Remembering Siena Ly

FAMILY 'DEVASTATED' BY TRAGEDY AS FRANKLIN DEDICATES ART CORNER TO LATE STUDENT

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

MONTANA AVE. One day Siena Hayden Ly was a Franklin Elementary School student who loved arts and crafts and storytelling. The next day she was in the hospital, clinging to life.

"She was a healthy child," said her mother, Hue Ma. "That's part of the shock of everything. She was completely healthy."

It's been about three months since Siena went into septic shock, and her family members — Ma, her father Anthony Ly, and her twin 2-year-old sisters — are trying to find peace as they come to terms with her passing.

"You live your life for your kid, and when your kid's taken away you lose your purpose and your desire to live," her mother said.

Bus paint, Expo parking, and drug tests on $2M consent

BY DAVID MARK SIMPSON
Daily Press Staff Writer

Editor's note: This story is part of an ongoing series that tracks the city's expenditures appearing on upcoming Santa Monica City Council consent agendas. Consent agenda items are routinely passed by the City Council with little or no discussion from elected officials or the public. However, many of the items have been part of public discussion in the past.

CITY HALL City Council will consider approving $2,057,789 in recommended spending on contracts related to parking near Expo, painting Big Blue Buses, and drug testing.

With the coming of the Expo Light Rail, city officials are recommending the addition of parking options 17th Street Station.

A portion of Colorado Yards would become a surface lot for Memorial Park users. The rest of the yards will remain in use for city workers.

John M. Cruikshank, Inc. is set to get $109,968 for engineering design services related to the new parking lot.

DRUG TESTING

City Hall drug tests many of its employees and Collections Plus does the job. Council will consider a two-year extension of the contract in the amount of $81,000.

ELECTRICAL SUPPLIES

With about 3,000 electrical work orders coming in each year, City Hall needs to get its electrical supplies fast.

Electrical Supply Connection, a local company, is slated to get $100,000 for a year's worth of electrical supplies.

HVAC SUPPLIES

City workers do about 600 heating, ventilation, and air conditioning repairs each year. Howard Industries is expected to get a one-year, $100,000 contract to supply HVAC materials.

PLUMBING

About 90 percent of City Hall's 1,500 annual plumbing-related jobs are performed by in-house workers, city officials said, but larger jobs often require contractors to step in.

The Lighthart Corporation is slated to get a contract for a year of that extra work at $200,000.

PONDS

City Hall has six water features throughout the city to keep up to snuff.

California Waters is expected to get a $117,162 contract extension for "water feature and pond maintenance services."

ARCLIGHT PLANNING

Council is scheduled to consider allowing an ArcLight movie theater to replace one of the public parking structures on Fourth Street.

Allan D. Kotin & Associates is slated to get a $130,000 contract extension to serve as a financial consultant on the project.

BOOSTER PUMP MAINTENANCE

Both General Pump Company and Tri County Pump Company are expected to get $176,000 contracts to keep booster pumps at the Charnock, Arcadia, and San Vicente booster stations up and running.

"Booster pumps require periodic maintenance and repair including pulling and repairing of the pumps currently in place and machining and fabrication of wear rings, line shafts, and bowl assemblies," city officials said of the work that will sometimes need to be done quickly and after hours.

Mayor joins national mayors' call for climate change action

Mayor Kevin McKeown, representing Santa Monica in San Francisco at the U.S. Conference of Mayors, today announced that he has joined the Mayors' National Climate Action Agenda. McKeown joins with Mayors across the country in calling on President Obama to fight for the strongest possible climate agreement at the upcoming 21st Conference of the Parties to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (COP21) in Paris, and for federal action to establish binding national greenhouse gas emissions reductions in the United States.

Mayor McKeown and the Mayors' National Climate Action Agenda also announced the launch of a campaign to support the President and the U.S. delegation in Paris in pushing for strong action on climate change.

"Santa Monica's long commitment to sustainability made us among the first cities to recognize the threat of climate change, and adopt policies to reduce our environmental impacts and make our community more resilient," said McKeown. "Our local efforts must be matched at the federal and global levels, which is why we and the MNCAA are taking our message to Washington, and ultimately to Paris."

The Mayors' National Climate Action Agenda made its call and committed to its campaign of support in a letter delivered to the White House today. Houston Mayor Annise Parker announced the letter at a climate change action event hosted by San Francisco Mayor Ed Lee in his city on the eve of the annual meeting of the U.S. Conference of Mayors there.

Mayor Parker co-founded the Mayors' National Climate Action Agenda with Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti and Philadelphia Mayor Michael Nutter. The three Mayors represent the largest cities on the Presidential Task Force on Climate Preparedness and Resilience.

"The time for strong U.S. action is now. We look forward to standing with you here at home and in Paris to bring leadership and focus to the reality of climate change and to urge national dialogue and action," the letter stated. "We are writing to call on you to act in the best interests of the American people and fight for the strongest possible climate agreement. The United States can and should be the leader in the transition to a clean energy economy.

"Cities across the country are already taking the lead. But we cannot act alone. We need the federal government to provide a path forward to making meaningful reductions in carbon pollution while preparing for the impacts of climate change.

"To support your leadership and assist you and the U.S. delegation in reaching the strongest possible agreement, we are launching a campaign today to engage with our constituents, elected officials and other stakeholders to help achieve ... strong outcomes at the national and international levels, while building on municipal leadership on climate change.

"Momentum is building for international coordination. COP21 represents a prime opportunity for American leadership. We recognize that local governments have a major role to play in reducing greenhouse gas levels. We are encouraged that there is interest on the part of COP 21 for having language in the final agreement that specifically pertains to cities."

"Old School" School

AFTER TWENTY-TWO YEARS AS AN inner-city school teacher, I left the classroom to become an educational administrator. For the next seventeen years I worked as a principal, school director, and private school headmaster. In all those years, the one thing that remained constant was my unwavering perspective that teacher-student interaction is ground zero in the learning process. This perspective includes a student's academic and social development. Sadly, it is in both domains that learning is being crushed by current instructional methodologies.

Regarding academics, I envision a school that has turned the clock back to where there are few, if any classroom computers; a school where verbal give and take is the norm, where creative teachers are not distracted by a toxic concern about how students will perform on a standardized test months away. This focus on testing is alien to my generation of educators.

The dysfunction associated with testing became clear to me when I was asked to come out of retirement to fill a vacancy as a substitute teacher until a permanent replacement was found. Like all faculty I attended the opening day teacher conference, listening to the school's curriculum director drone on about the importance of test scores. He then handed out a written plan for each grade delineating a reading and math schedule that was to be followed lesson by lesson, day by day, by each teacher for the year. The purpose of this was to maximize scores. It was madness, but I said nothing.

Needless to say, I didn't last long in that classroom, because this old dinosaur taught lessons in a style that deviated from the curriculum director's dry, uninspiring instructional methodology. Prior to parting ways, I had several conversations with younger colleagues concerning my experiences as an educator in the freedom of pre-test score mania. I felt badly for them.

In terms of the second core educational principal, that of social development, we want our students to be caring and productive citizens. It is within a school setting where this goal has the greatest chance of being achieved, for where else does a child have the opportunity to interact with so many others whose backgrounds are so varied, whether ethnic, gender, socio-economic, religious or racial? Unfortunately, the very concept of human communication has been co-opted by the digital revolution. Marshall McLuhan's 50-year-old words still ring true: "The medium has become the message." Face-to-face interaction is floundering.

I remember the first time I was confronted with the effect of this dynamic when, as a relatively young principal, I wandered into a high school honors class during a test they were taking. I noticed a student furtively checking his cell phone, and then looking over at another student checking hers. It soon became apparent they were texting answers to each other. I confiscated the phones, and later in my office they admitted what they did. At the time I didn't know it, but the digital dam had been broken, and today's schools are hard-wired. Potential for cheating is only one problem. There is digital bullying, digital threats, character assassination, all of which can be accomplished anonymously by a coward hiding behind a firewall. Trolling the internet has replaced reading. Racing from site to site, link to link, permanently alters attention spans. That higher order goal of learning to interact with others and engage in compelling dialogue has gone the way of the dodo bird.

There would be few if any I-phones, cell phones, I-pads or whatever in my Old School School. There would be books, which can sit on a shelf for years, virtually dead, until they're brought back to life by student's taking the time to read them.

In my Old School School penmanship would be taught, augmenting the creative writing process with the artistic element of putting words on paper. The writing would be preceded by brainstorming and outlining, pre-writing and self-editing, peer and teacher review, and eventually rewriting. Laborious? Yes. Accessing higher order thinking skills? Yes. Running counter to keyboarding, spelling and grammar checking? Absolutely. But the outcome just might be a generation of writers with creativity and mastery of the language arts.

And, finally, my Old School School would require courses in debate, conflict resolution, human relations, gender sensitivity, ethnic studies, public speaking and rhetoric - all geared toward moving the student into eye-to-eye contact in order to de-escalate conflicts and solve problems with voices, eyes and gestures, eliminating bullying and harassment by unseen thumbs tapping on unseen keypads.

Okay, let's face it, I am a dinosaur. But even dinosaurs have ideas. More than 100 years ago the English writer William Bolitho warned of "making cages of laws for ourselves." Perhaps a new ice age is on the horizon, the snows of which could short circuit those digital grids that serve as the bars of the cages we've created for ourselves, locking us inside.

Does former City Manager have a "Conflict of Interest?"

I LOVE IT WHEN A LOCAL ACTIVIST OR watchdog group digs in, uncovers alleged wrongdoing, exposes it and takes action. So my cap is off, way off, to Mary Marlow and her all -volunteer compatriots at The Santa Monica Transparency Project for charging that retired Santa Monica City Manager Rod Gould created a conflict-of-interest for himself by accepting employment with a firm that he repeatedly did business with while at City Hall.

Project Chair Marlow recently issued a press statement claiming that Gould's acceptance of a position as Vice President of Management Partners was in violation of the Oaks Initiative, an anti-corruption ordinance approved by voters in 2000.

The Transparency Project filed a complaint with City Hall that details numerous incidences when Gould approved city contracts (which were under the dollar threshold requiring City Council's OK) with Management Partners. Marlow says that Gould ran astray of the initiative when he took a job with a firm that benefited from the contracts he approved while City Manager.

The Oaks Initiative prohibits a public official (City Council and Planning Commission members, department heads or persons who confer contracts, purchase orders, permits, tax exceptions, or variances, to name a few) from receiving specified personal benefits from a person or entity they gave a 'public benefit' to. Marlow says that Gould hired and paid Management Partners to review and evaluate various city departments and operations and then accepted a job from the firm after retiring from his Santa Monica post.

The Oaks Initiative specifically references contracts and payments to an outside vendor to provide goods or services worth more than $25,000 over any 12-month period. The Transparency Project's complaint lists a $50,000 contract in February, 2013, another in Oct., 2014 for 44,900, a contract in November, 2011 for $39,500 and a $30,000 contact issued in April, 2012.

The complaint asks for a full investigation into the allegations. However, City Attorney Marsha Moutrie says that the Oaks Initiative only applies only to Santa Monica. Because Gould lives outside the city and was hired outside the city, there's no action her office can or should take on the complaint.

It will be interesting to see how this will play out, but in any case, I'm still delighted to see that Marlow and her group seized on what they believed to be (and what still may be) wrongdoing and took action. If nothing else, it reminds all department heads as well as City Council members and Planning Commissioners that we're all watching.

Marlow also noted that former City Chief Traffic Engineer Sam Morrissey is now working for Iteris, a consultancy that also performs services for the city on contract. It makes us both wonder how many other former city officials have taken jobs with consultants that they did business with as City staff.

Gould has made his contribution for five years and we've failed to solve major concerns such as development and traffic, have seen taxes go up and deep divisions among residents grow and proliferate. Do we need Management Partners with Gould aboard in the future? Maybe it's time to find another consultancy.

ECEC MOVES AHEAD DESPITE SERIOUS CONCERNS

As a follow up to my June 8 column about City Council approving physical modifications to plans for an Early Childhood Education Center (ECEC) operated by Santa Monica College (SMC) in the Civic Center, as expected, Council unanimously approved the changes involving increasing the height of the proposed ECEC 25 to 40 feet even though there are serious concerns over its location and vetting process. Issues such as the 50 year lease (with renewable options) of 1.6 acres of valuable, publicly property to state supported SMC for one dollar and an additional $5.56 million city contributions to its building

Lions scholarships

THE SANTA MONICA LIONS RECEIVED a great email this month regarding one of our past Student Speaker contestants.

The Lions Club Student Speaker Contest is a state-wide competition open to high school students to "encouraging them to hone their talent through research, speech drafting and oration skills. The goal is for students to gain confidence in themselves, become comfortable addressing audiences of various sizes and build skills that facilitate success throughout their educational years and beyond."

As part of the contest, winning students receive scholarship money, depending on how far they proceed through the contest. This year the Student Speaker Foundation will provide scholarships totaling $103,500. From this amount, each of the fifteen District winners received a $4,500 scholarship, each of the four Area winners received an additional $6,500 scholarship and the winner of the Multiple District Four Contest received an additional $10,000 scholarship.

One of the contest participants four years ago was Amanda Botfeld from Santa Monica High School, who advanced through several levels of the Student Speaker competition. The email we received was from Amanda's mother.

"Four years ago my daughter Amanda Botfeld got her first start in public speaking thank to your Lions Club public speaking awards competition. Thank you for helping her with scholarship monies so the she could go to the college of her choice, UC Santa Cruz, and she is graduating next week and has been chosen to deliver the commencement speech for her college class! Without the Lions Club ... to support Amanda in becoming a strong public speaker ... this never would have happened. Thank you Lions!"

SCHOLARSHIP WINNER: Money from the Lions club helps students pay for school.

We are thrilled for Amanda, and it is always wonderful to hear how the Santa Monica Lions Club has been able to help someone. The Student Speaker Contest will be open to high school student from several schools in Santa Monica next year, with competitions starting in February 2016. Contact your high school's debate or public speaking coach.

necting the library to its setting and is achieved with expansive areas of glass shaded by deep overhangs and awnings. Inside, oversized north facing skylights and a sculpted ceiling amplify the light while minimizing exterior reflection."

They also listed its most significant contribution.

"The mix of park programs and recreational resources blurs the line between play and learning and strengthens the library as an attractive neighborhood hub. Over the first six months, approximately 100,000 materials have been checked out, 84,000 library users have visited and 1,200 new borrowers have been welcomed."

The Ocean Avenue South neighborhood was described as a new prototype for socially diverse urban living - one that challenges conventional ratios of affordable to market-rate housing, and integrates community open space with neighborhood retail and artist loft housing.

It's most outstanding features was "Fifty percent of this 325-unit project is designated as affordable housing. Designed through an interactive community process, the project's plan, identity and quality of life transcend socio-economic barriers. ... The strand of gardens provide residents a choice of outdoor living space. The Courtyard hosts large formal and informal gatherings to build community. A Family Garden and Play Area provide safe places for people of all ages to play, dine, talk or relax. A green wall gives beauty to the public face."

Officials listed the most significant contribution as "The Living Street concept provides a social identity for the Village's economically diverse neighborhood while organizing the variety of housing types to reinforce City planning goals and take advantage of the site's attributes."

costs were of no concern.

Any irregularities or questions about whether this is really a good a deal for city taxpayers will be ignored as the politically powerful supporters behind the proposed ECEC push hard for it. This is a done deal. Once again, social agenda trumps transparency, common sense and the public interest.

Councilwoman Gleam Davis, a strong ECEC supporter said, "It will help close the achievement gap that plagues our schools…reduce the need for special education…lead to higher graduation rates…lead to better college attendance and college graduation rates…lead to better overall academic performance for every one of the kids who are lucky enough to be able to attend there." She's talking primarily about children of well paid employees of Rand Corporation, City Hall and the college who'll have priority at the new facility.

Somebody tell Gleam this isn't a debate about the value of early childhood education. This issue is about economics, a fiduciary duty to taxpayers and whether this is the best use of the land. As of now, this childhood facility is slated for a congested Civic Center away from any real residential neighborhoods - unless you call the hideous "Village at the Civic Center" a neighborhood - and Davis says, "It seems (there is) no better place."

Actually, Gleam, there are many "better places," but the fix is in and consideration of other locations is dead. So, nearly two acres of Civic Center land that should be set aside for cultural and or recreation opportunities for everyone has been traded off for a special interest project. In addition to all other issues, it's also another Civic Center architectural loser that looks more like a warehouse or a prison than a place for children.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

.ON JUNE 14, AT ABOUT 5:25 P.M.

Night watch patrol officers responded to a radio call of an assault with a deadly weapon that just occurred near the intersection at 14th Street and Wilshire Boulevard. The victim reported that as he approached the bus stop, he noticed the suspect sitting on the bench with her head and face obscured by a dark hooded sweatshirt. As the victim stood a few feet away, the suspect turned to him and said, "Get away from the bus stop." When the victim refused to leave, the suspect stood and brandished a kitchen knife, stating, "Get away. I'll kill you." Fearing for his safety, the victim fled the location and called police. The suspect chased after the victim for a few steps and then returned to the bus bench, where she was contacted by officers. A kitchen knife matching the description of the weapon was located in one of the suspect's bags. After being positively identified as the person brandishing the knife, officers placed the suspect under arrest for Assault with a Deadly Weapon. During a more thorough search of the suspect's property at the station, officers located a debit card and AAA card that did not belong to the suspect; she was later charged with Possession of Stolen Property for those items. Lashon Denise Stribling, 46, of Los Angeles, had bail set at $30,000.

PARK

other locations in mind throughout the city.

FISHER LUMBER SITE

Since 2008, the commission has been supporting advancement of a park on the former site of Fisher Lumber, now known as Colorado Yards.

"It is important that an alternative location be identified for the vehicles currently housed within the Colorado Yards," they said in the May 27 letter," and that the new public parking lot located within the site be temporary."

They've been advocating for the park space in every budget letter since 2008.

"It's time to identify this project as a Council priority," the letter says.

MT. OLIVET

The commission wants City Hall to open up the fenced-off Mt. Olivet Reservoir to the public. The reservoir, which City Hall built in 1924, holds 5 million gallons of water.

City officials have expressed concerns about security issues at the site, which boasts views of the Hollywood Sign, Getty Center, Downtown Los Angeles, and the bay.

Commissioners have pointed out that the site is currently guarded by a chain link fence and nothing more.

"Exploration of creating a public 'vista' park should commence with the Public Works Department and the surrounding community," they said in their letter to council.

MINI PARKS

The commission is advocating for both a Main Street parklet program and the establishment of a fund for the acquisition of small neighborhood parks or pocket parks in areas of the city where parkland is scarce.

MORE TREES, CIVIC CENTER FIELDS, AND PALISADES PARK PLAYGROUND

The commission is urging council to continue to add to its urban forest canopy.

"The planting of trees should always be a priority," they said.

They 'd also like to see a children's playground at Palisades Park.

"We have advocated for the creation of a 'historic feel' children's playground at the north end of the park since 2008," they said.

And as the debate over the future of the Civic Center continues, the commission restated its support for athletic fields "as codified in the 2005 Civic Center Specific Plan."

SCHOOL SWIMMING POOLS

During council's last hearing on the proposed budget, members of the public asked about the public use of pools at the city's schools.

"We strongly recommend council collaborate with the Santa Monica Malibu Unified School District to maximize the public use of Lincoln Middle School and Santa Monica High School pools," the commission wrote to council on the topic.

The Recreation and Parks Commission is appointed by council and its recommendations are among many coming from the city's plethora of boards and commissions.

Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card® is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

FRANKLIN

SIENA LY

"We're devastated that she won't be able to experience the things we had planned for her. We're sad that her younger sisters won't get a chance to become her best friend."

The Franklin community, too, has been reeling from Siena's unexpected death. During an assembly last month the school dedicated its outdoor art area to the 7-year-old, posting a plaque in her memory on a wall near the table where students work on crafts projects.

Siena always looked forward to Franklin's art parties, which are held at lunchtime each Wednesday.

"We think Siena would be very happy to see a part of her school dedicated to her," her mother said. "We've always been proud of Siena, but we think that this would make Siena proud of herself. We know that Siena is in heaven. We don't know if she can see anything that happens in this world, but we asked God for her to see the tribute. We like to believe that she did and that belief makes us smile, which doesn't happen much since she left us."

Siena's family has fond memories of her — of her stories and jokes, her creative imagination and her sweet personality. They recall her compassion and empathy, her loyalty to friends and her "heart of gold."

Siena was a skilled runner — she was one of the fastest kids in her class — and she enjoyed listening to stories and thinking up tales of her own. She would sometimes pretend she was a female Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle, her mother said.

Art projects were Siena's specialty. When she was just 3 years old, she made a model bicycle out of cardboard.

By the time she was 6 she said she wanted to be a contestant on "The Voice," even writing a letter to Adam Levine about her dream. When Ma told her that making it as a singer is difficult, Siena replied that she would support herself as a fashion designer with an online store.

"She started drawing outfits and priced them and asked her father to buy them from her," Ma said.

Siena's parents were often awed by their daughter's quick wit. This past March, right around the time of the LA Marathon, Ma was picking up Siena from a birthday party and told another child's mother that running a previous edition of the marathon was one of her proudest achievements.

"Siena overheard and quickly said, 'No, Mama, having us three girls is your biggest accomplishment,'" Ma recalled. "And she is absolutely right. That was just her timing. She was wise beyond her years."

Siena's life was not without challenges. Around Thanksgiving of last year, she began having panic attacks. Her separation anxiety worsened. She started having trouble in school.

"We would pick her up and she'd be swollen in the eyes from crying so much," Ma said.

Siena's family tweaked its routines in attempts to help her. Her parents made sure to spend more time with her and talked her through her struggles. This phase, they hoped, would pass.

On a particularly difficult day at school for Siena, her parents received a call from Franklin to retrieve their daughter.

"Instead of us comforting her, she gave us a hug and just told us how much she appreciated us and what great parents we were," Ma said. "She understood the sacrifices we had made to make things better for her. She was really appreciative of what we had done. What little child does this? It's an example of how great of a little girl she really was."

When Siena contracted sepsis, members of the Franklin community — already coping with the loss of student Jeffrey Hughes, who died of a rare form of cancer late last year — came together to support her and her family. They called, wrote cards and sent emails. They left groceries at the family's doorstep and offered to run errands. They also donated money to help the family pay for medical and funeral costs.

"The school and the community have been so wonderful to us," Ma said. "They showed us a tremendous amount of compassion. They've humbled us."

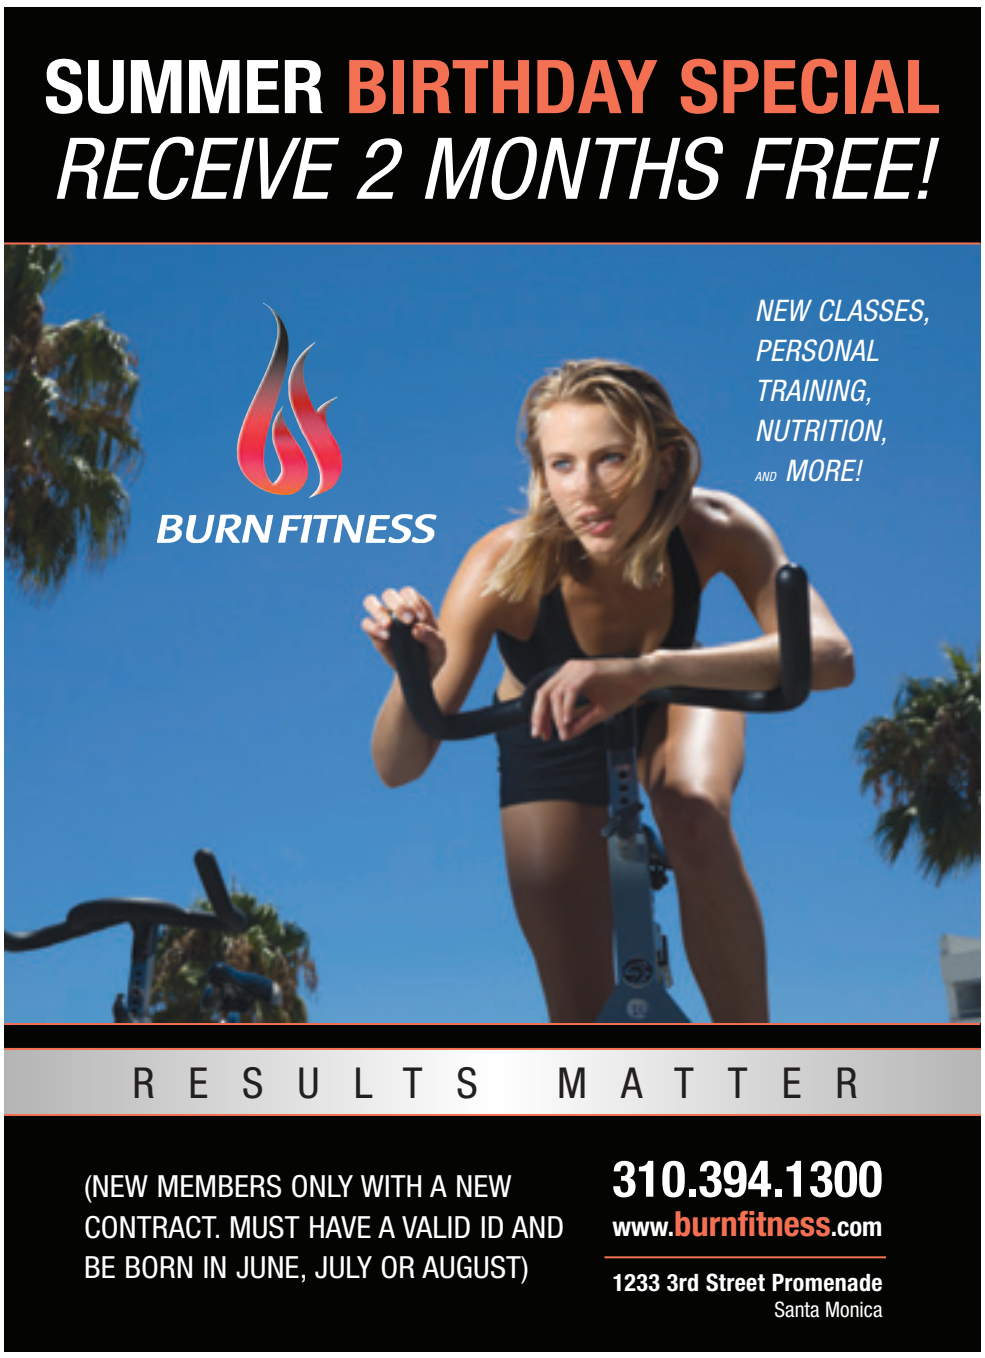

Ma said she and her husband stayed with family in Porter Ranch for the month after Siena passed — the thought of going home without her was too painful. They even considered selling their house and moving away from Santa Monica for good.

"Then we thought about the future of her sisters, and we couldn't do it," Ma said. "(Our neighbors and community members) loved Siena so much, and they have shown us so much compassion and support that we thought, 'Well, when her sisters grow up, who better to take care of them than the people who loved Siena?' They will take better care of her than some new community. So for that, we came home. Our goal is to have her sisters go to Franklin so that they can be proud of their older sister. The community has made us want to try."

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Researchers studying the human-brain-eating Fore tribe of Papua New Guinea reported in a June journal article that they have identified the specific "prion" resistance gene that appears to offer complete protection against mad cow disease and perhaps other neurodegenerative conditions such as dementias and Parkinson's. The tribe customarily dined on relatives' brains at funerals (although has abandoned the practice) and consequently suffered a major 1950s epidemic that wiped out 2 percent of the tribe annually. According to the lead researcher, survivors, with the specific resistance gene, demonstrated "a striking example of Darwinian evolution in humans."

■ Spouses often disagree politically and vote accordingly, but occasionally one runs for office against the other -- as is the case in Bremerton, Washington, where incumbent Councilmember Roy Runyon is being challenged by his wife, Kim Faulkner. Both were mum as to reasons and in fact filed their registration papers together at the same time in May. Said Runyon: "We're different people. She might have a different approach."

Public services are what keep our world functioning and our society thriving. On Public Service Day (this Tuesday), take a moment to appreciate the United States' public service sectors and reflect on ways in which you might adjust the current state of the different organizations.

"I think the government could improve upon the ways in which public opinion influences the distribution of funds.," said Sam Schulte at Huckleberry in Santa Monica. "Still, I'm thankful that our country has such solid public services and think that we can continue to improve them."

Although the nature of public services might be complicated, we're lucky to live in a country that supports its people. Take a moment to thank a police officer, teacher, firefighter or soldier this Tuesday.

Every day is reason to celebrate.

THROW US SOME FEEDBACK @GIIVE.ORG/CONTACT-US/

Hang out with a close friend, Cancer

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ A misunderstanding could flare up from out of the blue. You might replay the conversation over and over in your mind in an attempt to figure out your role in this matter. You likely just triggered the other party unintentionally. A talk later on will clear the air. Tonight: Relax.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ You might not be in the mood to do anything but socialize. You could gain an important insight into a child or loved one. This is the result of your being more responsive to the social side of your universe. Tonight: Who cares about tomorrow? Live in the present.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You unintentionally might ruffle a higher-up's feathers. You both have the same issue, but you come up with solutions very differently. Respect each other's style, and learn from the other's approach. There is no reason to fight. Tonight: As you like it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Consider other alternatives. You might be taken aback by a situation that suddenly comes up. Try not to be so reactive, and maintain a low profile -- you will be a lot happier that way. Mull over the information you get for a respected associate. Tonight: A must appearance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Zero in on what you want. Your sense of humor will emerge when interacting with a child or loved one. A friendship benefits from your attention. You might need to revise your thinking about how you speak to a key person in your life. Tonight: Surround yourself with people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ You could feel tense about a public appearance and/or a discussion with a supervisor. You might not be sure which way you should go. Expect the unexpected, and you can't go wrong. Your upbeat attitude will carry you through a problem. Tonight: Till the wee hours.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ If you detach, you will find this day far more enjoyable than you might have imagined it would be. Greet differing opinions with openness. You will help someone whom you consider quite knowledgeable to see the other side of an issue. Tonight: Try something new.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Your insight into someone else's behavior could be quite helpful. You might see a personal matter differently from the way you have in the past. A conversation will lead to a potential change. Work on a money issue with a key associate. Tonight: Reflect on what has happened.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You could find yourself struggling to understand where someone is coming from. Your sense of humor emerges when an unexpected moment of good luck drops on you. Understand the potential of this news. Tonight: Listen to a friend's rendition of what has happened.

Monday, June 22, 2015

This year can be described as the opposite of boring; in fact, sometimes you might wish for a little dullness. You and others often might be miles apart in your thinking, but because of your mutual respect, solutions are able to be found. Refuse to say the word "impossible." If you are single, from mid-August on, you could make new acquaintances. Within a changing social circle, you could meet someone who easily could light up your life. If you are attached, communication flourishes between you and your sweetie. Know that this reflects your positive attitudes and willingness to interact more. VIRGO is intrigued by your emotional responses.

If you believe that you or a family member are entitled to compensation for an injury, the best thing you can do is speak to an experienced personal injury attorney. You may be entitled to compensation for your injury including lost wages.

Negligence and Auto Accidents

To have a valid car accident claim, you must first determine the negligent party or parties that caused the car crash. You may suspect that another driver, pedestrian, motorcyclist etc. acted carelessly, but cannot identify what traffic laws they violated. A skilled car accident attorney, however, can examine police reports and state traffic laws and speak to witnesses to determine who was at fault for your motor vehicle accident.

Tip: Act Quickly

If you seek legal advice, it's important that you do so as soon as possible after an accident. You're more likely to get the compensation due to you if your attorney is able to act quickly.
