Rent Control Board considers support for expanded rent subsidies

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

The Rent Control Board will consider asking City Council to expand rent subsidies for senior citizens following a request from Chairperson Anastasia Foster at their last meeting.

City Hall approved a pilot program, Preserving Our Diversity (POD), in 2017 to set aside about $200,000 to subsidize rent for low-income, long-term residents, aged 62 and older, who live in rent controlled apartments. A report on the program is due to City Council in the coming months and Foster said she'd been personally tracking the program. She said it was important to pursue varied approaches to affordable housing that didn't always focus on new construction.

"I think it's worth reinforcing the notion that right in front of us is an enormous population that are already living in reasonably affordable units and these are our long term, mostly seniors in this community," she said.

Foster said the Board had a responsibility to weigh-in on the program even though City Council and the Housing Commission have primary responsibility over the program due to the RCB's first person experience with rent burdened residents.

She said new construction has become difficult due to a loss in state funding and working to keep people in their homes could be more cost efficient.

Council amends rules to allow bigger ADUs

KATE CAGLE
Daily Press Staff Writer

The City Council increased the maximum allowable size for Accessory Dwelling Units on large lots last week, increasing the allowable floor area from 650 square feet to 800 square feet on lots larger than 6,000 square feet. The Council also removed a 250 square foot restriction for second floor ADUs to allow homeowners to build apartments above their garages.

The average ADU submitted for plan check in the city is between 350 to 550 square feet, according to a recent report from the City's Planning Department. Also known as a granny flat, casita, or in-law

Eight years ago, The Harold Robinson Foundation (HRF) decided to create an event that would help less fortunate children get a piece of what many others may take for granted; a piece of nature. And so they did, eventually creating Pedal on the Pier.

One of the founders of HRF, Davis Moss, was inspired by a friend in New York that had created a foundation to help inner-city kids go to community college. Through a hundred-mile bike ride from Manhattan to the Hamptons, he raised a lot of money.

Moss and HRF wanted to try the same thing on the West Coast, so they gathered around 40 bikers and rode a 1000 miles- from Watts to Oxnard and then back to Malibu. The ride raised $100,000 dollars.

Moss's friend later created "Pedal on the Park," putting spinning bikes in Central Park instead of going out in real traffic, but the goal was still the same.

"We thought it was an incredible idea, and he said that he would help us get it organized the first year," said Michelle Brookman, Event Chair for Pedal on the Pier. "He told us to find the Central Park of the West Coast, we chose the Santa Monica Pier, and we did it."

The foundation itself first came to life because Jeff Robinson, one of the founders of HRF and Davis Moss' brother, Gerald Moss, own a

Santa Monica College Receives Presidential Award for Exports

The U.S. Department of Commerce recognized Santa Monica College (SMC) with the President's "E" Award for Exports. U.S. Secretary of Commerce Wilbur Ross presented the award to SMC at a ceremony kicking off World Trade Week in Washington, D.C., on Monday, May 21. SMC was the only community college to receive the "E" Award; two other four-year institutions, Colorado State University and Colorado Mesa University, were also recognized.

The President's "E" Award is the highest recognition any U.S. entity can receive for making a significant contribution to the expansion of U.S. exports; this is the first time that Santa Monica College has received it. SMC is a diverse minority-serving institution with the second highest international student population among community colleges in the nation with 3,400 students from over 100 countries worldwide.

"Santa Monica College has demonstrated a sustained commitment to export expansion. The 'E' Awards Committee was very impressed with the college's leadership role helping expand international student recruitment programs for other community colleges," said Secretary Ross in his congratulatory letter to SMC. "The college's use of partnerships and creative program development to create opportunities for underrepresented markets was also particularly notable...SMC's achievements have undoubtedly contributed to national export expansion efforts that support the U.S. economy and create American jobs."

SMC Superintendent/President Dr. Kathryn E. Jeffery called the award a "testament to Santa Monica College's commitment to global citizenship and promoting higher education opportunities within California, the U.S., and beyond national borders."

"Santa Monica College is dedicated to providing the highest quality of undergraduate education to as many students as possible—and we recognize the potential of that in creating a progressive, globally connected society," said Dr. Jeffery. "We are deeply proud of how that commitment is demonstrated on every level: in a diverse, global campus culture; in curriculum and study abroad programs; and in how SMC has helped expand international student recruitment at sister colleges in the U.S."

SMC has a robust study abroad program—which offers summer and winter field studies courses in Latin America and South Africa, and shorter ten-day courses in locations like England, South Korea, Denmark, and Russia—and also has an institutional "global citizenship" requirement for students pursuing an Associate of Arts degree. The college has been recognized in the past for its leadership in international education by awards such as the Senator Paul Simon Award for Comprehensive Internationalization from NAFSA Association of International Educators and the inaugural 2017 Andrew Heiskell Award for Innovation in International Education from the Institute of International Education.

At the 2018 President's "E" Awards Ceremony, Secretary Ross honored 43 U.S. companies and organizations that export U.S. goods and services. Companies representing 18 states were recognized as part of the 56th anniversary of the award. This year's honorees include 33 small and medium-sized businesses as well as 17 manufacturers.

U.S. companies are nominated for the "E" Awards through the U.S. Commercial Service, part of the Department's International Trade Administration. With offices across the United States and in embassies and consulates around the world, The International Trade Administration lends its expertise at every stage of the exporting process by promoting and facilitating exports and investment into the United States; administering Anti-Dumping and Countervailing Duties orders; and removing, reducing, or preventing foreign trade barriers.

U.S. exports totaled $2.33 trillion in 2017, accounting for 12 percent of U.S. gross domestic product. Exports supported an estimated 10.7 million jobs nationwide in 2016, according to the most recent statistics from the International Trade Administration.

For more information about the "E" Awards, visit www.export.gov; for more information on SMC's International Education programs, email Weir_Catherine@smc.edu or Kinsella_Denise@smc.edu.

ABOUT THE "E" AWARDS

In 1961, President Kennedy signed an executive order reviving the World War II "E" symbol of excellence to honor and provide recognition to America's exporters. Criteria for the award is based on four years of successive export growth in one or more international markets.

A Discussion on Disruption and the Economy, Plus Meet the Speakers

The City Manager's Office for the City of Santa Monica invites residents to an evening of futuristic contemplation as they explore what life might be like with shared autonomous vehicles, highly tailored retail experiences, and new ways of doing work. Distinguished UCLA professor and economic geographer, Dr. Michael Storper, will moderate a panel of experts in forward-thinking fields to discuss how these emerging trends and technologies could affect Santa Monica's economy in the long term. Opening remarks from Santa Monica Mayor Pro Tempore, Gleam Davis.

Prior to the Evening Program, they invite attendees to a special Meet the Speakers pre-program reception, where they'll have a chance to talk with the featured speakers and interact with City leadership and partners.

CONFIRMED SPEAKERS INCLUDE:

Dr. Manuel Pastor – Pastor is a Professor of Sociology and American Studies & Ethnicity at the University of Southern California where he also directs the Program for Environmental and Regional Equity and USC's Center for the Study of Immigrant Integration. Pastor holds an economics Ph.D. from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and is the inaugural holder of the Turpanjian Chair in Civil Society and Social Change at USC. Pastor's research has generally focused on issues of the economic, environmental and social conditions facing low-income urban communities – and the social movements seeking to change those realities. His current research culminates in the release of his book, State of Resistance: What California's Dizzying Descent and Remarkable Resurgence Means for America's Future.

Becky Steckler – Steckler, AICP, is the Urbanism Next Program Manager for the Sustainable Cities Initiative at the University of Oregon. She has over 20 years of experience in project management, land use planning, transportation, and economic development. Before coming to the University of Oregon, she worked as an independent contractor for a wide array of public and nonprofit clients, most recently as the Program and Policy Manager for the Oregon Chapter of the American Planning Association (OAPA). Steckler worked on legislative and policy issues, trainings and events, health and planning, and communications for OAPA. Before becoming a contractor, she worked for the Oregon Department of Land Conservation and Development, ECONorthwest, and the California Coastal Commission.

Dr. Michael Storper – Storper (PhD, Economic Geography, University of California, Berkeley) is an economic geographer who holds positions at UCLA, the London School of Economics, and Sciences Po/Paris. His fields of research are: regional economic development; urbanization; the link between innovation and geographical change; and globalization. He is the author of more than 100 peer-reviewed academic articles and ten books, including the widely-cited The Rise and Decline of Urban Economies (Stanford, 2015); Keys to the City (Princeton, 2013), The Regional World: Territory, Technology and Economic Development (Guilford, 1997), Worlds of Production (Harvard, 1997). He received a Doctorate Honoris Causa from the University of Utrecht In 2008, a Prime d'Excellence Scientifique in 2010, the Sir Peter Hall Prize from the Regional Studies Association in 2012, the Founder's Gold Medal from the Royal Geographical Society in 2016, and the Distinguished Scholarship Honors from the American Association of Geographers in 2017. He holds dual citizenship of the USA and France.

The event will be held at the Santa Monica Main Library (601 Santa Monica Blvd.) on June 5 from 5 – 8 p.m.

unit, an ADU is a second home on a lot with a full kitchen and bathroom. A recent state law aims to simplify the process of building them to ease the housing crisis by allowing homeowners to become landlords.

"A number of inquiries from the public have been received about the construction of potential new ADUs of approximately 800 square feet, but few building permit applications of this size for new ADUs have been submitted so far," said the report by principal planner Tony Kim.

The new guidelines are intended to be temporary while city staff refines the zoning rules for neighborhoods with only single family homes (R1). Earlier this year, the Council approved a temporary anti-mansion ordinance to limit the size of new construction. In an effort to encourage more housing, the Council exempted ADUs from parcel coverage restrictions.

A few months later, city staff drafted a recommendation to increase the allowable size of ADUs from 650 square feet to 1,200 square feet. Anti-mansion activists worried the new size would provide a tantalizing loophole to developers hoping to get around new limits on the height and square footage of new homes. Other residents balk at the concept of increasing density in R1 neighborhoods that do not otherwise allow multi-family buildings.

"Most people in California are aware that the state is facing an affordable housing shortage and shortage of housing for our homeless residents and want government to address this critical problem, as I do. But, turning a single family neighborhood into a more densely populated one is not an effective, practical, realistic, or logical way to address or help solve the problem," said Sunset Park resident Brad Pollack in a letter to the City Council.

After a lengthy discussion Tuesday, the Council voted to limit the size to 800 square feet for large lots in order to retain the character of Santa Monica neighborhoods.

Under current regulations, an ADU must be subordinate to the primary residence. While the Council debated whether to create a sliding scale, in which an ADU can be no larger than a certain percentage of the total size of the lot, planning staff urged them to avoid adding complexity in the midst of an interim ordinance.

"Our advice is keep it simple," said City Manager Rick Cole.

City staff is currently drafting new, permanent rules for construction in R1 neighborhoods. Cole says they hope to come back to Council with a suggested ordinance in the next twelve to eighteen months.

Santa Monica College Fashion Program Presents LA Mode 2018

The Santa Monica College Fashion Program presents its annual student fashion show – LA Mode 2018 – at 7 p.m. on Monday, June 11 in Barnum Hall at Santa Monica High School (600 Olympic Blvd., Santa Monica; see www.barnumhall.org for parking information). Admission is $25 ($20 students). Violet Carpet begins at 5 p.m. with sponsor giveaways. Industry VIP Mixer will start at 5:45 p.m.

The show's eclectic mix of casual, cocktail, club, and creative styles will feature 19 collections, reflecting each designer's future aspirations. The event, organized by the Fashion Show Production students, is led by SMC fashion professors La Tanya Louis – LA Mode Show Producer – and Jan Ardell, Collections Director, with Lorrie Ivas as SMC Fashion Advisory Board-Industry-Judge Liaison, and Wynn Armstrong handling fashion technology.

LA Mode 2018 is a collaborative affair: SMC photography students will be "shooting" the show, under the direction of SMC Photography Professor Josh Withers and SMC instructor Ed Mangus, who is also organizing and co-hosting the show with Lorrie Ivas. SMC instructor Lloyd Lowe produced and directed the designers' interview clips. SMC cosmetology students will be creating the looks for hair and make-up, under the direction of Professor Helen LeDonne.

The truly global collections – reflecting the talents of students who came to SMC from the Los Angeles area, across the United States, and around the world – were developed by students as part of their two-year fashion studies at SMC.

Industry professionals – from designers, stylists, and costume designers, to retailers – will judge the collections. Among them are Advisory Board Members and SMC alums, who now offer internships themselves, a true success story. Industry judges will pre-evaluate the collections "up close" May 31 at SMC's main campus design studio and select winners in categories that include marketability, creativity, sustainability, and technical achievement. The outstanding runway collection will be voted on live at the event. Winners will receive prizes donated by Advisory Board member Joe Vecchiarelli, along with Blick Art Materials and LA fashion industry supporters.

The evening will also include the presentation of the third annual Style and Substance Award, paying homage to Jeannine Braden, an SMC alum who exemplifies the versatility and longevity of today's LA fashion industry entrepreneur, and who is nationally recognized as an outstanding retail owner (Fred Segal Flair, Post 26), designer (Le Superbe, SaytheSun), as well as a stylist, buyer, and creative director. She is an active member of the SMC Fashion Advisory Board, and provides "real world" experience on styling shoots and in her design studio. SMC's first Style and Substance Award was presented in 2016 to Ilse Metchek, founding President of the California Fashion Association (CFA), Executive Director of The Textiles Association of LA (TALA), and longtime member of the SMC Fashion Advisory Board. Marta Miller, owner of Lefty Production Co., a Downtown LA garment development and apparel factory, was the deserving 2017 recipient, consistently providing students with "real world" experience via tours, internships, and employment, while also serving on the Board.

The SMC Fashion Program – offered through the SMC Photography/Fashion Department chaired by Professor Josh Sanseri – offers Associate degrees and certificate programs in both Fashion Design and Fashion Merchandising.

Visit www.smc.edu/LaMode or send email to LaMode@smc.edu for more information. Also, visit SMC LA Mode Fashion Show on Facebook and @smclamode on Twitter, as well as smclamode and FFCsmc on Instagram.

camp called Canyon Creek in the Angeles National Forest where families can come during summers.

"We all went to camp when we were kids and we all know the impact and the power that camp has. The memories are very vivid, like they happened yesterday, and friendships still exist from people we met at camp. We all just wanted to bring kids that could never afford it up to camp. We weren't really sure how to do that, and we weren't sure what the model was going to look like," Moss said.

Another friend heard about the idea and wanted to help. He offered to pay for the whole 6th and 7th grade from The Watts Learning Center so that they would be able to come to Canyon Creek.

"He paid for it, not us, and we ran the program, and it was during that weekend the lightbulb went off in my head, and I was like 'this is the model, this is the model.' All we have to do is to go to South LA, Watts, and find schools and bring the schools up so we can raise money, and we can then go target schools and do just what he did and pay for it, and that's really how it started," Moss said.

The idea grew eventually, forming the foundation that is active today.

On June 3, Pedal on the Pier returns and the founders are aiming to double last year's total. Moss is hoping to reach the $2 million-dollar mark but to ensure that they don't have to cut any programming for next year they need to at least raise $1.5 million.

Registration to be a rider has already closed and each bike needs to raise $2,500 before June 3. Anyone can donate and be a part of the event on June 3. Spectators can watch the riders and experience other activities by purchasing a ticket on Pedal on the Pier's website (https://pedalonthepier.haroldrobinsonfoundation.org).

"The tickets will go for $100 dollars, and for that people will get food and drinks. One of our sponsors is actually Tito's handmade vodka. We'll have a concert with DJ's from Iheart Media who also is a sponsor this year, and there's going to be a special live performance from DJ Mustard, so it's a pretty good deal," Brookman said.

One of the participants is Michelle McMillian Greene who learned about the event through Brookman and donated to her team the first year. The year after she decided to join Brookman's team.

"I was a little intimidated about having to raise $500 but she told me not to worry and just do my best. I raised about $700. The following year a lot of people had told me that they wanted to do it too. Michelle suggested I have my own team and it was really fun to get friends involved and motivate them to raise money," said Greene. "It's easy to get caught up in just making a living and your own small life. It feels wonderful to be part of a larger community, doing something meaningful, in one of the most beautiful places in the world."

Participants said it's a fun event for everyone involved.

"Even if you don't ride one of the bikes yourself you should come and hang out and take part of the music and the food and the drinks. We are super proud of all of our sponsors like Revolution Fitness where our spinning instructors at the event are from, and also Stages Cycling who are lending us all of the bikes," said Moss.

Revolution Fitness instructor Lisa Brisse has been a part of the event for six years.

"I was thrilled to death when they told me, a couple months ago, that Revolution had been picked to be the studio that leads the event this year. But I am still going to have my own fundraising team as well. So I'm beyond excited," said Brisse.

Other sponsors include WOWMI, Taos Footwear, Tribees and also CTO Consulting, who made the official Pedal on the Pier website.

Later this summer the Harold Robinson Foundation is also organizing a summer camp for kids in Watts that are in the 6th, 7th and 8th grade. The program starts on June 18 and the kids will be able to enjoy different activities involving, for example, music, art and sports, for six weeks straight.

The goal for Moss and the others is to create a year-round program in the community, so children have somewhere to be and something to do after school and during weekends.

"We have had music artists like Red Hot Chili Peppers coming out, and also The Lakers, and The Dodgers. So the kids are able to take music lessons and we have had famous artists coming as well, like Retna that makes murals with the kids. And we take them on field trips. So we are really looking forward to get this to a year round program, which is why we need to raise two million dollar," Moss said.

Pedal on the Pier will be held Sunday, June 3. Doors open at 9:30 a.m. Ride begins at 11 a.m.

and we do need to build the units it's going to be a slow and arduous process," she said. "Even if we start accumulating housing funds and a housing trust, which we will and we are to do that goal, we have right in front of us the opportunity at a much lower cost and a much quicker outcome to preserve existing affordable units right now."

According to Community Corporation of Santa Monica (CCSM), the city's largest provider of affordable housing, more than 6,000 people are on their waiting list for housing. They currently manage 1,700 units with about 4,000 residents. CCSM has said new units can cost between $450,000 - $650,000.

Under those conditions, Foster said an expansion of the POD budget to $2 million could serve 500 at risk seniors while that money would only pay for four new units.

She said the need for assistance grows each year and said even rent control doesn't necessarily protect at risk tenants from eviction as the Board's annual adjustment can far outpace the cost of living increase provided to social security recipients.

"The last thing we want to see is our seniors who have given communities and our families decades of efforts fall out onto the street," she said.

Commissioner Todd Flora agreed.

"Our general adjustment alone is outpacing (Cost of Living Adjustments) for social security," he said. "Our formula has produced a general adjustment that is putting at risk seniors who we want very much to age in place and that's very much, I think, one of the goals of many communities to make sure seniors can age in place."

Commissioner Caroline Torosis said she fully supports the POD program and asked staff to provide more details on the possible uses of money earmarked for affordable housing when they brought back a final resolution.

"There's a limited pool of money and I do think it's a multi-pronged solution but at a certain point you're giving money to a tenant in a unit that already exists and potentially taking that from constructing additional units," she said.

Staff said they will return with a resolution asking Council to expand the program at a future meeting.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON MAY 14, AT ABOUT 10:55 A.M.

While patrolling the area of 4th and Colorado Blvd., an officer overheard an interaction between two subjects related to the theft of merchandise. The officer determined it was related to the theft of merchandise from Bloomingdales. The subject entered the store and was monitored by Loss Prevention Staff. The subject was monitored as he selected several items – shoes, hat and shirts. The subject exited the store without paying for any of the items. The subject was detained outside the store by Loss Prevention Staff. The subject was taken into custody. Reginald Ishmael Bowens, 27, from Los Angeles was arrested for shoplifting. Bail was set at $5,000.

Memorial Day

Editor:

For many, Memorial Day means picnics, barbeques and outdoor activities. Although traditional observance of Memorial Day has faded over the years, it is important to continue to celebrate the true meaning by remembering all those who sacrificed their lives while serving our nation.

This Memorial Day, give thanks to the men and women who fought for our country by visiting a local parade or memorial service, donning patriotic gear and flying your American flag at half-staff.

More importantly, take a moment from your day to stop and remember all those that so humbly gave their lives for the betterment of our nation.

To learn how you can pay tribute not only on Memorial Day, but throughout each year, contact your local Veterans of Foreign Wars Post.

Graphic Novel Creators on the Story of the 442nd Regiment in WWII

The 2018 Santa Monica Reads community reading program continues as Koji Steven Sakai, Phinneas Kiyomura and Rob Sato, creators of the digital graphic novel 442, present The Story of the 442nd Regiment in WWII on Saturday, June 2, 2018, at 2 p.m. in the Main Library's Martin Luther King, Jr. Auditorium, 601 Santa Monica Blvd.

Southern California-based graphic novel creators Sakai, Kiyomura and Sato present an illustrated talk about the 442nd Regiment, the U.S. Army's Japanese American combat unit of WWII. Members of this unit risked their lives behind enemy lines, even as their families were behind barbed wire in internment camps. The regiment remains the most highly decorated unit in the history of American warfare. Presenters share family stories and striking visuals. The digital graphic novel 442 is available for free on the Stela app.

Writer/Producer Koji Steven Sakai is the founder of Little Nalu Pictures LLC and the CEO of CHOPSO, the first Asian English streaming video service. He has written five feature films and produced three, and authored the novel Romeo & Juliet vs. Zombies and novella Operation Survive.

Phinneas Kiyomura is a playwright, actor and former skate punk from Long Beach. His critically acclaimed plays (Lydia in Bed, Figure 8, and Woods) have been produced at Theatre of NOTE, Padua Playwrights and Sacred Fools. His father was incarcerated at the Rohwer Relocation Center in Arkansas.

Rob Sato is an artist, illustrator and paper sculptor whose work has been featured in Giant Robot Magazine, Hi-Fructose, Juxtapoz Art & Culture, and New American Paintings. His grandfather was interned in the Jerome and Rohwer camps in Arkansas and served in the 442nd.

This presentation is part of the Santa Monica Public Library's 2018 Santa Monica Reads program. Now in its 16th year, Santa Monica Reads is a community reading initiative that encourages all residents and visitors to read and discuss the same title in book discussions and special events held throughout the city. This year's selection is Farewell to Manzanar, the classic memoir by Jeanne Wakatsuki Houston and James D. Houston, which chronicles young Jeanne's experience with her family in a World War II-era Japanese American internment camp.

This program is free and open to all ages. Seating is limited and on a first-arrival basis. The Santa Monica Public Library is wheelchair accessible. For disability-related accommodations, call Library Administration at (310) 458-8606 at least one week prior to the event. The Main Library is directly served by Big Blue Bus lines 1, R10 and 18. The Expo Line and Big Blue Bus lines 2, 3, R3 and 9 stop nearby. Ride your bike. Bicycle parking racks are available at the library.

Art's Table hosts drinks and dogs

Art's Table will be hosting a Yappy Hour on May 30.

Guests are invited to bring their furry friends to the restaurant. There will be food & drink specials from 5 to 8 p.m., as well as special treats for all of the pups, provided by To Wag For. Art's Table boasts over 50 seats of outdoor dining, and is a perfect, and popular, spot for dogs of all sizes, especially during happy hour.

On Tuesday, June 12, guests are invited to a three course wine dinner at Art's Table, featuring outstanding wines from Koehler Winery, presented by winemaker Colin Murphy. The dinner will commence with tastings of four of Koehler Winery's celebrated wines, to be enjoyed alongside a range of signature small plates. Guests will then have the opportunity to select their entree, which will be accompanied by a glass of Koehler wine of their choice. Limited tickets are available to the intimate event and can be purchased online at bit.ly/koehlerwinedinner.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 28)

Opportunity will knock on your door. If you don't answer it, opportunity will disprove all cliches by returning time and again because this one is for you. This one is destiny, and you might as well embrace the adventure the first time. Sagittarius and Taurus adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 1, 8, 22, 28 and 30.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

You will work hard for small amounts of praise now. Who knows why? The reasons are complicated and probably irrelevant. The important part is you'll do the work and learn more from that than you would from any other teacher.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Some of your predecessors are more mysterious than others. It's worth it to learn about some of the lower-profile people. Without knowing the history of everyone in the story, you've a partial and incomplete knowledge of the past.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)

The tenderhearted have given you something priceless that you'll cherish always. As for you, you're currently on a trajectory of toughening up. It's just what you need to do to be effective in the months to come.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)

In theory, someone should only be able to hurt your feelings once. Of course, this could work only if you were steadfast to your own emotional rules. Even if you get hurt again, you won't regret your willingness to forgive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Don't worry so much, if you can help it. This is all happening as it should. When you're feeling brave and ready to do bigger things, the world will rise up to meet you with an exciting challenge.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Your tastes have changed, and so have your needs. You wouldn't make the same choice you made back then. Yet there's something to hold on to here. You may stick with it out of a sense of loyalty or nostalgia.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

Procrastination is natural, but you can outsmart it by being ruthless with your approach. Do the dreaded thing first. Don't give yourself a choice. Don't give yourself time to think about it. Just do it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)

Because people advance to adulthood at widely varying paces, some people you used to have much in common with are now at a completely different place in life. You'll enjoying hearing about the other person's world.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Armchair adventures such as the kind that can be had through a computer or television screen or book will lead to actual real-life adventures of the grandest sort. The idea will be planted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

When it's your turn to talk or when you're invited to give input, you take the opportunity, no problem! But waiting for such a thing may be the wrong move. Even if no one asks, seize the stand when it's important — or because it's right.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

The health of relationships can't be determined by a doctor, because no doctor can know fully what's in the heart, mind and intention of each person. Also, what some call "unhealthy" might work rather well for others.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

Notice how powerful you feel. Your agency over your situation and/or the situation of others matters. It's not something to consider lightly. An accurate assessment could make a difference to your future.

Moon, Mercury and Memorial Day

Strong social instincts take hold on this Memorial Day — a day to appreciate what's been built on the sacrifices of those who went before and to remember those who have given their lives for their country. The moon tugs at Mercury on his last day in Taurus, as if to call on the strength of the bull before moving into Sagittarius, where it will be full tomorrow.
