THE LONG WEEKEND COMES TO AN END ISSUE

PATRIOTS ON PARADE

Thousands of Santa Monicans ignored, or at least tolerated, the July heat to attend the annual Independence Day Parade on Main Street. The event is organized by the Ocean Park Association but was enjoyed by residents from all over the city. The theme of 'May the 4th Be With You' added a sci-fi element to some floats while others stuck with traditional patriotic motifs.

SM City Council to consider affordable housing ballot measure

BY DAVID MARK SIMPSON
Daily Press Staff Writer

CITY HALL It's ballot measure madness! Council will review a trifecta of ballot measures on Tuesday.

One, written about previously in the Daily Press, is designed to compete with an aviation community-backed measure and protect council's control over the Santa Monica Airport. Another would raise the fees paid to the Rent Control Board. And then there's the measure designed to fund affordable housing for years to come.

Voters may get a chance to triple City Hall's take on properties sold for $1 million or more. Currently, City Hall makes $3 for every $1,000 worth of property sold.

Council will consider a ballot measure that would increase that revenue to $9 for every $1,000 on million dollar properties.

The revenues, if agreed upon by the voters, could be set aside to fund affordable housing projects. With the dissolution of the redevelopment agency in 2012 - a move meant to plug a state budget gap - affordable housing took a big hit.

The real estate transfer tax could generate between $4 million and $10.2 million each year (the wide range in the estimate is due to the volatility of the real estate market).

City Hall commissioned a poll of residents and found that a simple majority would support a real estate transfer

MINI dealership on the table Tuesday

BY DAVID MARK SIMPSON
Daily Press Staff Writer

CITY HALL City Council will consider approving a MINI dealership on the corner of Santa Monica Boulevard at 14th Street.

The 33,400-square-foot, 35-foot-tall building would replace a vacant lot that was once a gas station.

The dealership would also include a 500-square-foot café, 21 services bays, 6,000 square feet of sales floor and offices, and 135 parking spaces in an enclosed surface lot and a two-level subterranean parking garage.

The dealership would generate about half a million dollars in sales tax annually for City Hall.

"The proposed automotive dealership use would result in substantial positive fiscal impact to the City from annual tax revenues and opportunities for local employment," city officials said in their report on the project.

The façade of the proposed building would be made primarily of black metal panels with a few bright accent colors: yellow, green, and red.

An upside-down yellow MINI would hang on the ceiling of the café. A cream-colored MINI would face downward on the outside of the building, mounted on an image of the flag of the United Kingdom. City planners call these features "the uniqueness of the building."

The café, which would be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday, is considered one of the community benefits. Another is a local hiring provision proposed to facilitate the employment of local workers.

Developers would give City Hall $189,425 for "transportation infrastructure improvements" and another $20,000 to the Historic Preservation Fund.

An environmental impact report found that construction-related groundborne vibration would be "significant and unavoidable" for nearby residents.

"The primary means to reduce construction vibration is to increase the distance between the equipment that generates the vibration and the sensitive receptor," the report said. "This measure was deemed infeasible as construction activity (e.g., excavation) must occur up to the property line. Another potential mitigation measure is the use of trenching; however, this option is infeasible because the project's building envelopes extend to the property line."

'Transformers' tops 'Tammy' on weak July 4 weekend

JAKE COYLE
AP Film Writer

NEW YORK The Fourth of July went off like a dud at the box office, as the Michael Bay sequel "Transformers: Age of Extinction" and the Melisa McCarthy comedy "Tammy" led the weakest summer holiday weekend in at least a decade.

The North American box office was down a whopping 44 percent over the July Fourth weekend last year, when "Despicable Me 2" and "The Lone Ranger" opened.

This weekend sputtered not because of an oversized bomb like "The Lone Ranger," but because of numerous factors, including that Hollywood simply didn't aim for big fireworks this year. The holdover "Transformers" led all films with an estimated $36.4 million, while "Tammy" had a below expectations Friday-to-Sunday haul of $21.2 million.

"This ranks as one of the lowest Fourth of Julys ever," said Paul Dergarabedian, senior media analyst for box-office tracker Rentrak. "We always think of Fourth of July being a big weekend. This year, we just have to lick our wounds and look forward to 'Planet of the Apes' and some other films to get us back on track."

Paramount's "Transformers," the fourth in the series, opened the weekend prior to the year's biggest debut with $100 million. The movie, with a rebooted cast led by Mark Wahlberg, dropped considerably (63 percent) in its second week of release despite relatively little competition.

Overseas, "Age of Extinction" is performing exceptionally well. It added $95.8 million

The Fourth of July means something Editor:

She grew up in Poland under strict Soviet domination.

As a child in Wadowice, a small town outside of Krakow, she would sit outside and look up at the jet trails of planes 30,000 ft overhead. She imagined the faces of the people sitting inside and wondered if they were going to America.

"I wanted to one day be in one of those planes and I wondered what was in the thoughts of those people up there." That was a dream.

But reality for her was trying to keep a single pair of shoes useable for a year until being considered for another government-issued coupon for a new pair. Like all little girls in Wadowice, she had to take the shoes that were handed out. They never fit. If the shoes were too big, cotton was stuffed into the toes. If they were too small, her toes were crammed inside and the pain was tolerated one way or another.

Reality was also the daily songs and recitations of allegiance to a Soviet power.

But it's hard to kill the dreams of little girls.

On June 27, 2012, the L.A. convention center was transformed into a U.S. District Court where I spent the day watching that little girl from Wadowice, one of my best friends, stand before the judge.

The day began early as Dagmara and 4,485 other people stood anxiously. Dagmara waited to sing a different song and recite a different oath of allegiance. Finally, the judge's gavel hit the podium and she heard him declare "You are now a citizen of the United States. Welcome to America."

Two large screens displayed a music video of the song, "Proud To Be An American." And then there was that signature-wide smile of President Obama, welcoming them and encouraging them to engage and participate in the freedoms of our country.

Dagmara grew up very poor, but she's proud of her family, her home and her native country. But dreams die hard. "If you would tell me that one day I would sit in one of those planes and leave my Poland and come to America I would say 'No, how I will ever get to that America? That is only big dream.' But if you would tell me that one day I could stand here and even become an American...I never believe such a thing! How that could ever happen to me?"

What it took for her to get from there-and-then to here-and-now is another story few American-born people could ever imagine.

She sacrificed everything. She arrived here not knowing how to speak English. She worked hard. She earned a college degree from a very prestigious art school.

2012 was a big year for the little girl from Wadowice. She was accepted into Local 600, the Cinematographers Guild. And she became a citizen of the United States of America.

It's hard to kill the dreams of little girls.

Biting the hand that feeds you

OSCAR DE LA TORRE IS HIS OWN worst enemy.

At issue was the funding of the embattled Pico Youth and Family Center that de la Torre founded and ran until last year when serious errors in bookkeeping forced him to temporarily step back as the organization's Director.

Concerns about administrative issues at the PYFC were heard at the June 24 Council meeting that resulted in a $35,000 cut in its funding for the 2014/2015 fiscal year. Council approved $190,000 rather than the $225,000 annual grant because, according to City Manager Rod Gould, City Hall hadn't been able to verify "finances or outcomes" with the PYFC.

According to an article in the June 28 Santa Monica Daily Press ("PYFC, City Hall still at odds," Pg. 1), Gould called reporting and administration at the PYFC "a chronic and ongoing problem."

This newspaper reported that "A 2011 audit from City Hall revealed nearly $30,000 in grant money was missing from the organization. De la Torre, who is also a member of the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District Board of Education, claims that the discrepancy has been rectified and was a fault of the bank, not the organization."

"Rod Gould wants to point at the PYFC and say that we have administrative issues but makes no mention of the errors that he's made," de la Torre said. "Look what we've done for the community. What has he done to fight gang violence? What has he done to send kids to college?"

De la Torre noted that Gould, whose 2012 salary was nearly $353,000, takes more public dollars than the PYFC. "He's the biggest welfare mom in the city of Santa Monica," de la Torre said. Ouch!

De la Torre told the Daily Press that Gould's complaint about PYFC's administrative issues was "hypocritical." He dissed Gould for his own recent problems including hiring and firing of a public relations person and a planning map where residential properties were labeled as commercial.

A number of councilpersons told folks at the Virginia Park Branch Library opening and Celebrate America events a week ago that his statements were out of line and they wouldn't have voted for PYFC funding if they'd heard them before the vote.

Someone should tell the feisty de la Torre that you get more with honey than vinegar.

Rumors are that de la Torre, whose term on school board expires this November, has decided to run for City Council. He's supposedly signed up numerous new Santa Monica for Renters' Rights (SMRR) members who are pledged to endorse him at the Annual SMRR convention Sunday, August 3.

SMRR's endorsement is a "must" for anybody seeking public office as the organization dominates local politics.

BOZO ON A BIKE

A friend was behind the wheel last

Monday morning. We were driving north on 14th Street when a bearded, adult, male bicyclist in his mid-40's zooms through the stop sign on California directly in front of us.

The Bozo on the bike had to be doing 25 or 30 mph and never attempted to stop.

My friend jammed the brakes and honked his horn. This elicited the usual F-bombs and middle finger from the doofus as he rode westbound.

We both yelled back. The jerk came to a screeching halt and taunted us as if he thought we were going to hang a U-turn and go after him. We didn't and continued our journey.

Reckless biking is a particular problem on California between 17th Street and Lincoln where the street is wide and traffic is sparse. The stunt rider that cut us off went from idiot to Ahole in a few seconds.

It's time to start licensing bicycles and those who ride them. And, how about a tax on bicycles when purchased to help pay for the millions of dollars being spent on special bike lanes and "safe streets?" Time to end free rides.

NEW BUS STOPS SUCK

I noted in this space about being passed up by the Big Blue Bus on Montana and Euclid Street a few weeks ago. It turns out the bus stop was closed for renovation - a process that seemed to be taking longer to complete than the building of the Panama Canal. It's one of some 200 new, system-wide, state-of-the art, BBB stops.

I'd like to report that they are just the ticket for Blue's riders, but I can't. Described as "bar stools with parasols," at Montana and 17th Street, for example, they feature two round seats that are uncomfortably small. Their solid, textured surfaces retain heat in the sunlight and take forever to dry when wet. And, dirt or other liquid stains are difficult to clean.

Round, overhead canopies are also too small and don't provide protection from sun or rain. Seating is placed so that the canopy support post blocks views of the street and oncoming buses unless you lean far forward or backward.

Nearby, are cheap-looking, trash/recycling containers whose openings are so small that they're difficult to use unless you carefully place items into the openings. How many kids are going to bother? At some locations, containers are yards from the actual stops.

Lastly, Big Blue failed to install digital readouts at most stops so riders still don't know when (or if) the next bus will arrive.

I don't know who is responsible for these, but they're obviously designed to discourage ridership. Didn't anyone build or test a prototype? At a cost of around $7-million, they're an unmitigated failure. Bring back our old benches.

Sheriff, feds: Rancher must be held accountable

MARTIN GRIFFITH
Associated Press

RENO, Nev. U.S. Bureau of Land Management officials say they agree with a Nevada sheriff's position that rancher Cliven Bundy must be held accountable for his role in an April standoff between his supporters and the federal agency.

Clark County Sheriff Doug Gillespie said Bundy crossed the line when he allowed states' rights supporters, including self-proclaimed militia members, onto his property to aim guns at police.

"If you step over that line, there are consequences to those actions," Gillespie told the Las Vegas Review-Journal. "And I believe they stepped over that line. No doubt about it. They need to be held accountable for it."

Bureau spokeswoman Celia Boddington, in a statement released Saturday to The Associated Press, said the agency continues to pursue the matter "aggressively through the legal system."

"There is an ongoing investigation and we are working diligently to ensure that those who broke the law are held accountable," she said, declining to elaborate.

The FBI declined comment Saturday on its investigation. Bundy did not respond to a request for comment.

The Bureau of Land Management says Bundy owes over $1 million in fees and penalties for trespassing on federal property without a permit over 20 years. Bundy, whose ancestors settled in the area in the late 1800s, refuses to acknowledge federal authority on public lands.

A federal judge in Las Vegas first ordered Bundy in 1998 to remove "trespass cattle" from land the bureau declared a refuge for the endangered desert tortoise. Bureau officials obtained court orders last year allowing the roundup.

Boddington disputed Gillespie's contention the agency mishandled the roundup of Bundy's cattle 80 miles northeast of Las Vegas.

The bureau backed down during the showdown with Bundy and his armed supporters, citing safety concerns, and released some 380 Bundy cattle collected during a weeklong operation from a vast arid range half the size of the state of Delaware.

Gillespie blamed the bureau for escalating the conflict and ignoring his advice to delay the roundup after he had a confrontational meeting with Bundy's children a few weeks before it began.

"I came back from that saying, 'This is not the time to do this,'" the sheriff told the Review-Journal. "They said, 'We do this all the time. We know what we're doing. We hear what you're saying, but we're moving forward.'"

Tensions further escalated early in the roundup after a video showed one of Bundy's sons being stunned with a Taser. The video drew militia members and others to Bundy's ranch.

Bundy was not a hardened criminal, Gillespie told the newspaper. He was a rancher who stopped paying his fees, the sheriff said, and that was not worth risking violence.

But Boddington said the bureau planned and conducted the roundup in "full coordination" with Gillespie and his office.

"It is unfortunate that the sheriff is now attempting to rewrite the details of what occurred, including his claims that the BLM did not share accurate information," she said. "The sheriff encouraged the operation and promised to stand shoulder-to-shoulder with us as we enforced two recent federal court orders."

"Sadly, he backed out of his commitment shortly before the operation - and after months of joint planning - leaving the BLM and the National Park Service to handle the crowd control that the sheriff previously committed to handling," she added.

The Q-Line

Stop or not?

The Big Blue Bus has installed new stops that don't seem to be working out for some people.

So, this week's Q-Line question asks:
Do you like the modern new stops and if you don't why?

YOU'D BE SURPRISED: Exposure to certain chemicals collectively known as 'obesogens' may be contributing to the growing obesity epidemic, because exposure has been shown to interfere with the way we metabolize fat. Culprits include some pharmaceuticals, including antidepressants, as well as nicotine, many household cleaning products and air fresheners.

Obesity in the details

Dear EarthTalk:

I've heard that, above and beyond our bad eating and lifestyle habits, some chemicals in everyday products are contributing to the obesity problem. Can you explain?

Alyssa Israel

Fairfield, Conn

OBESITY IS A HUGE PROBLEM IN THE U.S. and other industrialized countries. According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, obesity rates have doubled for American adults and tripled for kids and teenagers aged six through 19 since 1980. Today, 31 percent of American adults and 15 percent of youngsters are classified as overweight.

The rise in obesity and related health problems like diabetes is usually attributed to an abundance of high-calorie food coupled with the trend toward a more sedentary lifestyle, but there is more to the story. A growing number of researchers believe that certain chemicals collectively known as "obesogens" may be a contributing factor to the growing obesity epidemic. Exposure to these chemicals has been shown to interfere with the way we metabolize fat, leading to obesity despite otherwise normal diet and exercise.

Bruce Blumberg, a biology professor at the University of California at Irvine, first coined the term "obesogen" in 2006 after discovering that certain tin-based compounds known as organotins predisposed lab mice to weight gain. In the intervening years, hundreds of research studies have found similar connections between weight gain in humans and exposure to organotins as well as several other common chemicals found in everyday consumer products, agricultural pesticides and even some drinking water.

The National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences (NIEHS) reports that as many as 20 synthetic chemicals—from the BPA in plastic food storage containers and the lining of cans to phthalates used in the manufacture of non-stick coatings to the parabens in many personal care products—have been shown to cause weight gain in humans, mostly from exposure in utero or as infants. These early effects can last a lifetime, permanently altering one's metabolic "set points" for gaining weight. "If you have more fat cells and propensity to make more fat cells, and if you eat the typical high-carbohydrate, high-fat diet we eat [in the U.S.], you probably will get fat," Blumberg tells the journal Environmental Health Perspectives.

Adult exposure to obesogens has also been shown to trigger weight gain and other endocrine issues while exacerbating the effects of earlier exposure. Certain pharmaceuticals (including some of the most commonly prescribed antidepressants) have been found to be particularly egregious in this regard. Meanwhile, nicotine, air fresheners and many household cleaning products also contain obesogens. Also, soybeans (consumed by both humans and the livestock we eat) contain a naturally occurring obesogen.

There may not be much we can do about the damage already done, but avoiding obesogens, whether from natural or synthetic, might be the best thing we can do to prevent making our obesity, hypertension, diabetes and other health problems that much worse. Says Blumberg: "Eat organic, filter water, minimize plastic in your life...If there's no benefit and some degree of risk, why expose yourself and your family?"

Of course, avoiding obesogens alone won't keep people from getting fat. Eating a nutritious diet and getting regular exercise are as important as ever to keep one's weight and overall health in check.

Bear conflict campaign kicks off with bear run-ins

SCOTT SONNER
Associated Press

RENO, Nev. — For better or worse, Mother Nature helped Nevada wildlife officials kick off a monthlong “bear awareness” campaign this week to combat danger on the roadways around Lake Tahoe and, more importantly, conflicts in neighborhoods with bad trash habits up and down the Sierra’s eastern front.

In the four days since Gov. Brian Sandoval declared July “BEAR Logic Month” on Tuesday, three troublesome black bears were captured and returned to the wild and a fourth was struck and killed by a car.

The latest to become a poster child in the campaign — unbeknownst to him — had been raiding garbage cans in the foothills of southwest Reno before game wardens trapped him Thursday and released him back to the Sierra on Friday.

Two others were returned to the wild near Carson City a day after their capture in Incline Village on Tahoe’s north shore on Tuesday, the same day a bear was hit by a car about 10 miles south near Spooner Summit.

“The bears quickly illustrated the reason why the special month to promote bear awareness in Nevada is needed,” Nevada Department of Wildlife spokesman Chris Healy said.

The BEAR in “BEAR Logic Month” stands for Bear Education, Aversion and Research. The campaign includes public service announcements and a new resource page on NDOW’s website: www.ndow.org/Bear.

With the latest death, 170 bears have been killed in Nevada by vehicles since 1997 — an average of 10 a year, NDOW said.

Of more concern are the so-called “garbage bears,” according to wildlife biologists who estimate nearly 95 percent of all human-bear conflicts are trash related.

Including the 170 hit by cars, NDOW has captured or otherwise handled more than 1,000 bears since 1997. Most are first-time offenders and released back to the wild, but at least 118 have been killed or euthanized as threats to public safety (84) or livestock (34), according to NDOW.

Wildlife experts have warned for months that this summer likely bring more trouble than usual. A 3-year-old drought has dried up many natural food sources and bears are expected to greatly expand their search for food.

Bear complaints in the Sierra have risen sharply over the past decade, partly because of an increase in people encroaching on bear habitat, said Carl Lackey, the state’s chief game biologist.

“Some people don’t recognize that they live in wildlife habitat,” he said. “But anywhere along the Carson Front — from Reno to Gardnerville — including the Tahoe Basin and associated mountain ranges is bear habitat.”

Between 500 and 700 black bears currently make Nevada home, part of a Sierra-wide population estimated between 10,000 and 15,000, NDOW officials said.

Bears naturally fear humans, but given access to human food sources they can become addicted, lose their fear and become aggressive, Lackey said. Their powerful sense of smell leads them to food humans consider out of reach, he said.

“As always the main issue is people living in bear habitat and allowing bear’s access to their trash,” he said. “We’ve proven that by stopping access to human sources of food the wildlife conflicts almost totally disappear.”

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria--enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms--that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our swimmers are happy.

For every dollar you spend with a local business, as much as 70 cents stays in the community.

increase. They also found that a simple majority would support funding for affordable housing. In order to increase taxes and set the cash aside in one measure, it would require support from two-thirds of the voters.

Because they lack a super majority, City

Hall is proposing two ballot measures: One that asks for the tax to be raised and another that asks, if the tax is raised, for the cash to be set aside for affordable housing.

If council agrees to the measures and both receive majority support from voters, City Hall will have its semi-consistent funding stream for affordable housing.

from 37 territories for a two-week world-wide gross of $575.6 million. It's set to soon become the highest grossing film ever in China, with already more than $200 million in box office sales. "Transformers 4" was partially shot in China, features local star Li Bingbing and premiered at the Shanghai Film Festival.

New Line's R-rated, Midwest road trip romp "Tammy" boasts one of the most bankable stars in movies — McCarthy — but is a smaller, homespun movie made for just $20 million and directed by McCarthy's husband, Ben Falcone. Despite being savaged by critics, the Warner Bros. release made $32.9 million in five days since opening Wednesday.

"Why the weekend was so weak in terms of competition is hard to tell," said Dan Fellman, head of domestic distribution for Warner Bros., who said he was very pleased with the performance of "Tammy." "It's just the way things fell."

The other new wide release was the horror flick "Deliver Us From Evil," which had no blockbuster ambitions. The Sony Screen Gems release, starring Eric Bana, opened in third with $9.5 million. Also debuting was Relativity Media's animated release "Earth to Echo," which took in $8.3 million.

Such movies are a far cry from the usual Independence Day fare, which has in the past included the opening weekends of "Spider-Man 2," "War of the Worlds," two earlier "Transformers" releases and, naturally, "Independence Day."

But this year's July Fourth fell on Friday, an already lucrative movie-going day, and thus did little to add incentive for blockbusters. The World Cup, too, may have scared off some big releases. Next week, Fox's "Dawn of the Planet of the Apes" is expected to be one of the summer's biggest hits.

The unusual holiday lull meant that for the first time this summer, a movie ("Transformers: Age of Extinction") held the top spot at the box office for two weeks in a row.

Estimated ticket sales for Friday through Sunday at U.S. and Canadian theaters, according to Rentrak. Where available, latest international numbers are also included. Final domestic figures will be released on Monday.

VISIT WITH A FRIEND CAPPY

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You might have a lot to think about, as a friend might express a little too much consideration for your comfort level. Your intuition comes into play. Could this person want to coax you in a certain direction? You might feel out of sync with others in general. Tonight: Togetherness.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Defer to others and see a situation for what it is. A loved one or partner could be aloof and touchy. Understand what is going on with this person. Conversations move forward, allowing you to gain insight. Tonight: Listen to others and what they want. Note what isn't said.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Be aware of others' needs and what they might require. Your feelings come forward, and you might be hesitant to pursue a certain path. Your sensitivity might be offended by another's request. Tonight: Stop at the gym.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You might want to understand more of what is motivating those around you. They might be coming from a place of negativity, but you can help them turn it around to a more positive attitude. Tap into your creativity. Tonight: Love blossoms.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ Make time for what you need and want to do. You might want to take a nap or have a discussion with a family member or roommate. Schedule time for a snooze or talk sometime during the day. Tonight: Mosey on home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Return calls while balancing other matters and errands. You could be quite touched by a comment from someone you respect. Be more aware of what is happening within your immediate circle. You might want to share your thoughts with a dear friend, loved one or partner. Tonight: Catch up on news with a friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Curb a need to be overly possessive and demanding. You want situations to take the twists and turns you would like. You can only create so much, as you only have so much control. Tonight: Be more direct.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You might go out of your way to ease another person's stress level. Your sensitivity to the moment and other people allows for greater give-and-take. Be sure you want to proceed in your present chosen direction. Tonight: What pleases you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You might want to see a situation move in a new direction -- think again. The ramifications and what you would need to do could be more than what you are willing to do. Investigate an unusually creative idea. Could it really work? Tonight: Get some extra R and R.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Zero in on an objective outlined in a meeting. You might have a surprising response to this goal. Discuss and debate all you need to in order to root out a problem. You find that the obligations are far more serious than you'd anticipated. Tonight: Visit with a friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ Notice that others look to you for advice and often admire your choices. Your unpredictability throws many people, as they don't understand you well. Often what looks irrational to others is highly logical. You have often thought out your seemingly "impulsive" actions. Tonight: Working late.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Read between the lines when someone makes what seems like an outrageous statement. Your feelings might be involved, making your detachment a must. Tonight: Make sure music is involved.

Monday, July 7, 2014

This year you manifest creativity and determination, though not necessarily together. If you are in an artistic field, you will see more acknowledgment for your work. If you are single, you are likely to have a very intense love life. You could be overwhelmed by many different potential sweeties. If you are attached, you might discover that you have a new addition to the house. For some people, it might be a baby; for others, it could be a puppy, a new roommate or some other change involving your home. Watch a tendency to overspend. You are very emotional and sometimes have difficulties with your mood swings. SCORPIO is also emotional like you, but does not reveal their feelings as easily.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ On dairy farms across the country, cows bizarrely queue up, without prodding, to milk themselves by submitting to $250,000 robots that have recently become the salvation of the industry. According to an April New York Times report, this advance appears to be "win-win" (except for migrant laborers watching choice jobs disappear) -- more efficient for the farmer and more pleasant for the cow, which -- constantly pregnant -- usually prefers frequent milking. Amazingly, cows have learned the drill, moseying up to the precise spot to engage the robot's arms for washing and nipple-cupping. The robots also yield copious data tracked from transponders worn around the cow's neck.

■ Argentinian agricultural scientists in 2008 created the "methane backpack" to collect the emissions of grazing cows (with a tube from the cow's rumen to the inflatable bag) in order to see how much of the world's greenhouse-gas problem was created by livestock. Having discovered that figure (it's 25-30 percent), the country's National Institute of Agricultural Technology announced recently that it will start storing the collected methane to convert it to energy. In a "proof of concept" hypothesis, it estimates that about 300 liters of methane could power a refrigerator for 24 hours.
