Culture wars hit Santa Monica

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

Following a triple protest weekend last week, officials are gearing up for additional protest activity as both sides of the political divide descend on Santa Monica during a busy weekend.

During the weekend of July 9/10, Santa Monica saw an anti-abortion protest march through the Promenade, a pro-choice march move between the Santa Monica and Venice Piers and a protest outside the Nike store targeting the use of kangaroos for leather soccer shoes. All three were peaceful but residents voiced concern about some individual behaviors and the

New 988 hotline is the 911 for mental health emergencies

LINDSEY TANNER
AP Medical Writer

Quick help for suicidal thoughts and other mental health emergencies will soon be as easy as 9-8-8.

The United States' first nationwide three-digit mental health crisis hotline goes live on Saturday. It's designed to be as easy to remember and use as 911, but instead of a dispatcher sending police, firefighters or paramedics, 988 will connect callers with trained mental health counselors.

The federal government has provided over $280 million to help states create systems that will do much more, including mobile mental health crisis teams that can be sent to people's homes and emergency mental health centers, similar to urgent care clinics that treat physical aches and pains.

> "It's going to take a number of years in order for us to be able to reach everybody across the country - Dr. Brian Hepburn"

"This is one of the most exciting things that has happened" in mental health care, said Dr. Brian Hepburn, a psychiatrist who heads the National Association of State Mental Health Program Directors.

Hepburn cautions that when 988 kicks off, it will not be like "the flick of a switch. It's going to take a number of years in order for us to be able to reach everybody across the country."

Some states already have comprehensive mental health crisis systems, but others have a long way to go. And widespread shortages of mental health specialists are expected to slow their ability to expand services.

A RAND Corp. survey published last month found that fewer than half of state or regional public health officials were confident about being ready for 988, which is expected to generate an influx of calls.

Nearly 60% said call-center staffers had specialized suicide prevention training; half said they had mobile crisis response teams available 24/7 with licensed counselors; and fewer than one-third had urgent mental-health care units.

The 988 system will build on the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline, an existing network of over 200 crisis centers nationwide staffed by counselors who answer millions of calls each year — about 2.4 million in 2020. Calls to the old lifeline, 1-800-273-8255, will still go through even with 988 in place.

"If we can get 988 to work like 911 ... lives will be saved," said Health and Human Services Secretary Xavier Becerra.

Dispatching paramedics for heart attacks and police for crimes makes sense — but not for psychiatric emergencies, mental health advocates say. Calls to 911 for those crises often lead to violent law enforcement encounters and trips to jail or crowded emergency rooms where suicidal people can wait days for treatment.

The 988 system "is a real opportunity to do things right," said Hannah Wesolowski of the National Alliance on Mental Illness.

Sustained funding will be needed. According to the National Academy of State Health Policy, four states have enacted laws to impose telecommunications fees to support 988 and many others are working on the issue.

A desperate call to a Utah state senator in 2013 helped spark the idea of a three-digit mental health crisis line.

Sen. Daniel Thatcher says a good friend sought his help after taking his suicidal son to an emergency room, only to be told by a doctor to come back if the boy hurt himself.

Thatcher has battled depression and at 17, he also considered suicide. He knew that despondent people in crisis may lack the wherewithal to seek out help or to remember the 10-digit national suicide lifeline number.

Thatcher found that many of Utah's in-state crisis lines went straight to police dispatchers or voicemail. He wondered why there was no 911 service for mental health, and the idea got national attention after he mentioned it to longtime Sen. Orrin Hatch.

In 2020, Congress passed the bill designating the 3-digit crisis number and then-President Donald Trump signed it into law.

Thatcher's mother was a nurse and knew where to get him help. He says 988 has the potential to make it that easy for others.

"If you get help, you live. It really is that simple," Thatcher said.

Texas man detained in 4 California killings from decades ago

A man has been arrested in Texas in connection with the Southern California slayings of four women decades ago, police said.

Billy Ray Richardson, 76, was arrested on Thursday by detectives from the Los Angeles and suburban Inglewood police departments with the assistance of officers from Fort Worth, Texas, police.

Richardson was charged by Los Angeles County prosecutors with four counts of first-degree murder with the special circumstance of multiple murder and murder in the commission of rape, Los Angeles police said in a statement.

The statement said investigative and forensic work over the decades linked Richardson to the 1980 killings of Beverly Cruse, Debra Cruse and Kari Lenander in Los Angeles and the 1995 slaying of Trina Wilson in Inglewood.

It was not immediately known if Richardson had an attorney to comment on his behalf. He was in custody in Texas on Thursday awaiting extradition to Los Angeles, police said.

Dodger Stadium workers won't strike during All-Star Game

The union representing concession workers at Dodger Stadium on Friday agreed not to strike during Major League Baseball's All-Star Game and its related events.

Unite Here Local 11 and concessionaire Compass Group and its subsidiary Levy Restaurants have made what the union said is "substantial progress" in contract negotiations this week.

As a result, the union agreed not to strike during the All-Star events that begin Saturday and conclude with the game on Tuesday night.

"Both parties look forward to a successful All-Star Game and continued negotiations," union spokesperson Maria Hernandez said in a statement.

The union is seeking what it calls "a fair new contract," although it never gave details about its demands. It said Unite Here members had earlier voted to authorize a strike during the All-Star festivities.

Levy employs nearly 1,500 food servers, bartenders, cooks and dishwashers at the stadium, which is hosting the All-Star Game for the first time since 1980.

The union represents more than 32,000 hospitality workers in Southern California and Arizona.

Mask concerns

Throughout the pandemic, we've been constantly reminded that wearing a mask, staying six feet apart from others, and getting vaccinated are the key ways to prevent the spread of COVID-19.

As a co-founder and operator of TRIFIT, a health club here in Santa Monica, our experience and the data concludes that physical activity as preventative medicine is also essential to warding off COVID and many other ailments.

According to the CDC, people who are physically active are much less likely to get very sick from COVID-19 compared to those who do little to no physical activity. And positive health benefits don't just prevent the worst of COVID-19. Regular exercise is linked to lower risks of colon cancer, breast cancer, and endometrial cancer, according to the National Cancer Institute. More people exercising and staying physically fit also lessens the burden on hospitals and local governments that bear the cost of treating people severely ill with not just COVID-19 but a whole host of other health conditions.

It's for these reasons that I join many of my colleagues in the fitness industry in our concern that Los Angeles County health officials may return the county to mandatory indoor masking – including in indoor gyms and fitness centers – and how this will deter both loyal members and newcomers who are looking to improve their health.

We saw during the early days of the pandemic what the closures of gyms and fitness centers meant to our communities. Physical and mental health deteriorated across the country. And even when we were able to reopen, fewer people came to gyms and fitness centers because mask mandates made working out more challenging.

Let me be clear: Masks are a critical tool for public health and mitigating the spread of COVID. What we fear are additional mandates that will deter our customers from visiting gyms, attending fitness classes, and living healthy lives.

Finding a safe, quality place to work out has already been made more challenging by the pandemic, which shut down our health club for nearly a year in 2020 and 2021 and forced more than a third of gyms and fitness studios in the state to close permanently.

As a member of the California Fitness Alliance, the organization representing our state's fitness operators and professionals, we fought hard to reopen gyms and fitness centers – and most importantly reopen with new COVID precautions that allowed our customers to work out in a safe and healthy way. And the precautions worked – between 2020 and 2021, TRIFIT did not a single case of COVID-19; not one staff member, instructor, cleaning crew, or member outbreak had occurred at TRIFIT.

Public health is paramount, but it needs to be viewed in context as part of a larger healthy ecosystem. The mental health implications these prolonged shutdowns have had on our fitness communities has been devastating. The fitness industry has been politicized as a super-spreader of COVID, even though all the evidence to date belies this notion.

We understand that our public officials have difficult jobs and must balance a variety of public health, societal, and economic factors into their decision making. What we in the fitness industry simply ask for is fair consideration given our contribution to public health and the economy.

If the decision is made to reinstate a countywide indoor mask mandate, we ask not for any special treatment, but for similar accommodations provided to other businesses. Just like consumers at restaurants and bars are allowed to remove masks while eating or drinking, we believe it is only fair to allow Angelenos doing vigorous exercise at gyms to also be able to remove their masks.

Like everyone else in the communities we serve, we want to keep people safe. And by making reasonable accommodations, we believe we can do just that by providing people the opportunity to live healthy and happy lives.

Gina Baski is the co-founder and operator of TRIFIT LA, an independent family-owned health club in Santa Monica.

CRIME WATCH

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON FRIDAY, JULY 8

The jury trial of Theo Krah concluded after about three weeks and more than 20 testifying witnesses. At about 4:30 p.m. on that day, the jury rendered a verdict of guilty to Count 1 – Murder (2nd Degree). Sentencing is scheduled to take place on Aug. 1, at which time, Krah will be sentenced to the statutorily required 15-to-life in state prison. Krah, a Navy Seal, was arrested in San Diego County in 2016 for the murder of Kris Anderson, a 57-year-old UCLA Extension employee. The two men had an altercation on the Pier with Krah accusing Anderson of taking photos of young women. Police intervened but no charges were filed as a result of the initial encounter. Sometime later, SMPD said the two men had a second altercation on 5th Street that resulted in Anderson's death.

This weekend, a "Patriot Pride Event" will be held on the 1500 block of Palisades Park. Organizers have said the event will feature a number of political candidates and is not focused on Planned Parenthood. Nor are participants planning to walk on the Promenade.

However, the Coalition to Defend Affirmative Action, Integration & Immigrant Rights, Fight for Equality By Any Means Necessary (BAMN) and other women's rights and pro-abortion activists will be mobilizing to protect the Santa Monica Planned Parenthood from what they describe as anti-abortion and pro-Trump fanatics.

Maricruz Lopez organizer for BAMN said, "We call on all those who support women's rights and human rights for all to join our community defense guard to defend the Planned Parenthood in Santa Monica this Saturday. We will not allow Pro-Trump misogynist bigots to harass and intimidate women, the Planned Parenthood, and anyone seeking care at the Planned Parenthood. We refuse to live in a society that says, as the Supreme Court has said, that women have no rights the institutions of our society are bound to respect. Our mass independent movement will fight to defend women's rights and their right to abortion by any means necessary! We will not allow Trump bigots to get away with attacking women's rights in our state."

Some residents criticized the local police response to last week's protests saying some participants on the Promenade vandalized property, carried weapons and intimidated visitors.

Lt. Rudy Flores said officers must balance safety with First Amendment protections.

"The priority at the SMPD, and the City of Santa Monica is the safety of our residents and visitors while supporting peaceful protests, public assemblies and the rights of all individuals when exercising their First Amendment right to free speech," he said. "First Amendment activity is protected and can occur without a permit from the city."

SMPD is not specifically informed of protest activity beforehand but does monitor social media channels and other forums for information about planned protests. When possible, they have contacted organizers ahead of time to inform them of local ordinances and for this Saturday, they said they hope both groups will keep their distance from each other.

> "The priority at the SMPD, and the City of Santa Monica is the safety of our residents and visitors while supporting peaceful protests, public assemblies and the rights of all individuals when exercising their First Amendment right to free speech — Lt. Rudy Flores

Following the riots of 2020, Santa Monica passed a temporary ordinance banning items that could become makeshift weapons from protests. However, those rules expired in June of this year. Flores said a new ordinance will be presented to council soon.

Encampments have returned to bedevil low-income seniors

Residents say they feel abandoned by government officials

CLARA HARTER
SMDP Staff Writer

For low-income seniors, the opportunity to have subsidized supportive housing right on Ocean Front Walk seemed like a dream come true, but in recent years it has become a nightmare.

Residents of the Adda & Paul Safran Senior Housing Center in Venice are asking the City of LA to provide more attention to the people living in encampments around their building.

On July 7, eighteen seniors co-signed a letter to Los Angeles City and County officials and agencies that share responsibility for the area. The letter was submitted by the Friends of the Venice Boardwalk, a coalition of community members whose mission is to ensure fair, safe, and equitable access to the Boardwalk.

The senior center is located just a few blocks from the Santa Monica border at Ocean Front Walk and Navy St. Most of the residents have lived there for several years, and due to their fixed incomes and the high cost of regional housing, would be hard pressed to find a different living situation.

During the pandemic their quality of life took a precipitous decline as the threat of COVID-19 and safety concerns stemming from the proliferation of encampments on the Boardwalk left many of the seniors stranded in their apartments.

The problems with public safety and homelessness peaked on the Boardwalk in the summer of 2021, when following the relaxing of anti-camping rules during the pandemic, more than two hundred people camped on the Boardwalk. This led to a myriad of issues including fires, pollution, and an uptick in crime.

In July 2021, with a $5 million budget, CD-11 Councilman Mike Bonin worked with the Saint Joseph's Center to move around 200 individuals off of the Boardwalk and onto a pathway towards permanent housing. Friends of the Venice Boardwalk played an important role in drawing attention to the crisis and bringing LA Recreation and Parks, LA City, and LA County together to create a plan for action.

For the seniors, however, the issues never fully went away and have been worsening in recent months as several homeless individuals, who residents say experience severe mental health issues, have intermittently set up camp directly by the building.

"I've lived here seven years. It's getting worse, much worse," said Marlene Sadan, 84, adding that she was very grateful for the housing intervention last summer, which drastically decreased the number of people on the Boardwalk.

"Now they are coming back. A lot of them are right on the sand, right on the beach, but I still have a couple that are right under my window," said Sadan.

Attention was given to the area during a July 8 targeted outreach effort by the Saint Joseph's Center.

"After receiving reports of concern from community members, the Center prioritized this space during their Thursday late night/ Friday early morning effort on July 8. Members of the outreach team found two individuals in the area with their belongings. They were offered services, but have not yet accepted. St. Joseph Center will continue to engage them in an effort to get these unhoused neighbors into housing," said a representative for Saint Joseph's.

Residents that they continue to be impacted by the nearby homeless individuals.

"I had the most horrific night. I didn't sleep overnight because they were yelling and screaming. There's this one woman, she comes around here every so often, and she screams like she's insane and in pain, and the swearing and the cussing... it's just a nightmare" said Sadan, later adding, "I wish they would find a place for them to relocate and also they need to go the mental health hospital, oh my god, there's so many mentally ill people down here."

Friends of the Venice Boardwalk is seeking to advocate on behalf of the seniors and have been encouraging them to encampments with 311 requests, which members believe was part of the reason the area was addressed on July 8.

The July 7 letter was sent to representatives from CD-11, the Mayor's Office, the County Board of Supervisors, LAPD, and Parks and Recreation. The only response Friends of the Venice Boardwalk received came from the President & CEO of Saint Joseph's, Va Lecia Adams Kellum, who said she would follow up with outreach.

An additional motivation for the letter is the upcoming reopening of the BAR Center at the Beach, which is a senior community center located next door to the senior housing facility. Friends of the Venice Boardwalk are hoping to see the immediate area free of encampments by the time seniors start utilizing the free programs and services in the coming weeks.

"It is clear that you [government officials] don't care about certain members of the public. It is clear in your lack of action, that you do not prioritize the elderly, you do not prioritize equitable use," said Cari Bjelajac, Friends of the Venice Boardwalk member. "That's why we put that letter together because it just became so absurd that these people, in the last years of their lives, with this new beautiful building built for them, felt too scared to walk literally 10 feet."

The office of CD-11 City Councilman Mike Bonin declined to comment for this story.

James Richard Downing

January 17, 1929 - June 28, 2022

Jim was a devoted husband, father, educator, camper, world traveler, naturalist, volunteer, and real estate developer.

He lived the first ten years of his life in Bakersfield, California. Jim's family moved several times during his young life including Kansas City, Missouri and South Lynwood, California. His interest in learning and inspiration from his teachers motivated him to study and to attend college. He graduated from Compton High School and Compton Junior College before transferring to the University of California, Santa Barbara.

While studying for his BA at UCSB, he met Marguerite Noel, the love of his life for over seventy years. They married on September 9, 1951. After serving as an officer in the Army during the Korean War, he obtained an MA in Education from UCLA. He taught science and social studies during his teaching career of over 30 years. He taught briefly in Torrance, California before teaching at Lincoln Junior High School in Santa Monica until he retired in 1984.

Jim and Marguerite had three children (Janis Holt, Kenneth Downing, and Pamela Noel Hughes). Additionally, Jim had seven grandchildren and six great grandchildren. Jim and his family spent many summers camping all over the United States, Canada and Hawaii. They also made numerous trips to Europe, Asia, and South America.

Throughout his entire life he was involved in numerous community service organizations including the YMCA, Western Youth Baseball, Santa Barbara Botanical Gardens, Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History and the Goleta Library. Most notably after he retired from teaching, he ran the Sunset Home, a nonprofit senior retirement home for women in Venice CA under the umbrella of Trinity Baptist Church in Santa Monica for many years.

A memorial will be held on July 19th at 2:00 pm at Veronica Springs Church in Santa Barbara. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Santa Barbara Botanic Gardens.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (July 16)

Happiness comes in waves and shifts, giving your year a beautiful rhythm. Doing what you love with talented people will be the source of joy and money. More highlights: an expansion of influence, the completion of a course and three celebrations that will be legendary in your family history and affect the plot of lives. Libra and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 6, 4, 44, 38 and 12.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You've come to a precipice. It's no accident that you're here; experience has led you to this new phase. Your skills are your wings. Trust what they can do. When you're ready to jump, you'll also be ready to fly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You'll soak in a lesson and then immediately apply what you've learned, which is how you can be sure you really know it. Tonight brings strong creative urges and you'll feel more alive when you're acting on them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). There's a part of your life that simply hasn't warmed up yet. Its season is coming, and when it does, your circumstances and environment will change. The potential that has been waiting like a closed bud will blossom.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You'll devote yourself completely to your purpose and to attaining the symbol that tells you it's been achieved. Whether you get there in five minutes or five hours is irrelevant. What matters is that you get there.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You're getting so good at interpreting things in a positive way, looking for possibility and support and finding exactly what you need. Signs point you to your next move. After you see the first one, you will see them everywhere.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). When you think of the scene from an artistic point of view, the elements settle differently. Chaos isn't inherently ugly, and organization isn't inherently beautiful. Each state has a certain appeal. The larger context matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). There was a time you tried to downplay the very thing that makes you so unique. Now you will celebrate this quality instead, shine it up and maybe even get paid for it! You'll make just the impression you're going for.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You'll work better when you pace yourself, taking breaks. This goes double for play and triple for passion. As one ancient Greek said, "When love is in excess it brings a man no honor nor worthiness." — Euripides

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The purpose of every action isn't to win the game. If it gets you to the next move, it's enough. The important thing now is that you're moving. You can always reassess later. You'll get your next idea while you're in motion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You want to be new and different in some way — there's a habit to establish. Your mind loves a pattern. The first step is hard to wrap your head around because it's not a pattern yet. After a few repetitions you'll be on your way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). There are no award ceremonies in superhero movies because, as you know too well, heroes don't need accolades. Your good deeds may seem to go unnoticed now, but you'll be deeply satisfied nonetheless.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Have you ever asked yourself to take you on an errand, agreed to the favor, then forgotten to say thank you? You do a lot for yourself and sometimes forget to thank or credit yourself for the contribution.
