Montana garden project appealed to City Council

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

Plans for an educational garden project at 4th and Montana could get pruned this week when City Council hears an appeal of the project.

The Rainbow Garden has been trying to take root at 401 Montana Ave. since 2015 and the project recently went before the Planning Commission who approved the use with several conditions. A group of residents have filed an appeal that doesn't oppose the project opening but does ask for additional restrictions on opening hours and allowed events.

According to the staff report, the project would replace a currently vacant

Council will consider more than $5M in total spending for the new field at the Civic Center this week.

As part of the consent calendar, Council could approve $4,767,144 with C.S. Legacy Construction for building the field, $97,818 with AECOM for testing/inspection services and $416,900 with Simpson & Simpson Management Consulting for construction management services.

Staff said C.S. Legacy was the lowest bidder for the project and had positive references.

"Staff contacted references who provided positive recommendations for C.S. Legacy Construction, Inc. for prior park improvement project experience in the cities of Santa Monica, Indio, San Marcos and Laguna Niguel. All references reported that work was completed in a timely and cost-efficient manner while maintaining consistent quality," said the report.

Santa Monica's Vinesmoke puts the char in Chardonnay

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

With Memorial Day kicking off the summer season, many Santa Monicans will enjoy the flavors of the grill accompanied by a glass of their favorite wine but starting this year, a new company is offering the best of both worlds.

Santa Monica based Vinesmoke is launching in June offering pre-packaged wood clippings from vineyards. The wood can be used for grilling or smoking and the practice has its literal roots in the European wine industry where the annual pruning of grape vines would create a surplus of vineyard wood that locals used for cooking.

Co-Founder Kiel Stubblefield said his business partners come from Spain where the practice has a strong following and the pair decided to import the tradition.

"Much to our surprise, nobody was doing it here," he said. "It's a really unique product. We want to share that with everyone and it comes from our love of food and wine."

Stubblefield moved to Santa Monica in 2005 and established another enterprise with his business partner. He said the city might not be known for growing grapes, but it's been a good place to live and work.

"I've been a Westside guy for the last 15 years," he said. "My business partner and I worked here for a long time, we have offices here, we love it here. It's convenient for business to be close to everything and it's been really cool to see it develop over the years. It's been cool to watch the evolution of the town."

Stubblefield said he's excited for the wood to be on sale locally and the company has secured distribution at several Whole

Simpson & Simpson were chosen from a list of pre-qualified companies after an interview with staff.

"Simpson & Simpson's team has extensive knowledge and experience working on numerous municipal projects. Most recently, they successfully managed the construction of a synthetic turf sports field project for the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District," said the report.

AECOM were also chosen from a pre-qualified list.

"AECOM's proposal also included their reputable corporate structure and excellent references on prior similar projects with the City of Los Angeles as well as the City of Santa Monica, including the Reed Park Improvement Project and Ozone Park Improvement Project," said the staff justification for recommendation.

The field is the largest project included in the 2018/20 Capital Improvement Program Budget with a total appropriation of $ $8,114,859 million.

"The Council-approved budget for the project includes funding for construction, construction management, material testing and deputy inspection services, technology infrastructure, unanticipated subsurface conditions (e.g., mud, soil contaminants and ground water) and other project costs," said the report.

The field has been on the books since at least 2005 but gained new momentum in recent years. Staff said the project should accommodate users of all abilities.

"The project site is approximately 3.5 acres and currently contains a large asphalt surface parking lot ("Civic Lot")," said the report. "The proposed project includes the removal of 644 parking spaces to accommodate a multi-purpose sports field, modular restroom building, landscaping and pedestrian lighting, and the removal of an additional 52 parking spaces to accommodate a new fire lane that would serve the Early Childhood Lab School ("ECLS")."

The project will have synthetic turf, a universally accessible public restroom and walking paths. The field will be usable at night due to the construction of lights and security will be enhanced through the construction of an 8-foot-high perimeter chain-link fence and the use of 24-foot-high ball containment netting.

Items on the consent calendar are considered routine and are often approved as a group with no council discussion. Councilmembers can ask for discussion of a specific item during the meeting.

Council will meet on Tuesday, May 28 in City Hall, 1685 Main St. Closed session begins at 5:30 p.m. and open session begins no earlier than 6:30 p.m.

Foods stores starting June. Vinesmoke will be on sale in Malibu, Venice, El Segundo, Fairfax and Burbank. Medium bags will be on sale for $19.99 and large bags will cost $29.99.

He said the amount of food that can be cooked with the wood varies based on the method (smoking requires less than grilling) but even the smaller bag will cover multiple meals. He described the flavor as "kind of earthy with a berry sweetness."

"It's a very complex flavor. When you smoke with hickory or mesquite, you kind of know what you're getting, you can tell those flavors, but this is really interesting, very unique, very complex," he said.

Stubblefield said they are working on introducing the product to local restaurants and as the first wine-related product for the BBQ or grill, they are developing recipes and tasting guides to help home cooks.

The wood is certified sustainable and non-GMO. Stubblefield said the same attention that goes into maximizing grape quality is shown in the wood itself.

"We've been really, really careful and spent a lot of time and energy making sure we got the absolute best quality grapes and vines we can for this," he said.

The company is also launching a pair of wines made from the vines that will be for sale on their website.

Stubblefield said he hopes the concept of vines as cooking fuel will eventually be as common as applewood.

"One of the angles we're approaching with is to use the term vinesmoke as an adjective, a descriptor," he said. "We want to use that to describe how we smoke it, I think it's really cool."

Voices of Hope Gala Raises Record Breaking $681,000 for St. Joseph Center

File Photo

FUNDRAISER: Guests bidding on 176 exciting items during the silent auction.

Nearly 500 attendees came together to celebrate and support the great work of St. Joseph Center (SJC) on Saturday, May 18 at the annual Voices of Hope Gala. The event raised $681,000 for SJC, a leading 501(c)3 non-profit that provides social services for individuals in need and those experiencing homelessness. Time Magazine Co-Person of the Year and Award-Winning Journalist Dr. Wendy Walsh hosted the evening with gratitude and compassion. As a Venice local, she was introduced to SJC through a ride-along experience with one of the organization's street outreach teams. Having seen first-hand what the organization does every-day, she brought the motto of "Hope Through Empowerment" to light for the audience. Fellow community leader Monsignor Lloyd Torgerson of St. Monica's Catholic Church opened the evening with a heart-felt invocation, followed by a welcome from Los Angeles City Councilman Mike Bonin.

"We need your help. We have landed men on the moon, so we can end homelessness in LA - with help from organizations like St. Joseph Center," Bonin said.

This year's "Hope Through Empowerment" Award was presented to St. Monica School President, UCLA Anderson Professor, and longtime St. Joseph Center Board Chairman Kevin McCardle. As a dedicated educator and community advocate, McCardle has been a vocal leader for SJC for the last decade - watching the agency grow from 100 to 350 staff members. McCardle actively volunteers and leads with gracious dignity.

"Where would St. Joseph Center be without you, we'd be nowhere near as well off as we are," Torgerson said of McCardle. "You are absolutely the right person at this time to receive this honor."

McCardle said what makes St. Joseph Center unique is the "lived out charism of the (staff) - the caring for their neighbors with no judgment." He also mentioned one of the things that keeps him inspired is "the privilege of working with CEO Va Lecia Adams Kellum." As he accepted his award, he thanked the team that makes St. Joseph Center unique - the volunteers, the Sisters of St. Joseph Carondelet who founded the organization in 1976, the network of supporters, family and friends of clients, and staff.

"Kevin has a way of making us all feel special, loved, heard, and seen," said Va Lecia Adams Kellum, the CEO and President of SJC.

Before ending the evening, former client and Codetalk graduate Alana was honored for her success and perseverance in overcoming adversity. Working for Sony's QA department as a technical business analyst, Alana was recently housed after completing St. Joseph Center's Codetalk program which teaches women coding skills for jobs in the tech industry.

"What was remarkable about Alana is not that she lost her fear, it's that she moved forward in spite of it. She is an inspiration and profound proof that we must continue to uplift the many others out there like her," said Sharon Plunkett, Director of Programs. Proudly, this annual event provides necessary funds to uplift others like Alana. The agency's wrap-around service approach empowers others by meeting them where they are at - from outreach and engagement, housing assistance, mental health services, and job training programs. The funds raised this year will help serve over 10,000 working-poor and homeless families and individuals in the upcoming year.

Mental Health and the Role of Trauma-Informed Care

We often hear misguided assumptions about the causal relationship between physical and mental wellbeing and one's housing status.

Too frequently, the role trauma plays is absent from that conversation.

Living without secure shelter comes with an incredible amount of inherent risk. You must worry about where your next meal will come from, where you will store your possessions (including any medications), and where you will lay down to safely sleep. You may be robbed. You may be harassed. You may be assaulted. Instability becomes the norm. This constant state of flux and exposure to risk, in conjunction with the social stigma surrounding homelessness, will affect your mental wellbeing regardless of your condition when you first lost your place to live.

Prolonged exposure to elevated stress hormones as a result of homelessness is likely to trigger mental health issues or compound existing ones. Without access to mental health care, these issues will only become more deeply entrenched in your neurological pathways. You may choose to self-medicate to relieve your psychological pain, which will only exacerbate the underlying issues. Trauma, especially chronic trauma, takes a dramatic toll on your body.

This is in addition to trauma that may have led to homelessness in the first place, including situations of abusive environments and domestic violence.

At The People Concern, we are firm believers in trauma-informed care and require that all staff are trained to consider the role of lived experience in their work. We recognize that behavior cannot simply be categorized into "good" and "bad," but that people in actively unsafe situations may make unsafe choices to protect themselves in that moment. Instead of asking the people we serve "what's wrong with you?" we ask "what happened to you?" You must understand someone's context in order to help.

As such, The People Concern takes a comprehensive, integrated approach to both physical and mental wellness. We offer a wide array of programs to fit the needs of each unique individual. Options include individual and group therapy, psychiatric care, art therapy, exercise classes, and nutrition education. Individuals are empowered to choose which programs they believe would be best suited to help them begin to heal.

In this way, the people we serve are given a safe, stable place to integrate their experiences into their self-narrative removed from the shame of the social stigma surrounding their housing status. There are some in our community who believe that only people who have already worked through their trauma "deserve" housing. At The People Concern, we believe that stable housing is the only way people will feel safe enough to lay down the burdens of their trauma and begin the process of unpacking it. We believe that everyone should, and deserves to be, housed, healthy and safe.

apartment building with an open-plan classroom building and large garden area. The non-profit facility would be open to schools to learn about gardening, food preparation, nutrition and other topics. The Planning Commission also allowed it to host special events throughout the year.

"The appeal points ... relate to operating conditions that they maintain will not adequately control activity to protect the neighborhood; the opaque fence/hedge proposed along 4th Street; and impacts related to parking and special events," said the staff report.

According to staff, some of the appeal requests should be incorporated into the project requirements, some are unnecessary and others could be partially addressed with compromise revisions.

The appellants are asking that a fence around the property be transparent and that the front of the project not be obscured from the street. Staff said the current approvals require the Architectural Review Board to review these concerns and said those decisions should be left to the ARB rather than mandated by Council.

Staff are rejecting a request that mandates the garden be closed on weekends saying it's not necessary based on the other operating conditions of the site. However, staff supports closing the garden on all legal holidays.

Several requests are related to special events that could occur on site. The appellants are asking for additional restrictions on parking during large events, a reduction in the hours of allowed events and a narrower definition of a special event.

Staff are recommending changes to the approval that address some of those concerns. The recommendation says parking requirements are already part of the approval and don't need a revision however, they are supporting a stricter limit on the ability of special events to make noise after 9 p.m. on weekdays or 10 p.m. on weekends.

Staff also support the final request to restrict the kind of activities that qualify as a special event.

"As discussed above, the Planning Commission expanded the capacity for special events to allow 52 small special events and 12 large special events per year. On this point, the appellants have not questioned the number of events permitted but are seeking to narrow the definition of such events that would be allowed through the CUP entitlement without need to receive a TUP," said the report. "Given this discussion, and the applicants' intent for this use to operate within the definition of a school, the appellant's request to narrow the special events definition is reasonable and seems to be consistent with Planning Commission's intent. Furthermore, it adds an element of neighborhood protection that is appropriate to include in a conditional use permit."

Council will meet on Tuesday, May 28 in City Hall, 1685 Main St. Closed session begins at 5:30 p.m. Open session begins no earlier than 6:30 p.m.

a backdrop. Relay teams comprised of one to five riders on indoor cycling bikes, provided by STAGES INDOOR CYCLING, will enjoy live music, celebrity guest appearances, fun activities, food and drinks from local restaurants such as Sweetfin Poke, Benny's Tacos, Krispy Kreme, Factor's Famous Deli, Ike's Love & Sandwiches and more.

"What makes Pedal on the Pier so unique is that it's an energetic outdoor philanthropic fundraising event at an iconic ocean-front location," said Joyce Hyser Robinson, co-founder of HRF and Camp Ubuntu. "It's an incredible event that nets close to a million dollars, attracts around 1,500 participants and guests while maintaining an intimacy and sense of community that is uncommon at most fundraisers of this size. The positive energy is infectious, and you can't help but have a great time while raising money to help kids, schools, and families in LA's marginalized communities."

In past years, Pedal on the Pier has attracted celebrity supporters including Craig Robinson, Senator Bernie Sanders, Molly Sims, Flea (Red Hot Chili Peppers), David Duchovny, Paul Pierce, Evander Holyfield, Victor Ortiz, Josh Malina, Hilary & Haylie Duff, Rosanna Arquette, Baron Davis, Steven R. McQueen and Luc Robitaille. These supporters helped raise funds for camp-based

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 27)

You have what people want. You give what they need. You take in a way that's beneficial to all. Your connectedness to the world feels so natural and easy, though you've worked very hard to get to this point. Other highlights include lifting a person or venture like only you can, a major sale and an exciting hobby. Sagittarius and Aquarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 49, 3, 33, 26 and 15.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Here come the roadblocks, objections and claims that you just can't get there from here. False. "Here" is the starting place to anywhere on earth and beyond.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You don't have to have the answers to lead the team. You do need the posture and presence of a leader and the willingness to observe carefully so you can ask the questions that will reveal the best destination and route.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You know that what matters to you isn't necessarily what matters to the organization, the family or group. Still, there will be some crossover and a clear way to promote your interests and theirs simultaneously.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Though you need attention (everyone does), you only want it from certain people. This is how the social swirl goes around. Your compassion and an open, friendly attitude will serve you well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Recognizing others takes courage, as there's a kind of presentation involved. It can be nerve-wracking to try and come up with just the right words and gestures to make someone feel acknowledged. It's well worth the effort.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A thing to remember about moods: Life's beautiful highlights live at a certain elevation. For those down in an emotional pit, such elevations will be harder to reach. Getting to an emotional "sea level" will come first.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You start out enacting a typical day in the life of you, and then something happens to make business as usual an impossibility. You'll be rather brilliant at handling whatever comes up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Luck can be a fickle fairy. She doesn't want to be captured or courted. She lands on what's interesting to her; there's nothing you can do to make it more or less so. Ignore her. Do your work. She'll drop in wherever she wants.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The world of your thoughts matters to varying degrees, and usually only to you. It will benefit you to lose a certain amorphous, formless group of thoughts that's holding you back right now. Just drop it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). If you look back, it will be easy to see the ways in which you have become and remain totally trapped. But if you send your energy forward, the illusion of this problem will disappear completely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). A sudden realization will be an experience to remember. You didn't see it coming, and your reaction to it is visceral. You know this is the truth, and it will change the way you view things from here onward.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You'll be excellent at focusing on what will make a difference to your bottom line, ignoring what won't and knowing the difference between those two things, practically at first sight.

Memorial Day Moon

The spiritual Pisces moon is fitting for Memorial Day, conjuring strong memories and reaching into the essence of our connection to others, which often boils down to a particular feeling. "Perhaps they are not stars, but rather openings in heaven where the love of our lost ones shines down to let us know they are happy." – Eskimo legend

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS

"I feel like my girlfriend is lying to me, but I haven't caught her in a lie. Do you think it's in my head? She tells me she's at work, but then she gets home much later than closing time and smells like she's been in a bar. Why does she feel she has to lie about going somewhere with her friends? How do I get my Pisces to tell the truth?"

Dishonesty isn't indicative of one sign or another; it's indicative of human nature. Our species evolved to be clever as a survival mechanism. At a very young age, children learn that giving the acceptable answer may keep them out of trouble temporarily. Then, hopefully, they learn that the trouble that follows a lie is usually much worse than the original trouble they were lying about.

Your Pisces is lying because she doesn't want to have an uncomfortable conversation with you. She wants her after-work party life to herself and doesn't want to have to be accountable to what you think about it. When you approach her next time, try making it safer for her to tell you the truth. Can you call her out gently? Sooner is better than later, before dishonesty has a chance to erode the relationship.

CELEBRITY PROFILES

Gemini Chris Colfer recently released "A Tale of Magic" the first of a new series set in the best-selling "Land of Stories" universe. The Golden Globe winner and New York Times best-selling author was born under a soulful Cancer moon, and his natal Venus is in feisty Aries. Mars in Pisces shows an almost psychic sense when it comes to his work.

Forests and the trees

Dear EarthTalk: What is so-called Forest Therapy? – Larry Schwarzwald, Page, AZ

Forest therapy uses immersion in nature to help soothe frayed nerves and restore a sense of mental well-being — and has even been shown to boost our immune systems and help us recover faster from physical maladies. The modern forest therapy movement is rooted in the Shinrin-yoku "forest bathing" practice developed in Japan in the 1980s that has since become a central part of preventative health care and healing in Japanese medicine.

"There are an infinite number of healing activities that can be incorporated into a walk in a forest or any other natural area," reports the Association of Nature and Forest Therapy Guides and Programs (ANFT), which trains students to become certified forest therapists. "An activity is likely to be healing when it makes room for listening, for quiet and accepting presence, and for inquiry through all eight of the sensory modes we possess."

Practitioners insist that forest therapy is rooted in science, citing dozens of research papers documenting the healing powers of something as simple as a stroll in the woods. According to ANFT, forest bathing seems to significantly mitigate the root cause of a multitude of ailments: stress. Given the role of stress in everything from headaches, high blood pressure, heart problems, diabetes, skin conditions, asthma, arthritis and other health problems, forest therapy could be an important part of staying or getting healthy.

"Levels of the stress hormone cortisol decreased in test subjects after a walk in the forest, when compared with a control group of subjects who engaged in walks within a laboratory setting," adds ANFT. "Forest bathing catalyzes increased parasympathetic nervous system activity which prompts rest, conserves energy, and slows down the heart rate while increasing intestinal and gland activity."

The research bears out the theory: the average concentration of salivary cortisol — a stress hormone — in people who gazed out at forest scenery for 20 minutes was 13.4 percent lower than those in urban settings. Meanwhile, leisurely forest walks were measurably better than urban walks at reducing cortisol levels and sympathetic nerve activity and decreasing blood pressure and heart rate. Meanwhile, other research shows we are better at creative problem-solving after time spent in the wilderness. Additionally, nature immersion has been linked to an increase in immunity boosting "killer T" cells, which the body uses to stave off infections and even possibly to fight the growth of cancer cells.

While anyone can take a hike through the woods and indulge in their own form of forest bathing, going with a guide can make the experience that much more meaningful. And you no longer have to go to Japan to find someone experienced in Shinrin-yoku. ANFT has trained more than 600 forest therapy guides working in 40 countries across six continents to date. Check out its map and directory to find one near you, whether you're in North America, Western Europe, Southeast Asia, Australia or South America.

programming as a vehicle for personal empowerment and social change.

The Harold Robinson Foundation's vision is to provide unity and community through Camp Ubuntu. It began with an idea from co-founder, Jeff Robinson, almost 20 years ago, who believed that every child should have the same opportunities he experienced as a kid, no matter where they stand on the socio-economic ladder. In addition to Camp Ubuntu, HRF provides, free of charge, a summer day camp, Camp Ubuntu Watts, in the center of Watts, CA, at Markham Middle School. The summer camp is going into its fifth year. HRF also provides parenting workshops.

Ubuntu is an ancient African philosophy that means, "I am because we are." The HRF has adopted this philosophy as a tool to teach children the guiding principles of the Foundation which are: family, respect, unity, and community. This unifying principle frames all of Camp Ubuntu's programming. This past year, Camp Ubuntu hosted more than 2,000 students from 20 high-need schools mostly in the community of Watts.

To participate in Pedal on the Pier, riders can register and join a relay team or start their own team. Each team must raise a minimum of $2,500 to have a bike reserved the day of the event. Registered riders will receive a free T-shirt, swag bag, a meal ticket, and access to the 21 and over lounge with hosted alcoholic beverages from sponsors. There will also be a cash bar with beer and wine.

Those who are not able to ride, but would still like to show their support for family and friends can attend by donating to a team or a rider. This year, Pedal on the Pier is offering a limited number of tickets for spectators with a $100 donation to this private event. Spectator tickets include access to the festivities and hosted food and beverages. This will allow fans and supporters the chance to get in on the action and cheer on the cyclists. Spectators can also be a part of the performances, dancing, and kids' activities.

Doors open at 9:30 a.m., Red Carpet festivities commence at 10:00 a.m and cycling starts at 11 a.m. To sign up for a Pedal on the Pier team or donate to the Harold Robinson Foundation, please visit www.pedalonthepier.com.
