California gas storage facility deemed safe after blowout

BRIAN MELLEY
Associated Press

A California judge denied a motion to halt the reopening of a massive natural gas storage facility in Los Angeles County that has been offline since a major blowout.

Lawyers for the county had asked Superior Court Judge John Wiley to stop Southern California Gas Co. from restarting operations at Aliso Canyon because of earthquake risks. The judge tentatively ruled against the county on Friday, according to court filings made public before a hearing. He made the ruling final during the hearing.

Last week state regulators gave approval to pump gas into underground storage wells after an overhaul and extensive testing.

Wiley cited two state laws that prevented his interference. While acknowledging that it was a vitally important issue, he said the Legislature had taken authority away from Superior Court judges to interfere with orders by the California Public Utilities Commission.

"So what's my power?" Wiley said in explaining his decision in Council approves new loan source for affordable housing

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

Setting aside money to fund affordable housing was an easy decision for City Council at their July 25 meeting, but deciding who gets to spend it was harder.

Council approved revisions to the city's housing trust fund guidelines on Tuesday that included establishing a new dedicated fund of about $15 million a year to build and/or retain existing affordable housing units. The money would be available to nonprofit housing organizations but the council split over giving staff the authority to release the money without Council approval.

Santa Monica used to have a cap on the amount of money the city would loan to housing builders but the monetary limit was removed about 10 years ago. Since then, there have been limits in place on the amount that would be lent per unit ($600,000) and a cap on the maximum number of units the council would support per project (50).

However, with the recommendation to create a new fund, staff multiplied the per unit limit by the maximum units supported and felt the resulting $30 million loan was too large to be approved without council consideration. Therefore, debate occurred at the Housing Commission level that resulted in a proposal to limit staff authority to $15 million per loan or about one year's worth of revenue.

Councilmember Kevin McKeown said the $15 million limit was far

COMMUNITY BRIEFS

Santa Monica

Paletas Santa Monica // El Sabor a la Comunidad-Taste of the Community

Paletas Santa Monica // El Sabor a la Comunidad-Taste of the Community will be on the streets in all five zip codes of Santa Monica from July 29 - August 29. Do you know about public art in Santa Monica? Do you know where it exists? Do you relate to it in a personal way; is it relevant to you? How does it affect your experience of the city?

The City of Santa Monica presents Paletas Santa Monica, an artist-led community outreach project by Mario Mesquita, to engage residents throughout Santa Monica in conversations about the future of public art in the city. Mario and his team of local artists and educators will travel throughout Santa Monica's neighborhoods on two custom pedal-powered Paletero Carts. They will stop at predetermined locations to gather input on residents' awareness of existing public art and what and where they would like to see public art. In exchange, each participant will be treated to a delicious ice-cold, handcrafted popsicle.

Paletas Santa Monica // El Sabor a la Comunidad-Taste of the Community will directly engage Santa Monica's intrinsically creative and diverse population that may not have the time or the inclination to attend a community forum, which are simultaneously being held on July 29 and August 2. The opinions gathered will inform recommendations in the Public Art Master Plan, which is projected for completion in the spring of 2018.

For more information and a full schedule of venues on the project, visit www.paletassamo.ca. Please also check out #ArtSaMo and #PaletasSaMo to follow the action!

His education and professional experience, from community-based researcher to higher education advocate, have influenced the way he uses art as a tool for education and an agent of social change. As an educator, his practice encourages reciprocal dialogue and mutual learning. Mario currently is based in San Diego where he works as Education Manager at the Museum of Contemporary Art San Diego.

ABOUT THE PUBLIC ART MASTER PLAN

The City of Santa Monica is currently undertaking a year-long public art master planning process with consultants Gail M. Goldman Associates and Elwood & Associates. The Public Art Master Plan will provide a clear vision for the future of public art in Santa Monica for the next decade. The plan will outline goals for the selection and placement of public art, programming opportunities, strategic partnerships, and funding opportunities. It will include policy and procedure recommendations as well as direction for ongoing program development and management.

KATZ

Jessica Katz

Lincoln Middle School

Jessica Katz is in her 6th year of teaching, her 3rd in SMMUSD, previously teaching in Fountain Valley in Orange County. She has a long history of working with kids and has always loved it. She's worked as a baby sitter, camp counselor and at a Kids Club at a gym. She is currently teaching math and ASB/Leadership at Lincoln Middle School and has also taught public speaking, cooking and will teach dance this summer. Math was always her favorite subject. "I liked that there was a method and an answer," says Katz.

KATZ SPEAKS

I had two incredible math teachers in 7th and 8th grade who inspired me to want to teach math. They encouraged me, challenged me, and stayed positive that I was good at math, even when I did not do so well on a test. I want to be them for my students.

One of my favorite topics to teach is percents. This includes discount, markup, tip, tax, simple interest, and commission. With the help of another teacher, I designed various activities related to these topics. For example, for the commission lesson, students pretend to be car salesmen and realtors. They sell cars and homes of various prices and calculate their commission based on the sales they brought in. Students have a blast with this activity, trying to see who can make the most commission. Because this unit is so connected to students and their experiences, great real-life conversations are had about these different topics.

One of my favorite parts of being a teacher is those "ah-ha" moments students have when something just finally clicks for them. I know I've done a job well when students leave my classroom and thank me for teaching them as they leave for their next class.

New West Symphony Announces Finalists for Music Director

The New West Symphony begins the second phase of its music director search by naming three finalists to return to lead the New West Symphony in encore performances. Maestros Kynan Johns, Tania Miller, and Fawzi Haimor have been chosen to return for second performances with the New West Symphony, conducting programs that demonstrate their diversity.

The New West Symphony has attracted talent from all over the world to fill the position of Music Director. This past season our audience experienced diverse conducting styles and programs of six candidates. A search committee comprised of New West Symphony executives, board members, and orchestra members, as well as input from community leaders, will select a music director, whose debut season will coincide with the New West Symphony's 25th anniversary season in 2019.

Maestro Kynan Johns will return to lead the orchestra in the "Tchaikovsky Pathetique" concert in January, 2018. "Performing with the New West Symphony was a wonderful experience. I'm excited to return to work with the orchestra on a program that features romantic Russian works as well as a world premier by iconic composer, Bruce Broughton," said Johns.

Maestra Tania Miller will return to perform selections by Wagner, Liszt and Dvorak in concerts in May, 2018. "It was an honor to open the New West Symphony's 2016/2017 season, and I'm thrilled to be chosen to return and close the 2017/2018 season. With the upcoming concerts I'll be conducting, the selections in 'Virtuoso Tour de Force' include grand and challenging romantic pieces that will brilliantly showcase the talented musicians in the New West Symphony," said Maestra Miller.

Maestro Fawzi Haimor will return to lead the orchestra in October, 2018 (in the 2018/2019 season). "Looking back at the incredible time I had with the New West Symphony, I can't express how excited I am to return," said Maestro Haimor. "The quickness of the musicians allows for more time to focus strictly on the music making and as a result produce some truly high quality performances. I am so delighted to have another opportunity to work with your fine orchestra."

below anything he could support and said involving council in the loan approval process would create unnecessary delays that could jeopardize affordable housing projects.

"I'm struck by the difference between transparency and discretionary," he said. "And I think transparency is really important that there be an investigation, there be an evaluation, there be documentation, there be disclosure. All of that I support. Where I just feel tremendously uncomfortable that this is merely a tool to stop 100 percent affordable housing from being built is setting an unrealistically low cap that requires a delay and a visit to the council before the funding can be guaranteed to the affordable housing developer."

In hearing from staff and affordable housing providers, Councilmember Sue Himmelrich proposed a $25 million cap on staff approved loans arguing there should be a limit to the authority council bestowed on staff.

"I do believe that particularly in view with what we've been doing with the budget and potential crunches we may have, we need to be more careful about how and where we spend our money and I think that this isn't really creating a terrible impediment to doing the kinds of projects we want to do," she said.

Councilmember Gleam Davis said given the laissez faire approach to affordable housing Council had just approved for the Downtown Community Plan, a hard cap on a city-backed loan seemed at odds with their intent to promote affordable housing.

"I'm concerned we might adopt the $25 Million now and then in the downtown where land is the most expensive, it may not turn out to be a feasible number," she said.

Davis ultimately proposed a compromise that gave staff authority to approve a loan of any size without council approval but required council be notified of any potential loan over $25 Million via an information item.

Councilmembers that wanted to intervene in those noticed loans could ask for the item to be agendized for formal discussion.

The compromise motion passed by a 6-1 vote with Himmelrich opposing the measure.

FACILITY

the courtroom. "Zero. I have zero power. Because in the 1950s the Legislature said, 'Hands off. The PUC owns this problem.' "

The facility above the San Fernando Valley has been largely out of commission since an old well failed in October 2015 and spewed methane for nearly four months, driving residents from 8,000 homes. The blowout released the largest-known amount of methane in U.S. history and led to widespread complaints of nosebleeds, nausea, headaches and symptoms that persisted even after the leak was capped last year.

The county's lawyer, Skip Miller, disagreed with the judge and asked for a stay so he could go to an appeal court.

"I think your honor is just dead-bang wrong," Miller said. "This is super important to the county of LA and the 30,000 people who live out there."

State regulators gave approval last week to let SoCalGas resume more limited operations under stricter rules after the facility underwent a major overhaul and passed rigorous testing.

The county, however, said the state didn't adequately address the threat of a quake rumbling across the Santa Susana Mountains where the field is located.

"That's a recipe for disaster," Miller said. "We think they're jumping the gun."

The county's legal filing included emails and a declaration from a former SoCalGas manager who raised concerns several years ago about the danger. Jim Mansdorfer, who managed the company's gas storages wells for years, said the Santa Susana fault could rupture all 114 wells and release gas at 100 to 1,000 times the rate of the 2015 blowout.

In its response, the state said the facility has probably undergone more scrutiny from a regulatory agency than any facility in the U.S. The county's claims are based on "the vague possibility of a future, hypothetical catastrophic earthquake," the state said.

"Fear-mongering and heated rhetoric aside, the county fails to allege a legal or factual basis upon which relief, let alone emergency relief, may be granted," Deputy Attorney General Jennifer Rosenfeld said.

SoCalGas echoed the state's arguments in a legal filing. In a letter to politicians and policymakers Monday, it said the county's claims were "baseless and wrong."

The company said it didn't agree with Mansdorfer's opinion, but it had forwarded his concerns along to state regulators.

While the company and the state have deemed the facility necessary for home heating and to fuel gas-fired power plants, Southern California has escaped predictions of blackouts over the past year while the facility was closed.

Many residents want to see Aliso Canyon permanently shuttered. They have held boisterous demonstrations outside the gate of the facility and at public meetings.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON JULY 20, 2017 AT 3 A.M.

Officers were on patrol along the 1600 block of Ocean Front Walk. Officers could hear loud, unintelligible yelling from an unknown person in the area of Chess Park. Officers went into the park to investigate and found a woman standing alone in the east portion of the park. Officers made contact with the woman since she was in the park during the hours when the parked is closed. The woman refused to identify herself to the officers and was subsequently arrested and transported to Santa Monica jail where she was eventually identified. Rhebecca Morris, 43, homeless was arrested for local ordinance violation in Chess Park after hours. Bail was set at $500.

■ One hour of having your nails done by someone else burns 68 calories (based on a 150-pound person or the equivalent of 0.1 Big Macs. On the plus side, if you simply chew your fingernails down (and swallow), that's largely a calorie-free endeavor. Nails are composed of keratin, a protein, but as far as anyone can determine, their calorie content appears to be almost non-existent.

Fast Facts about Westside Food Bank Part Three

BY GENEVIEVE RIUTORT
Chief Development Officer, Westside Food Bank

Who receives the food Westside Food Bank distributes?

The simple answer is that our food goes to anyone in our service area that needs food assistance. Prior to 2008, most of the people visiting food pantries were seeking emergency food because of a temporary crisis – a job loss, an illness, car trouble, etc. Since then, the number of requests for food assistance has increased by more than 85% and more people are relying on our food as a regular ongoing source. That makes our focus on nutrition particularly important, because so much of the food we distribute goes to children in critical stages of development and to economically vulnerable populations at great risk for obesity, diabetes, hypertension, and other diseases exacerbated by a poor diet.

We are also serving a growing number of college students and veterans. We have been supplying food to the UCLA Food Closet since 2009, and we recently worked with them to increase their storage space, effectively doubling the amount of food they are providing to students in need. This spring we added food pantries at West Los Angeles and Santa Monica colleges as member agencies. We have about 2 dozen garden beds at the West Los Angeles VA Campus that are tended by veterans with the produce going to several agencies that provide services on the VA campus. We also operate a produce distribution on the VA campus, providing a bag of fresh produce to about 150 vets each week.

Overall, our food reaches about 105,000 local people each year, nearly half of whom are children. Our agencies serve a wide cross section of people including: low income families with children, unemployed, under-employed and working poor people, seniors on fixed incomes and the frail elderly, women and children living in domestic violence shelters, homeless individuals, mentally ill, chronically ill and disabled individuals, and veterans. You might be surprised to learn that a great majority of our food goes to low-income individuals and heads of households via food pantries that distribute free groceries. The rest is provided at shelters, transitional living sites, community kitchens and afterschool and preschool programs.

For more information, or to find out how to access food assistance, visit www.wsfb.org

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (JULY 29)

The jewel of your year is an energizing relationship that allows you the freedom to explore who you are. You're an excellent manager of life and work, adept at compartmentalizing and keeping an empowering perspective. You'll be awarded and promoted for the zest you bring to work. Libra and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 10, 2, 12, 50 and 38.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
If you're willing to subject yourself to it for a few hours (most aren't), boredom has something to teach you. It can be a kind of meditation in that you do not seek a sense of space and nothingness; rather, it seeks you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
One impulsive person will have unpredictable results; two people acting on impulse will be a disaster. You'll be the grounded force, the voice of reason and the hand of authority if necessary.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
You've got a laundry list of desires for the day, but what really matter are safety, health and love. Make those your priority and you can't lose. Ignore those priorities and you can't win.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
The big picture will be hard to see. The best vantage is still around a few bends and up a hill. No matter. The thing to do now is make the next move, and the next move after that. It will be enough.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You don't usually need a lot of outside motivation, but today it will make all the difference. A good coach or cheerleader will energize you to reach the goal. It's even worth paying for if necessary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
You'll be asked crazy questions and presented with people's problems as if you were some kind of magic fairy whose job it is to make everyone happy. That's leadership for you!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Just as being upset leads to an overabundance of negative thoughts, bliss brings on more positive thoughts than are warranted. Both states of mind are untrue, but in the latter case, who cares?

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)
Before you discount your offering as not enough, consider that you might be giving it to the wrong person. For someone who knows how to use and value your contribution, it will be more than they dreamed of having.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
You look forward to the worry-free moments you'll have to yourself once you've handled a big job. Ask for help. Speed up the process. You owe it to yourself to finish this one quick.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Pause to sort out what another person needs and wants. Make no assumptions! Listen more than you talk. This will be easy to mess up. Getting it right will be easy, too (and profitable), but require better listening skills.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
As an air sign, it's no fun for you to be grounded when you'd rather be flying. But being grounded is essential to some things. There are many kinds of growth that are only possible through a process of laying down roots.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
You've done quite a lot, and yet, one of the most remarkable things about you is that you don't let your experience level make you jaded. Today you'll follow an interest all around the internet, library or city.

Shifting Moon

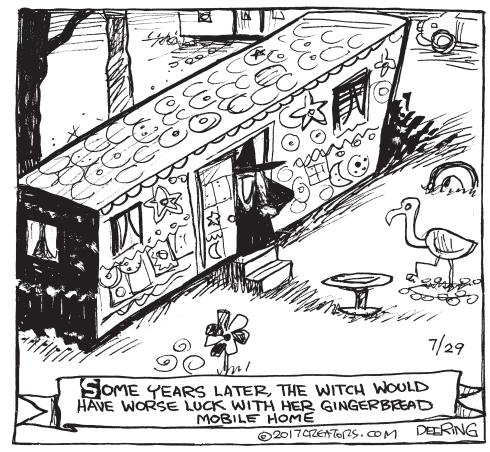

It's not fun to work on our shortcomings. It's much more enjoyable to get into some fluffy thing that's not really going to make a difference. Of course, fun isn't what this is about, says the lunar influence shifting from light Libra into intense Scorpio. Improvement requires us to do the hard thing. Start by taking on what irritates you.
