City settles lawsuit over Downtown Expo station

BY MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

The Exposition Metro Line Construction Authority and the City of Santa Monica have settled a lawsuit over the price of land at the Downtown station.

Santa Monica will receive $20 million for a nearly 34,000-square-foot plot of land at 402 Colorado Ave., where the terminus station has opened.

In October 2014, the Exposition Metro Line Construction Authority filed a lawsuit against the City of Santa Monica seeking eminent domain and declaratory relief relating to the compensation for land on Colorado Avenue owned by City Hall.

The City and Expo disagreed on the price.

In their original filings, both sides agreed the property was purchased with rail reserve money derived from the Transportation Development Act. However, the City maintained it has complied with all agreements and requirements related with Expo. The city claimed Expo and its contractors had occupied the site without just compensation but they did acknowledge, and reject, an initial offer of $14.4 million.

The 6.6-mile Expo extension runs from Culver City to Santa Monica and includes seven stations: Palms, Westwood/Rancho Park, Expo/Sepulveda, Expo/Bundy, 26th Street/Bergamot, 17th Street/Santa

Awakened Family Gathering brings Westside families together outside the city

BY JENNIFER MAAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

After years of attending festivals and workshops without her children, Lisa Arshawsky wanted to create a venue where her entire family could "unplug and dive in to spirit together."

That is where the Santa Monica-based yoga instructor got the idea for the Awakened Family Gathering.

"At festivals, there is a flavor for adults rather than children," Arshawsky, co-founder of the "urban family retreat," said. "Because of my experience of wanting to attend these festivals, but yearning for my kids when I'm away from them, I thought finding a way to bring the whole family together in a festival setting that was kid friendly would be great."

Arshawsky has been teaching yoga, as well as Mommy and Me classes, kids' circles and mindfulness circles, for years in studios is very excited to take Santa Monicans out of their natural habitat and into the nearest coun-

The students of Santa Monica High School's symphony orchestra are trying to make the best of a terrible tragedy.

After having their trip to Europe canceled due to the March bombings in Belgium, they immediately expressed interest in figuring out a way to support victims of terror around the world.

Their goal will come to fruition at 7:30 p.m. June 12, when they will perform a benefit concert at Disney Hall in Downtown Los Angeles to raise money for the International Committee of the Red Cross.

"They really have their hearts into this concert," Samohi orchestra director Joni Swenson said of her student musicians. "They felt their lives had been affected by terrorism in the world, and they wanted to do what they could do help victims of terrorism and vio-

SMC student receives scholarship from State Department to study Punjabi in India

Santa Monica College (SMC) student Sharon Nat has been awarded a U.S. Department of State Critical Language (CLS) Scholarship to study Punjabi this summer in Chandigarh, India. She is one of 560 students selected from more than 200 colleges and universities across the nation for the all-expenses-paid linguistic and cultural immersion program, a U.S. government effort to expand dramatically the number of Americans mastering critical foreign languages.

CLS recipients like Nat will spend eight to ten weeks in one of 24 locations around the world studying languages including Arabic, Azerbaijani, Chinese, Korean, Swahili, Persian-and Punjabi. Nat is one of approximately 12 students from across the U.S. who will be studying Punjabi at the American Institute of Indian Studies (AIIS) Chandigarh Language Center.

Born to a Mexican-American mother and Punjabi-Indian father, Nat grew up learning how to speak, read, and write Punjabi. But her beloved father passed away when Nat was eleven, they moved away from their Indian relatives, and-as her own form of grieving, says Nat-she stopped speaking Punjabi.

Today, Nat is a Psychology major at SMC, and incoming Director of Sustainability for the SMC Associated Students. When the college's academic support Adelante program-which Nat is a part of-forwarded her an email about CLS, her friends at SMC encouraged her to overcome any apprehensions and apply for this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

"I am thrilled to have the chance to relearn Punjabi," says Nat, who describes her proficiency as a beginner's. This opportunity, adds Nat, is important to her both academically and personally.

"I want to be a psychologist, to work with people who speak English, Punjabi and Spanish," says Nat. "I think that, as a psychologist, if I really want to understand what people are going through and earn their trust, I need to know the culture, and speak the language." Learning Punjabi will also fulfill her desire to be true to her own culture: both the Mexican and the Indian sides. "I have always regretted that I stopped speaking Punjabi. I'm ready now!"

During her two-month stay in Chandigarh in the Indian state of Punjab, Nat will also get to meet her relatives in India for the very first time.

Nat is grateful that at SMC, she has "learnt so much about herself."

"I learned here that I am an environmentalist, and learned how to take my love for people to the next level...this is where I had my first therapy session, and got my first job too!" says Nat, who is a part-time student worker at the SMC Latino Center. She hopes to transfer to Loyola Marymount University next fall.

Over the past ten years, the CLS Program has sent over 5,000 American undergraduate and graduate students overseas to learn critical languages all over the world. CLS Program participants are expected to continue their language study beyond the scholarship and apply their critical language skills in their future professional careers.

The CLS Program in India is administered by American Councils for International Education in partnership with American Institute of Indian Studies. For further information about the CLS Program, please visit http://www.clscholarship.org.

Ballot measures: here today, gone tomorrow

IT LOOKS LIKE ARMEN MELKONIANS AND his Residocracy movement has been successful in floating a ballot measure that would require voter approval for overly large developments within our borders.

Melkonians posted recently on Facebook, "To stop developer control of our city, residents of Santa Monica submitted 10,116 signatures in support of putting on the Nov. 8 ballot the Land Use Voter Empowerment (LUVE) Initiative..." With the measure sure to qualify for the ballot (with thousands of 'extra' signatures) the real battle is now just beginning.

In 2008, another "slow-growth" ballot measure, Prop T, also known as Residents' Initiative to Fight Traffic (RIFT), would have capped most commercial development at 75,000 sq. ft annually for 15 years. It was soundly defeated at the polls with 17,878 voters (56.5 percent) rejecting it and 14,170 (43.5 percent) voting for it.

An anti-T group was co-chaired by Santa Monicans for Renters' Rights power player Judy Abdo and SMRR-endorsed City Councilman Terry O'Day. Save Our City (SOS) raised and spent an eye-popping $772.000 -- a record amount for a political advocacy group up until that time.

The contributions obtained mostly from development interests was about six times the $140,000 spent by T's proponents according to campaign finance disclosure statements.

SOS also sent out a blizzard of mailers trumpeting opposition to the measure by major unions - police, firefighters, municipal employees, teachers and hotel workers as well as most City Council members and other elected officials. Messaging stated that jobs including emergency (911) services would be cut, schools would suffer as teachers were fired and contributions dried up. Paying for things like police, fire, libraries and parks would be curtailed if T prevailed.

Typical of the dirty pool played by SOS and its developer, real estate and land use attorney supporters was this game of political hard-ball with a public school support group.

Two volunteers for the Community for Excellent Public Schools (CEPS) resigned from the educational advocacy group before the election because of the phony 'scare" campaign being forced on it by SOS's developer backers and politicians such as (then) State Senator Sheila Kuehl.

"Despite contentions of the developers funding the campaign against it, you must know that [Measure] T will not harm our schools," one of the volunteers told the Daily Press (Oct. 6, 2008). "Everyone knows that if you can make a 'schools' argument you can get the sympathy of voters.

"And everyone knows the argument here is nothing more than a scare tactic." She disclosed that education groups were under pressure to support the City Council because they controlled school funding allocations through the Master Facility Use Agreement which allowed the district and City Hall to exchange money for access to school facilities. The majority of council members opposed Prop. T.

"I know that people aspiring for local office do not want to face the ire of developers and their deep pockets, which one risks by refusing to do their bidding here," she said. "However, we should not allow ourselves to be blackmailed into opposing a ballot measure that has nothing to do with schools just to help the developers and appease the City Councilmembers."

Everyone expects developer's interests to pull out all the stops to defeat LUVE at the polls, this year. Already, one group Santa Monica Forward has formed a coalition with the Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce, the Santa Monica Next bicycle advocacy and other special interest and business groups in spreading half-truths, blind suppositions and old fashioned B.S about LUVE - and it's not even on the ballot, yet.

CITY ATTORNEY MEASURE

One of the things that will not be on the November ballot is a measure that would make the position of City Attorney an elected position as opposed to an appointed one.

AIDS Walk Los Angeles founder Craig R. Miller formed Santa Monicans for Democracy, a group that was collecting signatures from registered Santa Monica voters for a ballot measure that would require an election to appoint a City Attorney if the measure had qualified for the ballot and been approved by fifty percent of the voters plus one person.

Last week, the group which had been collecting the estimated 6,500 qualified signatures necessary to qualify the measure for a voter referendum announced that it was no longer gathering signatures and would devote its future efforts towards a "City Attorney Accountability Project" that would monitor the position and assure proper job performance.

None of the major municipal positions are electable. Department heads, including the City Manager, Police and Fire Chiefs are appointed and approved by City Council. It's up to City Council to insure that department heads and key employees are doing their jobs and performing to the standards determined by their job titles and periodic performance reviews.

Moutrie was appointed City Attorney in 1993. Over the years, there has been criticism of the way she has performed her duties on a number of fronts - from legal opinions on development agreements to leases at the municipally owned Santa Monica Airport.

Miller and Moutrie previously locked horns over the issue of non-profit advertising on the city's Big Blue Buses - a practice that had been prohibited for the last 15 years . The disagreement over banning non-profit bus ads was finally resolved in Miller's favor just this last February

There's probably no advantage to voters or taxpayers in having an "elected" City Attorney. And, despite occasional carping and complaints, City Council has never made a formal move to criticize, censure or remove Moutrie from her position. If there's a problem, council needs to do its job.

Santa Monica Airport hosts emergency rescue training

U.S. Air Force Auxiliary Civil Air Patrol mobilized last week to rehearse disaster relief and search and rescue operations in support of Southland emergency relief.

In this exercise, a missing aircraft triggered mobilization of the all-volunteer organization, which counts emergency services disaster response and search and rescue as primary missions.

Santa Monica Airport was the incident command post, hosting logistics, communications and search aircraft. Tasking for emergency operations typically comes from the Air Force Rescue Coordination Center in Florida.

Over 30 volunteers from the Los Angeles County Civil Air Patrol are involved in training operations, flying three single engine Cessna aircraft and operating various ground vehicles, including mobile computerized communications systems.

The need to practice staging from Santa Monica Airport became apparent this month when CAP launched search and rescue operations to locate a missing small airplane whose flight path followed the local coast line. Lessons learned from that effort convinced CAP leadership that staging from Santa Monica will increase the number of available volunteers during a future search, particularly during traffic hours.

"We are grateful to have this central location to prepare for the day we are needed for an actual emergency in West Los Angeles," said Capt. Charles Christian, incident commander at the Santa Monica command center. "Civil Air Patrol volunteers and resources are ready to help our communities in any way we can and they're proving it by taking part in this important exercise."

Santa Monica Airport is home to CAP Clover Field Composite Squadron 51. The Squadron has over seventy adult and youth members who focus on emergency services, aerospace education and cadet programs.

Participants said they were proud to serve the local community.

Civil Air Patrol, the longtime all-volunteer U.S. Air Force auxiliary, is the newest member of the Air Force's Total Force, which consists of Regular Air Force, Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve, along with Air Force retired military and civilian employees. CAP, in its Total Force role, operates a fleet of 550 aircraft and performs about 85 percent of continental U.S. inland search and rescue missions as tasked by the Air Force Rescue Coordination Center and is credited by the AFRCC with saving an average of 70 lives annually.

Civil Air Patrol's 58,000 members nationwide also perform homeland security, disaster relief and drug interdiction missions at the request of federal, state and local agencies. Its Airmen additionally play a leading role in aerospace education and serve as mentors to more than 24,000 young people currently participating in the CAP cadet program. Civil Air Patrol received the Congressional Gold Medal in 2014 in honor of the heroic efforts of its World War II veterans. Congressionally chartered 74 years ago, the nonprofit organization also participates in Wreaths Across America, an initiative to remember, honor and teach about the sacrifices of U.S. military veterans. politicians or other celebrities, he said. But impressions require more than vocal manipulation.

"The most important thing is the point of view of the character," he said. "Anybody can sound like Bill Clinton, but if you don't know the point of view of the character Bill Clinton, then you're stuck with just saying phrases like 'sexual relations.' You've got to put Bill Clinton in a situation."

Kaye, a Santa Monica native, has found an even better outlet for his talents than parties. He's a contestant on "First Impressions," a competition televised by USA Network, and the episode featuring him is scheduled to air May 31 at 10:30 p.m.

It's another step forward in a budding entertainment career for Kaye, who has dabbled in acting, comedy and voiceover work since graduating from UC Santa Barbara in 2010.

Born and raised in Santa Monica, Kaye attended Canyon Charter School for kindergarten and Marquez Elementary School for grades 1-3 before landing at Crossroads School for the remainder of his K-12 education.

Growing up, Kaye would watch daytime reruns of "Saturday Night Live." He said he remembers being impressed by the vocal adaptability of Dana Carvey, who is now featured on "First Impressions."

Kaye also recalled impersonating his grandfather well enough to gain access to his grandfather's voice-activated carphone.

"I'd make prank calls as him," he said.

While studying music composition in college, Kaye took part in a collaboration between music and acting students on a musical that he helped write. The project also gave him an avenue for testing his acting skills, which he did by playing a Russian character. It gave him "the acting bug."

Although Kaye liked playing music — he stills rocks out to Van Halen and Dimebag Darrell licks on his guitar — he said he enjoyed doing comedy even more. So he started taking classes through Upright Citizens Brigade and gained further experience in accents and impressions at The Second City in Hollywood. He's currently honing his craft at Groundlings to keep his skillset diverse and widely applicable.

"If comedy was a martial art, you don't want to just know jiu-jitsu or karate," he said. "You want to learn all of them. It's important to check out all the places."

Through iO West, another sketch comedy and improv outlet, Kaye heard that "First Impressions" was looking for possible contestants and submitted his materials. The show was taped in February.

Kaye said his favorite celebrity to impersonate is Albert Brooks, an award-winning actor and comedian. He can also swing impressions of politicians, which tend to increase in popularity during an election cycle.

"Honestly, anybody can do Donald Trump," he said. "Make your voice a little nasally, put your lips out and say something like, 'This is gonna be huge.'"

Ridership on the new portion of the Expo Line is projected to total 18,000 to 20,000 weekday boardings after the first year of service. The travel time from Downtown L.A. to the Downtown Santa Monica station is 48 minutes. Expo service begins each day at about 4:45 a.m. and continues until about 1 a.m. on weekdays and 2 a.m. on weekends. Trains will run every 12 minutes until about 8 p.m., after which service will be every 20 minutes.

tryside setting, Topanga Canyon, to have an "awakened" experience outdoors.

"Santa Monica has that pulse, that urban feel," Arshawsky said. "But it also has an amazing group of spiritual practices and mindfulness practices, all within a concentrated area. And I think Santa Monica is a progressive area that wants to try more things. So the retreat is really an experience that I think Santa Monica families that I see and work with everyday want to try."

The one-day retreat hosted by Arshawsky and other holistic wellness experts, will take place June 11 from 8 a.m. - 8 p.m. The event will feature yoga, reiki, meditation, kirtan, vendors and "energy healing" events for the full community of participants, in addition to small groups and individual sessions.

Aside from activities intended for the whole family, kids will enjoy time away from parents with activities just for them.

"You make it very kid friendly and instead of the language that you use for adults, you make it elements that kids can understand. Some people are very familiar with that language. And we look forward to bringing in people from all different walks of life and spiritual practices and using the principles they use in their life and making them very child friendly," Arshawsky said.

Arshawsky stated that she intends to use stories from Hinduism in her children's activities.

"In Hinduism there are many very colorful stories about gods and goddesses. There is a deity with an elephant head and so we've made a whole children's program using puppets where we will show how they can use the strength of an elephant in their day to day lives when they need to be strong, like when dealing with social issues at school."

Afternoon free time allows families to enjoy amenities including a full-sized pool, hiking trails and a labyrinth. The day's program includes two organic meals prepared on-site (with help from the kids) and an optional nighttime sacred dance and sound healing ceremony.

Details, complete schedule and tickets for the Awakened Family Gathering are available by visiting http://www.awakenedgatherings.com/.

Announcing Kids With Cameras Photography Exhibit

The Human Relations Council of the Santa Monica Bay Area (HRC Santa Monica) has announced the culmination event of its Kids with Cameras Program, On Our Minds. The photography exhibit will be held on Tuesday, May 31 from 3 - 7 p.m. at StreetcraftLA, 2912 Main Street in Santa Monica.

HRC Santa Monica's Kids with Camera program explores the ideals of social justice. The students from John Adams Middle School's (JAMS) Vision Program participated in five weekly workshops. The workshop curriculum was developed and facilitated by Bobby Rodriguez of Streetcraft LA, and explored topics of social justice and how to express those issues through photography. Topics include climate change, bullying, the high cost of basic needs, homelessness, stereotyping and cyber bullying. In addition to learning how to shoot on location, students received a crash course in photography and design, digital editing and preparing images for printing, and event promotion.

HRC Santa Monica is a partnership of community organizations, institutions, businesses, and individuals that promotes and supports a respectful and socially just community through education, advocacy, and resolution of local conflicts and issues. The Kids with Cameras program supports the development of our youth's ability to become respectful participants in the community through education, guided discussion and programs.

The goal of JAMS Vision Program is to engage and empower students to successfully navigate college and career pathways through mentorship, leadership development, academic support and action research in a collaborative environment.

Earlier this spring, Swenson was supposed to lead a group of 83 students, 11 parent chaperones and a few educators on a 10-day trip whose itinerary included stops in Paris, Bruges and Amsterdam. The orchestra was slated to perform at Salle Gaveau, an historic concert hall in the French capital, and stop in Belgium on its way to Amsterdam, where it had planned a performance at the world-renowned Royal Concertgebouw.

Then, on March 22, the day before the orchestra was set to leave for Europe, terror struck Brussels. The airport and metro bombings in that city killed more than 30 people and injured hundreds more, putting authorities and world leaders on notice. Swenson and Santa Monica-Malibu school district officials canceled the orchestra's trip due to safety concerns.

Since Swenson's students were missing out on the chance to play at some famous European concert halls, she wanted their benefit to be held at another esteemed venue. Swenson worked with Musical Celebrations, a concert organizing group, to arrange the show at Disney Hall.

Santa Monica City Council recently allocated $5,000 in discretionary funds towards the $20,000 rental fee for Disney Hall. The council had previously allocated $24,000 towards the orchestra's $357,000 overseas trip, according to a City report, and the City's initial contribution could be recovered as part of an ongoing insurance claim to recover costs.

"I'm hopeful that we're going to be able to recoup all the funds," said Swenson, who added that the orchestra has pro bono help from an insurance attorney. "We're in good shape. And that's not deterring our fundraising efforts for Red Cross."

The students are planning to perform Leonard Bernstein's overture to "Candide," Maurice Ravel's "Mother Goose" suite, Arturo Marquez's "Danzon No. 2" and Nikolai Rismy-Korsakov's "Scheherazade." The musicians have been working on perfecting their parts since August.

"It's been a whole year of learning this repertoire," Swenson said, "so they feel like they're going to play it in a great venue and hopefully raise funds for a great cause.

"This is a very unique opportunity. I think the concert is going to be wonderful, and we hope to pack the house."

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Triple Crown winner American Pharoah earned an estimated $8.6 million racing but, now retired, could earn as much as $35 million just by having sex. Stallions reportedly can breed into their 20s, and the horse, now barely age 4, will have 175 conquests by the end of this summer, according to a May report by CNBC. One industry worker said Pharoah has put on weight, spends his spare time peaceably eating grass, and "looks more like a relaxed horse." A spokesman for the Kentucky farm now housing Pharoah said he "has proven to be very professional in the breeding shed."

■ The Keystone Fellowship Church in North Wales, Pennsylvania, has a tradition of congregants reserving pew seats by leaving Bibles in place, but worshipper Robert Braxton, 27, was having none of that on April 24 and took a saved seat anyway. Witnesses told Philadelphia's WCAU-TV that when one church member gently tapped Braxton on the shoulder to inform him of the tradition, Braxton snapped at him and became disruptive. Congregant Mark Storms, 46, flashed a gun and confronted Braxton, who punched Storms, adding, "That's not a real gun" and "What are you going to do, shoot me?" Storms, contending that he felt threatened, fired two shots, killing Braxton, and was charged with voluntary manslaughter.

Play it low-key tonight, Taurus

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Your instincts might be to be discreet at the moment. And you will be right. In any case, you can't stay subdued for long, as by midafternoon you could find yourself in an argumentative discussion with a partner or associate. Keep it friendly. Tonight: Nap, then decide.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Zero in on what you want. A partner might push you to make a decision about an issue or a situation that you both are concerned about. You will need to detach in order to gain a more complete perspective of what needs to happen next. Tonight: Play it low-key.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ You are a firecracker, no matter what you touch or do. What you could accomplish with your directed energy might surprise even you. Remain positive about a key friend or loved one who you sometimes don't see eye to eye with. Tonight: Appreciate your differences.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Reach out for more information, and get feedback from an opinionated yet intellectually diverse personality in your life. You might not know which way to go. Trust that you will know when you are on solid ground. Tonight: Be aware of others and their needs.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ Allow others to take a chance or accept an offer that normally would go to you. Recognize that everyone deserves to be a star. A friend keeps coming to you for advice. You'll demonstrate your caring by being supportive. Tonight: Back to square one with a difficult person.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ To be as effective as you want to be, you will need to understand what is happening with those around you. That is not to say that you will have to be a wallflower, but lie low and ask key questions. Focus first on the group, then the individual. Tonight: Go with the moment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Concentrate on what you must accomplish. You could be overwhelmed, until you start clearing out some of your to-dos. Be more forthright when interacting with a dear friend or loved one. Your bond is likely to improve as a result. Tonight: Say "yes" to a great suggestion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Your intuition takes you down a new path. How you handle a personal matter could dramatically change as a result of your intuition teaming up with your creativity. Solutions seem to emerge from out of the blue. Do a better job of listening. Tonight: Know when to call it a day!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You have a strong sense of direction and are willing to fight for whatever is important to you. You might be unusually testy without realizing it. You will get your point across, but know that the other party could shut down. Tonight: Get physical, and change your mood.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ You could feel unusually driven by a personal or domestic matter. Your best bet is to get this situation handled early in the day. You are able to communicate what you consider significant, and you'll be able to clear the air very soon. Tonight: Make it an early night.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ You have a lot on your mind that you might not want to share at the moment. Don't push yourself so hard, and allow your feelings to flow. Trust your instincts, and you will know what would be best to do. Schedule an important discussion for later today. Tonight: Share more.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You'll act and feel more empowered than you have in a while. You can carry whatever you want to completion. You likely will want to socialize the day away. Remember that there is someone whom you might need to answer to. Tonight: Catch up with a friend.

This year you feel more positive than you have in a while. You also attract people who are more assertive than usual. As a result, you often find yourself in a power play or a control game. Appreciate what these associates have to offer, but don't get caught up in a battle of wills. If you are single, you will draw strong, charismatic people to you in the fall. Know what you want, and recognize that you can't change anyone. If you are attached, you and your sweetie can expect some basic changes around your home life through September. You will find your life to be far more exciting than it has been as of late. ARIES knows how to put a smile on your face.
