Local beats grandmaster to win national chess tournament

BRENNON DIXSON
SMDP Staff Writer

Danial Asaria beat his first grandmaster in a chess tournament when he was 15-years-old, but the recent Santa Monica High School graduate has a number of accomplishments — on and off the board — that one may find even more impressive.

Asaria started playing chess when he was 7-years-old and attending Franklin Elementary School.

"At first, I was always a very energetic kid and my parents wanted me to focus the energy on something productive," Asaria said in an interview. "Originally, I was hoping to play soccer and I thought chess would be boring, but after the first match, I was automatically hooked. I think I liked it because I was able to battle against others and try to outwit them in a peaceful manner without actually hurting anyone."

Six weeks after taking his first pawn in a match, Asaria sat down to play his coach, he said, "and I was completely winning before I blundered it at the end. But I was winning and the coach was really, really surprised… so we signed up for the Los Angeles Chess Club."

In the years since, Asaria said he has been fortunate enough to travel the world because of his prowess on the board. And up until Covid-19 forced the cancellation of nearly every event in the country, he had a plane ticket booked for Ohio, where he was hoping to compete in his final tournament as a high-schooler.

"It got canceled at first and there was going to be nothing at all, but then they organized an online tournament," Asaria said. "And it was only for seniors and featured a field of really strong competitors, I actually think it was one of the strongest tournaments I've played in."

In the first round, Asaria played an International Master, which is the second highest title one can achieve in chess. In the next match, he was tasked with beating an actual grandmaster.

Ten moves into the game, the prospective Trojan was down one piece and soon found himself down two pieces, "which is essentially resignable," Asaria said, "and I was so close to resigning, but then I realized this is the last tournament of my high-school career. I shouldn't just blank out and give up."

"Luckily," he added, "Out of nowhere, I got this attack and

City prepares for oral arguments in CVRA lawsuit

BRENNON DIXSON
SMDP Staff Writer

It's been more than four years since the City of Santa Monica was named as a defendant in a voting rights lawsuit, but attorneys for the city and Pico Neighborhood Association are due back in court at 1 p.m. Tuesday, June 30, for oral arguments.

The hearing stems from a complaint filed in the California Superior Court in April 2016, alleging that the at-large election system for City Council dilutes LatinX voting power in violation of the California Voting Rights Act (CVRA) and other statutes.

Trial for the CVRA lawsuit began on Aug. 1, 2018, in Los Angeles Superior Court and the City of Santa Monica lost. The city was ordered to conduct a district-based election on July 2, 2019. It was also ordered that no City Council

SMMUSD agrees to bargaining agreement with union

BRENNON DIXSON
SMDP Staff Writer

The Santa Monica Unified School District and Santa Monica-Malibu Classroom Teachers Association have agreed to new terms in their collective bargaining agreement, which was set to expire Tuesday, June 30.

In recent weeks, educators throughout SMMUSD have been subject to pink slips as well as a pandemic, which has forced them to adapt their classroom curriculum to an online world in a matter of weeks.

As opposed to spending dozens of hours debating the specifics of health care, the school calendar and salary schedules, union members decided it was best to put contract negotiations on hold until next year so they can focus on the best ways to educate students in the coming months, SMMCTA president Sarah Braff said Friday.

"'Interest Based' bargaining is a time consuming process, so our members chose to invest that time improving distance and/or in-class learning," Braff said. "We thank the district for their cooperation and are eager to get to work helping kids learn."

SMMUSD's board of education approved the contract with a

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (JUNE 29)

There is a gleaming purpose pulling you forward. You're not thinking of you, only what's best for the whole. In the way you live, work and conduct yourself, you will build solid foundations that will serve generations to come. In spite of your selflessness and modesty, you'll be often celebrated and awarded. Aries and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 30, 1, 19, 44 and 16.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Who would you be if certain limitations had not been in place to keep you pinned to a particular life tract? You'll get a glimpse of that, along with the reassurance that you, like most, are better for what you've had to overcome.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). In circles where the competition is ramped up and being cool is very important, there may not be a lot of genuine care being exchanged. It's fine as long as you know the difference and seek out the hearts that are like yours.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Normally, you would find it impossible to be happy when others are suffering in the world. But today's good feelings creep up on you. Shouldn't you just accept them? Someone should be happy. Why not you.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). In many ways, this is a life under water. Everything adjusts, constantly. Move, and you change the current. Voids are immediately filled. Everything gets traded for something else.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You'll find yourself playing games you didn't plan to play and strategizing when you'd rather be direct. This is a case of needing to participate in the fray before you can rise above it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You may prefer that people behave in a certain way, but you do not require this of them in order to earn your respect. You give your respect up front and then hope for the best.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). No matter how useful is a person, you're careful not to let their usefulness define them. People are not tools. They are valuable beyond what they provide. Your actions prove your belief in humanity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Even if the situation is not designed or assumed to be short-term, if you come at it as though it were only temporary, you'll appreciate, notice and remember it all better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You perform your good deed of the day in the usual way -- without hope of reward and in full understanding that the process you are furthering is not your own. It will feel terrific!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Often, it is the case that the pursuit of improvement does something but not quite enough. It's as though dwelling on the fix only affirms the brokenness of a thing. Acceptance is ultimately the key to change.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You may as well be on the floor of the stock exchange for all that you trade today. Whatever you value, you'll give it, and you'll accept something of equal or greater value in return.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Oscar Wilde said, "Morality is simply the attitude we adopt toward people we personally dislike." You'll prove your evolved spirit as you refrain from judgment or even opinion and simply focus elsewhere.

CITY OF SANTA MONICA
Ordinance Number 2641 (CCS)
(City Council Series

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SANTA MONICA AMENDING SANTA MONICA MUNICIPAL CODE SECTION 11.04.120 TO PLACE A CANDIDATE'S STATEMENT OF QUALIFICATION IN THE COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES'S OFFICAL SAMPLE BALLOT AND TRANSFER COSTS FOR A CANDIDATE'S STATEMENT TO THE CANDIDATE

The following is a summary of Ordinance Number 2641 (CCS) prepared by the Office of the City Attorney:

California Election Code Section 13307 allows candidates to prepare a written statement of qualifications and requires the City Clerk to distribute these candidate statements to voters and provide a Spanish translation of the statement to candidates wishing to have one. eventually turned the board, so after that I started to feel more confident and gain momentum."

Nearly 20 moves later, Asaria said "I had somehow managed to checkmate him. I immediately leapt out of my chair and sprinted down the hall to tell my dad about my cunning trickery and my undeserving win," and when he returned to the computer he was met with a stern message from organizers about his squealing noises.

"This game was a refreshing reminder of one of the important life lessons I plan to take from chess into college and beyond," Asaria said. "And that is to never give up even in the most hopeless of situations."

And while Asaria said he doesn't intend to play professionally in the future, the 18-year-old does plan to continue to give back to the community through the different nonprofit tournaments he holds with the I-CERV organization and the Aga Khan Youth and Sports Board.

I've realized chess lessons and opportunities can be expensive but I don't want financial status to hinder any student from reaching their potential," Asaria added. "That's why I am planning to partake in a national initiative with the Aga Khan Education Board/Youth and Sports Board to virtually teach free chess classes to Ismaili Muslim kids around the country to try inspire hope, happiness, and learning during these tough times."

The language of the contract, which can be seen online at bit.ly/3dE7rH4, remains mostly the same and will be in effect until through June 30, 2021. members elected at-large could continue to hold their seats past August 15, 2019. However an appeal was filed by city attorneys temporarily preserving the status quo.

The two sides are set to make oral arguments to the court of appeal Tuesday.

Either party can seek review by the California Supreme Court if they disagree with the court's decision.

Both sides are hopeful the judge will issue a ruling by early July and in May 2019, the court gave the city of Santa Monica calendar preference to expedite briefing and argument in order to facilitate a November 2020 Council election.

"The calendar preference called for the appellate decision by July 10, 2020," Farrell said.

She said members of the public who wish to access Tuesday's arguments via live-streaming on the Court's website can do so by visiting: courts.ca.gov/2dca.htm. The public will be able to see and/or hear the court proceeding in the same manner as the participants and will have a similar experience to sitting in the courtroom gallery.

Standard court rules, including the general prohibition against photographing, recording, and rebroadcasting of court proceedings (including those held by telephone or videoconference) are still in effect.

Passing Through the Pico Neighborhood

Dairy-Free Living with Chef Jahrid

Chef Jahrid created a date night for his parents, Barry and Kera.

This month, our Chef Jahrid Longsworth, a resident of the Pico neighborhood and a middle school student, decided to share the surprise he gave to his parents on Mother's Day. He thought some teens may want to try it for their parents on Father's Day or any night to make it memorable.

Jahrid got the idea to surprise his parents with a "date night." He asked them to dress up to attend a special dinner served on their patio, where he played music and served a menu featuring his best dishes.

Jahrid explains, "I did it because I wanted to give my parents a time to relax and enjoy each other. I heard them talking about missing date nights so I wanted to give them a date night at home. I knew they needed to relax and have a good time.

"I started by telling my mom that she could not leave her room. If she would just trust me, I would plan the meal for that night. I then texted my dad from my mom's phone telling him that my mom has an amazing night planned for him, but he had to dress up and wear a suit. I then transformed the patio into a romantic restaurant for two.

"The meals I was honestly not sure about, but knew I was serving pizza. Everything else I created as I needed it. I served a four-course meal consisting of chips and salsa for the appetizer, a Mediterranean salad, pizza, and for dessert, cookies with melted chocolate on top and some oreo cookie crumbles all around."

His mom, Kera said, "Jahrid itemized the menu on the check and where it said Total, he wrote, No Charge. But, Jahrid added, I need you both to sign the bill confirming that you will continue to love each other and make each other happy until death."

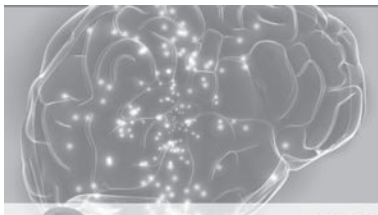

Jahrid explained that, "The gift of it is my parents need to always be there in difficult times, in sickness and in health, and in anger and sadness."

He added that he was not one to plan far ahead. Our chef gains his inspirations through daily life.

Chef Jahrid gets ready to serve a delicious four-course meal.

Reflections From The East

Pandemic Pledge: Live up to the Challenge

By Qin Sun Stubis

These days, doing chores as simple as grocery shopping or picking up your monthly medicine at the pharmacy can be quite daunting tasks, especially if you're elderly or immune compromised. We can probably count hundreds of ways the pandemic has changed our lives, no matter who we are and where we may be, whether a child in New York City or a farmer in Idaho.

For a few months now, COVID-19 has disrupted our lives. With various levels of quarantine and "stay-at-home" orders still in place, Americans are getting "cabin fever," a phenomenon normally reserved only for frigid winter days.

This virus has tested our patience, forcing us to become isolated, unsocial creatures. It is against our nature to burrow away for months on end, eating, sleeping, working, studying, exercising, and relaxing in the same space. So, it is no surprise that our impatience and agitation have reached a high point: When will all this be over? When will we finally be able to reclaim our freedom?

We can sometimes forget that right now, our world is infested with a lethal, vicious virus, invisible to our naked, naive eyes. Since we cannot see it, we often don't see the mortal danger we're facing, unknowingly surrendering ourselves as prey to a hungry, merciless pestilence in pursuit of victims.

Sometimes I wish that the coronavirus could manifest itself in the form of a giant, scary alien with bloody-red tentacles, growling as it roams down our neighborhood streets, for the physical sight of an approaching monster would surely persuade us all to hunker down and save lives.

Before we moan and groan about missing haircuts and restaurant meals, we have to remind ourselves that many of our fellow Americans have lost their lives during the last few months because of the deadly virus, and many front-line workers are still risking theirs to take care of us and keep us safe.

When we get tired of staying home, eating at the same table and pacing the same floor, we may want to channel our restlessness into helping those who have lost their jobs and are worrying about losing their homes or putting food on their tables. After all, compassion is our proud old American tradition, a perfect remedy to absorb our excess energy and put it to good use.

This pandemic is a serious health and economic crisis. We're battling a new, invasive and deadly enemy. For that, 2020 will be forever remembered as an epic time when our lives and livelihoods were threatened. How we fight back and what we do will directly affect the future of our world. So, let's take a pledge to do our part and live up to the challenge.

Community Service

Wrapping Up a Great Year with the Rotary Club of Santa Monica

By Sharon Gavin
President

The official Rotary Year concludes at the end of June. It's been an honor and a privilege to serve as the club's president. The theme of my year was "Connections," and I am proud to say that we have fulfilled this aspect on so many fronts. We have connected to our community by providing about $150,000 to local causes, in addition to over 700 hours of hands-on service to help those in need.

From delivering meals to seniors with Meals on Wheels West to painting an apartment complex for Safe Place for Youth to building homes with Habitat for Humanity to speaking to the teens at the Boys & Girls Clubs of Santa Monica, our Rotarians came out in force to live our motto "Service Above Self."

We have connected to the world by donating almost $160,000 to international causes that have resulted in bringing clean water to villages in Oaxaca, new medical equipment to a hospital in Oaxaca, and shelter for people around the globe. We have connected to other Rotary Clubs with joint service projects and socials, and we have strengthened our connections to each other.

From our weekly meetings that featured experts presenting subjects including medicine, technology, veterans, music, art, wildlife conservation, the Santa Monica community, and other countries, to our fun happy hours, parties, and healthy living excursions, our Rotarians continue to support each other personally and professionally.

And, when the world was confronted with the COVID-19 pandemic, we rose to the challenge. We transitioned seamlessly to a virtual world with virtual meetings, socials, and classes, and continued to serve our community through hands-on service activities and extra grants to the local non-profits on the front lines of the crisis.

As the new Rotary Year begins, our club will continue to make a positive difference in the lives of each of our members, in our local community, and in the world. If you are interested in learning more about the Rotary Club of Santa Monica, please contact Savi at rotaryclubofsantamonica@verizon.net or visit our website at rotaryclubofsantamonica.org.

From Me to You...

By Diane Margolin

When I first moved to Santa Monica, I became involved in a few community organizations. I have been a member of the Rotary Club of Santa Monica for about 30 years. Years ago I worked in Community Relations in the Santa Monica Police Department. We worked with schools on crime prevention programs and created materials for the students and newsletters for the community. We ran a program called Westside Safe Rides where students could call on the weekends if they needed a ride because they did not feel comfortable driving home from a party.

The Santa Monica Chamber offered many opportunities to meet other business owners. Being on the board of a non-profit such as the YMCA or the college was another opportunity to meet more new people.

Each time you worked on a special project, you usually made more friends. This past month, Susan Potter, a dear friend, and her husband Pat contracted the coronavirus and were in our local hospitals. They are very active in our community. I received calls from several friends of ours asking how they were doing. Some emailed, others called. Finally, we were able to reach a relative, and we began receiving daily updates.

At that time, I felt an overwhelming sense of being a part of this incredibly caring community of Santa Monica. We would forward emails to those who had computers and I would call those who didn't.

Susan, who thankfully is now home from the hospital, said she was aware of the prayers and concerns of her friends, even though she couldn't see or talk to us. She and Pat are still dealing with some of the characteristics of the virus we have heard about. But, as they are getting stronger each day, they feel the love of their friends who live and work around them.

Please be sure to wear masks and honor social distancing. You are protecting yourself and those around you.

Thoughts From a Second-Time Father

Toys Become More Fun for Adults as Their Kids Get Older

By Michael Margolin

Jake has just turned four, and Alexa's seventh birthday is right around the corner. Generally, I do not feel like there are a lot of things that remind me that I am getting older.

I am only about to turn 41, and I am blessed with good health, and as far as I can tell, I have good coverage on my head. I say as far as I can tell, because I have had my head shaved for the last 20 years or so. But, Jake turning four years old came with an unanticipated example of how our kids are getting older. It had to do with the gifts Jake received.

Alexa has not been given little kid toys in a while. What I mean to say is that for several years, she has not received Playskool-type toys or toys that are given to children still trying to figure out what sound the cow makes.

Now, Jake is in Alexa's category. Just looking at the gifts he received, it is blatantly obvious that we do not have infants or toddlers anymore. I find the gifts that Jake got for his birthday to be much more fun to play with! We are building rockets and racing cars and making super bouncy balls! I KNOW what sound the cow makes. I had never made a bouncy ball before.

At the end of the day, I found myself reflecting on how this is a new stage. A stage we are lucky to be in, and another one to get used to.

Jake's birthday fell on Mother's Day. The next time it falls on the second Sunday in May it will be for his 10th birthday. Chances are that one will be much different than his fourth.

Since nobody is really having a normal birthday party, we arranged for family and friends to drive by and shout Happy Birthday to acknowledge our little man's big day. We had about 10 to 12 cars participate. A lot of them were filled with friends I have had for more than 30 years with their wives and kids.

It reminds me of how thankful I am to have surrounded myself with such good people. The importance of these special friendships is something I will always stress to my children. Because especially in times like this, we need to be reminded of the good that we have in our lives. Being able to see my friends' kids grow is special, too. The older they get, the more fun they become. I guess that goes for the toys as well.

Michael Margolin is the father of two young children. He is an avid sports fan and a soccer coach on Alexa's team.

Downtown Business Owner Express Appreciation

As the owner of a small family-run business in downtown Santa Monica for 75 years, I was so impressed by the kindness and caring shown by members of our local community after the devastation we all experienced on Sunday, May 31.

On Monday, June 1, in the early morning, I saw so many volunteers wearing masks and gloves sweeping up broken glass with their brooms and dumping it into the giant trash bags they had brought. Others were repainting over the graffiti left by the looters.

I felt the love and spirit of community exhibited by those who came to help clean up. You are all appreciated more than you can imagine. Thank you so much for your time and dedication.
