California firefighter shot, killed at retirement home

CHRISTOPHER WEBER & MICHAEL BALSAMO
Associated Press

A resident of a retirement home in Southern California opened fire on firefighters responding to a report of an explosion in the building, killing a veteran fire captain and wounding a second firefighter and another person, officials said.

The shooting happened after firefighters responded to an alarm shortly before 4 a.m. at the 11-story retirement facility in Long Beach, south of Los Angeles, and found some windows blown out, activated sprinklers, the smell of gas and a fire that they extinguished, authorities said.

Firefighters were searching the building when shots were fired and the two firefighters were hit, Long Beach Fire Chief Michael DuRee said.

Fire Capt. Dave Rosa, who had worked for the department for 17 years, died at a hospital Monday morning, DuRee said. He is survived by a wife and two children, the chief said.

The other firefighter who was shot was not immediately identified and was hospitalized in stable condition. A third person was also struck by gunfire and was in critical condition and undergoing sur-

Mel's Drive-in opens

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

The end of the road is actually a new beginning for the folks at Mel's Drive-in as their long-awaited restaurant at the end of Route 66 will begin soft openings this week before formally opening later in July.

Colton Weiss is the grandson of the original Mel and a current owner of the company. He spent his childhood in the local area and said he understands how the details make a difference to the success of a business, including on-site parking at the corner of Lincoln and Olympic.

"Our parking lot will have 55 parking spaces available and we'll also have a valet available," he said. "That's a huge deal in the city of Santa Monica in my opinion. I grew up in this area but finding parking was not always the easiest. Here at this restaurant, it's really fantastic we have the parking lot."

The restaurant's menu also acknowledges the reality of Santa Monica by including options for diverse customer tastes. Weiss said the restaurant is family friendly with a strong kid's menu but they also have beers on tap (including offerings from the local Santa Monica Brew Works) and will be serving spiked milkshakes for adults.

He said the restaurant will cater to individuals stopping in for breakfast before work, tourists who see the location while driving on the freeway, individuals who want a meal after their shift or someone who wants to stop in for a late-night dessert. In addition to classic diner foods, they will be serving juices, smoothies and the vegan Impossible Burger.

"We have all kinds of options for everybody, we have breakfast all-day, every-day and we have reasonable prices," he said.

The Planning Commission first approved a permit for the restaurant in October of 2016. The space will be just over 5,000 square feet and will have an alcohol license. Weiss said their initial opening will

The Pier

Pier 360 SUP racers battle it out in waves off of the Santa Monica Pier | Dale & Karen Photography

On Saturday, June 23, elite athletes and spectator crowds gathered at the Santa Monica Pier for the first day of Pier 360. The two-day ocean sports and beach festival delivered over 12 hours of events, music, and immersive activations, culminating in the crowning of this year's Overall Elite Champions in men's and women's SUP events: Ryan Funk of Maui and Jade Howsen of Laguna Beach. Presented by CLIF and produced by the Santa Monica Pier Corporation (SMPC), Pier 360 picks up today with another slate of free entertainment on the Pier deck and festival sands.

The SUP Overall Elite Champion is decided by a combination of points from the 5.5 Distance and SupCross races. In the Men's 5.5 Distance Race, 17-year old Ryan Funk from Maui battled both the competition and the morning's windy conditions to turn in an amazing performance. Funk took a two-minute lead into the first lap and extended it in the second, with Dana Point local Tyler Bashor taking 2nd and Keaton Rose finishing 3rd. In the Men's SupCross, Funk looked to protect an early lead, but Tyler Bashor gave chase around the turnaround flag. With a few falls from Funk in the waves, Bashor went on to claim the win in thrilling fashion.

In the Women's 5.5 Distance Race, 2-time Pier 360 Overall Champion Shae Foudy took a commanding lead through the first five miles, but 15-year old Jade Howson from Laguna Beach powered to the lead in the last half mile to overtake Foudy and finish first. Foudy again shot out to a quick lead in the Women's SupCross, leaving Howson and April Zilg to battle it out for 2nd place. With her SupCross victory, Foudy tied Howson in the overall point total, but Howson would go on win with the tiebreaker.

STAND-UP PADDLEBOARD RESULTS

1st: Ryan Funk, Jade Howson
2nd: Tyler Bashor, Shae Foudy
3rd: Keaton Rose, April Zilg

What began in 2010 as the single-day Paddleboard Race at the Santa Monica Pier has continued to evolve into one of California's largest ocean festivals, drawing thousands of spectators each year. With Pier 360, the SMPC has doubling down on summer's kickoff celebration by curating a weekend's worth of events and adding races, installations and historic activations. The festival benefits The Surfrider Foundation and The Bay Foundation, two non-profit organizations dedicated to preserving coastal access, protecting the environment and improving the health of the ocean environment.

Our Republic Continues To Shine

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT HAS been engaging in a perverse policy of separating children from their emigrating parents. The images are disturbing and the administration's response has been described at times as "the law", "a deterrent" and something the President "hates to see." The prevarications, the "spin" and the outright reprehensible nature of actions taken in the false name of 'national security' are appalling and inhumane.

What I have seen from the supporters of this policy saddens me, not only for their lack of empathy but also the malevolence of blaming the parents for "putting their children in such a situation." This attitude that immigrant parents (mostly mothers) are deliberately putting their children in harm's way demonstrates an ignorance which is either willful, as in the case of the Attorney General who surely has more and better information on the situation, or depressingly uneducated as appears to be the case in many of the policy's supporters.

For a parent, any parent, to pick up from the security of a home they know, and travel thousands of miles, with few resources, all in an effort to make a better life for themselves and their child, there has to be a reason. In my line of work as a divorce lawyer, I usually see this in the context of one parent either honestly looking for a better life, or occasionally - trying to sever the relationship between the child and the left-behind parent.

In general, I have to say that most of the time when a parent is moving; their motives are to better the life they lead and to provide more for their child. Most parents actually love their children enough to make sacrifices for them in terms of money, security, and necessities of life.

Thankfully the President changed his administration's policy at least superficially on separating immigrant parents and their children. It remains to be seen how long this lasts and what the actual impact of his Executive Order will be.

Listening to his bloviating about how Congress must change this, that he was powerless to do anything, I was struck by the obvious lies. Hadn't he been the one who wanted "a full and complete shutdown of any Muslims coming in" to our country and he was going to do it by Executive Order? Here was a policy put forth by his own Attorney General, which certainly could have been overturned, as it eventually was, by the stroke of a presidential pen.

The Republican supporters of the Administration's policy were making the argument that "Obama did it too!" Well, a few thoughts. Saying, "Obama did it too!" doesn't excuse the fundamental immorality of a wrong action. That excuse didn't work on my mother, my teachers, or any judge I've appeared in front of. For a president who is doing everything in his power to reverse every possible Obama policy, relying on the "Obama defense" is the height of hypocrisy.

As a country, we've engaged in horrific practices and whitewashed them with lies to assuage our guilt and to demonize the other. We did it with homosexuals, Native Americans, African Americans, Japanese Americans we interred in camps as we simultaneously fought the Germans for what they were doing to Jews, and Gays.

On the other hand, even with this frothing at the mouth, lying, deceiving, ignorant administration doing all it can alienate our country in a global environment, we remain a beacon of hope - a place where families will leave the familiar to try and make a better life. That speaks to the power of what we as a country truly stand for.

The people who are traveling on foot, over thousands of miles to escape the horrors of their homes, looking for a better future, are the people most likely to come here and be successful. Do some come for free benefits? of course. There are always those who take advantage, but there 's also a reason why so many self-made millionaires are immigrants – they're risk takers, go-getters, they are the doers of this world.

I realize that this administration is playing politics with immigration. That's fine. Politics is a nasty, horrible business, filled with scheming, lying, manipulative individuals. I've been on the demonized side of politics before – who hasn't? That experience informs me of how skeptical I should be whenever a politician says anything negative and creates an "other" that they can use for political fodder.

But there are limits to anything – and separating children from their parents is beyond the pale of acceptable. I see on a regular basis in family court the damage done to children when they are separated from their fathers and mothers, by the other parent. In those cases at least the child is still with a parent, however evil or misguided they may be. To take a child away from a parent, and put them in some variation of a camp or foster care environment, for no other reason than deterrent is appalling and should not be done in my name or yours.

The President changed his policy after the pressure on his party was too great, the public's disgust was too palpable by the politicians, and the demand by the media for answers was unrelenting.

This is why people are traveling thousands of miles to build a better life. Because as difficult as the times are in America, we remain a raucous democratic republic, and a beacon of hope for those in need whom in the end, do the right thing.

Tiffany Haddish, Kumail Nanjiani among film academy invitees

LINDSEY BAHR
AP Film Writer

The organization that bestows the Oscars is continuing to lean into its promise to make its ranks more diverse by inviting a record 928 new members representing 59 countries to join including actors Tiffany Haddish, Kumail Nanjiani, Gina Rodriguez and "The Rider" filmmaker Chloe Zhao.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences says Monday that that 49 percent of its invitees are female and 38 percent of are people of color. Should all the invitees accept, the new class would boost its overall membership to be 31 percent female and 16 percent persons of color.

"Hey yo. I'm in The Academy," Pakistani-American Nanjiani, who co-wrote and starred in "The Big Sick," tweeted Monday. His wife and co-writer Emily V. Gordon was also invited to join.

Others celebrated elsewhere, like Haddish, who got the news from Melissa McCarthy on the set of their upcoming film "The Kitchen."

"That super cool," Haddish said in a video capturing the moment.

"So I get to vote?" Haddish added, before exclaiming with laughter: "I'm going to get movies for free?"

The film academy in 2016 pledged to double the number of female and minority ranks of its members by 2020. Then, just 25 percent of its members were female and 8 percent were non-white.

Invitees always range from relative newcomers to industry veterans. Some of the youngest prospective members include 22-year-old "Call Me By Your Name" actor Timothee Chalamet and "Beasts of the Southern Wild's" Quvenzhané Wallis who, at 14, is the youngest invitee this year. Both were Oscar-nominated for their performances.

On the other end of the age spectrum is 84-year-old "Gosford Park" actress Eileen Atkins. Other highly-recognizable invitees include Dave Chappelle, Jada Pinkett Smith, Amy Schumer, Christine Baranski, Sarah Silverman and Kyra Sedgwick. A batch of "The Simpsons" stars were also among the acting invitees, for their various film roles, including Julie Kavner, Hank Azaria, Harry Shearer and Yeardley Smith.

Both blockbuster and indie films are fair game for academy membership every year too. This year is no exception, with invitations extended to persons in front of and behind the camera of films like "Star Wars" (including actress Daisy Ridley) and "Black Panther" (like actor Daniel Kaluuya, designer Ilt Jones and writer Joe Robert Cole) to people like the revered, but very niche Hungarian director Bela Tarr.

Notable music invitees include Kendrick Lamar ("Black Panther"), Melissa Etheridge ("An Inconvenient Truth") and Sufjan Stevens ("Call Me By Your Name").

Ten of the invitees were invited to join multiple branches, including Nanjiani (for writing and acting), Zhao (for directing and writing) and "The Florida Project" director Sean Baker (for directing and writing). They will have to select only one branch.

New members will get a chance to celebrate together at private receptions this fall.

Red Cross urges donors to fill Missing Types to prevent summer blood shortage

The American Red Cross needs help to bring back the A's, B's and O's. This is not a typo. These letters represent blood types, and the reality is that during blood shortages these letters do go missing from hospital shelves. The American Red Cross urges donors of all blood types to give now to help prevent delays in patient care this summer.

Earlier this month, A's, B's and O's began disappearing from brand logos, social media pages, signs and websites as part of the Missing Types campaign to draw attention to the need for new blood donors. More than 1,000 partners across the country, from small businesses to leading national brands, have signed on to join the #MissingType movement and raise awareness about the critical role of every blood donor.

While thousands of donors have answered the call to donate blood, more donors are needed now to help ensure blood types don't go missing. During the summer, especially around holidays like Independence Day, donations often don't keep pace with patient needs. The Red Cross is thanking all those who come to donate July 2-7 with an exclusive Red Cross Missing Types T-shirt, while supplies last.

Make an appointment to donate blood by downloading the free Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org or calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767).

HOW TO DONATE BLOOD

Simply download the American Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit RedCrossBlood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) to make an appointment or for more information. All blood types are needed to ensure a reliable supply for patients. A blood donor card or driver's license or two other forms of identification are required at check-in. Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

Blood and platelet donors can save time at their next donation by using RapidPass to complete their pre-donation reading and health history questionnaire online, on the day of their donation, before arriving at the blood drive. To get started, follow the instructions at RedCrossBlood.org/RapidPass or use the Blood Donor App.

Gas tax repeal initiative to go before California voters

California voters will decide this November whether to get rid of higher gas taxes and vehicle registration fees approved last year.

Secretary of State Alex Padilla said Monday that initiative supporters collected enough valid signatures to qualify for the ballot. The move was widely expected after organizers turned in far more signatures than required.

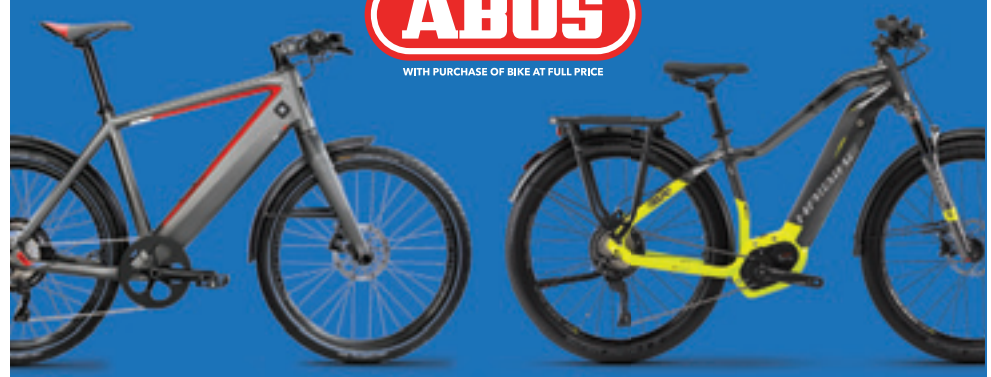

The gas tax initiative is a central part of the Republican strategy to hold onto contested legislative and congressional seats in the face of Democrats motivated by opposition to President Donald Trump.

The GOP hopes opposition to the gas tax will make inroads with moderate voters and encourage conservatives to cast a ballot.

Democratic Gov. Jerry Brown and other supporters say the $5 billion a year in revenue is needed to maintain roads and bridges.

CREATORS SYNDICATE © 2018 STANLEY NEWMAN STANXWORDS@AOL.COM 6/26/18

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 26)

You will develop your inner values much like you develop your physique: Through repetition and training, you become strong. You'll build on what you once saw as a fault but have come to recognize as a talent. Professional advancement at first won't seem to be. In 2019, you'll lose dead weight. Life becomes a dance. Aquarius and Capricorn adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 5, 30, 33, 4 and 18.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Work on your skills. No matter how talented you are, you need the skills to back it up, and those skills will take you much, much further than natural ability ever could.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
When the best idea comes along, the others just don't look the same anymore. They pale in comparison. You'll know it when you see it, and once you do, you can't unsee it. There's no going back.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
You'd often rather pay a little more for the monthly cost than get the discount of the yearly subscription. Why? Flexibility has value. You hate feeling trapped! This applies across the board today.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
You may acquire the winning formula and soundly disagree with it, or seek wise counsel and then do the exact opposite. Ultimately, you want to become a better you, not an effective clone of some other successful person.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Never doubt your power. Don't lie down. Castles are built one brick at a time. Build a little the best you can every day and one day you'll have a beautiful creation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Though you're not out to get any special attention, someone sees you for who you really are – and will also happen to choose the perfect moment to let you know this.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
It will be almost impossible to sell an idea to someone who has to first admit being wrong about it before. You'll graciously let someone save face, or gloss over your differences in the name of moving forward.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)
The movie heroes control their emotions, which is part of the appeal. If only we could all handle stress like James Bond with the fate of the world hanging in the balance. But you won't be so far off from that today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
Instead of solving one kind of problem, what if you trained your mind to adapt to any circumstance? Optimism – to look for opportunity no matter what and to believe it's there – is what will help you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Butterflies in the stomach are related to a primal fight-or-flight response, but don't take them as a bad sign. Go on and deal with the daunting circumstance at hand: It's the gateway to a positive change!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
You'll work hard; that's a given. But there's such a thing as overworking it, too. This thing you're dealing with could use a different approach. Step back. Look at it sideways. Ask around. There's got to be a better way.

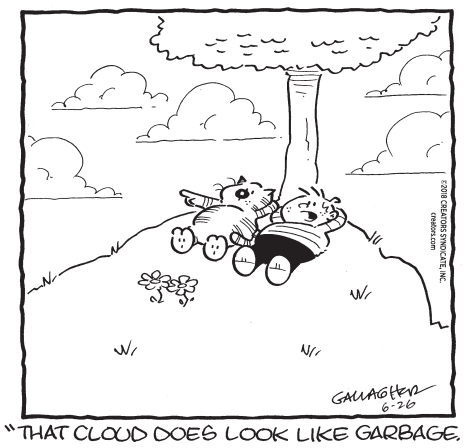

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Love changes. Anyone who's had relationships knows that feeling less euphoric and amorous than you did at the beginning of a relationship is the norm. But there are more highlights to come. Hang in there.

have limited hours, from about 8 a.m. – 4 p.m. while they work out any kinks at the new location. Once fully vetted, the restaurant will eventually open 24-hours a day.

The Googie style commercial building first opened in 1959 as the Penguin Coffee Shop. The coffee shop closed in 1991 when it was replaced by a dentist's office but the now famous architecture remained.

Weiss said returning the former medical office to a food service use was a challenge in itself and further complicated by the required permitting. He said it was worth the effort to have a location with the iconic looks of Los Angeles and the site fits with their preference for buildings that have a history.

"It used to be the Penguin and we've paid homage to that in a few different ways," he said. "It also has Googie architecture from the 50's that was inspired by the Atomic Age and car culture."

Vintage car culture is a huge part of the atmosphere at Mel's and Weiss said he is excited to bring the company's theme to the city while providing a landmark end to the famous Route 66 roadway.

"It's so great, the fact that we're now at the end of Route 66," he said. "It's a huge deal to not only us but to the Route 66 car clubs and society."

The famous interstate officially ends at what is today Lincoln and Olympic. A symbolic sign stands on the Santa Monica Pier but Weiss said the restaurant location continues to draws tourists. He said he's seen individuals in classic cars pulling up to the under-construction venue and while he hasn't been able to serve them yet, he's excited to provide a meaningful experience to anyone completing a cross-country trip.

"It's really cool to be able to have that for people and get the actual landmark meal and get a nice meal at their end of the trip," he said. "It's so cool to have that on top of everything else, it's going to be big."

Mel's Drive-In Restaurant operates three other Southern California locations (Hollywood, West Hollywood, and Sherman Oaks) and four locations in San Francisco. The Santa Monica restaurant will have limited opening hours starting this week and expects to hold a formal ribbon cutting in early July.

gery, said Police Chief Robert Luna. No further details were provided about that person.

Dozens of firefighters stood at attention and saluted as the flag-draped coffin carrying Rosa's body was brought out of a hospital Monday afternoon and loaded into a coroner's van. Community members waved American flags along the street outside the hospital as the procession of police and fire vehicles escorted the van to the coroner's office.

Luna said a "person of interest" — who police believe is a resident at the facility — was detained at the scene and was being questioned by investigators. A weapon was recovered at the scene, he said.

"There is a big puzzle to put together," Luna said.

Investigators were looking into whether the shooter intentionally lured first responders to the scene to ambush them, Luna said.

"That's the environment we work in today, as law enforcement and firefighters. You go to these scenes and you never know what's on the other side of those doors. And these brave firefighters went through those doors and unfortunately they were met with gunfire," Luna said.

Pamela Barr, who lives in the building, said she was awakened by fire alarms and didn't panic because false alarms are not uncommon. She tried to go back to sleep but then learned what was happening by watching TV news. Firefighters later evacuated the building and put residents on buses.

"This is a lot to deal with," said Barr, 73, as she sat with her son in a car, waiting to be allowed back in the tower, where she lives on the ninth floor on the opposite end of the building from where the fire occurred.

Barr said she hadn't heard of any troubles involving residents of the facility, where she has lived for seven years. She described it as clean, well run and secure.

Gloria Ford, 58, who lives a few blocks away, was awakened by screaming sirens earlier and came to check out the scene.

"I'm very sorry about it. I'm sick about it," she said about the death of the firefighter. "It's just mad."

Police also called for bomb squad investigators after they discovered "a couple of devices they deemed to be suspicious."

The residential tower near downtown Long Beach has 100 apartments for low-income people age 62 and older as well as disabled adults over age 18, according to its website.

Long Beach is a major port city with a population of more than 400,000.

FIGHTS FOR TALLER BUILDINGS AND LOWER PAY IN SANTA MONICA

Why Is City Council Taking Orders From Them?

Local 11 has fought to exempt workers from minimum wage increases and received dozens of unfair labor practice complaints. Now, the union wants City Council to mandate so-called "labor peace agreements," which could allow them to bypass a secret ballot vote in pursuit of more dues revenue.

Over 60 percent of Santa Monica voters oppose Local 11's big-development agenda.
So why is City Council helping the union raise more money?
