Crossroads alum returns as featured violinist

KWUON TO PERFORM WITH AREA DOCTORS' ORCHESTRA

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN

OLYMPIC BLVD. Although she has performed with prestigious orchestras around the world, Joan Kwuon is looking forward to her upcoming concert in Santa Monica with particular enthusiasm.

After all, it's where the makings of her musical career were established.

The Crossroads School alumna will be the featured violinist in the Los Angeles Doctors Symphony Orchestra's show at 8 p.m. Friday, June 12, at New Roads School.

"Whenever I go back to that area, I'm filled with so much gratitude and so much pride," said Kwuon, who is now splits time between New York City and Cleveland. "I'm really excited."

Kwuon's engagement comes as the doctors symphony celebrates its 25th season with director Ivan Shulman, who spearheads a musically gifted group of doctors and other medical professionals that

FAA to talk flight path plans on June 17

BY DAVID MARK SIMPSON
Daily Press Staff Writer

SMO The Federal Aviation Administration is set to unveil regional air transportation plan this week that could impact flight paths over Santa Monica.

The FAA's Southern California Metroplex draft environmental assessment is scheduled to be released on Wednesday and the agency is set to publicly discuss the draft at the Santa Monica Main Public Library on June 17.

From December of 2009 to June of the following year, the FAA ran tests that routed aircraft over ocean Park, rather than straight to the ocean, city officials said in a report on the Metroplex project.

"At the time, the FAA explained that an adjustment in the departure heading was required to decouple LAX and SMO (Santa Monica Airport) departure paths over the ocean," Airport Manager Stelios Makrides said in his report to council.

Residents complained and city officials argued against the tests on their behalf, the report claims.

"The FAA said, at the time, that it would defer action and address the issue later as part of the SoCal Metroplex project," Makrides said in the report.

In preparation for the project, city officials met with FAA officials several times last year.

The project's aim is to streamline aircraft arrival and departure procedures at several Southern California airports - spanning from Santa Barbara to San Diego

New owners seek landmark for old Callahan's building

BY DAVID MARK SIMPSON
Daily Press Staff Writer

WILSHIRE BLVD The building that formerly housed Callahan's and is now home to a hip diner is up for Landmark designation.

The decades old diner closed on New Year's Eve and reopened as Ingo's Tasty Diner, a farm-to-table restaurant, in April. Vienna Pastry remains inside the other half of the building.

The landowners, who also own the new restaurant, nominated the Wilshire Boulevard property for City Landmark status, a designation that would make it harder to alter or demolish the building. The Landmark Commission will consider the nomination at its meeting tonight.

In order to be considered for Landmark status, a property must meet one of six criteria set forth in Santa Monica's law. The Callahan's property meets two of those six criteria, according to City Hall's historical consultant, who recommends the designation.

Built in 1946 by an unknown architect and contractor, the structure includes significant aspects of Streamline Moderne style, which was popular the decade prior.

Local woman wins $80,000 from bodybuilding.com

This January, Bodybuilding.com kicked off it's fifth annual Transformation Challenge. With the largest prize to date, the $200,000 contest attracted an astonishing 57,327 entrants from all around the world. The male and female winners each took home $80,000 in cold hard cash. And for the first time in the contest's history, a "People's Choice" prize was awarded.

The annual 12-week challenge was designed to motivate and incentivize participants to achieve their health and fitness goals. This year's winners dropped a whopping 115 pounds, which equated to a loss of over 40 percent body fat. Overall, participants in the challenge shaved nearly 35,000 lbs from their waistlines. Of those who entered the challenge, 474 of those who could be classified as obese finished the contest at a healthy weight.

"Our biggest competition is the couch and we want to beat it in a big way," said Bodybuilding.com CEO and founder, Ryan DeLuca. "We want to empower, facilitate, and cultivate positive change. It's our mission to fight obesity and disease, bad habits, poor health and most importantly, the couch. We are here to push people to reach their peak potential," states DeLuca.

A team from Bodybuilding.com combed through thousands of profiles to discover two individuals that stood out from all of the amazing transformations: Chandler Camden of Park Hills, MO, and Nina Nam of Santa Monica, CA.

When talking about her weight loss journey, Nina was sick and tired of being unhealthy, "My lifestyle and bad habits were making me depressed," she recalls. Soon Nina was overwhelmed by negative thoughts, wanting to feel empowered and energized, Nina craved feeling alive once again. When asked about struggles and obstacles she overcame during the challenge, she commented, "The hardest part was quieting my mind, calming down, and focusing on the things I needed to do."

Nina knew she wanted to win. "I was so crazy about wanting to do this before the challenge even started." There were times during the 12 weeks that she felt tired and exhausted, but she knew giving up wasn't an option. "During those dark moments when I wanted to quit I discovered I had a deep, emotional drive to prove to myself that I wasn't a loser."

Over the 12-week challenge Nina lost a total of 21 pounds and 14 percent body fat. To see Nina's remarkable before and after pictures, please visit her BodySpace at http://bodyspace.bodybuilding.com/gratefulBEAST/

In just 12 weeks Chandler lost an astounding 41 pounds and 11.5 percent body fat. He is truly unrecognizable to his friends and family. Chandler not only changed his body, but he also improved his health, as well as his outlook on life, and gained the confidence he's been missing. To see Chandler's stunning transformation photos, please visit his BodySpace at http://bodyspace.bodybuilding.com/chancam77/.

The "People's Choice" winner voted on from the pool of top finalists. In the end, Luke Petersen of Utah took home the $40,000 prize.

Good question

Editor:

I always look forward to reading Erik Huberman's interviews for the Daily Press' "Faces of Silicon Beach" feature.

One, because it is informative about the high tech changes going on in our town. And two, because he always asks the young entrepreneurs a question that makes me chuckle: "How are you changing the world?"

In the most recent interview (SMDP June 4), the techie answered: "We want to make advertising fun and interactive."

Yep. Changing the world, one consumer consuming at a time.

Mr. Cole, I presume?

TOMORROW EVENING, CITY COUNCIL will officially approve the employment contract and welcome new City Manager Rick Cole who replaces Rod Gould. Gould completed five years as City Manager as of January 31 and had announced his retirement last summer.

Rick Cole has extensive experience in municipal business and financial affairs and comes to our city with high praise. He most recently served two years as Los Angeles' deputy mayor of budget and innovation and is a former Pasadena, CA mayor and city council member. He was previously the City Manager of both Ventura and Azusa. Cole is a 1978 Occidental College graduate. Cole's salary will be $329,424 and he'll receive the same benefits as other city department heads.

Gould resigned after a controversial decision to hire and then fire a public relations manager for the city. Former chair of the North of Montana Neighborhood Association and slow-growth advocate Elizabeth Riel was hired for the new job of "Communications and Public Affairs Officer." A red-faced Gould revoked the job a few days later.

Word had leaked out that Riel's politics made one particular city council person uncomfortable. The Santa Monica Coalition for a Livable City (SMCLC) charged that politics were behind Gould's decision to fire Riel and has suggested that he acted illegally.

It seems that Riel had also contributed to a 2006 SMCLC campaign that opposed the re-election of councilwoman Pam O'Connor and she was very unhappy with Riel's appointment, letting Gould know her feelings in no uncertain terms. Riel's contract was abruptly terminated in what is now described as one of City Hall's major political and public relations blunders.

Gould has moved on and his new title is Vice President of Management Partners - a firm that does consulting on contract with the city.

Cole will have his work cut out for him. He enters City Hall at a time of monumental distrust of and dissatisfaction with government. He will find a city with conflicting goals and deep divisions. The most obvious schism is between slow and pro-growth advocates.

He'll be faced with satisfying the needs and desires of mostly longer-term residents who feel that poor planning decisions especially regarding development and traffic management have harmed Santa Monica's livability. At the same time he'll have to work with the generally younger, newer arrivals eager for change who embrace "urban apartment living" and who want more development, bike lanes, walking amenities and mass transit.

Cole will also have to make decisions as to how to best improve city services. For thirty years the Planning Department's, traffic management division has pursued half-cocked theory after theory for calming traffic. Traffic jamming street improvements have made driving here increasingly demanding and dangerous. Removing congested traffic lanes for the five percent of street users on bicycles is utter nonsense. City Hall's traffic management philosophy is among the worst in the state by design.

Forcing people out of cars by making driving more difficult and unpleasant hasn't worked. Traffic remains bad while traffic engineering's pursuit of rainbows and unicorns lurches from one, stupid, ineffective, street redo to another. Ongoing complaints are ignored by policy makers whose social agenda preempts residents' quality of life.

Cole will also have to balance the business -vs- lifestyle aspect of Santa Monica living by making sure tourism and development don't turn this city into "Disneyland by the Sea." Many viewed Gould as being "too tight" with Chamber of Commerce interests and major developers thus throwing a delicate balance out of kilter and shortchanging residents. Accusations of undue-influence, back room dealing and cronyism seriously marred some residents' interpretation of the Land Use and Circulation Element (LUCE) and related zoning code updating to the point that it and city government have no credibility and that now, most municipal activity is subject to suspicion and mistrust.

Welcome aboard, Mr. Cole. The fun is just beginning.

ECEC STILL IN THE WRONG PLACE

The controversial Santa Monica Early Childhood Education Center (ECEC) is before City Council tomorrow. Action calls for amending the Civic Center Specific Plan, reviewing designs, and adopting amendments to an expired Memorandum of Understanding with Santa Monica College (SMC) plus execution of a ground lease on Civic Center land with SMC for the ECEC. City taxpayers are being hosed.

Council will consider approving a 50-year lease of approximately 1.6 acres worth an estimated $20-milllion to SMC for one dollar. The rush to sign this lease without it being made available in advance for public or council review is unprecedented and raises big red flags concerning its terms and transparency. The city is also expected to kick in $5.5-million to help pay ECEC construction costs. In essence, Santa Monica taxpayers are providing land, a new facility and financial support for what is essentially an SMC academic department.

This is nothing more than a huge child-care perk for the well-paid employees of Rand Corporation, City Hall and the college who have priority. Families will be charged going rates for services although some financial aid may be available.

I'm all for early child care and education but the heart of the Civic Center is the wrong place for this, especially when SMC has a perfect spot for it - on vacant college property at Pico Boulevard and 14th Street adjacent to their campus. This development also removes valuable acreage from cultural and park resources and adds another disparate element that's incompatible with culture and a renovated Civic Auditorium.

Non-human rights

Dear EarthTalk:
What are so-called non-human rights?

Richard Montcalm
Jenkintown, PA

NON-HUMAN RIGHTS IS A TERM COINED by animal welfare activist and lawyer Steven Wise, who has campaigned for three decades to achieve actual legal rights for members of species other than our own. His organization, the Nonhuman Rights Project (NhRP), is working "to change the common law status of at least some nonhuman animals from mere 'things' which lack the capacity to possess any legal right, to 'persons' who possess such fundamental rights as bodily integrity and bodily liberty, and those other legal rights to which evolving standards of morality, scientific discovery, and human experience entitle them."

According to NhRP, nonhuman animals are still considered property in the eyes of the law. Even those animals that we know possess feelings, emotions and higher forms of intelligence-great apes, elephants, dolphins, whales-have no more legal standing than a shoe, a table or a car.

"These are complex animals who have deep emotions, understand each other's minds, live in complicated societies, transmit culture, use sophisticated communication, solve difficult problems, and even mourn the loss of their loved ones," reports the group. "Just like humans."

"But they are still considered property, poached and taken from their natural habitat, separated and held against their will, subjected to cruel experimentation, exploited for entertainment, sold on the black market, used, abused and treated like objects for our amusement and financial gain," says NhRP, adding that such experiences can scar animals for life. "Yet the law affords them no rights, allowing humans to do with them whatever we want."

Wise and company would like to see animals who are confined for use in research or entertainment have the opportunity to live out their days in a wildlife sanctuary with a hospitable climate where they can enjoy "bodily liberty" to pursue their free will. NhRP is working to first establish a legal precedent that nonhumans can have legal rights in the U.S. judicial system. The organization filed its first cases in New York State in December 2013 representing four individual chimpanzees being used in research labs and for entertainment purposes, and hopes to expand its caseload to other nonhuman species in the near future.

In the meantime, NhRP is looking for the help of volunteer lawyers, scientists, mathematicians and predictive analysis professionals interested in lending their expertise to the fight for recognizing the legal rights of nonhumans.

"Over the coming years, we will be filing as many cases as we can afford, so contributions are very important, too," reports the group. "We also need funds to help establish sanctuaries for the animals we're working to free from captivity."

Why should we care that animals have legal rights too? Steven Wise is fond of quoting Abraham Lincoln, who said: "In giving freedom to the slave, we assure freedom to the free." If we don't want to live in a world where humans are enslaved, why should we tolerate similar treatment of our closest animal relatives and other sentient beings great and small? Whether or not the chimps he is fighting for ever get to a sanctuary, Steven Wise will forever go down in history as the Abraham Lincoln of the non-human rights movement.

Examples are "the curving forms and predominant long horizontal lines combined with modern materials like aluminum and glass," the consultant said in its report. "The design was meant to suggest a sense of motion evocative of the advancements in modern transportation technology."

The geometric shapes on the terrazzo floor are associated with Art Deco and Streamline Monderne.

The building exemplifies, symbolizes, or manifests elements of the cultural, social, economic, political or architectural history of the city, according to the consultant, the first of City Hall's six criteria.

It was built during a time of great growth in Santa Monica, following World War II, when industrial work was booming and a housing shortage was being corrected.

"Callahan's location on Wilshire Boulevard, away from the hotels along Ocean Avenue and the tourist attracting pier, indicate that the restaurant most likely served the growing local community as opposed to the weekend travelers and vacationing out-of-towners," the report said. "Callahan's Restaurant provided a social space where local families could purchase an affordable meal."

It also hits the fourth criterion by embodying distinguishing architectural characteristics valuable to a study of a period, style, method of construction, or the use of indigenous materials or craftsmanship, or is a unique or rare example of an architectural design, detail or historical type valuable to such a study.

"Callahan's Restaurant is a rare intact example of a post-war era diner, embodying the changing attitudes toward family dining as working class families became more prosperous," the consultant said.

Numerous neon signs have adorned the corner building, which is now white and green, including "Grove's Bakery" and, currently, the word "Restaurant."

At least 114 structures have been designated as City Landmarks since landmarking began in 1975. At least three of those were demolished. Another seven building have been designated as Structures of Merit, with one designation nullified months later.

and including the Santa Monica Airport - in order to boost efficiency of the airspace, Makrides said.

The SoCal Metroplex project involves changing aircraft flight paths and/or altitudes in certain areas," he said. "It provides for new flight procedures that are more precise and creates a narrower flight path resulting in a concentration of flights over certain areas. According to the FAA, some residents in areas under the concentrated flight path may experience more noise."

City officials have had no involvement with identifying or assessing shifts in flight patterns, Makrides said, and they continue to reiterate City Hall's "opposition to any modifications that would change headings on takeoff from the current heading, by which aircraft fly directly to the coast, rather than over Santa Monica's hills and more residences."

Nearby residents have long complained about the news and pollution caused by the aircraft taking off and landing at the 227-acre airport. Others fear for their safety, with the end of the runway located just a few hundred feet from homes.

Advocates of the airport say it would be integral in the event of a widespread emergency and claim it strengthens the local economy.

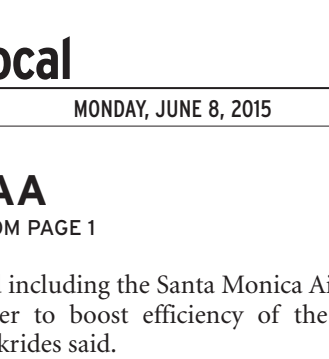

"The purpose of these public workshops is to provide an opportunity for the public to learn about the SoCal Metroplex project and to submit their comments," Makrides said. "Representatives from the FAA will be available during the workshop to provide information about the project."

The FAA's public workshop will occur from 4 to 7 p.m. on June 17 in the multipurpose room of the Main Santa Monica Public Library, 601 Santa Monica Blvd.

The draft of the environmental report will be available Wednesday at http://www.metroplexenvironmental.com/socal_metroplex/socal_introduction.html has been around since 1953.

The free concert at Moss Theater will also feature children involved with Harmony Project, which provides free instruments and music education to public school students in underserved communities.

It's a program that resonates with Kwuon, who was introduced to the violin as a Los Angeles Unified School District student when she was 6 years old.

"I can't imagine having lived my life without music — and it came by way of exactly that type of exposure," she said. "You never know where your next inspired performer or composer is going to come from.

"I think music gives young kids a focus that inspires creativity and concentration. It's an outlet and a form where they can watch their own progress and feel like they're a part of a community. All of those things can lead to so many different great things in life. Regardless of whether you become a professional musician, I think it's really important."

Kwuon first became fascinated by the violin during in-school sessions with Nora Graham, then a traveling music teacher and a former member of the doctors symphony.

As Kwuon remembers it, Graham would cue up recordings of orchestral pieces on a record player in the auditorium and hold up large flashcards with pictures of instruments.

"I was so intrigued by the violin sound," she said. "They found an instrument that was small enough for me, and that was it — I was hooked."

Kwuon later applied to Crossroads after seeing a newspaper article about the school, and she received a scholarship to continue her musical pursuits. For five years her mother drove her daily from their home in Los Feliz to the campus in Santa Monica.

Kwuon then studied music at Indiana University, the Juilliard School and the Cleveland Institute of Music, where she is now a faculty member. But she credits Crossroads for giving her a head start in the demanding discipline.

"It was eye-opening being around other young players who were just as focused," said Kwuon, who graduated from the private school in the late 1980s. "I realized there was so much more to learn. I was so fortunate to be exposed to the training at that age. It was a very rigorous program. One of the most important turning points for me was being at Crossroads."

At the doctors symphony concert Kwuon will deliver a rendition of German composer Max Bruch's "Scottish Fantasy," an 1880 piece whose themes are derived from folk melodies and offer examples of cross-cultural art in a pre-YouTube world.

"It has a far reach," Kwuon said. "It's an opportunity for me to explore those melodies and what that was all about."

Kwuon has performed with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and London Symphony Orchestra as well as the Tokyo-based NHK Symphony Orchestra and Moscow State Radio Symphony, among others.

But she said there's a common thread in any concert she plays — regardless of the size of the venue or the prestige of the performing body.

"There's that moment where the music comes to life," she said. "There is always that amazing spontaneity and energy and excitement, which keeps me going. It makes it feel very alive. It's art in a moment in time — you live it, and then the performance is over."

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON MAY 29, AT APPROXIMATELY 10:15 P.M.

Officers responded to assist the Santa Monica College Police Department with a call of a DUI investigation in the 1700 block of Pearl Street. Upon arrival, officers noticed a driver sitting in a car that was parked diagonally across two parking spaces. According to the SMC officer, he responded to a call of a vehicle horn going off when he found a running vehicle and the driver, later identified as Katherine Maier, 63 of San Diego, asleep on the steering wheel. When Maier was asked to exit the vehicle, she had a difficult time balancing herself and the officer smelled a strong alcoholic odor emitted from her breath and person. The subject stated that she had just had one beer while at the beach with a friend and was looking for a safe place to sleep. Upon a closer inspection of the vehicle, numerous empty and open containers of alcohol were found in the car. Maier was booked for driving under the influence of alcohol. Her bail was set at $25,000.

Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Among recent inventions not expected to draw venture capital interest (reported by Popular Science in June): (1) A Canadian software engineer's machine that unspools toilet paper exactly three squares at a time (but please keep fingers away from the cleaver!). (2) A Japanese shoulder-mounted tomato-feeder that provides nourishment to marathoners without their needing to catch tomatoes provided by supporters. (3) Google software engineer Maurice Bos' whiteboard-mounted clock that writes down the exact time, with a marker, at five-minute intervals (after erasing the previous time).

■ Britain's Home Office, judging requests for asylum by immigrants threatened with deportation but who fear oppressive treatment if returned to their home countries, recently turned down asylum for Nigerian lesbian activist Aderonke Apata, 47, apparently because the office doubted her orientation. Though Apata had submitted testimonials (and even photographs) "proving" her homosexuality, the Home Office was skeptical because she had children from a previous heterosexual relationship. On the other hand, an immigration court in England ruled in April that a Libyan man, identified only as "HU," could not be deported since he is a career criminal and a chronic drunk who would be so unlikely to reform his drinking that he would surely face a lifetime of prison in Libya.

Let's get tolerance trending

By Katharine Romefelt

Racial prejudice has always been a major barrier to creating peace. In honor of Race Unity Day this weekend, remind yourself and those close to you of the universal oneness of humanity.

"Because LA has such a variety of people, it's a city where race isn't really an issue," said Jonny Leung while hanging out in Venice. "People are tolerant and open here. I was raised Chinese, but that doesn't totally define me.

"I'm an independent person like everyone else."

This Sunday, celebrate our city's diversity and continue to spread the message of tolerance and racial cohesion. Living together in harmony is easier than living in a world of unfounded prejudices.

THROW US SOME FEEDBACK @GIIVE.ORG/CONTACT-US/

Play it easy tonight, Libra

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You will wake up tired or out of sorts; your dream life has been active. You might want to pull back and not be so spontaneous. Although an element of tension is clear today, a conversation will clear the air. Still, hold back some. Tonight: Take some personal time.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ You finally will see the results of your intense focus and hard work. Do not underestimate the power of your ideas and leadership. A meeting could provide information that will put a smile on your face. Tonight: Embrace a moment of insight, then celebrate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ You could feel as if there are many possibilities coming in from various directions. You see a personal matter differently from how those around you see it, especially an older friend or parent. Your time and attention will push a project to completion. Tonight: Till the wee hours.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You might want to look in a different direction. Your ability to see past the obvious is likely to emerge. Detach from your feelings before making a decision. Look at a situation from the perspective of an observer, and your decision will be right-on. Tonight: Relax with a movie.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You know how to work with a partner who can be touchy. Understand what is motivating this person, and perhaps you will see a change of mood. You will have a very positive effect on others right now; use that magic well. Tonight: Whatever knocks your socks off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You could be in a situation where you believe it is an either/or matter. Understand that it isn't. With detachment and willingness to explore beyond your normal restrictions, you'll come up with a unique perspective and response. Tonight: Defer to someone else.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Putting in a hard day's work or focusing on a key issue might be difficult, as someone from your personal life keeps trying to distract you. You'll wonder how to handle this person. First ask yourself what you want or desire from the situation, then proceed. Tonight: Play it easy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Allow your imagination to take over where your logic ends. If you're trying to add a creative touch or find a unique response to a problem, look within. For those who are open and ready, a romance suddenly could pop into your life. Enjoy being distracted. Tonight: Be naughty.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You have the ability and know-how to move a personal situation forward. You might be overthinking a situation. Be careful. Some of you could be checking out an investment involving property. Move forward with care. Tonight: Happiest at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ You might be focused on your routine, but conversations will distract you a good part of the day. You could feel as if something is off, yet you haven't seemed to figure out what exactly it is. Tonight: Open up and have a long-overdue talk. You will feel better.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ The way in which you express what you want could differ from person to person. Keep conversations light and easy, especially in the morning, when there is a wave of confusion. A dear friend who always makes you feel great might show up. Tonight: Make plans accordingly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ You might be on top of your game, but everyone else seems to be a bit out of sorts. They will sense your effectiveness and possibly even resent it. Look toward more understanding by working through any issues. You have reason to celebrate. Tonight: All smiles.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS
The stars show the kind of day you'll have:
★★★★★Dynamic ★★ So-So
★★★★ Positive ★ Difficult
★★★ Average

This year you opt to direct your attention to your image, profession and public life. You have a way with words, and it naturally puts you in a position of leadership. You attract others' attention. Be careful, though, as your words easily could be misinterpreted. If you are single, be aware of any secret admirers. In the next few months, a surprising attraction to someone unique is likely. If you are attached, you and your sweetie enjoy your time together away from others. Getting time away alone supports the bond between you. PISCES' emotionalism sometimes makes you uncomfortable.

No pressure. During your Free Window Diagnosis, we'll give you an exact, down-to-the-penny price that's good for an entire year.

112 years of window expertise. We're the replacement division of Andersen, the window and door brand that your dad told you to trust.

No middleman to deal with. There's no runaround between the installer and the manufacturer because we handle it all, from custom-building to installing to warranting all our products.

We won't sell you vinyl. We've replaced thousands of poor-quality vinyl windows and patio doors, so we made our window's Fibrex composite material two times stronger than vinyl.

Make an appointment and get a price that's good for an entire year!
