MUSIC: There will be dancing in the streets, or at least, on Main Street.

Music, dancing and sales on Main St.

BY NICHOLAS SALAZAR
Daily Press Intern

MAIN STREET This Sunday, the 15th Annual Summer SOULstice returns to Main Street for a day of live music, shopping, restaurants and bars. The 2015 SOULstice features 24 bands on six different stages located on streets off of Main Street, as well as accompanying sidewalk sales from some merchants and an entertainment area for children.

What has become a summer tradition began in 2001 as an idea to use the area's outdoor spaces to provide entertainment for visitors to Main Street's Farmer's Market. Gary Gordon, the Executive Director of the Main Street Business Association, recalled the festival's humble beginnings of a "six or eight channel amp

Planning Commission allows more kids at residential child care center

ACTIVITY PLACE: A child care facility will be allowed to expand its services following approval by officials.

BY DAVID MARK SIMPSON
Daily Press Staff Writer

22ND STREET Despite complaints from numerous neighbors, the Planning Commission agreed to let a residential child care center double the number of kids allowed on site.

The Activity Place, which currently looks after 14 kids, will be allowed to serve 30 kids, assuming an appeal is not filed.

Five neighbors complained about the center as it currently operates, citing excess noise, parking issues, and traffic on the street.

The approval passed 6 to 1, with Commissioner Jim Ries being the lone dissenting vote, but several of the affirmative voters expressed reluctance, given the public testimony.

City planners noted in their report to the commission that there'd never been any official

California vaccine bill clears major legislative hurdle

JULIA HOROWITZ
Associated Press

SACRAMENTO California's Assembly on Thursday approved a hotly contested bill requiring that nearly all public schoolchildren be vaccinated, clearing one of its last major legislative obstacles before the measure heads to the desk of Gov. Jerry Brown.

The bill aims to increase immunization rates after a measles outbreak linked to Disneyland in December sickened over 100 people in the U.S. and Mexico.

It would give California one of the nation's strictest vaccine laws by striking the state's personal belief exemption. Only children with serious health issues would be allowed to opt out of mandatory vaccine schedules. Unvaccinated children would need to be homeschooled.

If the bill becomes law, California would join Mississippi and West Virginia as the only states with such strict requirements.

"Do we wait until we have a full-fledged crisis to protect the

Santa Monica's solid sustainability Mayoral stance

Editor:

Our 2006-2007 County of Los Angeles Civil Grand Jury assayed the status and intent with regard to sustainably, enveloped within a questionnaire to all 88 cities within the County, and the County itself. Findings evinced the City of Santa Monica to be exemplarily far ahead of all. Most cities were doing little or nothing except awaiting a hoped-for future federal or state government grant. As Chairman of that Committee report, and a private citizen, I again praise Santa Monica for its strong continuing sustainability position and action in encouraging the Mayors and President of our nation.

PYFC debate

Editor:

At the heart of this debate over funding of the Pico Youth and Family Center lies the fundamental question. How do we turn lives around? Is it through isolated skill training on how to fill out a job or college application, or is it through a more familial setting in which young people are given those resume-writing skills while also encouraged to become leaders in their community, challenge the status quo, and rock the boat?

The City wants a gang intervention model that is more sanitized, less politicized, and teaches skills separate and apart from issues related to equity and ethnic pride, poverty versus privilege, but this begs the question: Can such a model, one devoid of social action, ever succeed with the most disengaged youth, those with the greatest need for relevancy?

Doubtful.

Young people most likely to drop out of school and into the criminal justice system need a strong anchor, and there is nothing stronger than a sense of self-efficacy.

I can do this. I can change the world.

A Man of Conviction

AT 35, THE LATE VINCENT Bugliosi was the tireless prosecutor in the successful Manson family murder trial. He would also become a NY Times best-selling author many times over, including Helter Skelter, the most popular true crime book in history selling over 7 million copies. Sadly, on June 5th, Bugliosi died after a years-long battle with cancer. He was 80 and left behind his wife of 59 years, Gail, and two adult children. For the past seven years I was proud to have known him.

Bugliosi's talent and ethics were best summed up by legendary defense lawyer and Harvard professor, Alan Dershowitz. "If I were on trial and guilty," Dershowitz said, "there's no prosecutor I would fear more than Vincent Bugliosi. But if I were innocent, there's no prosecutor I would welcome more."

I first crossed paths with Vince in 2008 when I noticed that he had written The Prosecution of George W. Bush for Murder, which was due out soon. Intrigued by the title, I immediately contacted the publisher to review it. Curiously, they seemed surprised by my interest. Only later would I find out why. In the meantime, I soon received a copy of Vince's book and couldn't put it down.

Bugliosi contended that Bush intentionally deceived the country into the Iraq War. After copious research, Vince postulated that, assuming a fallen soldier had lived in their jurisdiction, any of the 50 state attorneys general, or any county D.A., had legal grounds to indict Bush for murder. "At this stage of my life, I would not risk my reputation on something I wasn't 100% sure had legal merit."

The strongest evidence against Bush, according to Bugliosi, was an October 7, 2002 speech claiming that Iraq posed an imminent threat to the security of the United States. A National Intelligence Estimate a week earlier stated almost the opposite. Bugliosi further claimed the Bush administration purposely deleted sections of the declassified version of the NIE released to Congress.

In the book Bugliosi also castigates Bush for his cavalier attitude regarding the death and suffering of American Soldiers. After eight years as president, he quotes Bush as saying, "Laura and I had the time of our lives," as though they had been to Disneyworld. Shockingly, Bush also said to Iraqi troops to "Bring it on." And lastly Bugliosi points out that W. spent two and a half years of his presidency on vacation at Camp David and the Crawford ranch.

Shortly after my review appeared, I was told Vince phoned the Daily Press looking for me. I gulped, "Why?" I instantly assumed I'd made some factual errors, "Tell Bugliosi I never even met Charles Manson." Finally, I returned his call, albeit nervously.

Bugliosi immediately praised my courage. "You were the only mainstream journalist in America with the guts to review the book." I tried to explain that it wasn't "guts" but rather a dislike for Bush, but Vince forever insisted I was courageous.

This was the start of a seven-year mutual admiration. When the "Prosecution of George W. Bush" was made into a documentary, The Prosecution of an American President, I reviewed it enthusiastically.

Vince and I even shared a passion for tennis. He was a high school state champion and received a tennis scholarship to the University of Miami. Small world, when I was commissioned to write a column about Gardner Mulloy, the 100-year-old former U of Miami tennis coach, Vince had his home phone number. He referred to Mulloy as "Tennis royalty," which actually became the title of my article.

Now, items Vince would have appreciated my noting. One, even though no newspaper, including the NY Times, reviewed or even took his ad money, The Prosecution of George. W. Bush sold 130,000 copies in the first three months. Two, Vince accepted that no matter how great his other accomplishments, he would always be remembered as the Manson prosecutor. "Those murders were probably the most bizarre in the recorded annals of American crime, so I understand."

And lastly, the best-selling Reclaiming History, documenting Vince's view that Oswald was JFK's lone assassin, was the book of which he was proudest. That said, after numerous discussions he and I agreed to disagree on Oswald's role.

Because it was so out of character, I can't forget the time Vince was having coffee when I phoned and what followed. "To what do I owe your call?" he asked warmly. "Nothing, I just find it comforting to talk to someone who despises George Bush more than I do." For those old enough, a la Danny Thomas, Vince laughed so hard he spit out his coffee.

In closing, I'm reminded of what Vincent Bugliosi Jr. said recently, "My father had an unflagging dedication to justice in everything he did." Amen to that. Vince Bugliosi, R.I.P.

Almost all of Vincent Bugliosi's 12 books and The Prosecution of an American President are available wherever books and DVDs are sold. JACK is at facebook.com/jackneworth, twitter.com/jackneworth and jnsmdp@aol.com.

with two speakers on poles." As the event has grown, said Gordon, organizers are always searching for ways to improve it. One goal is to better engage with social media. This year, visitors can enter an Instagram contest with a chance to win a bike by taking and uploading their photos.

The feedback from merchants and residents living near Main Street has been mostly positive, said Gordon. Some merchants who participate in sidewalk sales report two or three times the normal amount of business during the SOULstice, while others report that they do not benefit as much from the festival's demographic. However, the day long festival is about more than sales. "It's not just about doing great business," said Gordon, "It's about bringing people to [Main] Street so that they can have a good time and will come back." The SOULstice has become a community event, said Gordon, and for many people in the community "it's just a good afternoon in the summer."

"Ultimately, we want to grow the event so that it is continuous from the southern end of main street to Pico," said Gordon. However, such growth will be hindered unless the event can attract bigger sponsors. Larger sponsors are often turned off from the event because Main Street itself is not closed, said Gordon. In addition, estimating the number of visitors to the SOULstice is difficult due to the many entrance and exit points. An accurate headcount can demonstrate to sponsors the exposure they get by supporting the festival.

For this year, at least, Main Street will remain open. Only Pier Street and Kinney Street will be closed off. Visitors are encouraged to park at the beach or Main Street parking lots. The event will run from 1 - 7 p.m.

complaints lodged against the operators of the day care.

One resident, who lives next door to the property, said he never officially complained because it struck him as "being a bad neighbor."

He called the expansion a bridge too far, noting that his significant other works odd hours.

"She bought a home for half a million dollars in this community so that she could throw open the windows and the doors and enjoy that breeze and instead she is subjected to 14 children in the backyard and what should be a joyous sound, which is the sound of children laughing and being happy, instead has become a source of hypertension for her and constant angst," he testified.

One neighbor said that parents often use her driveway to turn their cars around after picking up or dropping of their kids.

Another said he spent $5,000 to replace his windows in an effort to combat the noise.

Owners of the day care said they were surprised to hear the complaints at the meeting and that they wished neighbors would have come to them first.

Ries sympathized with the need for child-care within the city of Santa Monica, but advocated for the creation of more facilitates spread throughout the city, rather than the doubling of size of a single facility.

Commissioner Richard McKinnon noted that the only way to get the operators to agree to conditions that might combat the problems currently existing on-site, was to approve their request with stricter requirements.

The applicants noted that part of the expansion involves creating a larger indoor space, thereby reducing the need to have kids in the backyard.

The initial proposal would have allowed a maximum of 11 kids in the backyard at any given time but commissioners amended that total down to six.

Under the new conditions, two employees will assist in the morning drop-off process, which will occur in waves over the course of a set time in the morning.

Commissioners asked the day care to maintain 12-foot hedges along the property to reduce noise.

They also asked that the agreement included specific language that restricts parents from using the driveways to turn around.

"I'm going to urge the applicant to work with the neighbors no matter what happens with your plans," Commissioner Amy Anderson said prior to affirmative vote.

most vulnerable?" Assemblywoman Lorena Gonzalez, D-San Diego, asked as she presented the bill.

The measure passed on a bipartisan 46-30 vote after weeks of vocal opposition, with thousands of parents placing calls to representatives and donning red shirts to protest at the Capitol.

But proponents have been equally resolute, standing by 7-year-old leukemia survivor Rhett Krawitt Wednesday as he delivered a petition with over 30,000 signatures to the Democratic governor. Krawitt's parents said that because he could not be immunized for a year after receiving chemotherapy, they were nervous to send him to school in the chronically under-vaccinated Marin County.

"We should fight for the liberty not just of those who don't want to vaccine their kids, but for those who cannot," said Republican Assemblywoman Catharine Baker, R-Pleasanton, during Thursday's floor debate.

Two Republican assemblywomen joined the Democratic majority in support. The Senate already approved the bill once, but still must approve amendments before it is sent to Brown. The Senate could take up amendments as early as next week.

Brown has not said whether he would sign the bill authored by Democratic Sens. Richard Pan of Sacramento and Ben Allen of Santa Monica.

"The Governor believes that vaccinations are profoundly important and a major public health benefit and any bill that reaches his desk will be closely considered," spokesman Evan Westrup said in an email that repeated Brown's earlier statement.

Opponents of the vaccine bill gathered on the Capitol steps after the vote, vowing to make their voices heard to the governor.

"Parents are being bullied into having their children vaccinated or not sending their kids to school," said Renate Krogdahl, a Cupertino mother of three who was among the protesters.

Sen. Bill Monning, D-Carmel, said Thursday that he and Pan have been targeted for recall by opponents. Monning said his district, which includes Santa Cruz, has a high number of parents who seek vaccine exemptions for their children and he has had to shut down his district office out of safety concerns.

In the floor debate, some Assembly Republicans argued that the measure trampled parental rights.

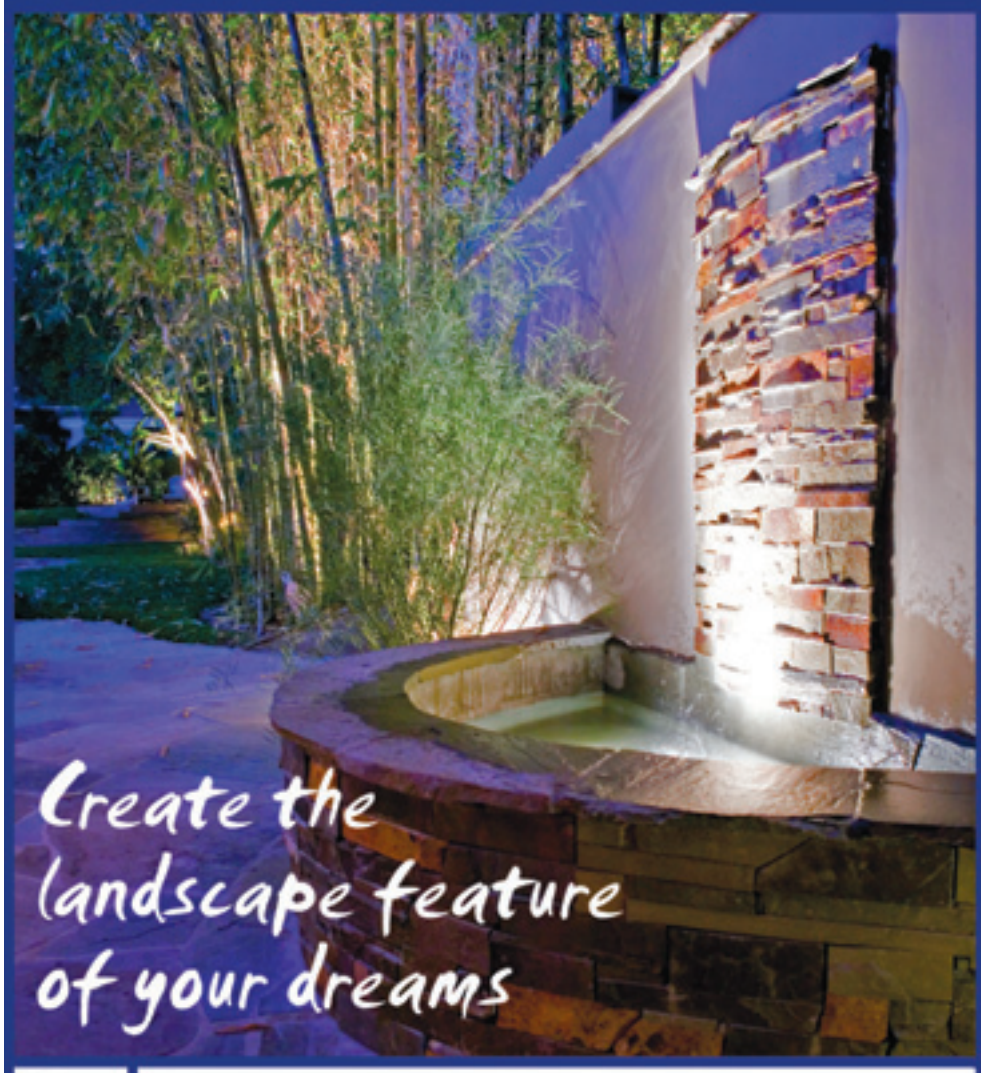

"We do not have the right, nor should we have the power, to take away a parent's right to choose," said Assemblyman Devon Mathis, R-Visalia.

There were also divisions among Democrats, with Assemblyman Mike Gatto, D-Glendale, taking the floor to warn of government overreach.

"If anyone can tell me where the line for medical necessity reasonably ends to justify a law, then I will vote for this bill," Gatto said. "Until then, this is a slippery slope."

FILM REVIEW

LOVE & MERCY

121 Minutes
Released June 5th

Whether Beach Boys music framed the days your childhood, or you know it as classic soft rock, it probably has an important emotional place in your memories. As I was growing up, technology didn't exist to appreciate the full quality of the instrumentals behind the Beach Boys hits. My car radio and bedroom clock/radio were grievously incapable of transmitting the incredible sound values of this music. Even so, it had a place in my life that was more important than I realized.

The story structure in Love & Mercy is not linear - that style opens the door for us into the mind of Brian Wilson, which dances capriciously from one realm to another. It's a composite of Brian's emotional life, from his point of view, rather than a detailed history – a poetic journey inside the inspirations of a musical genius.

The scoring of the film by composer Atticus Ross, and the handling of the recording sessions by cinematographer Robert D. Yeoman and director Bill Pohlad are superb. The scenes of the music developing in Brian's head are very effective, especially to those of us with creative, unpredictable minds. They capture the depth and emotional quality of Brian's sounds.

Paul Dano gives a remarkable portrayal of young Brian and bears a startling resemblance to him. His understanding of the fragile mental state of this musician is subtle and believable. I was pleased to see that filmmakers cast an actor who could play the piano well – then I discovered later that Dano elected to do a "crash course" in piano for this role. John Cusack, who plays Brian during a later stage of life when he is riddled with overmedication and psychosis, nails the role. We can feel his silent agonized cries. Paul Giamatti creates a bone-chilling portrayal of the power-hungry psychiatrist.

In one poignant scene, Brian takes his girlfriend to the site of his family home in Hawthorne, now an empty dead end with a busy freeway visible across a fence, as the house had been demolished in the mid-1980's. The film doesn't cover the future of the spot - in 2004, music industry notables had the site designated as a state historic landmark. A monument has been erected there and Richard Huhn, Chair of the Hawthorne Parks & Recreation Commission Hawthorne still sells commemorative bricks for the site and donates his time to keep it clean.

This movie schools us in the fact that we take our contemporary music for granted. It seems to magically emanate from our phones, our iPods, our computers, to underscore our feelings and provide a backdrop for our lives. We don't realize how important it is to us in coloring our existence, in helping us hang on to our stability through unsettling periods in our lives. We don't realize the depth, the angst and talent of the musicians who create it, many of whom we revere today, the future Mozart's and Bach's of music history. Brian Wilson indeed is a modern-day Beethoven.

KATHRYN WHITNEY BOOLE was drawn into the entertainment industry as a kid and never left. It has been the backdrop for many awesome adventures with crazy creative people. Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

Heal the Bay

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON JUNE 19 AT APPROXIMATELY 1:15 A.M.

Officers responded to the 1400 block of 14th Street in response to a burglary. According to the witness, she was sitting in her carport when she noticed the suspect, later identified as Christopher Baida, 47 of Panorama City, ride his bicycle down the entrance ramp of the subterranean garage and began to look at bikes, storage units and vehicles. The witness initially thought Baida was a neighbor, but quickly realized he was not. In observing Baida, she saw him open and rummage through a storage area and try the door handle of two cars. With the description given by the witness, assisting units located Baida and detained him. During the detention, drug paraphernalia and a debit card that did not belong to him were found in his possession. Baida was booked for attempted burglary. Bail was set at $50,000.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★★★★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

WORD UP!

ubiety
1. the property of having a definite location at any given time; state of existing and being localized in space.

TODAY IN HISTORY

1959 – The Saint Lawrence Seaway opens, opening North America's Great Lakes to ocean-going ships.

1960 – The former British Protectorate of British Somaliland gains its independence as Somaliland.

1960 – Madagascar gains its independence from France.

1963 – Levi Eshkol becomes the Israeli Prime Minister.

1967 – Karol Wojty✣a (later John Paul II) made a cardinal by Pope Paul VI.

1973 – At Plesetsk Cosmodrome nine people are killed in an explosion of a Cosmos 3-M rocket.

1974 – The Universal Product Code is scanned for the first time to sell a package of Wrigley's chewing gum at the Marsh Supermarket in Troy, Ohio

1975 – Two FBI agents and a member of the American Indian Movement are killed in a shootout on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota; Leonard Peltier is later convicted of the murders in a controversial trial.

1977 – The Yorkshire Ripper kills 16 year old shop assistant Jayne MacDonald in Leeds, changing public perception of the killer as she is the first victim who is not a prostitute.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Backyard firing ranges are legal in Florida (as News of the Weird reported last year), and in March a Florida House committee voted to keep it that way, shooting down legislation to outlaw them even in urban and residential areas. (Firing on private property is legal except if shooting over a public right-of-way or an occupied dwelling, and "negligent" gunfire, though illegal, is only a misdemeanor.) In 2014, one Florida legislator, originally from Alaska, said even in that liberty-conscious state, residents in urban Anchorage do not have rights that Floridians have.

■ Convicted "satanic cult" day care operators Dan and Fran Keller were finally unconvicted by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in May -- 23 years after being found guilty based in part on toddlers' fantastical testimony (encouraged by counselors) telling impossible tales of molestation. Still, however, the judges could not bring themselves to rule the Kellers "not guilty," thus preserving children's narratives of the Kellers videotaping orgies, serving blood-laced Kool-Aid, kidnapping them to Mexico and more -- yet somehow releasing them, unscarred, each day to parents at pickup time in Austin. (The Kellers spent 22 years behind bars.)

Take a walk on the wild side

By Katharine Romefelt

Broaden your horizons! Branch out to the Ballona Wetlands with some friends for a bird walk.

The city's only remaining saltwater marsh, the area is a perfect location for a mellow Sunday of musing and meandering, all while discovering the unique wildlife populating the area.

Intended for beginner and intermediate birders, these walks hosted by the Los Angeles Audubon Society (LAAS) encourage everyone (from age 6 and up) to explore and identify the more than 300 species of birds populating the Wetlands.

From 8 am till noon, join LAAS leaders as they delve into the natural histories and identifications of the vast array of winged species.

Birders will meet at the Del Rey Lagoon Parking Lot 8 to prepare for the three-hour sojourn.

Visit the LAAS website at www.losangelesaudubon.org for more information and directions.

Taking time to observe animals in their habitats can also simply provide solace from your hectic lifestyle. Grab your friends and head out for an unconventional and enlightening hike!

Do what feels good tonight, Aquarius

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★★ One-on-one relating marks the difference between success and failure. Your fiery side emerges when dealing with a partner who could be very irritating. Reach out to someone who gives you helpful, compassionate feedback. Tonight: Get to the bottom of a problem.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Your ability to get past an emotional matter unscathed will be tested. Share more of what you feel is needed. Anger could bubble up from out of nowhere. Try to discuss what is going on. Use caution with mechanical equipment, as you could be accident-prone. Tonight: Hang out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Your focus is on completion rather than initiating. Stay on top of your finances. You are walking a rocky road, and determination counts. At the risk of exhausting yourself, you'll do what is needed. Be aware of the implications of your actions. Tonight: A visit with a friend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You beam in whatever you decide is necessary. You might have the luxury of choosing what you want to do, for a change. Your diligence counts and allows you more flexibility. Let spontaneity and imagination merge to make an idea possible. Tonight: Your popularity peaks.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Stay centered when dealing with a personal matter. Some of you might want to take your time to evaluate a real estate proposition. Your instincts will guide you through some difficult decisions. Try not to sit on your feelings. Tonight: Home is where your heart is.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You naturally choose the right words. Your insightful comments will draw in others who appreciate your feedback. However, we all have our critics, and you might discover that one person strongly disagrees with you. Work through your differences. Tonight: TGIF!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Be aware of what is going on. You might believe that you that are responsibly following through on a particular matter, but in reality something else is going on. An element of possessiveness or a need for control is playing into your thoughts and actions. Tonight: Treat a friend to munchies.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You might want to get to the bottom of a problem. Detach and take an overview of what is going on, and make strong choices. Honor a difference of opinion, which is likely the result of communication issues and new interests. Tonight: Be where great music is played.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You could be taken aback by a situation that startles you and calls for your attention. Go within to determine the source of your knee-jerk response. There is more going on here than you are aware of. Be sensitive to others' needs as well. Tonight: In the moment and enjoying it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ How you deal with someone reflects who you are. Someone with high energy could challenge you. Ask yourself what you expect from this person. Try to gain a better understanding of where he or she is coming from. Tonight: Let another person make the first move.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ You might be taken aback by all the activity around you. Plans that you previously had made easily could go up in smoke. Your ability to understand what is happening within your immediate environment will mark the next few days. Tonight: Do what feels good.

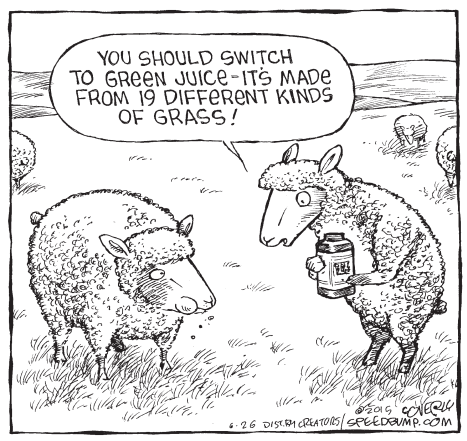

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Your thoughts float to those at a distance whom you care about. Put more effort into understanding the long-term direction of a decision. You see events quite differently from the majority of people. Allow your creativity to infuse your day. Tonight: Get into weekend mode.

Friday, June 26, 2015

This year you relate in a way that seems irresistible to many people, but you are unusually assertive. The friends who have known you for a long time might be unsure how to take the new you. Be sensitive to their adjustment. Your intuition will lead you down the right path. If you are single, you will expand your horizons by drawing in many new types of people. Know that this birthday year presents a noteworthy romantic possibility that you don't want to miss. If you are attached, the two of you often can be seen out and about enjoying each other's company. Your ability to understand each other grows. SCORPIO draws out your innate sensuality.

Why have 24,011 Southern California homeowners chosen us to replace their windows?

No pressure. During your Free Window Diagnosis, we'll give you an exact, down-to-the-penny price that's good for an entire year.

112 years of window expertise. We're the replacement division of Andersen, the window and door brand that your dad told you to trust.

No middleman to deal with. There's no runaround between the installer and the manufacturer because we handle it all, from custom-building to installing to warranting all our products.

We won't sell you vinyl. We've replaced thousands of poor-quality vinyl windows and patio doors, so we made our window's Fibrex composite material two times stronger than vinyl.

Make an appointment and get a price that's good for an entire year!
