late.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Zero in on what you believe is important and basic. Your sixth sense comes forward and allows for a great deal of unpredictability. You remain calm while others quickly become frazzled. Tonight: At home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ Listen to a boss, or act like a boss. You understand authority, no matter which end you are on. What appears to be a moneymaking scheme is just that: a scheme. Give yourself the space to check out the details. Tonight: Burning the midnight oil.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Keep reaching out for those at a distance. Your imagination knows no limits -- nearly -- when you need to deal with a problem. Brainstorm with others. Financial matters have a most unpredictable tone. Tonight: Look past the obvious.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ One-on-one relating reveals much more. However, you could find that your instincts are right-on with a partnership matter. The unexpected occurs when dealing with a loved one or a key associate. Don't react or overreact. Tonight: Listen to a suggestion.

Happy birthday

This year, you will have many opportunities to change your lifestyle, the quality of your work and your involvement in daily matters. You are full of personality and energy. Often what happens appears to come from out of left field, somewhat surprising you. Sometimes you will need to simply stop and think about events. Through this process, you'll see connections. If you are single, you will meet many people in your daily life. You can afford to be discriminating in your choices.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

ARITHMO™ CrossMath

• Fill the grid with the set of given numbers (1 to 12) to satisfy the Equa demands (7 to 24) in the shaded boxes. The Equa demands represent the sum of the digits that you will insert into the empty squares.
• Each horizontal row has one Equa demand to satisfy; each vertical column also has one demand to satisfy. Each empty square in the grid dictates the math operation (addition +, subtraction -, multiplication X, and division ÷) that must be performed to meet the demands.
• You must follow the given math operations for each square and you must make sure all the numbers satisfy the demands in the shaded boxes when connected in adjacent threes and calculated together from left to right, and top to bottom.
• The numbers you insert into the grid must satisfy the Equa demands both horizontally and vertically.

For more games, go to www.arithmo.com

Fill in the empty fields with the given numbers so when calculated together they satisfy all Equas in the gray boxes:

2, 3, 7, 8, 12

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Robert Jordan filed a lawsuit in May 1997 against the New London, Conn., police department for illegal discrimination, claiming he was rejected as an officer solely because he scored too high on an intelligence test. The department admitted the discrimination, offering the defense that a person of such intelligence would quickly get bored with police work. U.S. District Judge Peter Dorsey agreed with the department and dismissed the lawsuit.

■ Briton Robert Dee, feeling humiliated at being called the "world's worst tennis pro" by London's Daily Telegraph (and other news organizations) sued the newspaper for libel last year. After taking testimony in February 2010, the judge tossed out the lawsuit in April, persuaded by Dee's having lost 54 consecutive international tour matches (all in straight sets). Fearful of an opposite result, 30 other news organizations had already apologized to Dee for disparaging him, and some even paid him money in repentance, but the Telegraph had stood its ground (and was, of course, humble in victory, titling its story on the outcome, "'World's Worst' Tennis Player Loses Again").

TODAY IN HISTORY

1218 The Fifth Crusade leaves Acre for Egypt.
1276 Magnus Ladulås is crowned King of Sweden in Uppsala Cathedral.
1487 Lambert Simnel is crowned as "King Edward VI" at Dublin, Ireland.
1595 Nomenclator of Leiden University Library appears, the first printed catalog of an institutional library.
1621 The Protestant Union is formally dissolved.
1626 Peter Minuit buys Manhattan.
1689 The English Parliament passes the Act of Toleration protecting Protestants. Roman Catholics are intentionally excluded.
1738 John Wesley is converted, essentially launching the Methodist movement; the day is celebrated annually by Methodists as Aldersgate Day.
1798 Irish Rebellion of 1798 led by the United Irishmen against British rule begins.
