Local surf Instructors Compete with Illegal Schools

KATE CAGLE
Daily Press Staff Writer

There are few sites more quintessential to the California experience than these: a palm tree, the Santa Monica Pier, a surfboard in the sand.

The promise of a day or two living the Southern California lifestyle brings millions of tourists to Santa Monica every year, and to many of them a chance to catch their first wave is high up on the bucket list. In order to provide a safe, reliable experience, the City permits and manages surf camps, schools and individual instructors who teach novices on the beach. However, according to a half dozen interviews conducted by the Daily Press, the system is not always working as well as it should.

"There's absolutely no enforcement out there on weekends," Patrick Murphy said looking over the waves crashing on the shore just south of the Pier. Murphy was one of the first instructors to get a permit when the City submitted its first request for proposal fifteen years ago. He's gone through a thorough vetting process year after year and has paid a hefty fee for the right to teach here: 15 percent of gross receipts.

So he is upset when he sees individual instructors – and even surfing schools – operating on the beach without a permit.

"It's really messed up," Murphy said. "It does become more difficult to operate every year. There's a lot more competition and these people aren't paying their permit fees so there's much less overhead. I doubt they're paying workers

On Tuesday, the City Council will consider granting several contracts that could impacting, parking, traffic and public access television.

PARKING GARAGE REPAIR

Several of the City's parking garages are overdue for serious repairs, according to a staff report. Parking structures, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 9 and 10 are all candidates for upgrades that include waterproofing structural slabs, concrete walls and columns. The total cost of construction could reach $3.2 million dollars and will likely be performed by Slater Waterproofing, Inc. If approved by the City Council, construction will begin in September and last about 15 months.

Five of the City's eleven parking structure were constructed in the 1960's. In March 2008, two large pieces of concrete fell from the second level slab at Structure 1 onto the Promenade Maintenance

Innovative County Programs Honored For Combating Homelessness

The National Association of Counties (NACo) awarded the Community Development Commission (CDC) and the Housing Authority of the County of Los Angeles (HACoLA) two 2017 Achievement Awards, and recognized HACoLA as part of NACo's 100 Brilliant Ideas at Work.

The CDC's South Los Angeles Recuperative Care Center (Center) received an Achievement Award in the Health category. The 38-bed Center provides an environment for homeless patients to recover after major surgery, following discharge from County hospitals. The Center's goal is to stabilize patients recovering from acute illness, injuries, or conditions that would be recuperative careexacerbated by living on the streets or in a shelter.

HACoLA's "Combating Homelessness: An Incentive-Based Approach" received an Achievement Award, and was selected by NACo as one of the 100 Brilliant Ideas at Work, which are programs that showcase the best innovations in county government. To help combat homelessness, HACoLA established two programs, the Landlord Veteran DSC_2666Incentive Program (VIP) and the Homeless Incentive Program (HIP), that offer incentives to landlords in order to help homeless veterans, individuals, and families compete against the tight rental housing market and non-subsidized renters.

Sean Rogan, Executive Director of the CDC and HACoLA, shared, "It's an honor to be recognized by NACo for our efforts in combating homelessness. We are committed to developing and implementing programs that will improve the lives of homeless and low-income individuals, veterans, and families in Los Angeles County."

NACo President Bryan Desloge said, "Counties overcome complex challenges, provide essential services and constantly do more with less. We applaud these Achievement Award-winning counties for outstanding efforts to improve residents' quality of life."

Started in 1970, NACo's annual Achievement Award Program is designed to recognize innovative county government programs. Each nominee is judged on its own merits and not against other applications received. Nationally, awards are given in 18 different categories that reflect the vast, comprehensive services counties provide. The categories include children and youth, criminal justice, county administration, information technology, health, civic engagement, and many more.

NACo will recognize award-winning counties at its 2017 Annual Conference and Exposition from July 21 through July 24, 2017 in Franklin County, Ohio.

UCLA Medical Center, Santa Monica Achieves Certification as a Primary Stroke Center

UCLA Medical Center, Santa Monica has been certified as a Primary Stroke Center, a distinction that recognizes centers that follow proven best practices for stroke care.

The designation was awarded by The Joint Commission, one of the country's leading accrediting agencies, following a successful site visit in late March. It means the hospital's Nethercutt Emergency Center will receive suspected stroke patients brought by paramedics in the field for further diagnostic assessment and treatment.

"We are extremely proud to have earned this designation and look forward to serving our community with state-of-the-art stroke care," said Dr. Doojin Kim, medical director of the hospital's stroke program. "Residents, visitors and their family members can be assured of receiving timely, efficient and compassionate stroke care, based on guidelines endorsed by the American Heart & Stroke Associations."

Pamela Nye, program coordinator for the stroke center, said the process for becoming a certified center takes months of planning and preparation by a core stroke team, supported by a multidisciplinary team of physicians, nurses, therapists and other health professionals. Kim, Nye and Dr. Wally Ghurabi, medical director of emergency services, comprise UCLA-Santa Monica's core team.

The Joint Commission surveyor conducting the hospital's March 24 site visit had an unexpected opportunity to observe the stroke team's response in real time. Soon after the site visit began, Nye and other stroke team members were summoned by pager to two separate "code strokes" – one in the Intensive Care Unit and the other in the Nethercutt ER.

"The teams performed flawlessly," said Nye. "The surveyor was able to view our people and protocols in real-life situations." The surveyor later told Nye that in all her years conducting site visits, she had never been in a hospital where two codes occurred so soon after a survey started.

"Our team members knew exactly what to do and executed our protocols perfectly," said Nye. "I was so proud."

The Joint Commission's Primary Stroke Center certification program was developed in collaboration with the American Heart Association/American Stroke Association, incorporating standards set forth by the Brain Attack Coalition.

To receive certification, hospitals must have:

A dedicated stroke program.

Qualified professionals trained in stroke care.

Individualized and patient-involved stroke care.

Coordinated post-discharge patient self-care.

Streamlined patient information and collection of treatment performance data.

Continual assessment and improvement in quality of care.

Certification is awarded for a two-year period, but at the end of the first year, organizations must demonstrate their continued compliance with standards and to review performance-improvement activities. Additionally, certified primary centers must provide quarterly reports on eight core measures of stroke treatment.

In addition to the certification, UCLA-Santa Monica has earned the "Get with The Guidelines - Stroke Silver-Plus Quality Achievement Award" from the American Heart Association/American Stroke Association. This award recognizes the hospital's commitment to high-quality stroke care by ensuring that stroke patients receive treatment that meets nationally accepted, evidence-based standards and recommendations.

World Elder Abuse Awareness Day

Wednesday, June 15, 2017 is World Elder Abuse Awareness Day. However, throughout the nation and the world, WEAAD is being acknowledged on any given day on June, 2017. Communities in the USA and all over the world will sponsor events to highlight the growing tragic issue of elder abuse.

Ethics Media will host a WEAAD Rally in Santa Monica on June 25, from 1- 5 p.m. Meet at the Santa Monica City Hall (1685 Main St) and walk to Ocean and California Ave.

The U.S. Administration on Aging estimates that as many as 1 in 10 older Americans are abused or neglected each year. Older adults are vital, contributing members of American society and their abuse or neglect diminishes all of us. America has confronted and addressed the issues of child abuse and domestic violence, but, as a society we have for too long looked away from the issue of elder abuse.

Ethics Media is an advocacy company founded by Laurie Delgado in 2016 to create awareness on the impact of elder abuse. The aim is to operate on both a state and local level by creating public awareness in hopes of changing the laws regarding elder healthcare and it's practitioning.

SMC launches program to train and certify early childhood educators for transitional kindergarten

Santa Monica College (SMC) has announced that the SMC Early Childhood/Education (ECE) Department has been approved to offer specialized teacher-preparation courses that address the specific developmental needs of children in Transitional Kindergarten (TK).

SMC is the first community college in California to offer a Certificate of Achievement in Transitional Kindergarten. The 24-unit certificate program consists of courses that are 'aligned' with building an educator's knowledge and skills in working with these youngsters. The first classes in the program will be offered online starting in Fall 2017, with the remaining courses launching in Spring 2018.

"This is the most affordable and accessible for-credit professional development pathway for TK currently available in California," said SMC Early Childhood/Education instructor Gary Huff. "And, it's a great starting point for non-credentialed students who are interested in exploring career options working with younger children in the school system."

In California, children must be age 5 on or before September 1 to be eligible for Kindergarten. California's Kindergarten Readiness Act, passed in 2010, created Transitional Kindergarten (TK) to help children who turn 5 between September 2 and December 2 prepare for kindergarten. These children may not have much experience interacting with other children and adults outside the family, and may have limited skills in listening, self-control, and adapting to the structured environment of a classroom.

With the recent introduction of TK into the public school system, credentialed teachers have been moved into TK classrooms with little or no preparation in working with the unique learning and development needs of these younger children. To address the issue, the California Department of Education/Early Education and Support Division/Quality Improvement Office established a contract with the Curriculum Alignment Project (CAP) to develop TK teacher preparation courses to be offered for credit through community colleges.

"We are excited to be a training and professional development provider for Transitional Kindergarten teachers," said SMC Early Childhood/Education Department Chair Laura Manson. "By providing 24-units of intensive coursework in early childhood education to current and future TK teachers, we are not only building the quality of the workforce, but we are also ensuring positive outcomes for children in schools."

"The SMC TK Certificate is the most recent example of the College's ECE Department stepping up to meet the needs of the profession," said Renatta Cooper, Educational Coordinator for the LA County Office for the Advancement of Early Care and Education. "In creating this program, they are connecting Elementary Educators with the ECE system in a comprehensive and meaningful manner. By providing a Certificate, they also enable teachers who participate in their program to have proof of specialized instruction with the TK age group. This will help to secure these teachers' position in TK classrooms regardless of their seniority. This is good news for developmental education and great news for children!"

The new Transitional Kindergarten Certificate is the latest addition to a wide array of ECE offerings at Santa Monica College, including an Early Intervention Assistant Associate Degree and Certificate of Achievement; an Associate in Science for Transfer Degree in ECE (which gives students the opportunity to get priority admission into many CSU campuses); and an Associate Degree and Certificate in ECE-Career. A Department Certificate in ECE (Core) is also available—this prepares students to obtain an Associate Teacher permit.

To find out more about these programs – including the new Transitional Kindergarten certification – please visit www.smc.edu/ece or call (310) 434-8109.

comp ... maybe they have insurance."

This year the City issued permits to three surf camps, one school (Murphy's Learn to Surf LA) and nine individual instructors. It also lowered the fee to ten percent of gross receipts from fifteen. Santa Monica's Public Information Officer, Constance Farrell, says the permits help the City maintain a diversity of activities out on the beach, as well as insure safety for locals and visitors.

"That's something we take really seriously because we want to make sure people are coming out and enjoying the beautiful beach and the Pacific and learning to surf but they need to have a safe experience which is the most important thing," Farrell said.

Since January 2015, the City has issued just three citations to surf instructors operating without a permit and two citations to permitted instructors who didn't have a business license. But multiple surf instructors told the Daily Press they see violators out in the water every day.

"There are people who just bluntly sit there and teach lessons and the City doesn't do anything about it," permitted instructor Sergio Penaloza said, acknowledging that it is difficult for code enforcement officers to keep track of surfers who spend the majority of their time out in the ocean. Penaloza says he's been pleased with the permitting system overall, because it prevents crowding among the waves.

"There isn't much you can do about it unless you can police all the time," Penaloza said. "I was out there today at six in the morning and there's no one policing at that hour. There's no one up at that hour."

Farrell says the permitting process is a collaboration between the Beach Team which works out of the Annenberg Community Beach House and Code Enforcement. The City publishes a list on its website of permitted instructors. She says the City is aware of the issue and plans to keep an eye on the shore this summer.

"As we head into the summer, we know there will be an increase in surf activities and to keep people safe, enforcement details are planned," Farrell said. "We encourage people to let us know if they have a tip regarding unpermitted surf camps or instructors by calling or emailing."

Murphy is hoping the City follows through on its promise. As a surf school, he says the lack of enforcement has made it difficult for him to retain good instructors because some realize they can make more money by going it alone on the beach and simply not pay City permit fees.

"It's the environment that's being created by a lack of enforcement," Murphy said. "You've got pretty much anybody coming out here. The regulators are not bad people, it just doesn't seem like a high priority for them to really pay attention to it."

If you see an illegal surf school or unpermitted instructor you can contact Code Enforcement by calling (310) 458-4984 or emailing. Code.enforcement@smgov.net.

Office. The temporary shoring of the slab is still in place today, and would be updated with the waterproofing construction if it is approved by the City Council. In 2009, severe concrete cracking at Structure 3 prompted the City to inspect all the structures which are showing wear and distress. Structure 3 will be demolished if the City approves plans submitted by Arclight Theaters to replace the structure with a movie theater and mixed-use development. Both structures 1 and 3 are in need of seismic retrofitting.

Parking Structure 5 could be shut down for as long as five days during the construction because it needs deck sealing on multiple levels. City staff estimates construction could result in a temporary loss of about fifty parking spaces during the week and no more than 25 on the weekends. Because of the parking impact, staff placed restrictions on the contractor's work during the Pier Concert Series and Wednesday Farmers Markets. No work would take place during the holiday season between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day.

CITYTV BROADCASTING EQUIPMENT

The City Council will consider replacing CityTV's 15-year-old Mobile Production Vehicle and aging video equipment in order to improve its on-location video production services. If approved, $625,471 worth of new gear will be up and ready to go later this year and allow the City to livestream and broadcast public meetings not held in the Council Chambers – including school board meetings and City Council meeting during the construction of the new City Services Building. The City plans to use the equipment to cover the Twilight Concerts, parades and sporting events. Staff says if the new equipment is not ordered, future field productions may have quality issues or may simply become unfeasible.

TRAFFIC FORECASTING

On Tuesday, the City Council will consider granting a $280,500 contract to a transportation consulting firm to update the City's Travel Demand Forecasting Model. The consulting firm, Fehr & Peers, originally developed the model in 2008 to evaluate how existing and future development in the City may impact traffic patterns. The model allows City leaders to analyze weekend traffic patterns, greenhouse gas emissions, car trips per person, and walking and bicycle demand for different streets. The model was last updated in 2013 and should be recalibrated for optimal accuracy every four years, according to a staff report from the City. The new forecasting model will factor in new development projects, regulations and the Expo Light Rail, which opened in 2016.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 12)

Keep your goals away from the trolls and this solar return will favor you again and again! Exciting news will come in July. You'll find the right partner for a project and soon have an entire group working around you. Travel in November and February has professional benefit. Your family will grow in more ways than one. Libra and Cancer adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 19, 3, 22, 7 and 40.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Your optimism may cause you to believe the unbelievable or act in foolish faith. Better to reach and fail at heaven than to go on as if this were all there is. You know there's more. You've glimpsed it. Try; learn; and try again.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
You've been known to sum up the situation yourself to decide about the next move, authority notwithstanding. The traffic lights of life give you three colors, but the crossing is still up to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
It's no secret whom you love, but you would be hard-pressed to say why. You could come up with a few reasons, but all of them wouldn't equal the sum of your love, with mysterious forces still unaccounted for.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
It seems rather obvious to you that you should spend time with people who reflect how you want to feel, though finding them isn't quite so easy as you'd like it to be lately. You'll probably have to take the lead in setting a desired tone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
If the thing you do out of a sense of decorum (and most likely at no small effort and cost to you, at least emotionally) does not serve to keep the peace or satisfy the social agenda, you have to ask, "What am I doing it for?"

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
The hero of the story usually comes to a crucial scene in which he finds out who he really is. In real life, this isn't a crucial scene; it's a series of small moments that add up to tendencies that accumulate in a character portrait.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Energies are contagious, especially today and most especially yours. Furthermore, you'll be around particularly susceptible people, so the burden of responsibility will fall to you in regard to their mood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)
Many will take time to reflect on the motives and actions of others, while very few will afford their own actions and motives such reflection. This is where you'll have an advantage to exploit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
The person who doesn't "want to talk about it" usually does. "Pay no attention to the..." is a sentence that never works as stated. Try to focus exclusively on what you want and where you're going.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Strength and grace are often shown in the topics and point of view a person chooses and in the particular words, as well. In spite of what hurts, you'll speak exclusively of happiness.

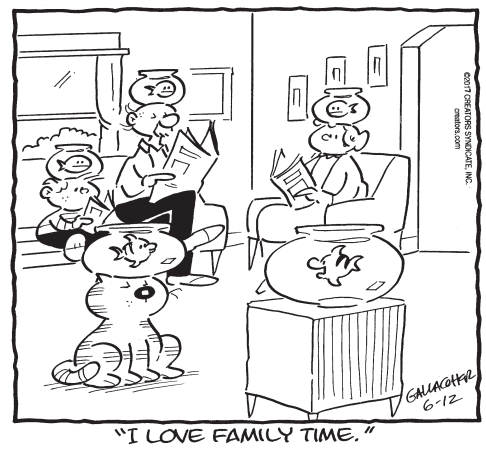

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
You can't learn less. Even if you forget the lesson or if some reversal of mind causes you to rebel against its teaching, to believe its opposite or to go numb to its imprint, you're still changed by what you know.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
What if you asked for everything? What if you asked for far less than everything but more than the others have asked for? The former will be considered hyperbole, the latter greed. Go with the first option.

Mercury's Speedway
Mercury in Gemini removes speed limit signs. In this self-governing system, don't move through life too fast just because you can. Why blur the scenery? You'd miss the thrill of spotting wildlife or the perplexing spell of a bizarre bumper sticker. You'd miss the preparations for the next destination. You'd miss why you're traveling in the first place.

WELL NEWS BY SCOTT LAFEE

Medical History

■ This week in 1968, Denton Cooley of the Texas Heart Institute performed the first successful heart transplant in the United States on Everett Thomas, whose heart was damaged from rheumatic heart disease. Thomas lived 204 days with the heart donated from a 15-year-old girl. A year later, Cooley would become the first heart surgeon to implant an artificial heart in a human.

Medical Myths

■ Your heart does not stop momentarily when you sneeze, though some interesting things do happen. When you sneeze, pressure within your chest momentarily increases, causing a decrease in blood flow returning to the heart. The heart compensates by momentarily changing its regular rhythm. Electrical activity in the heart does not stop during the sneeze.
