North Beach Playground Project kicks off with user survey

BY MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

THE BEACH Public input is wanted to help shape the design of a new universally-accessible playground on the beach.

The North Beach Playground project is soliciting public feedback at www.santamonicaparks.org with a brief survey focused on playground use and favorite types of equipment.

Residents that complete the survey have the option to be entered into a raffle to win a family pool pack to the Annenberg Community Beach House, good for entry for up to two adults and two children. The survey will be online until August 16.

According to beach administrator Judith Meister, all of Santa Monica's playgrounds are compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act, but the universally-accessible playgrounds take those ideas a step further.

The accessible sites have transfers to enable physically disabled children to access the equipment, they have additional space around interactive elements to facilitate wheelchair access, they have specially designed equipment to accommodate children of all needs and have space for children who need a quiet space or those that learn through tactile sensation. All the features are designed to be welcoming.

Malibu DUI checkpoint nets 17 arrests

The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department's Lost Hills Station conducted a DUI/Drivers License Checkpoint on Friday, July 24, at PCH and John Tyler between the hours of 7 p.m. and 3 a.m. Checkpoints are placed in locations that have the greatest opportunity for achieving drunk and drugged driving deterrence and provide the greatest safety for officers and the public.

DUI/Drivers License checkpoints have been shown to lower DUI deaths and injuries. A major component of these checkpoints are the deterrent effects it has on those who might drive drunk or drugged impaired, bringing about more awareness and encouraging everyone to use sober designated drivers.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), checkpoints have provided the most effective documented results of any of the DUI enforcement strategies, while also yielding considerable cost savings of $6 for every $1 spent. 90 percent of California drivers approve of checkpoints.

At the July 24 stop, 1,583 vehicles passed through the checkpoint, 1,095 drivers were checked at the checkpoint, one DUI (drugs and alcohol) suspect was arrested, six unlicensed drivers were arrested and sent to court, six vehicles were released per checkpoint release procedures, five drivers driving on suspended licenses were arrested and sent to court and five warrant suspects were arrested and sent to court.

The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department will be conducting additional DUI/Drivers License Checkpoints and DUI Saturation Patrols throughout the upcoming year in their ongoing commitment to lowering deaths and injuries upon our streets and highways.

Funding for these operations is provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety http://www.ots.ca.gov/ through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration http://www.nhtsa.gov/

Chez Jay Finally Changes

FOR 57 YEARS CHEZ JAY HAS BEEN A CULTURAL watering hole in Santa Monica. It's played host to any number of celebrities, politicians, and no-name funsters. The charm of Chez Jay's is its consistency. The menu hasn't changed, the lights and décor are the same as they've been for decades and I'd bet that there's a peanut hiding out somewhere in there that is older than me. Walking into the darkened room with the Christmas lights blinking always seems like coming home. But after 57 years there's something new at the Chez.

It's called Jay's Patio and it's an outdoor seating area that is hidden behind the iconic landmark. For most of us who love being outside, finding a good place to enjoy the sun, have a meal, read a book and enjoy the quiet is not easy in this town. Sure there's outdoor seating at many places on the Third Street Promenade, and a few places on Montana Ave have some tables outside, but those are right up against lots of traffic, either foot or car.

Finding a nice outdoor spot, with good food, decent parking and some solitude is rare, but the good news is that this new grubspot has all that and more. It's a nice physical and emotional connection between the local landmark bar and restaurant with the beautiful Tongva Park.

I had lunch on Sunday at Jay's Patio and was pleasantly surprised at how enjoyable it was to enjoy a huge turkey burger lunch in the sunshine. The handmade burger was amazing, it's a giant burger with two types of cheese served on a brioche bun. It comes with Chez Jay's seasoned fries or salad with their homemade dressings. Chef Tony De Arcos has been serving up the good stuff for Mike Anderson, the man behind Chez Jay's, for over a decade and it's easy to see why they make such a great team. The food is amazing and the atmosphere is enjoyable. There was music playing, but not in that annoying, overly loud, obnoxious manner that is common these days and designed to drive you out of the restaurant.

My guess is the back area seats about 50-80 people, and I can see spending lots of time hanging there reading and listening to some soft jazz and blues. This is no super loud beach bar, this is a place to take a date and enjoy their company, or settle in with a good book, and have a solid meal. It's open Thursday to Sunday for lunch from 9 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. and for dinner from 6 p.m. - 10 p.m.

If you're headed to the Twilight Summer Concert Series on Thursdays you might want to drop in to Jay's Patio for dinner beforehand to get you in the headspace of fun and revelry. The patio menu is Chez Jay's take on burgers, burritos and salads, but I've been told if you say the magic words you might be able to order from the main restaurant food menu. There's no alcohol on the back patio.

I spoke with Mike Anderson and suggested that he bring in a jazz quartet on Sundays and I'm hoping he takes my advice. He did share with me that for the month of August he'll be running a Sunday dinner special on the back patio of Chez Jay's: a rack of Tony's Famous Pork Ribs for $14.95. For those in the know, Tony's Ribs have been a local treat on Tuesdays in the front of the house with regulars coming in just for them.

There's no real dress code for either Chez Jay's or Jay's Patio. What do you expect from a place that once had an elephant at the bar? But I'd suggest that if you come out at night, bring a light jacket, even though there are heaters, the evenings can get chilly and breezy.

The legacy of rent control in Santa Monica

THIS IS THE THIRD IN A SERIES OF ARTICLES ON housing in Santa Monica. Other topics have included workforce housing, the role of development agreements in producing affordable housing, and the importance of providing housing for all income levels to preserve the historic diversity of Santa Monica.

We cannot end this series of articles on housing in Santa Monica without talking about rent control. Although substantially weakened by state legislation over the years, Santa Monica's rent control law remains a major tool for protecting the affordability of our rental housing and maintaining our economic diversity.

In 1979, Santa Monica residents voted for an amendment to the City Charter that created one of, if not the most, radical rent control laws in the country. For years, our rent control law defined the progressiveness of the Santa Monica community and earned us the title of "The People's Republic of Santa Monica." Passage of this initiative was a major victory for a burgeoning group of young activists, Santa Monicans for Renters' Rights (SMRR), and its allies, many of whom were senior citizens facing escalating rents and threats of eviction because of condo conversion.

The increasing threat to secure housing for Santa Monica tenants, particularly seniors, was viewed as a community-wide concern. The question was asked whether property owners should be free to make obscene profits at the expense of vulnerable renters. The answer was "no" and rent control was born (in 1979, about 80 percent of the housing units in Santa Monica were renter-occupied, which certainly contributed to the outcome of the election).

Rent control is implemented by the five-member Rent Control Board, which is elected by Santa Monica voters. The program is administered by the administrative staff and its own in-house attorneys and hearing officers. In the early days, landlords brought hundreds of lawsuits against the Board, and most of the significant rulings were in favor of the Board. There are now a little over 28,000 rental units under rent control, which represents about 70 percent of Santa Monica's rental housing supply (the Charter Amendment applies only to housing units built before 1979).

As a result of strong lobbying by the real estate industry, the State Legislature has done much to weaken our law. The first attack came in the form of the Ellis Act in 1985. The Ellis Act allows a landlord to "go out of the rental housing business" by converting the use of the building or demolishing it altogether, as long as the replacement project is not rental housing.

To date, almost 2,000 rent controlled units in Santa Monica have been removed from the rental housing supply under the Ellis Act.

In 1995, the Legislature passed the Costa-Hawkins Act, which allows a landlord to increase the rent on a vacated unit to market rent when a tenant leaves, though the law did not go into full effect until 1999.

Before Costa-Hawkins, Santa Monica's rent control law had forbidden this "decontrol" by maintaining rents on vacant units at their rent-controlled levels. Needless to say, vacancy decontrol has had a major negative impact on the affordability of our rental housing supply. In its 2014 Annual Report, the Rent Control Board found that almost 70 percent of rent-controlled units (almost 19,000) had been re-rented at least once since decontrol was put in place. Under Costa-Hawkins, once a new tenant moves in, the rent is re-controlled but at the new (usually higher) rent.

The good news is that more than 30 percent, or about 9,000 units, remain at lower, pre-decontrol levels. This is certainly good news for seniors and others who are the most vulnerable to major rent increases since the Rent Control Board limits rent increases to 75 percent of the Consumer Price Index (CPI). Last year, for many tenants living in rent-controlled units, that translated to a maximum rent increase of 0.8 percent of the previous year's rent.

What impact has decontrol had on rents in pre-1979 buildings in Santa Monica? A typical one-bedroom rental unit that has been de-controlled at least once now rents for $1,629 a month and requires an annual income of $81,450 to afford. A similar one-bedroom unit, which is occupied by a long-term renter and has not been decontrolled, rents for $862, which requires an annual income of only $43,100 to afford (this is assuming that people do not, or should not, spend more than 30 percent of their income on rent).

But, even though the decontrolled rents may seem high, they provide existing tenants with stability, since the rents can only be increased by the annual General Adjustment adopted by the Rent Control Board, which was 0.8 percent in 2014.

The City has responded to these attacks on rent control with several important measures. First, our Condominium Conversion Ordinance makes it illegal to convert existing apartment buildings into condos unless the citywide vacancy rate exceeds five percent for a period of 90 days, which is unlikely to happen in our lifetime. Since being able to decontrol their rental units is a strong incentive for property owners to "encourage" existing tenants to vacate, the City Council voted in 2014 to strengthen the City's Tenant Harassment Ordinance and clarified behaviors that can be considered harassment. This is especially important as policies that constrain new housing from being built contribute to skyrocket-

RENT CONTROL

The Rent Control Agency has enhanced its public outreach effort by holding regular seminars, with the Consumer Protection Division of the City Attorney's Office, for tenants throughout the city. SMRR operates a tenant hotline to advise renters about their rights.

Finally, the City provides funds to our local nonprofit housing provider, Community Corporation of Santa Monica (CCSM), for the acquisition and rehabilitation of existing housing, much of which is rent-controlled. CCSM now has well over 700 units of older rental housing, which will remain affordable and rent-controlled for at least 55 years. Existing tenants, at the time of CCSM's acquisition, are allowed to stay in their units.

Renters still comprise the large majority of Santa Monica residents. Their housing security is a major policy objective for the City and of concern to many of us. The likelihood that we will see repeal of the Ellis and the Costa-Hawkins Acts is slim. We may instead consider amending these laws in ways that protect the most vulnerable of our tenants and assure that we maintain some level of economic diversity in Santa Monica. At a local level, however, we should remember that we can help relieve the economic pressure put on long-time residents in rent-controlled units by creating new housing where none currently exists, minimizing the unnecessary conflict between new, incoming residents and those who have lived here for many years.

We believe that the collective consciousness of Santa Monica is still a progressive one. Notwithstanding strident, angry voices decrying the need to save Santa Monica that they once, if ever, knew, we are a community that believes in preserving our affordable housing through rent control, providing new housing opportunities for lower wage workers and those on fixed incomes, and retaining an economic diversity that has always distinguished us from other coastal communities. The City has repeatedly shown its commitment to these ideals. And, we are thankful for our City government and to be part of this dialogue.

ment] enables children to play with each other," she said. "It's about enabling children to interact."

Located on the beach at Montana Avenue, the North Beach playground will be Santa Monica's second universally-accessible playground. Staff said public input is needed to ensure that the design will meet community needs. Construction of the north beach playground is anticipated to begin in 2016 with completion projected for 2017.

"A mayor's job is not all work and no play, and Santa Monica's second universally-accessible playground will allow active outdoor recreation for children of all abilities," Mayor Kevin McKeown said in a statement. "Places to play, explore, and have fun with friends and families are essential to our children's health and wellbeing. This new North Beach playground builds on the proven success of our first universally-accessible playground to the south, and makes Santa Monica's beaches even more welcoming and special."

Santa Monica's first universally-accessible playground, South Beach Park, is located at 2400 Barnard Way. Staff said it has been a hit with local families and that the North Beach playground will add to the city's offerings where there are currently few options.

"We chose Montana Ave. because it will open up opportunities at the north end of the city for playgrounds. People can take the overpass at Montana and come down to the beach," Meister said.

She said the site allows ample space for construction without having to cross the bike path, it's located near a parking lot and has restrooms nearby.

Meister added that the city has had a steady focus on accessibility at the beach. In addition to building accessible walkways, the city offers free beach wheelchairs. The wheelchairs, both manual and electric, can be checked out from the 2400 block or 1200 block locations of Perry's Beach Café.

Pure Drift was born later, when Rennella decided to drive back to his native Ecuador. Andres came up with the idea of installing water filters in towns along the way, and so his trip evolved into the one the organization is preparing for today.

"I was born and lived in Ecuador for 17 years and I could experience first hand how hard some people get it in life," Rennella said. "Clean water access in South America is not always a sure thing. Kids in school are sometimes forced by the circumstances to drink contaminated water … a bigger problem through water related diseases."

Eichenberger shared Rennella's passion for the clean water crisis and agreed to join him on his drive through Central and South America. "I have traveled a lot and part of being a surfer is traveling to new waves. In those travels I was able to see that not everybody is as fortunate as us here in the U.S." Eichenberger said. "Water is a growing problem and we feel the need of doing something about it."

The duo, along with Pure Drift's two other members, Lesley Roberts and Emelie Aggestål, have done small test installations in towns through Baja, California to gauge how effective their big trip might be. So far they've been very successful.

"We've done long weekend trips to get a sense of where we're going to find people who need filters, how they respond to it, whether this is logistically possible," Roberts said. "So far we've had an 100 percent success rate."

The filters Pure Drift uses are small and simple. They attach to a bucket, which can be refilled, providing 1 million gallons of clean water before they need to be replaced. Valued at $50 dollars each, Pure Drift lacks the funding to buy the 200 they will need to complete their trip. Their Go Fund Me campaign aims to raise $15,000 by the time they leave in September, which will allow them to buy the filters needed to provide clean water for 20,000 people from Mexico to Ecuador.

"It has been hard getting help from local businesses and the local government, but our friends, family, business nationwide, and the people of Santa Monica are a huge part of Pure Drift," Eichenberger said. "We're hoping that local businesses and the City of Santa Monica can give us a hand to make this project become a solution for tens of thousands of boys and girls that can't access clean drinking water on their daily lives."

They have been thinking about the future of their organization after they complete the trip. "The whole idea started with the trip as the focus and then it was going to end," Roberts said. "But the process of funding the trip and meeting the people and doing the work has been transformative for all of us. The two of them are really coming into their own and recognizing what they're doing."

GAME SHOW: Santa Monica resident Scott Richard Lord won $109,000 on 'Jeopardy!'

JEOPARDY

on 'Jeopardy.'"

"It's basically the only place in the world where trivia can actually make you money," Lord said.

And now he has the experience to prove it.

A semi-retired attorney whose brain features troves of facts about history, language, literature and opera, among other subjects, Lord won five games and more than $109,000 on the long-running TV quiz show hosted by Alex Trebek. His six-game stint on the program finished airing Monday night.

"It was a pretty good run," Lord said. "Everybody eventually loses, and it sucks to lose, but it's so exciting. It's fun to win money, of course. But the fact that you could stand there and have this knowledge be useful was unbelievable. I can't believe it's over."

Lord, 60, plans to put his winnings towards an African safari next month with his wife and their 12-year-old twin boys.

Raised in the San Fernando Valley, Lord attended UC Santa Cruz, graduated from law school at Santa Clara University in 1979 and spent more than three decades doing criminal and civil trial work for clients in the construction industry. He still practices on a semi-retired basis.

Since 1993 he's lived in Santa Monica, which he discovered on regular beach trips during his childhood. (In one of his on-camera interviews with Trebek, Lord revealed that his current Santa Monica property was previously home to actresses Bette Davis and Greta Garbo.)

"I went away to school and worked in the Bay Area, but I said, 'If I ever come back to L.A., I'm living somewhere near the beach," Lord said. "(Santa Monica) isn't such a little city anymore, but it's still one you can walk around. ... It's one of the best places in the world to live."

About four years ago, after decades of watching "Jeopardy," Lord applied to be a contestant.

He took an online test and got asked to an audition, and he was told that he might get a call in the next year and a half. Months went by without any word from the show.

"For some reason they emailed me to take the online test again," he said, and eventually he returned for another in-person audition. Shortly after that he was invited to be a contestant.

But there was a catch: Since he lives in Southern California, where the show is taped, he was scheduled as an alternate in case an out-of-town contestant couldn't make it to the studio.

"It's a little frustrating," he said. "You sit there all day and you watch everybody else. They tape five shows a day, and I didn't get on. But they said, 'We'll call you again and you'll get on next time.'"

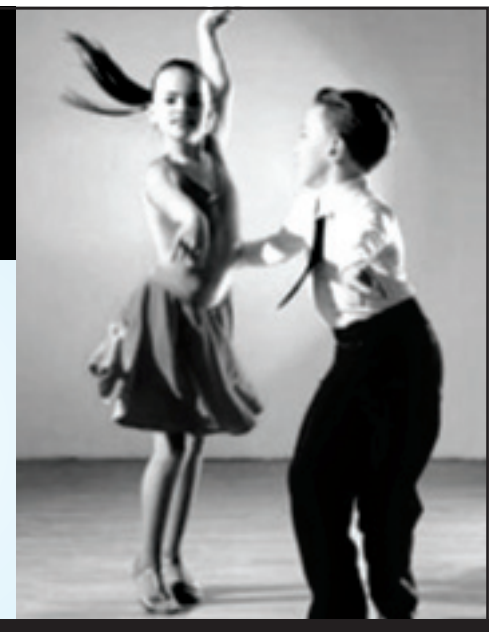

That was December. In February, he called to check in. Still no word. Then, in the last week of April, he was asked back to the studio.

"You're nervous, and you don't want to embarrass yourself," he said. "That's the main thing."

Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON JULY 15, AT APPROXIMATELY 9:45 P.M.
Officers were dispatched to the 400 block of Washington Avenue to investigate the report of a subject trespassing in the fourth floor stairwell. Upon entering the stairwell, officers smelled a strong odor of smoke when they contacted the subject, later identified as Elisio Flores, 27 year old transient. As officers were getting ready to conduct a pat down search for weapons, Flores admitted to having a pocket knife and meth pipe in his possession. An additional search of Flores' personal belongings rendered marijuana and credit cards registered to other individuals. He was arrested for possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of access card without cardholder's consent and possession of less than one ounce of marijuana. Bail was set at $20,000.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Lindsey Perkins pleaded guilty in June in Newport, Vermont, for an incident in which she joy-rode on the roof of a station wagon with her 5-year-old son while a 20-year-old man drove at 50 to 55 mph on the state's scenic Route 14 near Coventry.

■ In February, the Office of Residential Life at Wesleyan University (Middletown, Connecticut), intending to tout its dedication to inclusiveness and the creation of a "safe space" for minority students, posted a notice on its website inviting applications from the "LBT-TQQFAGPBDSM" communities. The probable translation: the lesbian/gay, bisexual, transgender, transsexual, queer, questioning, flexual, asexual, (vulgar word), polyamorous, bondage/discipline and sadism/masochism communities.

■ Cosbying 2.0: A court in Castrop-Rauxel, Germany, fined a 23-year-old man in July after he admitted that, one evening last year, he put "four or five drops" of a sedative into his girlfriend's tea without her knowledge -- so that she would doze off for the evening and not bother him while he played video games. She had come home after a hard day at work, expecting peace and quiet, but began complaining about the boyfriend's machine-gun-fire game.

Each Tuesday, 'Roxy's Pet Peeves' gives voice to friends-in-need

Let's stick to a schedule, eh?

With Roxy Starfish

Hey Dawg,

Looking good out there. Know how you could look even better? With one of my furry friends riding shotgun.

Check out some area pets looking for a new loving home … like YOURS.

But first, I got a peeve ... When you come home after a long day (a long day of being unable to work the remote control), we can barely contain ourselves. I don't mean just having to pee (but yeah, there's that). We're so stoked that you're back! We missed the hell out of you, you big lug. Just like when we run off and you get worried, we do the same. Got no idea when, and if, you're coming back.

Maybe keep a schedule so we know when we'll see your smiling face!

Meet Ed!

He's a delightful Staffordshire Terrier/English Bulldog mix who makes you laugh with a glance. At 4 years old, this low rider has a tongue that never quits. He is gentle, calm and adores kids. Bring him home!

Samson

Can you resist this face? Samson is a big boy (90 pounds), but he's a bundle of kisses and loves to snuggle. Samson is great on a leash, knows his commands and is completely housebroken. He is very social and likes to be with other dogs. This is one easy-going fella.

Relax at home, Sag

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You might feel the need to let others know that you will support yourself in getting what you want. Stay tuned in to what is happening around you, because an opportunity you will want to jump on could arise when you least expect it. Tonight: Don't hesitate to take the lead.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ You might not feel as sure of yourself in the morning as you would like. By midafternoon, you will feel as if you are nearly unstoppable. Use this moment to focus on what is important to you. Others finally bend in your direction. Tonight: Where you want to be.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Your flexibility allows you to go from being quiet and passive to active and assertive. A key relationship will provide you with an opportunity to allow your full personality to come out. Careful diplomacy is advised. Tonight: Finish up any last-minute details.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You will know what to do in order to move a certain cause forward. You could be in a situation where you have to play a low-key role. You have some major changes ahead. Speak your mind, but be as diplomatic as possible. Tonight: Say "yes" to an invitation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ Your playful side emerges and allows you to make a difference in a challenging work-related situation. Once the tension dissolves, others' perspectives will change and the situation will become workable. Be more direct in what you decide to do. Tonight: Playful as ever.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You might want to change your direction and respond more openly to your own needs. Stay on top of a problem, and you will do much better than you have in a while. You seem to be unusually confused about a personal matter; do nothing until you are sure. Tonight: Head home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You might be in a changeable and somewhat volatile situation. How you deal with a personal matter could evolve given some time, but you don't have that luxury right now. The resolution will come to you more easily than you had anticipated. Tonight: At home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Deal with a financial matter now, before it deals with you. You will be relieved once you find the right response. Speak your mind. A friend steps forward and gives you support. You'll want to take news with a grain of salt; it might be too good to believe. Tonight: Play it easy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Tap into your imagination in order to find the right solution to a money question. You might opt for a conservative response until you verify that a different course of action is right for you. Discomfort could result when trying out a new idea. Tonight: Relax at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ One-on-one relating opens up a new possibility that you might not want to share at first. Listen to news with openness. You are more aware than others of what can happen with a loved one. You have the wherewithal to change this person's fate. Tonight: Listen to news.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ A meeting will remind you that you have many supporters on a key project. A friend or loved one might be confused about which direction to head in. You could be in a situation where you don't have any choice but to take the lead. Tonight: Where the crowds are.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Your ability to bring others together emerges. Host a fun event if you can. A meeting initially could appear to be very serious, but that will change. Exchange ideas more freely. Touch base with a friend whom you don't see often. Tonight: The more friends, the merrier.

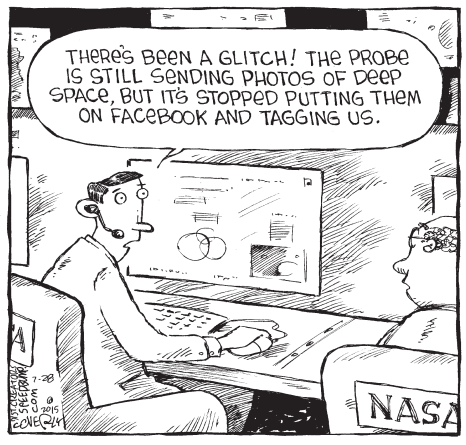

Tuesday, July 28, 2015

This year you see a change in how you feel and how you project those feelings. This trademark will become even more dynamic as the year goes on. Others will seek you out for your suggestions and ideas. If you are single, if you don't meet someone by mid-August, the people you meet afterward could be quite different and sometimes critical. You might decide to play the field for a while as a result. If you are attached, the two of you rely on each other more. You also learn to work together as a team. CAPRICORN can be a stick in the mud.

No pressure. During your Free Window Diagnosis, we'll give you an exact, down-to-the-penny price that's good for an entire year.

112 years of window expertise. We're the replacement division of Andersen, the window and door brand that your dad told you to trust.

No middleman to deal with. There's no runaround between the installer and the manufacturer because we handle it all, from custom-building to installing to warranting all our products.

We won't sell you vinyl. We've replaced thousands of poor-quality vinyl windows and patio doors, so we made our window's Fibrex composite material two times stronger than vinyl.

Make an appointment and get a price that's good for an entire year!
