Newcomers win most votes in Wilmont vote

BY ASHLEY ARCHIBALD
Daily Press Staff Writer

MID-CITY Members of the Wilshire Montana Neighborhood Coalition gathered Saturday afternoon to count ballots in a contested election that may result in the ouster of two incumbent board members.

Of the 10 candidates that received votes in the election, the eight top vote getters were all part of a new coalition seeking to grab a majority of positions on the Wilmont board and received between 41 and 49 votes out of a total of 56 counted ballots.

The two incumbents, Benjamin Steers and Diane Krakauer, received 19 and 16 votes, respectively. If the votes stand, Krakauer will lose her place on the board.

The validity of the totals will remain in question until the votes are checked against membership roles for the organization, but the act of counting brings a measure of closure to a contentious process that has dragged on for over a month.

The winners are members of a coalition of 11 candidates that threw their hats in the ring to reclaim power from the existing board which, they felt, had governed the organization in secrecy as "their own private club."

Members complained that they could not

Santa Monican dishes about Hemingway's love of food

BY ASHLEY ARCHIBALD
Daily Press Staff Writer

MID-CITY The recipe calls for fillet of lion. The opening step — "First, obtain your lion" — might be the most challenging part of the meal.

If that particular cut of meat can't be found in the butcher section in your local grocery store, don't worry. Pork tenderloin or veal will do in a pinch.

At least that is what Santa Monican Craig Boreth will tell you if questioned about the recipe, which he tested for inclusion in a project that's part cookbook, part literary review and all homage to Ernest Hemingway, an early 20th century author known as much for his lusty appetite as his deft prose.

Boreth's creation, "The Hemingway Cookbook," embraces the author's passion for the culinary and traces both the meals he ate while traversing Europe, Latin America and Africa and those he wrote about in his books and articles, in which food appears to be as much a character as the people eating it.

"He lived this larger-than-life existence and epic journey all over the world eating and drinking all sorts of stuff, constantly," Boreth said. "And then in his writing, he uses food and drink all of the time to sit in the background, to set the scene and let you know little details about the character, place and season that you don't really get consciously."

The book first debuted in 1999, and fell out of print until this year when a resurgence of interest in Hemingway — the release of an HBO feature starring Nicole Kidman and Clive Owen and one of Woody Allen's recent films — caused Boreth's pub-

Lawmakers depart to prepare for fall election

DON THOMPSON
Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. California state lawmakers have adjourned for their summer recess after spending months unabashedly positioning themselves to their best competitive advantage going into the fall election campaign.

Democrats who control both the Senate and Assembly hammered through a state budget and protections for homeowners facing foreclosures, brushing aside Republicans' opposition.

They passed a law and delayed a controversial water bond to give top ballot position to a tax initiative backed by Democratic Gov. Jerry Brown, though the ballot engineering faces a legal challenge. Wealthy Los Angeles civil rights attorney Molly Munger argues in her lawsuit that the maneuvering means her own proposed tax increase to benefit schools may be lost in the clutter of 11 measures facing voters in November.

Outnumbered Republicans countered with impassioned floor speeches criticizing the budget as half-baked and the mortgage protections as a danger to California's fragile housing market. And they blasted union-backed Democrats for failing to rein in public employee pensions that Republicans say are bankrupting the state.

They left Sacramento last week after approving funds to begin construction of a high-speed rail connection between northern and southern California, with upgrades to urban mass transit systems. They acted despite polls showing the $68 billion project is increasingly unpopular with voters.

Legislators return from a monthlong vacation Aug. 6 to take up the pension debate and other legislation before adjourning for good on Aug. 31.

"I really believe we're beginning to build some momentum around here to carry it through to the end of session. That's what will maximize success in November," Senate President Pro Tem Darrell Steinberg, D-Sacramento, said as lawmakers prepared to leave town.

At stake in the election is the chance for Democrats to win a two-thirds super majority in the Senate, though they are expected to fall short

HE'S BACK: 'The Amazing Spider-Man' took home the weekend box office crown with $140 million in ticket sales.

Spidey swings back to action with $140M launch

DAVID GERMAIN
AP Movie Writer

LOS ANGELES Your new friendly neighborhood Spider-Man has spun himself a $65 million opening weekend and $140 million in his first six days at U.S. theaters.

Overseas, Sony's "The Amazing Spider-Man" added $129.1 million, raising its international total to $201.6 million and worldwide haul to $341.2 million since it began rolling out a week earlier in some foreign markets.

The movie started off as a smaller domestic moneymaker than the previous three Spidey films, but it laid to rest objections that it was too soon to relaunch the superhero franchise.

The new origin story for the Marvel Comics web-slinger comes just five years after "Spider-Man 3," Tobey Maguire and director Sam Raimi's final movie in a series that shattered box-office records.

"This was never modeled or was never meant to be 'Spider-Man 4.' This was always a relaunch with a new cast and different stories to tell, and quite frankly, it succeeded beyond our imaginations," said Rory Bruer, Sony's head of distribution.

The previous weekend's No. 1 film, Universal's teddy-bear comedy "Ted," fell to second-place with $32.6 million, raising its domestic total to $120.2 million.

Among new releases, Oliver Stone's drug-war thriller "Savages" opened at No. 4 with a solid $16.2 million weekend, also for Universal. Paramount's concert film "Katy Perry: Part of Me" failed to pack in the pop star's fans, debuting a distant No. 8 with just $7.2 million.

Going into wide release after two weekends in a handful of theaters, Woody Allen's ensemble romance "To Rome with Love" broke into the top-10 with $3.5 million. The Sony Pictures Classics release lifted its domestic total to $5.3 million.

"The Amazing Spider-Man" bumped up U.S. receipts, with Hollywood pulling in an estimated $200 million overall for the weekend, according to box-office tracker Hollywood.com. That's a 28.6 percent increase over the same weekend last year, when "Transformers: Dark of the Moon" led with $47.1 million in its second weekend.

Leading up to the domestic debut of "Amazing Spider-Man" last Tuesday, Hollywood had expectations of a six-day

Trying to be a good resident

Editor:

I just thought I'd let you know about my experience. I called the number mentioned in today's (and several earlier editions) of the Santa Monica Daily Press and got someone who had no idea what or where Santa Monica is.

Apparently the [city's hazardous waste pick up program] is run by a clearing house of some sort. After taking my address down, she told me to leave the electronic waste (several old light bulbs, many batteries, a few electric cords, and finally, some old ink jet cartridges) in front of the gate to our condominium complex. When I said some of the residents might find that upsetting, she suggested I leave the paper bags at the foot of the steps (assuming there were some, which there are). When I mentioned that there are children in our complex and I didn't think leaving hazardous waste outside by the steps or by the gate a particularly wise plan; no mention of a suggested date or time of pickup, I finally gave up.

When I called your office the receptionist said no one was available to talk with me and wanted to put me on hold while she tried to locate the director. Now, I don't know about you people, but my time is worth something to me. I no longer will accept the notion of being put on hold while some uninformed individual tries to locate someone to assist. Too many public and private organizations already waste our time this way. I left my telephone number, but I doubt I'll get a call back.

So, the first Saturday of every month to drop off my haz waste. I used to drop off hazardous materials at the Michigan Avenue Waste Station, but your time constraints, your not-so-workable pick-up plan leaves me with very little opportunity to be a good citizen.

No wonder so few people are conscientious about disposing of their hazardous waste – be it used oil, used paint, or other materials.

Disappointed Santa Monica homeowner.

City Hall is a spoil-sport

LAST WEEK'S FOURTH OF JULY parade on Main Street was very cool. My hat's off to the Ocean Park Association (OPA). This is now one of Santa Monica's great community events. Except for one problem.

City Hall is raining on OPA's parade when it charges $3 to park in the Civic Auditorium surface lot and Civic Center structure. Not counting visitors, thousands of residents donate their time and effort to pull off a wholesome, fun event. Unfortunately, City Hall's money-grabbing finance department leaves no good deed unpunished.

And, being that it was a holiday, you'd think there would be a human attendant at the Civic Center parking structure? Forgeddaboutit. Don't expect city bureaucrats to do something for us for a change.

When ready to exit city parking garages, customers pay for parking at what looks like a vending machine usually located in an underlit area well away from the vehicle exit.

After the parade, I finally located the ticket machine in a dark and gloomy corner of the Civic structure. I looked for instructions on how to pay — a process made doubly difficult because I didn't have reading glasses with me.

I may have put my credit card in the cash slot. I'm not to sure because it was all guess work. Nothing happened. I pushed "cancel." Parking ticket and credit card popped out. I repeated the process. Nothing. I pushed "cancel" and the ticket spit out, but no credit card. I reinserted the ticket. Again, nothing. Nada.

Another customer approaches. I said, "I think it ate my credit card." He asked if I pushed "cancel." I said, "Yes." He suggested pushing "cancel" again. I did and out popped the card.

I stepped aside and watched as he "cashed out" without any problem. Now, at least I knew what slots to use. I reinserted my parking ticket. It was rejected as "unreadable." Meanwhile, a previous customer pulled up in his car. "Still having problems," he asked?

"It can't read my ticket," I replied. He suggested taking it to the lone attendant at the Civic Auditorium lot. I left the structure, walked across the surface lot and I told the gentleman my tale of woe. "Pay $3," he says. "I'll give you a receipt. When you exit the structure, push the intercom button and tell the person answering that you have a receipt ..."

I returned to my car, drove to the exit booth and followed his instructions. The gate lifted and I drove into freedom, at last.

It would have been a great morning without the parking hassles. Comedian Larry David had a similar experience in a city-owned Downtown garage a couple months ago. It made national news and Santa Monica's garages cemented their reputation for being unwieldy and unfriendly. Apparently, nothing's changed.

L.A. Live's parking garages in downtown Los Angeles have the same machines only with lights mounted over them and small signs with half-inch high printed instructions on them that say, "Insert ticket and credit card here" and "Insert cash here," etc. No reading glasses necessary. Plus, they also have garage attendants if you have a problem. Now, that's the way it should be.

Even worse was Santa Monica College charging persons attending Woodlawn Cemetery's recent Memorial Day Service $5 to park on a holiday when campus parking is usually free. Unbelievable.

Had enough? City Council will probably dramatically increase much of the city's parking costs tomorrow night including Santa Monica Pier and street meter parking rates. Two hours of free Downtown parking may vanish, too.

What about "community service?" A myth like the unicorns.

LESS IS NOT MORE

Letter writer Jeffrey Calman, ("Faster than you think" July 4, Pg 4) took issue with my column the previous week about a proposed apartment project with no on-site parking. Big mistake, I explained because, "personal vehicles are overwhelmingly preferred for shopping and getting to and from work or school by 98 percent of the people in Santa Monica."

Calman wrote that the target market for the apartments planned for 401 Broadway is the new generation of young people called "millennials," who are using personal vehicles to a lesser degree than other age groups. He cited a Reuters news article that claimed annual vehicle miles traveled by young people ages 16 -34, "dropped 23 percent from 2001 to 2009." The implication was that "millennial" or "Gen Y" renters don't need parking as much. OK.

I'd still bet that 401 Broadway's leasing agents will target any demographic group willing to live in small, cramped, Downtown apartments without on-site parking. Calman's "millenials" are and will be a fraction of 401's potential tenant universe.

Governing.com published a 2010 US Census Bureau, American Community Survey study — "Means of transportation to work in more than 400 U.S. cities and towns," (16-year-old and older, 2000 to 2009).

Santa Monica, it reports, has 42,522 workers. 76.1 percent commute to work by car, truck or van, 2.5 percent by public transportation, 8.3 percent walk, 2.3 percent bicycle, one percent use taxi or motorcycle and 9.9 percent work at home. By comparison, Los Angeles has 1,706,116 workers, 77.1 percent commute by car, truck or van, 11.2 percent use public transportation, 3.6 percent walk to work, 0.9 percent bicycle, etc.

Apartment buildings without parking can't compete with buildings with parking especially when their rents are equal. It's why 401 Broadway is even less desirable and why "no parking" means competitive disadvantage (or lower rents) and therefore, no construction financing.

Boreth is a writer of a very different flavor than Hemingway. He creates books and products to bring men back into arenas often confined to women, like the kitchen with "The Hemingway Cookbook" or chocolate with his booze-infused "Twice the Vice" confections.

While Hemingway's lifestyle and prose often describe excess as a form of escapism, Boreth's work seeks to make things of top quality that provide profound satisfaction in the moment.

Still, the story of the author who hunted lions and was present as the wheels of history ground into Europe in World War I and Latin America during the Cuban revolution held a special fascination.

Hemingway first spoke to Boreth through his fiction. Boreth's father read him "The Old Man and the Sea" at a young age, a tradition he has since continued with his two sons, Azi and Eli.

For the next stages of Boreth's life, Hemingway always had something to offer. For the teenager, he described adventure and travels. Adults, weighed down more by time and responsibility, better appreciate Hemingway's darkness and ruminations on death.

"When you're in high school and college, you read it for the adventure," Boreth said. "Traveling around the world and debauchery, drinking, bull fighting, fishing and all this stuff. You get that there's some kind of concern about mortality and things like that going on, but you don't care."

In 1992, Boreth traveled to France and Spain with a friend, following the path Hemingway set down in his 1926 novel "A Sun Also Rises." At the time, he intended to make a Hemingway-inspired travel guide, pointing out the restaurants that Hemingway frequented as well as those that he referenced in his writings.

The book that emerged captures the essence of the original concept by exploring geographic space with old photographs of restaurants paired with choice quotations from Hemingway's works, but as Boreth traveled, the scope of the work morphed.

He met with the people leading famed restaurants that once served Hemingway and other American ex-pats. He coaxed ancient recipes from them, like the whole roast pig from Spain's Casa Botin that appears in the cookbook.

As the concept evolved, so did Boreth's research.

Boreth gleaned other recipes selected for the cookbook from Hemingway's famous works, like a chicken dinner described in his 1926 novel "A Sun Also Rises," and the obscure.

The recipe for fillet of lion came from a 1955 "Sports Illustrated" article on "fancy game" in which Hemingway's creation appeared next to the favorites of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Recreating recipes with less explicit instructions that appeared by name only in Hemingway's writings while ensuring authenticity required a visit to Harvard University's Radcliffe Library.

The library houses a section of historic cookbooks, allowing Boreth to say with certainty that the roast chicken recipe that appears in the book was one similar to that which Hemingway would have eaten in 1920s France.

Boreth tested out what recipes he could on family and friends, suffering through the tedious process of producing the French recipe crabe Mexicaine (pg. 55) — "It's just a major undertaking, and it's not that good" — and rejoicing in the rich flavors of trucha a la Navarra (pg. 84), trout cooked with bacon.

As Boreth discovered Hemingway's culinary leanings, he gained greater insight into the man himself.

The book required years of research in which Boreth delved into Hemingway's personal journals and crossed continents to follow the trail of a hard-living and hard-drinking man whose suicide in 1961 put an end to a deeply talented and tortured soul.

He came to know Hemingway intimately, as many people know only their best friends and closest family.

Maybe better.

Hemingway believed in the craft of writing, and he exercised that craft every day. He left behind a treasure trove of not only fiction, but journals, memorabilia covered in scrawled notes, menus from restaurants he visited and piles of old photographs.

It was a gift to Boreth as he searched through the collected works with the help of dedicated Hemingway scholars.

"You could probably assemble a description of just about every day of his life from the day he left for World War I to the day he died. You could probably almost figure out exactly where he was and at least a few details of almost every day. It's ridiculous," Boreth said.

Listening to Boreth speak about the man, one would think he had been his closest confidant.

He described Hemingway as "accident prone." The man shot himself in the leg by accident, pulled a light fixture down on his head in Paris — likely causing a concussion — and somehow survived two plane crashes.

He can recount the author's favorite brand of gin — Gordon's, if you must know — and what high school he graduated from. Despite all that, he's happy that he and Hemingway were separated by time and history.

IN DANGER: The International Union for Conservation of Nature considers some 664 species of reptiles, including turtles, snakes, lizards, alligators and crocodiles, as endangered or facing extinction. Pictured: A freshwater turtle destined for the pet trade.

Trouble with reptiles

Dear EarthTalk:

How are the world's reptile species faring in terms of population numbers and endangered status? What's being done, if anything, to help them?

– Vicky Desmond,
Troy, NY

The world's reptiles-turtles, snakes, lizards, alligators and crocodiles are indeed in trouble. The International Union for Conservation of Nature, which publishes an annual global roster of threatened and endangered species called the Red List, considers some 664 species of reptiles-representing more than 20 percent of known reptile species worldwide-as endangered or facing extinction. Meanwhile, the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service considers about 10 percent of American reptiles threatened or endangered.

Why care? The non-profit Center for Biological Diversity (CBD) considers reptiles "amazing creatures" with clever adaptations that have helped them survive for millions of years. CBD also points out that reptiles are valuable indicators of wider ecological health. "Because many reptile species are long-lived and relatively slow-moving, they suffer from disturbances like habitat loss or pollution for extended periods," the group reports, adding that a diverse community of reptiles living in a given area is evidence of a healthy ecosystem that can support the plant and animal life they and other species need for food and cover.

So what's causing the reptiles' decline? "While habitat loss is the most obvious cause of endangerment, declines are even even occurring in pristine areas from threats such as disease, UV radiation and climate change," reports CBD. Overcollecting and unregulated hunting also are taking a toll on reptile populations.

In order to help stem the tide of reptile loss, CBD leverages the court system to pressure the federal government to protect at-risk species. For instance, back in 2004 the group worked with the Coalition for Sonoran Desert Protection in filing a petition to add the Tucson shovel-nosed snake, which dwells in the quickly disappearing wild desert around fast-growing cities like Tucson and Phoenix, to the federal list of endangered species. Finally in 2011 the federal government agreed that it would add the snake to its list of endangered species which will help it get the habitat protection needed to ensure long term survival.

CBD also works on other fronts for reptiles. The group's campaign to outlaw "rattlesnake round-ups"-contests whereby hunters collect and kill as many snakes as they can in a year-has helped stem population declines of eastern diamondback rattlesnakes. And CBD's efforts to educate the public about the plight of freshwater turtles, which are "overcollected" for food and the pet trade in the southern and midwestern parts of the U.S., helped convince several states for the first time to regulate turtle harvests.

One way everyone can help reptile species in decline is to make our backyards friendly to them. The U.S. Geological Survey's Patuxent Wildlife Research Center offers tips on what to plant and how to arrange a landscape to encourage reptiles and other wildlife. Landowners that take these steps may be rewarded with fewer pests, given reptiles taste for large numbers of mosquitoes and other insects as well as small rodents. Other pro-reptile tips include driving carefully (road mortality is a big issue for snakes, turtles and other species) and keeping outside areas around your property free of garbage that might attract raccoons, crows and other pests that also prey on reptiles.

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

Expo Light Rail Line: Construction

Note the following activities:
1. Street parking: striping and signage: Starting Monday, July 9 through Friday, July 20, 2012: Work crews will install perpendicular striping on the side streets listed below. Construction activities include removing all current striping and markings, installing new striping and markings; installing, removing and/or relocating all parking related signage, meters, wheel stops, handicap ramps and curb paint.
• Seventh Street from Colorado Avenue to Olympic Boulevard
• Ninth, 10th, 12, Euclid , 15th and 16th streets from Colorado Avenue to Broadway
2. Sewer relocations: Please note the following partial street closures and after work. Expect daytime lane closures on Colorado and night work partial closure of Fifth Street and Colorado, and Seventh Street and Colorado from 9 p.m. – 6 a.m. this week.
3. Water main relocation on 20th Street: Work crews will be relocating an existing water line currently located underground at various points along the Expo right-of-way. Work is scheduled to start on July 1 on 20th Street between Olympic Boulevard and Colorado Avenue. Please note that only one northbound lane will be maintained on 20th Street between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m., expect delays. Noise levels will be monitored to ensure work performed is within the necessary compliance levels.
4. Centinela bridge: Majority of the work will take place in the city of Los Angeles right-of-way, with the west abutment being built within Santa Monica. Construction of the Centinela bridge will be implemented in stages. Initial stages include implementing controls to realign traffic lanes between Exposition and Olympic boulevards by restriping traffic lanes and placing k-rail (or concrete barriers) south of the Exposition right-of-way on the east and west sides of Centinela Avenue. Immediately behind the k-rail, abutment excavation will begin to prepare the area for the actual bridge construction. All construction activities will be limited to areas behind the k-rail.
5. Soil removal and grading within the Expo right-of-way: To start in Santa Monica on July 6. Expect additional truck activates on Centinela, Stewart and 26th streets.
6. South sidewalk is closed on Colorado between 14th and 16th streets: For more information about the Expo Line project, visit BuildExpo.org or call (213) 922-EXPO (3976).

20th/Cloverfield improvement project

Construction activities on 20th Street and Cloverfield Boulevard between the I-10 Freeway and Pico Boulevards include potholing, driveway reconstruction, irrigation line installation, curb ramp modification and street light pole foundation installation. Said work will involve lane closures. Traffic control will be in place during construction and will maintain one lane of traffic in each direction at all times. Left and right turn movements may be restricted at times. Please use alternate routes whenever possible. For more info, please contact Jim Litzel, Black & Veatch, (310) 863-4991.

Annual paving & sidewalk repair project

The contractor will be repairing sidewalks and performing striping work at various locations throughout the city. Striping locations: Pearl Street: 17th Street to east city limit, Ocean Park Boulevard: 23rd Street, Sixth Street from Colorado to Montana Avenue, Montana Avenue from Ocean Avenue to Seventh Street, and 14th Street from Wilshire Boulevard to Ashland. Work hours are 8 a.m. – 6 p.m. Impact to traffic should be minimal but partial closures of some travel lanes may be necessary at times. For more info, please contact Inspector Chuck Stagner, (714) 925-4628.

Advanced traffic management systems project

The contractor will be working on sidewalk restoration along Broadway at the intersections of 11th, 14th and 17th streets and will continue to work at Broadway and 26th Street setting the signal poles and traffic equipment, as well as installing traffic signal pull boxes at Arizona Avenue and Seventh Street, and Arizona Avenue and 11th Street, and potholing along Arizona from Ocean Avenue to 17th Street for the boring and pulling of fiber optic run. Impact to traffic should be minimal but partial and full lane closures may be necessary at times. All work will take place between the hours of 8 a.m. – 6 p.m. Questions may be directed to the project hotline at (866) 755-7679 and/or Glenn Paras, inspector, (714) 493-7017. For more info, visit www.SMConstructs.org.

Annual tree trimming

The annual tree trimming project will take place on Oak Street between 14th and 25th streets, and on Seventh Street between Wilshire Boulevard and Colorado Avenue. Temporary traffic control light boards, signs and cones will direct vehicular traffic in each direction to remaining lane. For more information, please visit www.santamonicatrees.com

2802 Pico Blvd.

There will be traffic lane and sidewalk closure on the east side of the street along 28th Street for the development of 33 affordable housing units. Please use sidewalk on the west side of 28th Street. For more information on this project, please contact Lee Castleberry, (310) 628-7486.

"I'm happy that I never met him, because invariably I probably should have been left with a sour taste in my mouth, even though it would have been interesting for a while," Boreth said. "He was really good at drawing people in, and then being horrible to them."

Hemingway was equally horrible to himself.

The vital man depicted in a photograph standing next to a fish as long as he is tall became a haunted, broken thing. His body was wasted by alcohol and his mind damaged by shock treatments used to treat the depression that ran in his family.

Given his physical and emotional state, his eventual suicide was "reasonable," Boreth said.

In Boreth's book, you will hear little of this. Instead, it spends time with a man, sometimes happy and sometimes sad, but who always found joy in food.

"As I ate the oysters with their strong taste of the sea and their faint metallic taste that cold white wine washed away, leaving only the sea taste and the succulent texture, and as I drank their cold liquid from each shell and washed it down with the crisp taste of the wine, I lost the empty feeling and began to be happy and to make plans." Hemingway, "A Moveable Feast."

total of around $120 million for the film by the end of Fourth of July weekend. That proved a conservative projection, but studio executives genuinely were uncertain how well the film might do so close on the heels of the previous "Spider-Man" series.

"To expect the kind of numbers the first 'Spider-Man' did or the second or third would have been kind of reaching," said Hollywood.com analyst Paul Dergarabedian. "For a reboot that people definitely were on the fence about initially, I think this is a really strong performance."

Raimi and Maguire's "Spider-Man" was the first movie to top $100 million in a single weekend, opening with $114.8 million in 2002. "Spider-Man 3" set a new weekend record with its $151.1 million debut, which has since been surpassed by such films as 2008's "The Dark Knight," last year's "Harry Potter" finale and the current record-holder, "The Avengers," with $207.4 million in May.

While it took more than a weekend for "The Amazing Spider-Man" to put up numbers comparable to the earlier Spidey flicks, the film has good reviews and fan reaction for the new cast and crew to build on in subsequent installments.

"With a film that is a relaunch like this, with a new cast, a new director, there are a lot of pieces. You have to prove yourself, just like 'Batman Begins' had to prove itself and went on to have such incredible success with 'Dark Knight,'" Sony's Bruer said. "This is a new trilogy and a new era of Spider-Man. We certainly have very much in our minds where it's going to go with the story arc. It's just going to be an incredible several years with this relaunch. We have a lot of great stories to tell."

Andrew Garfield stars as teen orphan Peter Parker, who becomes a vengeful vigilante and later an urban protector after the bite of a mutant spider gives him super strength, agility and senses. Marc Webb ("(500) Days of Summer") directed the film, which co-stars Emma Stone, Rhys Ifans, Sally Field and Martin Sheen.

"Amazing Spider-Man" had a price advantage over its predecessors. This was the first 3-D Spidey movie, earning 44 of total dominance in the Assembly. With two additional senators, Democrats would no longer need Republican support to approve tax increases, pass emergency legislation, reject the governor's vetoes or change Senate rules.

But Steinberg said the more important issue is persuading voters to approve Brown's proposal to avoid more deep state spending cuts by increasing the state income tax for seven years and sales tax for four years. And that requires convincing voters that government is reforming itself by passing on-time budgets, limiting wasteful spending and improving their lives. Steinberg said he doesn't believe funding the high-speed rail system will deter voters from supporting the tax increase.

State employee unions have gone along to the extent that most have accepted furloughs that will cut their hours and pay by nearly 5 percent this fiscal year. They want Brown's tax measure to pass, while they work to defeat another ballot measure that would limit their collection of payroll deductions for political purposes.

But they and Democratic lawmakers are balking at Brown's proposal to move workers to a hybrid pension system in which defined benefits are combined with a 401(k)-style plan commonly used in the private sector. They also want to ease Brown's plan to raise the retirement age by letting workers retire before age 67 at reduced pension rates.

Steinberg touted the Legislature's approval of the largest reshuffling of state agencies, boards and commissions in recent state history. Brown's reorganization will change the way the state oversees economic development, consumer services, housing, real estate and natural resources, among others. Aside from limiting pension abuses, lawmakers also plan to make it tougher to sue small businesses for violations of the Americans with Disabilities Act, cheaper to buy college textbooks, and to change the way high schools educate and evaluate students.

"Over time I think you will see renewed confidence in state government," Steinberg said after Democrats sent Brown a budget chock full of automatic cuts to school and university funding if voters fail to pass the governor's tax measure. A Field Poll released last week found that nearly three-quarters of voters dislike the looming trigger cuts.

Count political scientist Jack Pitney among the unconvinced.

"No Californian who draws breath can actually believe the Legislature is acting in the public interest," said Pitney, who teaches at Claremont McKenna College in Los Angeles County. "They're trying to avoid doing things that actually catch the public's attention or get them in trouble with interest groups. They realize there's no way they can attract a favorable image of the Legislature, but they can at least stay out of the public's mind."

Senate Minority Leader Bob Huff, R-Diamond Bar, also said Democrats' message won't wash, based in part on what he called "the crankiness of the electorate."

Republican legislative candidates have an advantage because they are seen as better business managers and proponents of limited government and jobs creation, he said.

"A lot of the stuff we do is inside baseball. The bottom line is the economy is still suffering, we have a budget that is predicated on taxes, and then there's this disingenuous play of whacking education if they don't pass," Huff said. "The people understand that we just have to live within our means. I think that's a message that will resonate."

percent of its domestic revenues from 3-D screenings, which cost a few dollars more than 2-D shows.

The film is the centerpiece of a huge superhero summer that started with "The Avengers" and continues with the July 20 debut of "The Dark Knight Rises," the finale of Christopher Nolan and Christian Bale's Batman trilogy.

Director Stone's "Savages" chronicles a bloody war between California marijuana growers and a merciless Mexican cartel trying to muscle into their business. The ensemble cast includes Salma Hayek, John Travolta, Benicio Del Toro, Blake Lively, Taylor Kitsch and Aaron Johnson.

Perry's "Part of Me" raised its domestic total to $10.3 million since opening Thursday. Her mix of 3-D stage show and backstage documentary was a bust compared to such concert hits as 2008's "Hannah Montana & Miley Cyrus: Best of Both Worlds Concert," which opened with $31.1 million, and last year's "Justin Bieber: Never Say Never," which premiered with $29.5 million.

"Part of Me" did not even live up to the 2009 dud "Jonas Brothers: The 3D Concert Experience," with a $12.5 million debut.

get copies of the organization's bylaws, and that they disagreed with positions the board took unilaterally on major developments in Santa Monica, particularly the massive remodel of the Fairmont Miramar Hotel.

The board signaled its support for that project without polling its membership, and members of the board also joined an independent organization called Friends of the Miramar.

The vote took place on Saturday, June 8 at Wilmont's annual meeting under a cloud. Marcia Carter, Wilmont's director of membership, had broken her hip just days before the meeting and was hospitalized.

The membership list, which is used to ensure that each ballot is cast by an eligible member of Wilmont, was on a series of cards locked away in her home, inaccessible.

Board chair Valerie Griffin attempted to cancel the vote, but a raucous crowd wrested control of the meeting from her and handed it to Wilmont co-chair Albin Gielicz, who took over the meeting and allowed the vote to go forward on a provisional basis.

Each person voted for nine candidates and placed their ballots in an envelope with their names on it so that their ballot could be checked against membership rolls at a later date.

Under the supervision of a member of the Santa Monica Police Department, the ballot box was sealed with tape, signed and given to Gielicz for safe keeping until the votes could be counted.

The box was later given to Zina Josephs, a member of the Friends of Sunset Park neighborhood group.

In the intervening weeks, the coalition of new candidates worked to piece together a membership list, first through unsuccessful efforts to get the official rolls from the incumbent board and then by soliciting proof of payment from people in Wilmont who had attended the annual meeting.

That still may disenfranchise many others who claim that they paid but either do not have proof or whose membership checks were never cashed.

They formed a list of approximately 30 names that had proven that they were members at the time that the ballots were cast.

Saturday afternoon, a group of three independent vote counters and around 20 members of Wilmont and other members of the public gathered for the official vote count, one month after the ballots were cast.

Lauren Murray, the assistant treasurer at law firm Latham & Watkins, former City Councilmember Kelly Olsen and attorney and mediator Carole Aragon were entrusted with the duty of opening each ballot, matching the name on the envelope to the approximate membership rolls and tallying the votes.

Each had been invited either directly or indirectly by Jeanne Dodson, one of the candidates running for the Wilmont board.

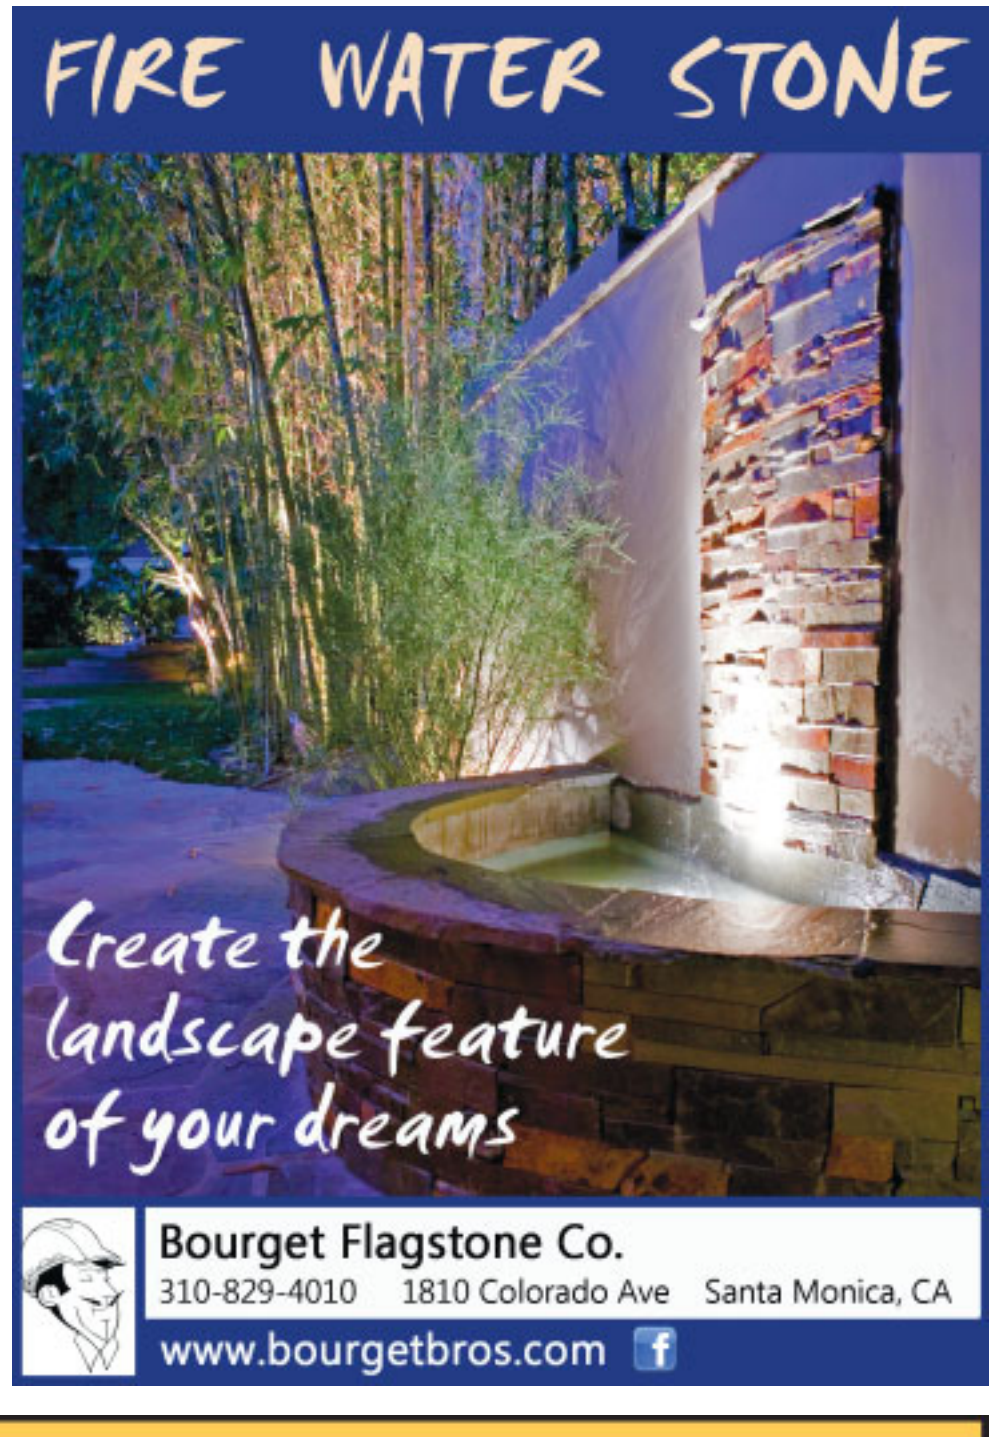

The totals may include ineligible voters, but those disputes will be a topic for another day, the counters concluded.

"Our job is not to do the vetting, we do the counting," Aragon said.

It is unclear if the existing board will accept the results of the vote, despite the precautions taken. Griffin did not return e-mails for comment prior to the count.

The candidates that claimed victory Saturday – Dodson, Robert Gurfield, Peter Heller, Jim Pickerell, Elizabeth Van Danburgh, Reinhard Kargil, Lenore Morrell and Alin Wall – will attend the next Wilmont board meeting, which they anticipate will be held July 16.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A–F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Keane helps Galaxy beat Fire, 2-0

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIDGEVIEW, Ill. Robbie Keane scored two goals on his 32nd birthday and the Los Angeles Galaxy beat the Chicago Fire 2-0 on Sunday.

Keane's second multigoal game of the season helped the Galaxy (7-10-2) snap a two-match losing streak, and extended the Fire's winless streak to two games (0-1-1).

Keane scored on a penalty kick in the 24th minute after Chicago defender Jalil Anibaba blocked a pass with his right hand at the edge of the penalty area.

He beat goalkeeper Sean Johnson again in the 78th minute, making the most of midfielder Landon Donovan's pinpoint pass. Donovan's feed allowed Keane to break open on the left side.

Keane celebrated the second score with a pair of somersaults.

The Fire (8-6-4) managed only three shots, all in the second half, as Galaxy goalkeeper Josh Saunders collected his third shutout of the season. Saunders made his best save on Chris Rolfe's low shot about a minute before Keane's last goal.

Los Angeles star David Beckham served a one-game suspension, imposed by the league office for kicking two balls at San Jose's Sam Cronin and subsequent involvement in a postgame scuffle with Cronin and other San Jose players on June 30. He also missed the Galaxy's match with Philadelphia on Wednesday because of the yellow cards awarded on the play.

Get some R&R, Taurus

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★★ A fiery moment could force you to regroup and make different plans. Your ability to put events in a positive light helps heal nearly any wound. A boss or elder could force your hand with a situation. As a result, you just might change your plans. Tonight: As you like it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Remember, you do not have to prove anything ... but you still may be tempted to throw yourself into a risk anyway. Be smart, sit back and observe. You often feel as if you need to say and do the appropriate thing. Tonight: Get some extra R and R.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Let go of a morning upset and a need to do something in a certain manner. You have a lot going for you, which becomes clear in a meeting. A power play could be quite frustrating. Don't get involved -- you will be much happier. Tonight: Where the people are.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Take charge. If you stumble upon a disagreement behind the scenes, do not get involved. The people who are involved are likely to let go of their snippiness, given time. A partner or loved one demands a change. Tonight: Till the wee hours.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You see what others don't. Don't try to open up someone's perspective when he or she is upset and can't seem to understand where you are coming from. Know when to back off and do your thing. Tonight: Adjust plans according to your energy level.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You easily could wake up on the wrong side of the bed. Dealing with a person you respect will get you past this bad morning mood. Check out an expenditure with care. Tonight: Treat a pal to dinner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ Don't say anything until you feel you have grasped the big picture. Listen to what is being shared, but recognize that others want your feedback and direction. Tonight: Steer clear of a controlling individual.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ You might want to rethink your anger before you express your frustration to someone. Open up to new possibilities and different ways of handling your irritation. If you find someone controlling, step out of this person's way. Tonight: Not to be found.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You might not expect the string of successes or excellent interactions that head in your direction. You could be doing something very different as a result. Understand that you are on a roll, as long as you do not get caught up in a power play. Tonight: Where the fun is.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ Take a stand, and handle a personal matter in a much different manner. Give up the need to control, yet put out what you want in a clear and direct way. Giving someone the choice might confuse him or her at first, but it will work out well in the long run. Tonight: A must appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Keep conversations moving. Opportunities knock on your door because of your wit and creativity. Others like to hang out with you. You might be making a judgment that is slowing you down. Tonight: Out and about.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You offer more than you realize, but you often undermine yourself. With someone harping in your ear, sometimes it is difficult to get a better sense of self. Choose an activity or indulgence that will help you claim your power. Tonight: Keep to your budget.

Happy birthday

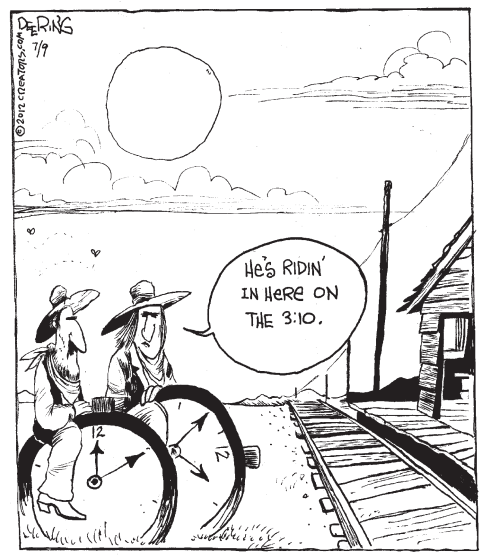

This year your ability to communicate comes through clearly. You will help others to better understand you, and you will understand them better as a result. You are likely to make a major purchase involving a car, computer and/or any item that facilitates communication. Learn to walk or exercise your tension away. If you are single, what you want and what you get could be quite different. Be aware of an inner mixed message that could be messing with your ability to relate. If you are attached, you also might express conflicting messages. Be open to this possibility. Your sweetie can help you identify it. ARIES always gets you charged up, perhaps more than need be!

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Big Fish: The U.S. Department of Justice has been widely criticized for failing to bring to fruition investigations of Wall Street traders' alleged lies (such as accusations that the firm MFS Global made bets on European bonds by illegally using clients' money, of which CEO Jon Corzine suspiciously professed to be unaware). However, in several notable instances, its investigators have been relentless -- for instance, prosecuting baseball's Roger Clemens for lying to Congress and, in January, indicting marine biologist Nancy Black, who faces 20 years in prison for allegedly lying to investigators about whether her crew might have illegally fed whales to attract their attention for a boatload of whale-watchers.

■ The government office in Liverpool, England, that takes applications for benefits from disabled persons acknowledged in March that it needed to relocate. The office's parking garage is 13 stories high, but that still requires visitors to climb two more flights of stairs from that level to reach the offices. A Liverpool Council statement admitted that the office was "not (in) the ideal location."

Think Santa Monica First

From the finest organic cuisine, fashion and sporting goods to your daily cup of coffee - every purchase you make close to home or work supports our local economy, the viability and vibrancy of our town centers and the health of our local environment. Plus it's a pleasure to shop where the businesses welcome you with the warm, outgoing attitude of a friend or neighbor - because that's who they are!
