NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

In May, independent arson experts reported that the 2004 Texas execution of Tyrone Willingham was based on evidence that has now been scientifically disproved (and which had probably been repudiated earlier in 2004, when another Texas arson convict had had his death sentence overturned). According to a Chicago Tribune story, the fire marshals whose testimony cinched Willingham's sentence relied on out-of-date, discredited tests, leaving no reliable evidence for the jury that the fire that killed Willingham's three kids was deliberately set. According to the report (commissioned by the Innocence Project), no formal training (only training "on the job") is required of Texas fire marshals.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is the 170th day of 2006.
There are 195 days left in the year.

On June 19, 1865, Union troops commanded by Maj. Gen. Gordon Granger arrived in Galveston, Texas, with news that the Civil War was over, and that all slaves were free. (The anniversary of this celebration is called "Juneteenth.")

Teenagers get to take Action! with own fest

BY EMILIE PHELPS

Special to the Daily Press

DOWNTOWN — Mention teenagers and the film industry together and images of Corey Haims and Leif Garretts gone wrong may spring to mind, but the adolescent auteurs who gathered here on Saturday have bigger ideas than landing on "True Hollywood Stories."

The youngsters who made their arrivals at the Main Library's Martin Luther King Jr. auditorium over the weekend aren't child actors, but budding directors looking to put an original slant on life at the inaugural Santa Monica Teen Film Festival.

One of the afternoon's highlights was a film by Santa Monican Sam Alper and his friend Josh Margolin, which won the top prize for a live-action film, as well as the audience award. "Semi Formal," a seven-minute short, depicts the story of two young men and their struggles to get ready for their school's semi-formal dance, which includes a hilarious, but controversial moment in which a rejected boy punches a haughty girl in the face.

The boys were prompted to make the film by their student body president, who wanted a film to promote the semi-formal.

"We were just worried we wouldn't finish it," admitted Alper, "or we'd finish it and get terrible grades on our tests for that week."

Mother who lost son to unsolved killing finds the shade

PICO BOULEVARD — While cars zoomed past amid the lunchtime rush here on Thursday, Arminda Lopez stood on the curb looking content, delicately trimming the thin green stems of a brightly colored bouquet.

She placed the flowers in the clear plastic jugs that she and one of her girlfriends filled with fresh water for the week. The jugs rest at the bottom of a tree, its skinny trunk covered with faded photos, deflated birthday balloons and handwritten notes, including one written with black marker on cardboard that reads: "If the cops don't get you first ... God Will! Jesus, let justice be done!!"

The message speaks to the suspected gang member wanted for the murder of Lopez' 15-year-old son, Eduardo "Eddie" Lopez, who was shot and killed on Feb. 28, just steps away from the tree that now serves as a memorial for the former student-athlete gunned down by a suspected gang member.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS The stars show the kind of day you'll Have:

★★★★-Dynamic ★★★★★-Positive ★★★★★-Average ★★-So-so ★-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You might wake up feeling different in your skin. Much went on in your dreams, whether you remember or not. An unexpected reversal actually gives you important information. Rather than react, put your ear to the ground. Use this information. Tonight: Get into the moment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ If you are open, work-related matters will take you in a new direction. Laugh and relax with those around you. Understand when you don't feel comfortable with someone's stand. Think carefully before launching into a heavy discussion. Facts seem to give way like quicksand. Tonight: Pull back.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★★ Read between the lines, and you'll get answers. You might not always agree with what you hear, but facts are not only important but critical. A meeting might prove to be more beneficial in smoothing the waters than you think. Tonight: Hang with a friend. Catch up on weekend news.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★ Deal with others more directly, and you'll get banner results. Investigate new possibilities with an eye to greater financial and emotional security. Your high energy can define a situation and help you do what is needed. Tonight: Ask, and you shall receive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Often, you sit back and watch what goes down. The more detached you are, the better off you will be. You might want to re-evaluate certain relationships as much more new information comes forth. People change; relationships change. Tonight: Take an overview.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ You might want to revamp a specific area of your life. Think in terms of gains and a positive new beginning. You could question your decisions that revolve around work. You can revitalize your life. The question is, Why not? Tonight: In the whirlwind of life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Others reveal another side to their personality. You might be taken aback by what you hear and by what others share. Lighten up, knowing that you aren't being pushed; rather, events present you with an opportunity for choice. Tonight: Happily greet the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ What occurs might force a revamping of plans. Often, you might not be as flexible as you'd like to be. The looser you are, the easier life's jolts will feel. Obstacles are only curveballs. Tonight: Choose a stress-reducing activity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Your cavalier spirit defines your activities right now. You have the initiative and get-up-and-go to accomplish whatever you need, whenever you want. Let your creativity flourish. Surprises happen when communicating. Tonight: Make yourself happy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★ A jolt could be heading your way. You don't need to react, but you will need to think. How you handle this situation could define your security and well-being. You might be making decisions subconsciously. Make that OK. Tonight: Hang close to home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ Unexpected insight or an impulse could toss your life in a novel direction. You might want to talk over a change or make an adjustment. Getting feedback might be great; talking and not acting isn't. Tonight: Say yes.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ Your perceptions about a money matter might need to be revised. What is true is that you have new insights helping you redirect your decisions and direction. Your expenses need some reining in. You can do it. Tonight: Talk budget.

COMMUNITY BRIEFS

Fire department to stand down for firefighter safety

By Daily Press staff

The Santa Monica Fire Department and IAFF local 1109 are joining thousands of fire departments across the United States and Canada for the 2006 International Fire Fighter Safety Stand Down. Starting June 21 and continuing until all members of the Santa Monica Fire Department have participated, our fire fighters will suspend all non-emergency activity to focus on fire fighter safety.

The department will respond to all emergency calls as usual, but between calls fire fighters, officers and chiefs will take the time to conduct safety training and drills, review safety-related standard operating procedures, discuss accident reports, and have an open conversation about fire fighter safety in the department. The focus of the stand down is on emergency vehicle safety — in particular on seatbelt use, backing department apparatus, and driving through intersections.

"The Santa Monica Fire Department is committed to serving the residents of Santa Monica. Keeping our fire fighters safe and healthy helps us respond effectively and keeps our community protected," said Chief Walter Shirk, of the training division.

The Q-Line

Let go of the railing.
Last week, the City Council agreed to purchase more than 104,000 square feet of land currently owned by Sears Roebuck and Co. for a cost in excess of $35 million. The downtown real estate has been highly coveted by the city with its proximity to the Promenade, the Pier and the Civic Center redevelopment plans along Main Street. It's also no secret the city envisions the parcel as a possible site for a Light Rail terminus that would connect Santa Monica to Los Angeles.

So this week Q-Line wants to know:
Would the viability of easy transportation to and from downtown Los Angeles be a good thing in light of our city's homeless population?
Call (310) 285-8106 or leave your post at smdp.com/forum and we'll print your responses in the weekend edition.

Cable has competition

Editor:

When the California States Assembly passed AB 2987, they did so with the understanding that it will bring competition, lower prices and improved services for all Californians. In fact, the bill passed the Assembly with a 77-0 vote showing unanimous bi-partisan support as it enters the State Senate.

Despite cable’s unsubstantiated rhetoric that AB 2987 will not bring lower prices and will take away from services offered to the consumer, it’s obvious to the rest of us that they are merely trying to hold onto their decades old monopoly of the industry. Additionally, the state-of-the-art technology that will be offered through fiber optic video systems is necessary to serve the needs of the future.

The Digital and Video Competition Act of 2006 (AB 2987) is in the best interest of everyone not directly associated with cable. All one has to do is look at the current situation in Keller, Texas. Since FiOS was introduced as competition for cable, people have received an influx of new technology while prices have fallen as much as 25 percent from their original bill.

That’s why a broad base of supporters of AB 2987 includes business groups like the California Business Roundtable, the California Chamber of Commerce and the L.A. Chamber of Commerce and labor organizations such as the Communications Workers of America and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

How about a Palisades playground?

Editor:

I’m a resident of San Vicente Boulevard, in Santa Monica, between Fourth and Ocean, where I live in a two-bedroom apartment with my wife and three children, ages 5 and 2 (twins).

While we certainly appreciate the many advantages of living in our neighborhood, one of our greatest frustrations has been the lack of a local playground. For us, the nearest playground is Roosevelt School at Montana and Lincoln (a 20-minute walk); however, the playground is unavailable during school hours, which is ironically the most likely time to be taking toddlers to the park. The next closest playground is Reed Park, at Wilshire and Seventh, too long a walk with kids.

And the biggest irony is we’re less than a five-minute walk from beautiful Palisades Park. Now don’t get me wrong — there are some great grass areas for young kids to run and explore — but they have to compete with joggers, exercisers, walkers, picnickers, dogs, etc., a dangerous proposition, not to mention there’s no fence there to stop them from running in the street... and no picnicker likes a strange toddler digging through the potato salad, trust me on this. So that got my wife and I thinking: how could there NOT be any kind of a designated playground for small children in Palisades Park?

Our own experience told us there had been an increase in the number of children being born in this area and that families were no longer leaving and buying houses elsewhere. What had once been an apartment corridor full of singles and seniors was undergoing a significant change in its demographic. For example, our own building hasn’t had a child living there in 15 years; now, there are six children, with another on the way. We also did some research on the Internet and found numerous studies confirming that for young children, especially kids less than 5, the more time spent outside playing the better — socially, physically and emotionally.

As we’ve driven our children around Santa Monica to play at the City’s various toddler playgrounds, we’ve noticed that several, like the one in Ozone Park, to the south, do a very good job of safely providing a play area for tots without using up a large amount of space. Why not in Palisades Park?

This is an idea that could really impact one of Santa Monica’s most important resources, its toddlers, and improve the quality of life for hundreds of young families living along San Vicente, as well as the numerous apartments and condos on Montana, Ocean, and surrounding streets.

We recently presented our observations and proposal for a toddler playground in Palisades Park to the Recreation and Parks Commission, who were interested, supportive and are now working with the City to consider and study the issue.

If this is an idea that makes sense to you, I strongly urge you to contact the Recreation & Parks Commission and voice your approval of placing a toddler playground in Palisades Park.

Their e-mail addresses are: Phil Brock (stgactor@gte.net), Neil Carrey (ncarrey@aol.com), Susan Cloke (susancloke@earthlink.net), Lori Nafshun (gettalife@earthlink.net), Frank Schwengel (fschwengel@aol.com), Ted Winterer (otedo@aol.com), Jennifer Wolch (wolch@usc.edu).

In addition, please drop your city councilmembers a line (or cc: them) to show your support: Councilmember McKeown (kevin@mckeown.net), Councilmember Shriver (bobby.shriver@smgov.net), Councilmember O’Connor (pam.oconnor@smgov.net), Councilmember Katz (rtkarch@aol.com), Councilmember Genzer (city@genser.org), Councilmember Bloom (richard.bloom@smgov.net), Councilmember Holbrook (robert.holbrook@smgov.net)

If you think this idea makes a lot of sense and captures your imagination, please do your part to get the word out!

Rent hikes help wealthy and put screws to poor

As expected, the Santa Monica Rent Control Board socked it to renters and landlords alike on June 8. The occasion was the public hearing to approve the general rent increase for Santa Monica apartments under rent control for the 2006-07 year.

The board approved allowing landlords to increase rents 4 percent for all units, with a ceiling of $54, plus a $2 increase in the monthly rent control administration fee charged to tenants.

The general rent adjustment is determined by a formula that factors the annual cost-of-living increase for the Los Angeles area and increases in the cost of utilities and maintenance expenses incurred by apartment owners.

According to the rent board’s general counsel, David Daniels, the law allows the board to establish a cap on rents because the basic purpose of the annual increase is to allow landlords to keep up with rising costs associated with the rental business without over-profiting. The thinking is, the upkeep of most similarly sized units is about the same, regardless of their rental tariff.

The ceiling, or cap, is calculated on a formula based on the average rent for both market and non-market rate units below the 85th percentile of the average maximum allowable rent median. This eliminates the upper-15 percentile — or the priciest units — that would skew the median up. The average rent median is then $1,362 per month. Four percent of $1,362 is $54 — and that’s the cap.

Someone is profiting. Wealthier tenants paying more than $1,362 a month — their increases are proportionally less than tenants in apartments with lower rents.

Tenants in the priciest units — above $5,400, for example — are gifted with rent increases of less than 1 percent. Tenants in a $2,500-per month apartment will get about a 2-percent increase.

Landlords and tenants I talked to believe the cap is SMRR’s way of buying the votes of high end and market rate renters.

Renters in non-market rate, rent-controlled units almost always vote for SMRR causes and candidates because they’re told their vote will preserve rent control and keep their rents low. And thanks to SMRR, market rate tenants also get a break with the cap, as long as SMRR stays in power.

A $54 cap on a $2,000 apartment saves the tenant $312 annually, and more than $1,000 a year on a $3,500-per month unit — thanks to the rent control board, whose members are all in SMRR.

Then there’s the issue of additional charges related to interest on school parcel taxes and Santa Monica College bond proposals — all enthusiastically backed by SMRR. The fees or costs are passed on to all tenants by landlords with rent control board approval. Their costs are divvied up by numbers of units and tacked onto monthly rents. Upscale renters in larger buildings may see extra charges of pennies — if at all. Low-income tenants in smaller buildings, such as a triplex, could end up paying $3 to $4 more each month.

While the Renters Rights folks say they care about low- and middle-income tenants, their policies on rent increases for existing tenants and support of regressive taxes and bond expenses passed on by landlords are a double whammy affecting the poor much more than the well-to-do. But, it’s just something else that SMRR ignores in its quest for even more power.

With the time for people to announce their candidacy for municipal elections fast approaching, some well known names are now starting to pop up. Gleam Davis, who ran unsuccessfully for the board of education in 2000, is considering running for City Council. The Community for Excellent Public Schools (CEPS) activist is being courted by some SMRRs. There is an active “Dump Councilwoman Pam O’Connor” movement, and it’s growing. SMRR endorsed O’Connor in previous elections, however, now there is a Gleam in the wings.

Lifelong education advocate and CEPS co-chair Louise Jaffe is a probable candidate for the Santa Monica College Board of Trustees, as is former City Councilman (1986-90) David Finkle, who has told friends he’s running. The former judge is a long-time SMRR supporter who would help solidify SMRR’s and former SMRR co-chair, Nancy Greenstein’s control of the college board if elected.

GUEST COMMENTARY BY CHRISTIAN BEENFELDT

The Anti-Life movement

The recent ban on abortion in South Dakota is a victory for the "pro-life" movement — and thus, anti-abortionists claim, a victory for "the sanctity of human life." But is it?

The South Dakota law bans abortions in all cases except saving the life of the mother. Consider what this would mean for human life — not the "lives" of embryos or primitive fetuses, but the lives of real, living, breathing, thinking women.

It would mean that women who wanted to terminate a pregnancy because it resulted from rape or contraceptive failure — or because the would-be father has abandoned her — or because the fetus is malformed — would be forbidden from doing so. It would mean that they would be forced to endure the misery of unwanted pregnancy and the incredible burdens of child rearing. It would mean that women would be sentenced to 18-year terms of enslavement to unwanted children — thereby suffocating their hopes, their dreams, their personal ambitions, their chance of happiness. And it would mean that women who refused to submit to such a fate would be forced to turn to the "back-alley" at a staggering risk to their health. According to a World Health Organization estimate, 110,000 women worldwide die each year from such illegal abortions and up to six times as many suffer injury from them.

Clearly, anti-abortionists believe that such women's lives are an unimportant consideration in the issue of abortion. Why? Because, they claim, the embryo or fetus is a human being—and thus to abort it is murder. But an embryo is not a human being, and abortion is not murder.

There is no scientific reason to characterize a raisin-size lump of cells as a human being. Biologically speaking, such an embryo is far more primitive than a fish or a bird. Anatomically, its brain has yet to develop, so in terms of its capacity for consciousness, it doesn't bear the remotest similarity to a human being. This growth of cells has the potential to become a human being — if preserved, fed, nurtured, and brought to term by the woman that it depends on—but it is not actually a human being. Analogously, seeds can become mature plants — but that hardly makes a pile of acorns equal to a forest.

What can justify the sacrifice of an actual woman's life to human potential of the most primitive kind? There can be no rational justification for such a position — certainly not a genuine concern for human life. The ultimate "justification" of the "pro-life" position is religious dogma. Led by the American Roman Catholic Church and Protestant fundamentalists, the movement's basic tenet, in the words of the Catechism of the Catholic Church, is that an embryo must be treated "from conception as a person" created by the "action of God." What about the fact that an embryo is manifestly not a person, and treating it as such inflicts mass suffering on real people? This tenet is not subject to rational scrutiny; it is a dogma that must be accepted on faith.

The "pro-life" movement tries to obscure the religious, inhuman nature of its position by endlessly focusing on the medical details of late-term abortions (although it seldom mentions that "partial birth" abortions are extremely rare, constituting 0.17 percent of all abortions, and often involve a malformed fetus or a threat to the life of the mother). But one must not allow the smokescreen to distract one from the real issue: the "pro-life" movement is on a faith-based crusade to ban abortion no matter the consequences to actual human life—part of what the Pro-Life Alliance calls the "absolute moral duty to do everything possible to stop abortion, even if in the first instance we are only able to chip away at the existing legislation." This is why it supports the South Dakota law, which is the closest the movement has come to achieving its avowed goal: to ban abortion at any stage of pregnancy, including the first trimester — when 90 percent of abortions take place. As the Pro-Life Alliance puts it: "We continue to campaign for total abolition."

The "pro-life" movement is not a defender of human life — it is, in fact, a profound enemy of actual human life and happiness. Its goal is to turn women into breeding mares whose body is owned by the state and whose rights, health and pursuit of happiness are sacrificed en masse — all in the name of dogmatic sacrifice to the pre-human.

Community spirit keeps mother hopeful his immense dedication to family, friends and his teammates. For that, his mother has dedicated herself to keeping his memory alive and the hunt for his killer fresh in the minds of all who pass by the marked tree.

"It is still very hard for me," Arminda Lopez said of her son's violent death, which remains unsolved. "But coming here, putting these flowers here, it helps me be with him. I feel like he is with me. I feel it's the one thing that I can still do for him."

Every Thursday, Lopez travels to downtown Los Angeles to buy dozens of flowers and place them at her son's grave site and at the makeshift memorial on Pico Boulevard, near 25th Street. Lopez said she chose Thursdays because the cemetery where her son is buried, Holy Cross, removes flowers those mornings from all of the grave sites. She wants to ensure they will be there throughout the week.

While her routine helps keep her going,

Lopez said she could not have survived the loss of her son without the love and support of family, friends and the scores of community members who helped her not only financially, but also emotionally.

"Everyone has been so supportive. It is incredible," said Lopez, as she trimmed more flowers. "Everyone has become like a family to me. All of the kids are now my kids too. They've helped me so much."

It was friends of Eddie's and their parents who helped Lopez celebrate two weeks ago what would have been her son's 16th birthday. They were also on hand Saturday morning, as elected officials and the director of the Venice Family Clinic unveiled a young Oak planted in the late teen's honor.

The tree, paid for by the clinic and planted in the parking lot of its Simms/Mann House and Wellness Center, is intended as a living tribute to Lopez where family and friends can gather in the shade under its branches.

"This will always be a place of respite and peace for you to remember Eddie, and a place where we can come together to work to make this neighborhood a safer place," said Elizabeth Forer, chief executive officer of the clinic, which is located less than 100 yards from where the shooting occurred.

School board member Oscar de la Torre, who runs the Pico Youth & Family Center in the Pico Neighborhood, said the tree planting at Simms/Mann was fitting, as the center is dedicated to solving health crisis amongst youth, and there is no greater danger to the health of youth than gang violence.

"More youth die in Los Angeles County because of gang violence than in car crashes," de la Torre said. "Gang violence is the biggest health crisis affecting young people ... This tree is symbolic, for it represents a seed we must continue to water and bring peace into our lives."

Forer said the clinic was approached by City Councilman Kevin McKeown and Friends of Sunset Park about planting a tree in Eddie's honor.

McKeown was on hand, along with Mayor Bob Holbrook, for the tree's unveiling, as was school board member Maria Leon Vazquez.

"This is a place for remembrance, but this is not a memorial. A memorial is static. This will be forever growing, changing," McKeown said. "I am moved to see all of you here. Times like these remind us about the power of community."

It will take the collective power of every resident, and of every city in the county, to end the terror created by gangs, elected officials said. Lopez said on Saturday that she doesn't want one more young life to be snatched away by senseless violence.

"We have to do something to stop the violence, because too many lives are being lost," Lopez said, as she stood beneath the Oak tree, wiping tears from her face. "I look at these children here and I see them as being part of my family. These boys are my sons. They were very special to my Eddie and we need to do something better for them."

Teens taking action

Alper, 17, started experimenting with film when he was 10. As a senior at Harvard-Westlake, he has taken advantage of his school's offerings in film and theater. Alper sees himself as the actor/writer, while Margolin directs and handles the technical aspects of filming. Alper said it is important for young filmmakers to learn to craft interesting stories and plots, not just the techniques to make a film visually pleasing.

Of the dozen submissions, 10 were from within the states, five hailing from L.A. County. The films, both animated and live-action, ranged in length anywhere from two to 16 minutes.

Santa Monica High School sophomore Emmanuel Reynoso, 15, got his start at Venice Arts, where he learned to create short films using digital technology. His entry, "Kung Fu Brooms," was a fight scene reminiscient of the bullet-dodging sequence in "The Matrix." Reynoso is interested in film because of the creativity involved in developing characters and background story.

The festival was created from the collective of Santa Monica's cultural affairs department, The Miles Memorial Playhouse, City TV, the Santa Monica Public Library Teen Programs and Virginia Avenue Park Teen Center.

Other highlights from the festival included "The Sky is Falling," a film by Eon Mova, from Culver City High School, about how one man experiences the world falling apart in his apartment. Produced in the school's Academy of Visual and Performing Arts, the film contained realistic visuals and character examination.

"I Could Have Danced All Night," set to Jamie Cullum's version of the tune with the same name, was a montage about a character who spends her night doing everything but dancing. The film was an out-of-state entry from Kalamazoo, Michigan, directed by Caty Zick.

Winners of the festival were determined by student judges — recruited by the library — and industry professionals. There was also a live audience vote to determine the audience's favorite film. In addition to their trophies, winners each received a $50 gift card to Best Buy.

The winners were: Live-action first place went to "Semi Formal," live-action second place went to "The Road Not Taken," by Scott Roth from Vacaville, CA. Animation first place went to "Envious Heart," by Carolyn Chrisman from Santa Barbara, CA; and animation second place went to "Frank and Geraldine Lost at Sea," by Zoe Malecki from Los Angeles.

Publicity and promotion for the first-year event was generated mostly through the Internet and flyers. One contestant suggested that the festival might target film teachers from local schools about having their students apply.

Justin Yoffe, cultural affairs supervisor for the city, is hopeful the event will continue to evolve in the ensuing years, envisioning a three-day fete that would provide each genre with its own venue.

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

'Know before you go' is a weekly update on construction projects throughout Santa Monica. Here are the government-initiated projects for the week of May 1:

Airport Park and Airport Avenue improvements

Site grading, constructing new artificial turf soccer fields, constructing new playground, restrooms and dog park area, and reconstructing a portion of Airport Avenue. On-site detour possible during street reconstruction.

Civic Center parking structure

Construction continues on a new 900-space Civic Center public parking structure, located on Fourth Street next to the Public Safety Facility. Construction will require the closure of Avenida Mazatlan and the Fourth Street sidewalk. One lane on southbound Fourth Street is subject to closure while work is occurring. There also may be delays entering the Civic Center parking lot from Fourth Street. Use the Main Street entrance.

Fire serve installation

The Santa Monica Water Resources Division is in the process of construction work on Main Street, between Pico Boulevard and Bay Street. Work conducted is for the purpose of supplying water for fire protection to the 150 Pico Blvd. property that is located at the southwest corner of Main Street and Pico Boulevard.

Domestic water service installation

The Santa Monica Water Resources Division will begin construction work on Santa Monica Boulevard, east of 20th Street. Work conducted will be for the purpose of supplying water service to the 2020 Santa Monica Blvd. property. Construction hours will be from 9 a.m. to 230 p.m.

Gas main installation

The Gas Company will install a new 2-inch gas main on the east side of 23rd Street from Carlyle to Georgina avenues. Detours and lane closures may occur, and will be posted at various sites during construction. Work hours will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Los Angeles County Department of Public Works Storm Drain Repair

Installation of a low-flow diversion unit on Ashland Avenue, between Main Street and Neilson Way. There will be detour signs posted around the work area.

Marine Street utility undergrounding

Relocation and undergrounding of electric, phone and cable facilities on Marine Street, between Lincoln Boulevard and Prospect Court. Parking limitations will be posted daily and detours may be announced as necessary.

Street/park lighting retrofit program

Installation of a new light standard and circuit conversion from series to multiple and all other apparatus to provide a complete and operational street and park lighting system. Occasional traffic slowdown at the following locations Wilshire Boulevard and Yale Street Virginia Avenue and 21st Street; and Delaware and 22nd Street.

Street and parking lot resurfacing

Street and Park Parking Lot resurfacing, sidewalk, driveway, curb and gutter repairs. Repairs scheduled through October 2006. Sidewalk, driveway, curb and gutter repairs begin on Sunset Ave from 17th St to Glenn Ave; Margaret Ln from Marine St to End; Linda/Paula Ln from Marine St to End; Pearl St from 16th St to Cloverfield Blvd; Stienner Ave from Marine to End; Prospect Ave from Marine St to End; 11th St from Ozone Ave to Marine St; Ozone Ave from Lincoln Blvd to Glenn Ct; Marine St from Lincoln Blvd to 16th St; Navy St from 18th St to 23rd St; Marine St from 18th St to 23rd St; & Pier Ave from 18th St to 23rd St. Lane closures around work posted as necessary.

Verizon Wireless facility installation

Installation of wireless antenna/pole and Myers box installation and utility undergrounding. Daily closures of the east-erly lane on Moomat Ahiko Way from 8 a.m. until 430 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Water fluoridation system project

Installation of a fluoridation system at 19th Street at San Vicente Boulevard. Street closures will occur on 19th Street and on San Vicente, traffic will narrow to one lane in each direction.

Water main replacement

Installation of new water main complete with service connections throughout the city. Detours and lane closures may occur, and will be posted at various sites during construction.

PADS BE DAMNED: The Santa Monica Rugby Club, under the leadership of coach Stuart Krohn, defended its national title earlier this month with a 30-7 thrashing of the Boston Irish Wolfhounds.

COMMUNITY PROFILES

Collar corner

close to two decades, a playing career that provided him with a unique peek at the world that included stops in Hong Kong, just before its being handed over to China, and South Africa, just as Nelson Mandela was being released from prison exile.

In the two years since Krohn has stopped playing and focused solely on coaching at the Santa Monica Rugby Club (SMRC), he has led the Dolphins to two consecutive national titles. Earlier this month, Santa Monica laid the scrum-down on the Boston Irish Wolfhounds, 30-7, to capture another USA Rugby Division I title.

But this is not your father's rugby, nor even your father's second cousin from the Old Country's rugby, that the SMRC engages in. The game has changed, become decidedly more modern. The uniforms are sleeker and the players faster. There's even a girl's team getting down and dirty.

The SMRC got its start in 1972, an offshoot of the UCLA team, at a time when collegiate star athletes were more likely to engage in pastimes unrelated to their scholarship meal tickets. The team was comprised largely of UCLA and USC football players then, and has continued to evolve over the years, making Santa Monica a well known rugby hub overseas, if not in the city they represent.

"The people who play Santa Monica rugby, there's a beautiful spirit that permeates that," Krohn said last week, prior to heading to the beach for the SMRC's weekly game of touch. "It's my job to foster that."

Krohn has gone further, serving as an ambassador for the sport he loves across the region, and across the generation divide. A teacher at Park View Preparatory in the Crenshaw District of Los Angeles, Krohn helped initiate youth rugby programs in the unlikeliest of areas, an accelerated charter school in the heart of South Central Los Angeles, where more than 90 percent of the students are black and across the street sits troubled Crenshaw High School, which lost its accreditation this year.

"It's so cool, so cool ... so rewarding," Krohn said.

Krohn took time away from his tackling suits last week to speak with the Daily Press about America's resistance to rugby, the Santa Monica club's place in local lore and the reasons why girls dig a man who can ruck.

SO HOW DO RUGBY PLAYERS WIND UP ON THE WESTSIDE?

"They come from the people who work and play in Santa Monica and LA. They want to play competitive rugby or be a part of a cool club. Now we have the woman's team too, and it's not like just ugly ... they're hot chicks. They're hooking up with the guys. It's a lot of fun. We have socials throughout the year."

WOMEN? RUGBY?

"Women's rugby is actually one of the fastest growing sports in America. Every college has a rugby team, and almost every college has a women's rugby team. The men are faster, hit harder, have bigger collisions, bigger guys at high speeds, but we include them (women). They support us. That's part of our fan base."

WHY RUGBY?

"I played high school baseball, football, basketball ... then I played rugby at the University of Colorado in 1980, they had a team. Later, I was studying in France and played for a local team when I got a professional contract in Toulouse. It was such a big deal. It was one of the top clubs in the world and I was 21! We won the French championship and there was a ticker-tape parade through the town. It was nationally televised and everything. It was a big deal."

"I came back and I graduated from UCSB, and then I flew to New Zealand -- the No. 1 rugby country in the world. I lived there for two years and I played rugby. I basically did a world tour. For 13 years, I played world rugby. I played in Honk Kong for eight years and South Africa for two years. I was in Hong Kong right before it was handed over from Britain to China. The last team to represent Hong Kong was the rugby team. The night before (the island changed hands) we played Japan -- kicked their asses. That was the last game I played for Hong Kong. I've had a world tour because of rugby."

IS RUGBY'S PLACE IN U.S. CULTURE FRUSTRATING? DO YOU GET LOOKS WHEN YOU TALK ABOUT BEING A RUGBY PLAYER?

"Yeah. Where I started it (at View Park Preparatory), they are such a conservative sports culture, where it's all basketball and football, basically. That's the place where we get the strangest looks, but they have totally embraced it. It's taken a few years. Once they see it, and once they play it, they love it because it's a great game. It takes all the skills — the running, the tackling. If you like contact, if you like to play 'Kill the man with the ball,' you'll like rugby. Everybody's a quarterback. Everybody's a decision-maker. You're calling plays. You have roles, but it changes during the game because the play is non-stop. People like that. They like responsibility. They like making decisions. They like open play. They like running with the ball."

"Even our 300-pound guy runs with the ball, or tries. He enjoys that. It's a really fun game to play."

ARE THERE PRO LEAGUES IN THE U.S.?

"No, but some of the guys are paid to fly over here, they get a stipend to be here. You get a budget -- the player budget, the travel budget and the coaching budget. We have a paid administrator. The guys pay dues. We have socials. Most of our money, the old boys donate — people that have played for the club over the last 30 years."

DOESN'T THE COACH GET A LITTLE SOMETHING-SOMETHING?

"I've been paid as a coach and I've been paid as a player before that, even before it was professional. In France, I got paid to play when that was illegal. But everybody didn't get paid. I feel fortunate."

WHAT MAKES RUGBY WORTH TEACHING TO KIDS? IT'S PRETTY BLOODY.

"When you're teaching middle school kids, it's about sportsmanship. Because it's so intense, with all the physical contact, a lot of emotion comes out. It's about facing their fears, so I help them face up to those things, help them excel in a very intense situation."

"A lot of it at that age is they're just 13 and they're going for it. They're either fearless or fearful. Technique comes later."

WHAT ARE SOME OF THE GNARLIEST INJURIES YOU HAD AS A PLAYER, OR WITNESSED?

"I've had my cheekbone pushed in. I've had knee surgery, my knee scoped. I broke my nose — a lot. I've had major nose surgery. I've been on the field when a guy went quadriplegic. He was walking afterward, but not well. He almost died. That was pretty intense."

IS THERE ANY EQUIPMENT OR PADS?

"Now they wear a thin padding (shoulders), kind of a Lycra thing. They also have thin helmets. Half the guys wear those, or less. Knee braces, stuff like that. Otherwise, no."

WHAT ABOUT A CUP?

"A cup is a very hard thing to run around in. Some guys might wear them, not many. At the high level, most can't wear cups cause they need to be moving. They don't need some sh moving around inside their junk. It's a big joke, but it's cool if you get hit there."

"I played with a guy who lost his nut — a famous French guy. He was told never to play again. He wore a cup."

DOES WEARING MORE EQUIPMENT LESSEN THE MACHO FACTOR?

"Yeah, definitely. But I wore a helmet. It saves your head and stuff, man. You're playing with your head. You're still gonna get your bell rung, but I think padding helps. People step on your head by accident, or on purpose."

"One time, this guy stepped on my head and I was like, 'whoa.' After the game, I checked my headgear and there was this huge chunk out of it. That could have been my head, man. The games are very physical and very fast."

HAS WINNING TWO STRAIGHT CHAMPIONSHIPS RAISED THE CLUB'S PROFILE?

"We've had a lot of young players come out. What's happening now, is that development programs are producing players that have played for a while. This year, we have six new guys who have played rugby in LA for the LA Cougars. These guys played really well for us. They were like my subs and really good players. So that's good. I get contacted every week from people outside the country looking for a flight, a job, a place -- which is generally what we provide for three or four guys a year, at the key positions."

YOU RECRUIT ALL AROUND THE WORLD?

"I do it through my personal contacts or someone I know well. They come over for the season, semi-pro rugby players. That's kind of where the game's at right now. The top players make $1 million. That's where the game's headed. The World Cup is coming up in 2007. You may not know about it, but it's the third biggest sporting event in the world."

COMMUNITYPROFILES

Bloody truths

WHY DOES A TOP PLAYER IN AUSTRALIA, MAKING $1 MILLION, COME TO SANTA MONICA TO PLAY RUGBY?

"He doesn't. Those guys don't come to Santa Monica. They don't come to America. Guys come here because they're at the tail end of their career or they're up-and coming or they don't make it to that level where they're getting paid to play. Usually, they want to live in Southern California for three months. It's like a working vacation, but their job is playing rugby.

DID YOUR WIFE WANT YOU TO HANG UP YOUR HELMET?

"No, I stopped playing about two years ago. I retired at 35 when I left Dartmouth (where I also coached). I came out here and we didn't have a good captain, so I showed them good captaining.

"I got fit again and was enjoying it so I played until I was 41. Then, I got injured, and at that point, the team was better than I was, which is good. The team really excelled. When I stopped playing is when the team made a quantum leap, strangely enough."

YOU'RE A PRETTY BIG DUDE. DO YOU HAVE TO BE BIG TO PLAY RUGBY?

"No, you don't. A lot of the guys are small and fast. The guys on the wings are like your speedsters. Sometimes they're big and fast, sometimes they're smaller. You need all those combinations. That makes your team unpredictable.

WHAT DID YOU PLAY?

"I played No. 8. That's the guy in the back. That's what the position is called -- No. 8. He's in the back of the scrum."

THE SCRUM. WHAT'S GOING ON IN THERE?

"It's super technique. There's eight guys and a couple thousand pounds of pressure going. The referee will blow play dead when there's a forward pass and there's no advantage for the other team. There's three of us in the front, three behind in the back. Both teams are hitting and 'Bam.' The ball gets put in the middle. The guys in the very middle of it hook at the ball. They're called 'hookers.' You have to heel it back while they're pushing until the ball is cleared out the back. Those guys in the front have to be strong as hell."

DO YOU THINK IT'S A SAFE SPORT?

"I don't have any children, but I promote it to kids. Is it a safe sport? It's an extreme sport! When they're younger with us, they're playing touch rugby, so they're learning to pass and the basics without fear. Once they start tackling, there's a lot of technique.

"There's no high tackles, but a lot of ankle sprains, a lot of soft tissue injuries ... bloody noses ... the occasional broken bones.

WHAT ARE THOSE WHITE-COLLARED SHIRTS ALL ABOUT?

The shirts have changed. There's no collars. The new modern ones are skin tight, and they're lighter. The game's changed. It's more modern."

DO YOU WEAR RUGBY SHIRTS AT HOME?

"They're heavy and we're in Santa Monica. You're kind of dorky if you're a rugby player and you walk around with your shirt."

HOW DOES THE U.S. RANK IN THE WORLD?

"We're like 14th now. It's better than it's been, but pretty much the same. They were like 16th. The men's team has not had a lot of success as of late. The coach actually just resigned. The new coach is a guy who coached me in New Zealand. That's good for me. Now, I've got communication with those who are running it. It's a new regime, new possibilities of being involved in the future."

WHAT KIND OF PERSON PLAYS RUGBY?

"Someone that's looking for a physical challenge. Generally, somebody who needs to prove themselves. And they need to do it on a regular basis, every week, because you can't hide when you're playing rugby.

"It's a strange physical, emotional challenge. The people who get enjoyment out of that, those are the people who play rugby."

DO CHICKS DIG RUGBY PLAYERS?

"It seems so. These guys don't seem to be doing too badly. Rugby people are good people."

County's use of eminent domain gets developers riled up

BY SAMANTHA YOUNG
Associated Press Writer

WOODLAND, Calif. — A 17,000-acre swath of farm land that is rich in water reserves went up for sale two years ago, catching the eye of real estate developers but alarming local officials who feared its water would be siphoned off to satisfy Sacramento's sprawling suburbs.

The sale set off a costly court case when the Yolo County Board of Supervisors decided to seize Conaway Ranch through eminent domain, saying it wanted to protect the water rights and open space. The ensuing fight has pitted a rural county against a consortium of wealthy Sacramento developers who maintain they have no plans to build on the land.

But it also has sparked wider interest. Property rights advocates upset over last year's U.S. Supreme Court decision expanding the governments' right to seize land point to Conaway as another example of eminent domain abuse.

The controversy has become a flashpoint during a year in which an initiative seeking to restrict the use of eminent domain appears headed to California's general election ballot in November.

Two courts so far have sided with the county, ruling that it has a legal right to protect the area's rice fields, water and wildlife from the threat of development by its owners, the Conaway Preservation Group.

"I believe to my core if these guys were to keep this property, they would market this water to the highest bidder," said Supervisor Mike McGowan, one of the lead negotiators in the county's talks with the developers. "Their motive is to make money. They've acquired this ranch as an investment."

In court, attorneys for the Conaway Ranch's owners have argued the county has manufactured a "self-created threat or fear of development" that puts agricultural land across the country at risk of government takeover.

"Speculation does not serve as a ground that allows government to take private property," wrote attorney Gary Livaich. "Conaway ranch and its resources are being preserved and protected under the stewardship of its private owners."

In the spring, Conaway Ranch is covered by rice paddies and alfalfa crops. A few buildings are clustered at the center of the ranch — a warehouse used by the tenant farmers and two others that serve the ranch's duck-hunting club.

About half the land also is used during the winter as a floodplain when the Sacramento River reaches dangerous levels, serving as a crucial outlet for rising waters and as a key link in Sacramento's flood-control plans. Because of that, only the westernmost sliver of the ranch between Woodland and Davis, home to a University of California campus, is eligible for development.

Supporters of the county's eminent domain effort say precedent for the action already exists, pointing to the federal government's buying development rights from farmers in 2002 to protect land at Point Reyes National Seashore.

Antonio Rossmann, an adjunct professor of law at the University of California, Berkeley and an expert in land-use law, said the courts have given local governments the prerogative to buy land to preserve it.

"I think the county is on firm ground," Rossmann said. "The Conaway Ranch case is essentially a political dispute that the landowners are trying to divert into a legal case."

Nevertheless, the case has fired up local property rights advocates who complain the county has no business buying a working ranch from unwilling sellers.

The next twist in the case is expected to come this fall from a Yolo County jury, which will decide how much the county should pay to the Conaway Preservation Group. If the developers are not satisfied with the result, they could appeal.

Sandler is all talked out

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK

ADAM SANDLER

Adam Sandler turns 40 in a few months and the new father says he's ready to shift his focus. Sandler and his wife, Jackie, welcomed their first child, Sadie Madison, last month. "I've got the kid — I feel relief that I don't have to think about myself too much," Sandler told the New York Post in an interview published Sunday. "I've had 39 years just talking about how great I am. It's time, at age 40, to talk about the kid."

The star of "Big Daddy" says he was eager to become a father. "You know what's surprising — that the kid looks through me," he said. "Every time I think the kid likes me, I'm like, 'Oh, she's staring at my forehead right now.'"

Having lost his father several years ago, Sandler says he knows time is precious. "There are things that get you bummed, but I enjoy my life, and don't want to fast-forward it," he told the Post. "Some parts are boring, some parts are tired, but it goes away and you get back to having good times."

NEW YORK

'Eur-it!' Depp gets tagged

JOHNNY DEPP

Johnny Depp says the media's perception of him as a European wannabe has been exaggerated, and that he just likes the anonymity of living in France. In this week's issue of Newsweek, the 43-year-old actor says life is simpler there. "I've always loved it there," he said. "The phones don't ring as much. Movies are never brought up in conversation. I'll take the kids and we'll go out to the trampoline and the swing set, and we'll stop by the garden and see how our tomatoes are doing. You know, old-fart stuff. Good stuff."

It's a sharp contrast to his early acting days when he became a teen idol starring on the TV series "21 Jump Street."

"Suddenly, you go into restaurants and people are pointing at you and whispering," he said. "You feel spooked by it because that freedom of anonymity is gone. You never get used to that. You'd leave the hotel to go to dinner and there'd be tons of cameras and flashbulbs."

In 2003, Depp gave an interview to the German magazine Stern in which he was quoted as criticizing Washington's confrontation with France over the war in Iraq.

Depp was quoted as saying that "America is dumb, is something like a dumb puppy that has big teeth — that can bite and hurt you, aggressive."

He later said he intended no anti-American sentiment and called it an "inaccurate and out of context misquote." The magazine stood by its story. Depp, French actress-singer Vanessa Paradis and their two children split their time between homes in France and Los Angeles.

Depp says his life changed dramatically when daughter Lily-Rose was born in 1999. His son, Jack, was born three years later.

"I was never horribly self-obsessed or wrapped up in my own weirdness, but when my daughter was born, suddenly there was clarity," he said. "I wasn't angry anymore. It was the first purely selfless moment that I had ever experienced. And it was liberating. In that moment, it's like you become something else. The real you is revealed."

Jolie remembers little people

ANGELINA JOLIE

Angelina Jolie says she's been trying to make sure she gives her two older children plenty of attention now that she and Brad Pitt also have a newborn at home. Jolie, 31, gave birth to daughter Shiloh Nouvel in Namibia last month. Her 16-month-old sister, Zahara, was adopted from Ethiopia, and 4-year-old brother, Maddox, from Cambodia.

"It's different to say that you choose to bring a child into existence," Jolie told Forbes magazine. "I didn't choose to bring my two adopted children to life. Strangely enough, I was concerned about (this difference), and I have been making a point recently to give my adopted children more attention. But I feel now I love them equally."

Both Maddox and Zahara's surnames have been legally changed to Jolie-Pitt after Pitt, 42, announced his intention to adopt the children.

Jolie told Forbes magazine she is "very lucky that I am not a single parent."

"I can't imagine how difficult it is for mothers who have to go back to work so soon," she said.

Jolie tied for 35th place on the magazine's annual "Celebrity 100 Power List" with Pitt's ex-wife, Jennifer Aniston. The less-than-scientific rankings track celebrities based on earnings and buzz.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa

Spears has continental divide

A Namibian tourism official said Saturday he may have been duped into believing that Britney

Spears was considering having her baby in Namibia.

Deputy Environment and Tourism Minister Leon Jooste said he made his original public statement after receiving a phone call from the United States on Monday.

"Somebody told me that she (Spears) is interested in coming to Namibia and that they would contact me in the next two weeks," he said Saturday.

But the connection was so bad, he said, that he never got a name or contact information for the person.

Still, Jooste went public with the information.

"She has shown interest to come over to Namibia," he said at the time. "Nothing has been confirmed yet, but there is a definite possibility of that happening."

That prompted Spears' New York-based publicist, Leslie Sloane Zelnik, to send an e-mail to The Associated Press on Friday saying: "Not true."

Asked if the call might have been a hoax, Jooste said: "It is really possible."

Jooste, who is vacationing in neighboring South Africa, said he plans to look into the matter when he returns to Namibia next week.

"I am actually going to call and invite them to see if they would like to come," he said.

Spears, 24, is expecting her second child with husband and aspiring rapper Kevin Federline. The pop star, who has taken a beating in the tabloids recently over her parenting skills, might appreciate the privacy Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie enjoyed when their daughter, Shiloh Nouvel Jolie-Pitt, was born last month in the southwest African nation.

The Namibian government shielded the Hollywood couple from the paparazzi, even insisting that foreign journalists wanting to cover the story must first obtain written permission from the couple to get visas.

"We have a little niche tourism market that we are developing now," Jooste said, adding jokingly that he might "resign and start a company marketing celebrity holidays in Africa."

Heigl to say 'I do'

KATHERINE HEIGL

Katherine Heigl is engaged to musician Josh Kelley, according to People magazine.

The "Grey's Anatomy" star and her fiance have not set a wedding date, representatives told the magazine.

Heigl, 27, who plays Dr. Isobel "Izzie" Stevens on the hit ABC show, met Kelley, 25, last year when she appeared in a video for his song, "Only You."

Heigl, a former model, also appeared on the WB's "Roswell." Kelley's third album, "Just Say the Word," is expected to be released July 24.

Which of These Costly Mistakes Will You Make When You Sell Your Santa Monica Home This Summer

BY JAMES COSTELLO AND JOHN MCCORMACK

SANTA MONICA – A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of home sellers don't get what they want for their home and become disillusioned and – worse – financially disadvantaged when they put their home on the market.

As this report uncovers, most home sellers make 7 deadly mistakes that cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar."

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report, call 1-800-455-9195 and enter ID #1000. You can call anytime. 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Call NOW to find out how you can get the most money of your home.
