Suspect in Redding murder received money before killing

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES A woman charged in the 2008 murder of an aspiring model-actress whose body was discovered in her Santa Monica apartment received hundreds of thousands of dollars from a business associate of the victim's father, according to a published report.

Kelly Soo Park, 44, was charged last week in the death of 21-year-old Juliana Redding.

Prosecutors said Park was paid $250,000 three weeks before the killing, and her family received another payment of $113,400 days before Park's arrest, The Los Angeles Times reported Saturday.

Prosecutors said the money came from Park's employer, Dr. Munir Uwaydah, a Marina del Rey physician who was involved in a failed business deal with the victim's father, Greg Redding. Uwaydah was convicted in 2005 of defrauding a medical supply company of nearly $1 million and currently is being investigated for possibly filing millions of dollars in fraudulent insurance claims, The Times reported.

Uwaydah's attorney, Henry Fenton, said his client had nothing to do with the murder. Fenton said he was unaware of any of the allegations about the payment to Park or fraud. According to the attorney, Uwaydah was traveling outside the country and unreachable.

Redding's body was discovered March 16, 2008, after her mother called authorities to say she was unable to reach her. Redding moved from Arizona to Santa Monica to pursue her acting and modeling career. She had a role in a small 2005 movie, and was featured in a photo layout in Maxim magazine, winning one of the magazine's "Hometown Hottie" contests.

Greg Redding, was "involved in a business negotiation with Dr. Uwaydah that fell apart ... five days before the murder charged in this case," Santa Monica Detective Karen Thompson wrote in a bail motion obtained by the newspaper.

The Times reported Park received a monthly salary of $10,000 as Uwaydah's employee in addition to the two lump-sum payments police believe the doctor made. Police also said records from Uwaydah's

Crack down on tobacco sales to minors nets 12 violations

BY NICK TABOREK
Daily Press Staff Writer

PUBLIC SAFETY FACILITY Santa Monica police have cited 12 people for selling tobacco to minors in recent months, the result of an operation on unscrupulous stores that fail to check IDs before making cigarette sales.

Following the City Council's adoption in 2008 of an ordinance aimed at keeping closer watch over stores that sell tobacco, each of the 122 businesses in Santa Monica that carry tobacco products have had to pay $145 for a special license, which they must renew each year. The new rule took effect last July and has given police extra funding to enforce tobacco laws — especially the ban on selling tobacco to minors.

Because of the new funding, in the past several months SMPD's vice unit has investigated tobacco dealers citywide, enlisting the help of its teenage Explorers — members of a volunteer group affiliated with the Boy Scouts of America — to get the job done.

"This is the most concerted effort that the city has undertaken to enforce the underage smoking law," said Adam Radinsky, head of the consumer protection unit in the City Attorney's Office.

According to Sgt. Jay Trisler, a spokesman for the SMPD, Explorers who participated in the investigation were required to look their age and weren't allowed to deceive merchants when trying to make tobacco purchases under police supervision.

So far, the undercover operation has netted three convictions, with nine cases pending.

A misdemeanor conviction for selling tobacco to a minor can result in a fine of $800, once court fees are added on, Radinsky said.

Under the law, only the sales person who

Assembly set to vote on chemical ban

BY REBECCA KHEEL
Special to the Daily Press

SACRAMENTO The California state Assembly will vote today on a bill written by Senator Fran Pavley (D-Santa Monica) that would ban a chemical some say is toxic that is often used in plastic baby bottles, sippy cups and the lining of formula cans.

The vote comes a year after the bill, the Toxics-Free Babies and Toddlers Act, or SB 797, was voted down by the Assembly after being approved by the Senate.

Pavley said an intense lobbying effort from the American Chemistry Council (ACC) using fear tactics has prevented the necessary bill from passing in the past. But the ACC has contended that bisphenol-A (BPA), the chemical in question, has not yet been proven to be toxic, and, thus, states should not pass any regulation against it yet.

There have been more than 220 studies that have linked BPA to health problems, including breast and prostrate cancer, infertility, obesity, and neurological and behavioral changes, including autism and hyperactivity, according to a news release from Pavley.

In January, the Food and Drug Administration announced it would begin in depth research into the effects of BPA, but at that point remained inconclusive on its stance on BPA.

"At this interim stage, FDA shares the perspective of the National Toxicology Program that recent studies provide reason for some concern about the potential effects of BPA on the brain, behavior, and prostate gland of fetuses, infants and children," said an FDA statement released in January. "FDA also recognizes substantial uncertainties with respect to the overall interpretation of these studies and their potential implications for human health effects of BPA exposure."

A statement from the ACC in response to today's vote said it is the FDA's inconclusiveness that has prompted its stance against Pavley's bill.

"It is important to allow the federal government's regulatory authorities to make science-based decisions, and not to create patchwork state restrictions when it comes to consumer products," the statement said.

But Pavley and her staff said the lobbying efforts are aimed at preventing change. Leaked

Police: UCLA players arrested for stealing purse

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WESTWOOD University police say three incoming UCLA football players arrested last week face felony theft charges for allegedly stealing a student's purse.

Sgt. Paul Stewart said Sunday the victim called police to the dining area of the Hendrick Hall dormitory, where she found her bag missing from a storage locker Wednesday. After an investigation, three 18-year-old freshmen enrolled in the school's summer session were taken into custody.

Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department records show Joshua Shirley, Shaquille Richardson and Paul Richardson were booked at a county jail and released early Thursday morning.

Paul Richardson and Shaquille Richardson were released on $20,000 bail, and Shirley was released without bail.

Stick to school work, district

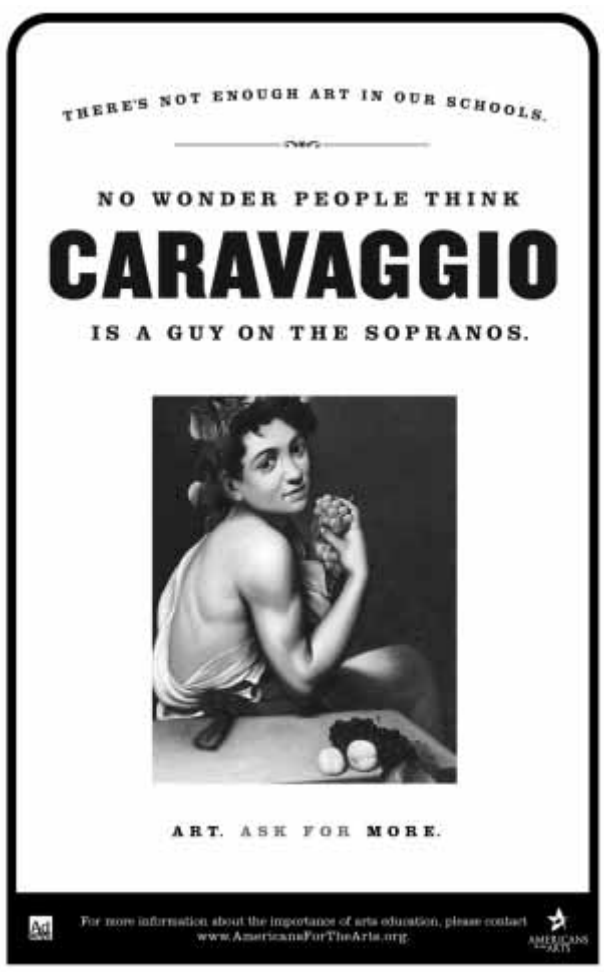

Editor:

Last week, the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District Board voted 6-0 in favor of a resolution boycotting Arizona over their recent immigration bill. While taking a stand for those not capable of standing for themselves is a profoundly "American" thing to do, I'd like to see the school board focus on what is relevant and imperative to our school district as we face imminent danger during these challenging times.

Similar to our school district, the Los Angeles Unified School District (LAUSD) is facing funding issues because of state budget cuts. To help close their deficit gap, LAUSD was initially considering canceling the inter-district permits for some of the 1,200 students who are on permit to attend our public schools but who reside in the LAUSD district. For each student LAUSD brings back to its district, they receive a prescribed revenue amount from the state of California and our district would lose a corresponding amount. The impact to our district would be a high seven-figure dollar loss. Even worse is the chaos and anxiety brought to the kids of our schools who are affected by the permits, some of whom have been in our district for many years and have built strong friendships with their peers. The disruption to their educational lives is immeasurable. We witnessed this chaos first hand in March of this year when this move was initially contemplated by LAUSD and our district was caught completely off guard as parents and students scrambled to find answers.

We have been fortunate in averting this disaster because LAUSD decided against enacting their permit-pulling policy for the 2010-11 school year. But did we actually avert the disaster or merely have it postponed? Recently the LAUSD parcel tax Measure E failed to pass, which would have brought $90 million a year to their school district. They are still facing a massive budget shortfall and the pressure to bring in additional revenues continues to fall upon that school district. There should not be any doubt in our minds that LAUSD will propose pulling the inter-district permits as early as the 2011-12 school year. Should we once again wait to put a backup plan in place until after that determination is made? Instead of managing one crisis to the next, shouldn't the school board be proactive on addressing future issues now, when we have more options available to us?

LUCE as a goose

OVER THE NEXT FEW WEEKS, THE CITY Council will approve the city's new Land Use and Circulation Element — the general blueprint for growth and development in Santa Monica over the next two decades.

In the works for six years, LUCE has been subject to an enormous amount of public comment. City staff favors public input it agrees with while ignoring the rest of us, so the original LUCE elements are still mostly intact. For example, additional building heights and directing new construction to major transit routes.

Increased use of mass transit, bicycle and pedestrian amenities to solve traffic and mobility problems are favored. Unfortunately, bike lanes, wider sidewalks, landscaping and dedicated mass transit lanes will only happen if existing vehicular lanes are removed. This can only lead to more congestion.

Colorado Avenue, where Expo Light Rail will run at street level from Fourth to 18th streets, is the ideal location for new development with ground floor "neighborhood-serving" retail and affordable/workforce housing on upper floors. It'll "eliminate the need to drive" LUCE (falsely) promises.

Five story, mixed-use projects or "neighborhood activity centers" are proposed for key intersections such as the Albertsons properties on Lincoln and Ocean Park boulevards and Wilshire Boulevard and Berkeley Street. But again, traffic impacts aren't addressed.

Typical of the kind of mixed-use development recommended by LUCE is a 45-foot-tall, 37,377-square-foot, mixed-use building with 26 one, two and three bedroom apartments slated for 2919-2923 Wilshire — currently Jerry's Liquor. It will have 11,600 square feet of ground-floor commercial space including a market and subterranean parking for 100 vehicles.

Even though this development is a "preferred project" because of its mixed-use configuration and LEED status, it will create substantial and irreparable traffic problems at Wilshire and Stanford Street, according to planning reports. Nevertheless, in the spirit of LUCE, this banal project was recently approved and even praised by the Planning Commission. It's an exemplar for a raft of similar projects LUCE recommends for major streets citywide.

LUCE calls for preservation of residential neighborhoods and expects to accomplish this by encouraging the above-mentioned mixed-use construction on all major travel thoroughfares such as Broadway and Lincoln, Pico, Olympic, Santa Monica and Wilshire boulevards.

However, there's nothing in LUCE (except for a philosophical desire to preserve courtyard and other "charming" apartment buildings) that prevents or restricts displacement of residents and redevelopment. Quiet, multi-family neighborhoods away from main thoroughfares will still be prime targets for urban renewal.

In recent weeks, developers, real estate and business interests and one prominent law firm with many developer clients has advocated for even more favorable development standards in LUCE. Council should weigh these "special interest" requests very carefully.

Among their "last minute" recommendations is an additional increase in overall building heights by two to six feet. While this would mean better financial return, it would result in even taller buildings all over the city when most residents favor lower height limits.

Texas developer Hines proposes almost a million square feet of new construction and a new maximum height of 81-feet for its Bergamot Transit Village on the former Paper Mate site. The additional loftiness and density is not sitting well for most neighbors concerned about height, crowding and unresolvable traffic impacts.

Business interests and developers are also asking for increased floor area in new buildings. This would result in twice as much residential redevelopment as the draft LUCE proposed.

Some business interests have suggested that parts of Lincoln Boulevard between Wilshire and Interstate-10 be re-zoned for car dealerships. The last thing we need here is another "auto row," even if the dealerships were to have apartments above their showrooms.

Another bad idea being floated is extending the hospital district along Wilshire and shifting the development of new hospital workforce housing from the hospitals themselves to City Hall.

But there's another problem: City Council members voting on LUCE who've accepted developer money for re-election campaigns.

Mayor Pro Tempore Pam O'Connor raised $6,675 from July 1 through Dec. 31, 2009 for her 2010 re-election coffers mostly from developers, attorneys, architects, tourism industry donors and real estate interests, according to disclosure statements filed with the City Clerk.

Richard Bloom's 2008 "Re-elect Richard Bloom" campaign collected thousands from developers, consultants, architects, real estate interests and car dealers.

Interim Councilman Terry O'Day (who wasn't even a candidate in 2008 but was on the Planning Commission at the time) also received thousands of dollars from developers that year; $3,000 alone came from associates of Hines, whose Bergamot Transit Village is awaiting its development agreement and would be a direct beneficiary of the "development friendly" LUCE standards recently proposed by its attorneys.

Next LUCE meetings are July 1 and July 6 at 6:30 p.m. in the City Council chambers. Their decisions on controversial LUCE elements will be watched closely to see which master — residents or developers — they really serve.

JANET MCCONNAUGHEY
MITCH STACY
Associated Press Writers

NEW ORLEANS The Gulf of Mexico oil disaster feels far worse to shrimper Ricky Robin than Katrina, even though he's still haunted by memories of riding out the hurricane on his trawler and of his father's suicide in the storm's aftermath.

The relentless spill is bringing back feelings that are far too familiar to Robin and others still dealing with the physical and emotional toll wrought by Katrina five years ago.

"I can't sleep at night. I find myself crying sometimes," said Robin, of Violet, a blue-collar community on the southeastern edge of the New Orleans suburbs, along the highway that hugs the levee on the Mississippi River's east bank nearly all the way to the Gulf.

Psychiatrists who treated people after Katrina and have held group sessions in oil spill-stricken areas say the symptoms showing up are much the same: Anger. Anxiety. Drinking. Depression. Suicidal thoughts.

"Everybody's acting strange," said Robin, 56. "Real angry, frustrated, stressed out, fighting brothers and sisters and mamas and family."

Fishing families, the backbone of the coastal economy, are especially hard-pressed as the waters that make up their livelihood are sporadically closed because of fears the oil will taint fish, oysters and shrimp.

Oil field workers, whose salaries are among the best the region can offer, worry about their industry's long-term future.

And there is still the rebuilding after Katrina, which in August 2005 devastated a swath from Louisiana to Alabama — almost as big as the area affected by the oil — killing more than 1,600 and forever changing the region's relationship with the water.

No one is fishing any more out of Zeke's Landing Marina in Orange Beach, Ala., though most charter boat captains are making some money pulling boom and doing other jobs in BP's cleanup program.

Looking at oil all day can be harder than staying home, said Joe Nash, a boat captain there. "Seeing everything that you've been used to for years kind of slowly going away from you, it's overwhelming," he said. "Because you can't do anything about it."

That helplessness, coupled with the uncertainty about what's going to happen with the spill and when the next check from BP PLC will arrive, leaves boat captain George Pfeiffer angry all the time.

"Our families want to know what's going on," said Pfeiffer, 55, who keeps two charter boats at Zeke's Landing. "When we get home, we're stressed out and tired, and they want answers and we don't have any."

His wife cries, a lot.

"I haven't slept. I've lost weight," said Yvonne Pfeiffer, 53. "My shoulders are in knots. The stress level has my shoulders up to my ears."

Social services agencies have not seen a significant increase in people seeking help since the spill began, but that doesn't mean the need isn't there, said Jeffrey Bennett, executive director of the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center in Gulfport, Miss., whose state saw oil wash up on the mainland for the first time Sunday.

"Unfortunately, the people most affected, shrimpers and fishermen, are not people who traditionally seek mental health services," Bennett said. "They're kind of tough characters, and look at being depressed or not being able to handle their own problems as weakness."

On Sunday evening, many in Alabama's coastal fishing community planned to attend services for a popular charter captain who committed suicide on his docked boat. Authorities had no way to know whether his death had anything to do with the spill, but they hoped it would move others to seek help.

John Ziegler, a spokesman for the Alabama Department of Mental Health, said no one had walked into counseling centers set up in fishing communities since the disaster. Then on Friday, two days after the captain's death, five people came in saying they needed help because of the spill.

As news of the captain's death spread east to Pensacola, Fla., Baptist Health Care's Lakeview Center publicized its 24-hour help line, and several calls about the spill came in the following day.

"People saying they were sad, they were angry, they were grieving, they have lost a lot," marketing director Tish Pennewill said. "Grandmothers talking about how they took the children to the beach for the summer and could no longer do that. People wondering if it was ever going to be the same."

Even people whose livelihoods aren't affected by the spill find themselves crying on beaches, like Nancy Salinas, who was on Pensacola Beach last week when Florida officials closed it because oil was washing up. "It just breaks your heart," she said. "I can't get my feet in the water."

The Q Line

Truth behind camping arrests

The ACLU filed a suit against City Hall last year claiming that police were harassing the homeless for camping in public. The suit was eventually dismissed in court, but a Daily Press investigation found that the number of arrests plummeted following the filing of the suit. City officials say the arrests dropped because of stepped-up enforcement in the months prior to the filing.

So, this week's Q-Line question asks:
Do you think the suit caused the arrests to drop, or were other factors responsible?

Call (310) 285-8106 before Friday at 5 p.m. and we'll print your answers in the weekend edition of the Daily Press.

SAME AS SOAP? Manufacturers that use triclosan in their products insist that the synthetic chemical helps reduce infections. But numerous studies have shown that washing hands with products containing triclosan was no more effective in preventing infectious illness than plain soaps. Other research even links triclosan to various human health and environmental problems.

Helpful or harmful?

Dear EarthTalk

I heard about a supposed dangerous chemical called "triclosan" that is in many personal care and other consumer products. Can you enlighten?

Carl Stoneman
Richland, Wash.

TRICLOSAN IS A SYNTHETIC CHEMICAL compound added to many personal and household care products to inhibit illness by preventing bacterial infection. It works by breaking down the biochemical pathways that bacteria use to keep their cell walls intact, and as such kills potentially harmful germs if used in strong enough formulations. First developed as a surgical scrub back in 1972, triclosan is now used in upwards of 700 different consumer-oriented products, many of which people use more than once a day. They include hand soaps, deodorants, toothpastes, kids' toys, yoga mats and, of course, hand sanitizers.

Whether triclosan is actually as effective as advertised, especially in the small doses found in consumer products, is a topic of much debate. Manufacturers insist that the product helps reduce infections. But researchers from the University of Michigan's School of Public Health found, after surveying 27 different studies conducted between 1980 and 2006 on the effectiveness of antibacterial soaps, that washing hands with products containing triclosan was no more effective in preventing infectious illness — and did not remove any more bacteria — than plain soaps. The analysis, "Consumer Antibacterial Soaps: Effective or Just Risky?" was published in 2007 in the peer-reviewed journal, Clinical Infectious Diseases. According to lead researcher Allison Aiello, triclosan — because of the way it reacts in living cells — may cause some bacteria exposed to it to become resistant to amoxicillin and other commonly used antibacterial drugs, but she adds that more research is needed to bear out this hypothesis.

Anti-bacterial soaps and other products utilizing triclosan may in fact be doing more harm than good for the people who use it regularly. According to the non-profit Beyond Pesticides, triclosan has been linked to various human health problems. "It is associated with skin irritation, has been shown to interfere with the body's hormones, and has been linked to an increased risk of developing respiratory illness, or asthma, and cancer, as well as subtle effects on learning ability," reports the group, adding that 75 percent of Americans are walking around today with trace levels of triclosan in their bloodstreams. Tests using lab animals have verified that exposure to large doses of triclosan can cause irreparable health damage, but industry representatives say that the levels found in consumer products are much too small to do so.

Beyond its potential human health effects, triclosan can also harm the environment. According to Beyond Pesticides, some 96 percent of the triclosan from consumer products is washed down drains where it flows into wastewater treatment plants often ill-equipped to deal with it. Inevitably some of the triclosan escapes treatment and is released into local waterways, where exposure to sunlight can convert it into dioxins, a highly toxic group of chemicals responsible for contaminating waterways and wreaking havoc on wildlife.

While the U.S. Food and Drug Administration is finally taking a fresh look at triclosan after years of controversy, consumers can do their part by asking the places they shop to stop selling products containing the controversial chemical additive. The Beyond Pesticides website offers a customizable sample letter designed to help consumers convince local retailers to forego stocking items with triclosan.

Big Blue Bus Campus Expansion Project
No parking along the west sidewalk of Seventh Street between Colorado Avenue and Olympic Boulevard through June 2010.

Parking Structure No. 2 Seismic Retrofit
The parking structure will remain open throughout construction, however the work requires temporary closure of up to 50 parking spaces per day. From approximately July 1, traffic leaving Parking Structure No. 2 will not be able to exit onto Second Street. Instead, all exiting traffic will be re-routed through the alley behind the structure. Estimated project completion is December of 2010.

Parking Structures at Santa Monica Place
Parking Structure 7 will be completely closed until August 2010 for construction improvements. For construction questions, please contact Dan Griffin at (310) 394-6000. For alternate parking location questions, contact Frank Ching at (310) 458-8295.

Annual Street Improvement Project
Striping and adjusting utilities on various newly paved streets around the city. The contractor will also be repairing sidewalks at various locations. Traffic may be impacted during the striping and utility adjustments, but impacts are expected to be minimal.

office showed he made a third payment of an unknown amount to a South Korean bank account in Park's name days before she was arrested.

On Friday, prosecutors revealed the payments as part of a request that the judge in the case raise Park's bail to $5 million from $1 million. Judge Keith Schwartz was expected to rule on the increased bail at a hearing Monday morning.

Park faces 25 years to life in prison if convicted. She is being held in lieu of $1 million bail.

Her roommate, 34-year-old Ronnie Wayne Case, was also arrested in connection with the murder. Pending further investigation, prosecutors declined to immediately charge Case.

Santa Monica police said there could be more arrests in the case.

BAN

meeting minutes published by the Washington Post last May showed can manufacturers strategizing ways to prevent BPA bans from passing, including using fear tactics.

"The American Chemistry Council has tons of money, and they like the status quo just fine," Pavley said.

Though the bill has already been voted down by the Assembly, Pavley said this time is different as now other states, including Connecticut, Maryland, Minnesota, Vermont, Wisconsin and Washington, have passed bills banning BPA with near unanimous votes.

Deborah Hoffman, Pavley's communications director, said other states were able to pass the bans as almost all of the lobbying efforts have been focused on California.

"The thing about California is, the nation tends to follow suit," Hoffman said. "So they saw California as ground zero."

Should the ban not pass in the Assembly today, it will be put on "call," meaning it will have one more opportunity to be voted on by the end of the session on Aug. 31.

"There's a growing consensus that BPA is a problem," Pavley said. "But I'm never confident because it's babies and pregnant women against the powerful American Chemistry Council."

The L.A. Fire Department says some of the injuries occurred as people rushed barriers to try and overwhelm security and get inside the 14th annual Electric Daisy Carnival, which featured rides and five stages.

Due to the size of the event, paramedics were stationed at a command post on site. On Friday, 94 incidents were reported, 52 of which were injured people who were taken to hospitals. On Saturday, 132 incidents were reported, 62 of which required transportation to hospitals.

The extent of the injuries was not known.

A publicist says 185,000 people attended the festival on Friday and Saturday.

Gay pride marchers celebrate with parades across the nation

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK Thousands of marchers and a rainbow of floats filled the streets of New York and other U.S. cities on Sunday as people celebrated gay pride, part of a weekend of events marred by a shooting death Saturday at a street party in San Francisco.

Participants in New York's annual parade, including Mayor Michael Bloomberg and Gov. David Paterson, made their way down Fifth Avenue toward the Greenwich Village neighborhood. Throngs of people turned out despite the heat and humidity on Sunday to watch the city's annual parade.

One of the parade's grand marshals was Constance McMillen, the lesbian teenager who sued her Mississippi school district over its policy banning same-sex prom dates.

San Francisco's 40th annual gay pride weekend started Saturday at Civic Center Plaza, where thousands converged as vendors sold barbecue and burritos and DJs spun tunes on a large stage. The party later moved into the city's Castro District for the "Pink Saturday" street party, where police said a 19-year-old man was killed and two others injured in a shooting late Saturday.

Police were investigating what led to the shooting but Officer Phil Gordon told the San Francisco Chronicle authorities did not believe it was a hate crime.

City leaders said based on the initial investigation they did not believe the violence would cause officials to cancel future gay pride events in the Castro.

A 2006 shooting at Halloween party in the Castro resulted in the halting of all subsequent city-sanctioned Halloween festivities there.

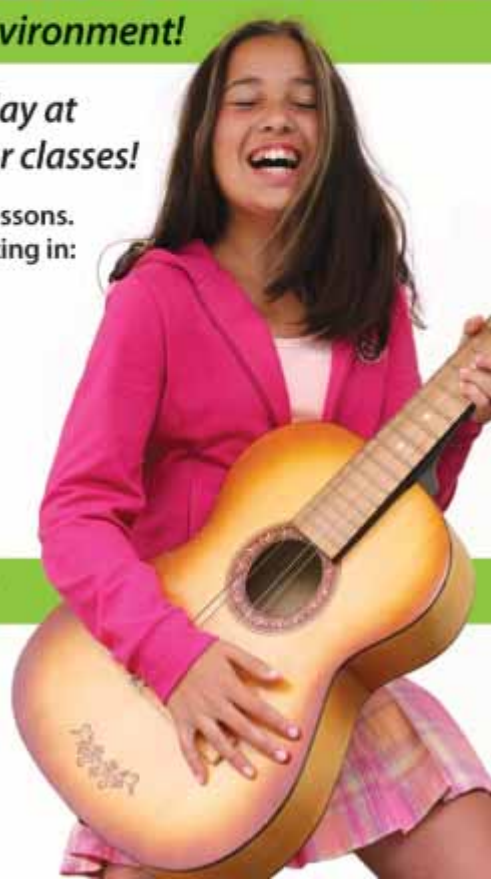

Thousands gathered to watch and participate in the city's gay pride parade. The Backstreet Boys were due to perform and U.S. House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, who represents San Francisco, was scheduled to deliver a videotaped address to revelers.

Chicago's parade included the first-ever float from the Cubs and an appearance by the Stanley Cup — NHL's championship trophy.

The Chicago Blackhawks won their first Stanley Cup title since 1961 this year, and the parade marks the first time the trophy has been on display at a gay-themed event, according to the Hockey Hall of Fame's Phil Pritchard.

"We are thrilled that it worked out as it's important for the city and important for the franchise," Blackhawks spokesman Adam Rogowin said.

Heal the Bay is a non-profit environmental organization dedicated to making Santa Monica Bay and Southern California coastal waters safe and healthy for people and marine life.
Heal the Bay

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card℠ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A–F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Get into the groove tonight, Capricorn

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You switch gears, focusing on drawing like minds together in a project. Some people might be commenting that you have a new spring in your step. Your vibrancy helps give life to your ideas. Others respond to your energy. Tonight: Where people are.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Examine a boss's idea, but use care when challenging him or her. Unexpected insights help you not only right now but also in the long run. Tune in to your inner voice more frequently if you want good results. Tonight: Touch base with an older friend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Reach out for experts and new ideas. Never fear saying that you are not sure or that you need more information. A new friend could prove to be unpredictable, taking you down a new path. Tonight: Relax your mind. You don't need to do yoga. A good movie will work, too.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Deal with a personal matter directly. The person(s) involved gives you intense feedback. You just might decide to set sail in an unexplored direction. Opportunities might overwhelm you. Tonight: Out late.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Others want a say in the final product. Is there any reason why they shouldn't have this? Surprising news heads in your direction. Though at first you might have a strong reaction, you'll discover many plusses soon enough. Tonight: Accept an invitation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ A partner or associate appears to have totally changed his or her MO, surprising you. Learn to work with this rapidly transforming person more often. He or she could be fortunate for you. Tonight: Squeeze in some exercise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ Your playfulness marks plans, conversations and interactions in general. Someone could have a very strong reaction, like it or not. In fact, people in general will need time to understand your new projection. Tonight: Having fun wherever you are.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ If you can work from home, by all means, do. You will accomplish a lot more, and ideas will flow more easily. A family member appreciates your efforts toward him or her. Tonight: Order in.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Make the effort to connect with those around you. Standing on ceremony at this point won't work and is totally unnecessary. You could be delightfully surprised by someone's news. Tonight: Hanging out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Curb a need to be possessive or to have matters play out in a certain way. Being controlling could cause more problems than you are ready to deal with. Others behave in ways that could surprise you. Tonight: Get into the groove.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ All eyes turn to you, whether in a meeting or on the street. You wonder about others who are acting in a most unpredictable manner. Free yourself up and allow for more spontaneity. It is as if you are blazing a new path. Tonight: Whatever makes you happy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★ Know when to pull back and say less. Understanding grows the more you listen. How you deal with a personal matter could change. Use your instincts with finances. If you feel lucky, buy a lottery ticket. Tonight: Get some extra R and R.

Happy birthday

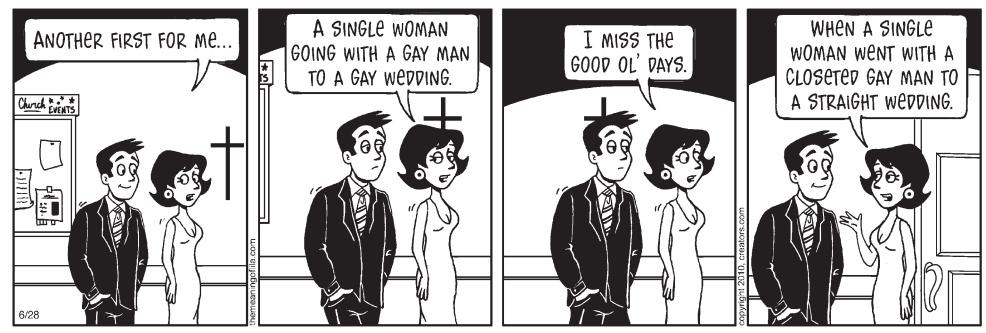

This year, the unexpected marks your professional and personal lives. You could feel quite pushed by authority figures. As a result, you might decide to go in a new direction. Many of you could decide to start your own business. Parents and older relatives seem to lighten up with a newfound freedom. If you are single, you could meet someone quite suddenly through your work or your daily life. Don't consider this as a long-term relationship until it is. If you are attached, the two of you could feel a lot more spontaneous together than in many years.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

ARITHMO™ CrossMath

- Fill the grid with the set of given numbers (1 to 12) to satisfy the Equa demands (7 to 24) in the shaded boxes. The Equa demands represent the sum of the digits that you will insert into the empty squares.
- Each horizontal row has one Equa demand to satisfy; each vertical column also has one demand to satisfy. Each empty square in the grid dictates the math operation (addition +, subtraction -, multiplication X, and division ÷) that must be performed to meet the demands.
- You must follow the given math operations for each square and you must make sure all the numbers satisfy the demands in the shaded boxes when connected in adjacent threes and calculated together from left to right, and top to bottom.
- The numbers you insert into the grid must satisfy the Equa demands both horizontally and vertically.

For more games, go to www.arithmo.com

Fill in the empty fields with the given numbers so when calculated together they satisfy all Equas in the gray boxes:

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ New York state school officials had promised to crack down on soft test-grading to end the near-automatic grade-advancement by students unprepared for promotion. However, a June New York Post report found that the problem lingers under the current grading guideline called "holistic rubrics." Among examples cited by the Post (from a 4th-grade math test): How many inches long is a "2-foot-long skateboard"? (Answer: 24; "half-credit" answer: 48). Also, if you have 35 book boxes, and each contains 10 books, how many books are there? (Answer: 350; "half-credit" answer: 150).

■ According to a May report by Seattle's KOMO-TV, former Oregon National Guardsman Gary Pfleider II is awaiting the results of his latest appeal to end the garnishment of his disability checks to cover $3,175 for gear he supposedly "lost" when he was shot in Iraq. Pfleider was hit in the leg by a sniper in 2007, bled profusely and was evacuated (and is awaiting his ninth surgery on the leg), but the Oregon Guard apparently believes that, despite the trauma, Pfleider somehow should have paused to inventory the equipment he was carrying and to make arrangements for its safekeeping during his imminent hospitalization.

SUMMONS
(Family Law)
NOTICE TO RESPONDENT (Name): AVISO AL DEMANDADO (Nombre): VIRGINIE VILLEPONTOUX
You are being sued. Lo están demandando.
Petitioner's name is: (Nombre del demandante): TODD WORDEN
CASE NUMBER (NÚMERO DE CASO): ED042366
You have 30 calendar days after this Summons and Petition are served on you to file a Response (form FL-120 or FL-123) at the court and have a copy served on the petitioner. A letter or phone call will not protect you.
If you do not file your Response on time, the court may make orders affecting your marriage or domestic partnership, your property, and custody of your children. You may be ordered to pay support and attorney fees and costs. If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the clerk for a fee waiver form.
If you want legal advice, contact a lawyer immediately. You can get information about finding lawyers at the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), at the California Legal Services Web site (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), or by contacting your local county bar association.
Tiene 30 días corridos después de haber recibido la entrega legal de esta Citación y Petición para presentar una Respuesta (formulario FL-120 ó FL-123) ante la corte y efectuar la entrega legal de una copia al demandante. Una carta o llamada telefónica no basta para protegerlo.
Si no presenta su Respuesta a tiempo, la corte puede dar órdenes que afecten su matrimonio o pareja de hecho, sus bienes y la custodia de sus hijos. La corte también le puede ordenar que pague manutención, y honorarios y costos legales. Si no puede pagar la cuota de presentación, pida al secretario un formulario de exención de cuotas. Si desea obtener asesoramiento legal, póngase en contacto de inmediato con un abogado. Puede obtener información para encontrar a un abogado en el Centro de Ayuda de las Cortes de California (www.sucorte.ca.gov), en el sitio Web de los Servicios Legales de California (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org) o poniéndose en contacto con el colegio de abogados de su condado.
NOTICE: The restraining orders on page 2 are effective against both spouses or domestic partners until the petition is dismissed, a judgment is entered, or the court makes further orders. These orders are enforceable anywhere in California by any law enforcement officer who has received or seen a copy of them.
AVISO: Las órdenes de restricción que figuran en la página 2 valen para ambos cónyuges o pareja de hecho hasta que se despida la petición, se emita un fallo o la corte dé otras órdenes. Cualquier autoridad de la ley que haya recibido o visto una copia de estas órdenes puede hacerlas acatar en cualquier lugar de California.
NOTICE: If a judgment or support order is entered, the court may order you to pay all or part of the fees and costs that the court waived for yourself or the other party. If this happens, the party ordered to pay fees shall be given notice and an opportunity to request a hearing to set aside the order to pay waived court fees.
AVISO: Si se emite un fallo u orden de manutención, la corte puede ordenar que usted pague parte de, o todas las cuotas y costos de la corte previamente exentas a petición de usted o de la otra parte. Si esto ocurre, la parte ordenada a pagar estas cuotas debe recibir aviso y la oportunidad de solicitar una audiencia para anular la orden de pagar las cuotas exentas.
