Statewide expansion of rent control qualifies for 2024 ballot for the third time

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

California voters will soon get a third chance to expand rent control rules statewide after the Secretary of State announced that supporters of a measure that would let cities put new restrictions on how much landlords can hike the rent have gathered enough signatures to put it on the November 2024 ballot.

A state law known as the Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act of 1995 currently puts limitations on local rent control regulations. The current rules prevent cities from limiting rents between tenants (allowing the units to hit market

While discussion surrounding the proposal of hiring a private security company to patrol the Promenade took up much of Tuesday's City Council meeting, there were additional important issues raised that relate to the Downtown area of Santa Monica.

According to Andrew Thomas, CEO of Downtown Santa Monica Inc (DTSM), the percentage of vacancies on the Promenade is approximately 28 percent. "We're just finishing up a study on it now," Thomas said, adding, "We believe that extends Downtown-wide. It's

Former track star turned carpet cleaner sprints to success with eco-friendly approach

MAGNOLIA LAFLUER
Special to the Daily Press

Courtesy Photo
REGGIE WYATT: The Venice man has transitioned from the track to an environmentally friendly cleaner.

Before Venice local Reggie Wyatt took over the family business as a residential and commercial carpet cleaner, he was cleaning up the competition as one of track and fields fastest men in the United States.

Born in Torrance, California and raised in Riverside, California, Wyatt said he grew up helping his father, Reginald Wyatt Sr. - the founder of EasiClean - clean carpets when he was seven-years-old. A first round draft pick for the Kansas City Royals back in 1981, Wyatt's father bought EasiClean after he retired from playing professional baseball.

"My father inspired me on and off the field because of his vision and leadership," Wyatt said. "He knew how to build me up and inspired me to never doubt my potential."

But before Wyatt took over EasiClean, he competed nationally and internationally as a professional track and field athlete. At the early age of nine, Wyatt said he believed track could "take him far in life" after he won the Junior Olympics in the 400 meter dash in Buffalo, New York. Through the support of his family and friends, Reggie continued to excel in the sport while attending La Sierra High-school where he not only broke the school record in the 300 meters but achieved the national record as well.

"At a young age I fell in love with track because running gave me an adrenaline rush unlike any other sport I had competed in," said Wyatt.

Upon graduating high-school, Wyatt attended the University of Southern California (USC) where he graduated with a degree in Sociology as a 3x All American, Pac 12 Champion, and won a NCAA 400m hurdle title. After college, Reggie quickly became a rising star in the world of track and field where he signed a two-year Nike endorsement deal that allowed him to run professionally and travel to over 15 countries for Team USA.

"When the gun goes off it was you against the other runners and to me that was exhilarating," Wyatt said.

Unfortunately, after a devastating leg injury in 2020, Wyatt was forced to retire from track. Not too soon after ending his career he began to contemplate his next career path and in 2021 he decided to follow in his fathers foot-step and take over the family business as the owner of EasiClean.

"The motivating factor for me was finding a career that I could make a difference in my community and creating a family legacy. It was a no brainer to build upon my father's legacy," Wyatt said.

Wyatt said that his initially fear and trepidation over the idea of filling his fathers "enormous shoes," has made him work harder to exemplify his gratitude and prove his worthiness.

"The day my dad stepped down and gave me the keys to the business was a big milestone for me because he trusted and believed in me," Wyatt said.

Calling his father "one of the hardest working men I've ever seen," Wyatt said that when his father was off-season from playing with the Royals from '81 to '84 and with the Memphis Chicks baseball team in '84 he would run five miles everyday to keep a competitive edge over his competitors.

"He took that same approach and applied it in business which inspired me to want to be like my dad," Wyatt shared. "When I took over the business, my father told me to never stop doing the things that got me to where I am today. It was the reminder to continue to persevere and never quit no matter how hard life gets. Those words have always stuck with me and gave me the vision of where I want to be."

After only one year of doing business out of Venice, Wyatt's business 5-star rating on google as well as his usage of plant-based biodegradable, eco-friendly products has led him to becoming one of the most popular carpet cleaning companies on the Westside for residencies and business like South Park, Goodskin, and London Alley.

"Many carpet companies do not use eco-friendly companies," Reggie explained. "The products EasiClean uses are specifically safe for pets, children and individuals who are sensitive to chemicals."

Open around the clock Wyatt said that whether it's a 6 a.m or a late night 10 p.m. cleaning assignment, the most rewarding part of taking over the family business has been seeing the smiles on peoples faces after a job well-done.

Loyal customer from Marina Del Rey, Will, told the Current that he called Wyatt two days after he got a dog and was not only "extremely pleased" with the results but said that he is happy to now call Wyatt a friend.

City of Malibu and SMMUSD Committed to Working Together and With California Coastal Commission to Advance Malibu High School Project

The City of Malibu and the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District (SMMUSD) are committed to working together as well as cooperating with the California Coastal Commission (CCC) to advance the voter-approved Malibu High School (MHS) Project for the benefit of students and families in the community.

"The City of Malibu and the School District remain committed to working together to advance the project and have had several discussions about next steps since the Coastal Commission's July 12 meeting," said Malibu City Manager Steve McClary. "The City and the School District are coordinating a meeting with Coastal Commission staff to work together as cooperatively and expeditiously as possible to get the project back before the City Council and back to the Coastal Commission in the fall."

> "The City of Malibu and the School District remain committed to working together to advance the project and have had several discussions about next steps since the Coastal Commission's July 12 meeting
> - Steve McClary Malibu City Manager

"We want to thank Malibu parents, staff and community members who shared and expressed the urgency to the Coastal Commission regarding the schedule of this project," said SMMUSD Superintendent Dr. Antonio Shelton. "Our Malibu students deserve this state-of-the-art educational facility as soon as possible and we seek to prevent further delays that will cost local taxpayers money."

On July 10, 2023, the Malibu City Council voted unanimously to respectfully request that the CCC deny the one-year extension requested by its staff and sent a letter to the CCC requesting that the item be placed on a CCC meeting agenda as soon as possible so that the school could be built without further delay. Delays due to the Woolsey Fire and the COVID-19 pandemic had already caused costly delays, and the one-year delay proposed by the CCC staff could raise construction costs to the point that the project could become infeasible, according to the SMMUSD.

The Local Coastal Plan Amendment (LCPA) must be approved by the Coastal Commission and adopted by the City. The amendment to the Local Coastal Plan (Specific Plan) will allow the Malibu Campus Plan to be implemented in four phases over the next 10 to 15 years. Each phase of the Specific Plan will have a Coastal Development Permit approved by City Planning to be constructed. Phase 1 of the campus plan includes a new high school building, restoration of the surrounding Environmentally Sensitive Habitat Area (ESHA) and associated development. Phase 1 is fully funded by general obligation bond Measure M, which was passed overwhelmingly by voters in November 2018.

The City and the SMMUSD are committed to working constructively with the CCC to advance the project so that we can meet the educational needs of the Malibu community.

Supervisor Lindsey P. Horvath Unanimously Selected to Chair the Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority

Months after appointing herself to serve on the Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority (LAHSA), Supervisor Lindsey P. Horvath succeeds the Honorable Wendy Greuel as the next Chair of LAHSA. Furthering her mission to create a homeless response and service system that is transparent and accountable to Angelenos, and that moves with urgency to address the humanitarian crisis, Supervisor Horvath's role as Chair of LAHSA is precedent-setting, becoming the first elected official to assume the role of chair.

Supervisor Horvath becomes chair following her unanimously supported motion before the Board of Supervisors to declare homelessness an emergency in Los Angeles County, expediting and expanding homelessness response efforts focused on: encampment resolution, housing, and mental health and substance use disorder services. Four weeks later, the Board adopted the largest budget in County history to address the crisis in our communities.

"As author of LA County's homelessness emergency declaration and in partnership with Mayor Bass and our regional leaders, I am honored to take up the gavel as the next Chair of LAHSA. We must use our seats of power to do absolutely everything we can to center the experiences of unhoused people in our work and to drive effective and efficient service delivery across the region," said LAHSA Chair Lindsey P. Horvath. "We have serious work ahead of us to strengthen the impact and accountability of LAHSA as we continue the critical work of housing those who are living on our streets while also acting urgently to prevent more Angelenos from falling into homelessness."

Through her leadership role on the LAHSA Commission, Chair Horvath seeks to strengthen LAHSA's governance structure by bringing City and County leaders together at one table to expedite homelessness solutions. Following the recent release of the 2023 Homeless Count, Chair Horvath will make more frequent and reliable data sharing a priority during her one-year term as Chair.

Chair Horvath looks forward to advancing regional solutions to homelessness alongside her Board of Supervisor colleagues; Mayor Karen Bass; LAHSA Commissioners and new CEO Dr. Va Lecia Adams Kellum; and local cities while maximizing federal and state support as Los Angeles leads its emergency homelessness response with the care and services necessary to get people off the streets and safely indoors.

Tuesday in August, Santa Monica's event will be helf from 5:30 - 8:30 p.m.

"As our community's Chief of Police, it is an absolute honor and a pleasure to invite you to this year's National Night Out, hosted by the SMPD on the lawn in front of historic Santa Monica City Hall," said Police Chief Ramon Batista. "This is my second NNO in Santa Monica and I know this year's theme, "Everyone is a Superhero" will eclipse 2022… and it comes at exactly the right time. Now is the time to show our friends, our neighbors, and especially our kids that we are looking out for one another. We possess the power to make a difference in our community, and we want to celebrate the incredible impact we can have when we embrace your inner superhero. Let's all take "If you see something, say something" and "Know your Neighbor," two of our favorite ideals, to the next level!"

Police officers and their equipment will be on hand in addition to community entertainment, food, music and family-friendly activities.

Some of this year's sponsors include the Santa Monica Police Officers Association, 7-Eleven, LaCroix, Boston Properties, Santa Monica Travel & Tourism, Target, Starbucks, Lucky Duck, Friends of Sunset Park, and Miracle Mile Advisors.

Big Blue Bus will be offering free rides to and from the event. Free rides will be available on all Big Blue Bus routes that serve Downtown Santa Monica, between 4:30 and 9:30 p.m. on Tuesday (8/1). Riders can simply mention they are heading to National Night Out.

"The Santa Monica Police Department is proud to join forces with BBB to ensure all have free access to this year's National Night Out," said SMPD in a statement. "We hope that you will take advantage of this opportunity to ride Big Blue Bus to the event and join your neighbors in building a safer and more caring community. If you need to keep your "Batmobile-like" vehicle close by, there will also be free parking in the Civic Center Parking Structure."

SMPD's National Night Out event will be held on Tuesday, August 1, at City Hall (1685 Main Street) from 5:30 - 8:30 p.m.

"I'm glad I met him," Will said. "He's a definite must-have for dog owners, he cleaned my carpets and couches after my chihuahua made a mess of them. And not only did my place look new after he was done, but he was so professional and personable. I also love that it's a family business."

After living in Venice for five years, Wyatt said the warm reception his business has received from on the Westside from his friends and neighbors is now allowing him to expand his business to the South Bay, Long Beach, and the Valley.

"As a small business owner, the Westside community has welcomed us and given us so much positive feedback about our company that keeps inspiring us to reach higher," Wyatt said.

Along with further expanding his business into Los Angeles Wyatt also plans to franchise his company in hopes of bringing his EasiClean methods and care to residents and businesses all over California.

"Knowing that we're creating a healthy home or healthy business makes it so rewarding," Wyatt said. "The skills that I applied as a professional athlete to entrepreneurship were hard work, discipline, and consistency. Those three skills have helped me become the success I was in Track and Field that transferred to the success that I am today."

Until recently, lieutenant governors rarely ascended to the California governor's seat

GARRY SOUTH

Given that two of the last four California governors – Gavin Newsom and Gray Davis – acceded to the position after serving as lieutenant governor, some might assume that it is fairly logical and almost automatic for the No. 2 to advance to No. 1.

Well, that would be wrong.

In the entire 173-year history of the state, only three sitting lieutenant governors have ever been elected governor. The first time was in 1922 – fully 72 years into that history. The second time was 76 years later: Davis in 1998. And Davis was also the first-ever Democratic understudy to be elected governor. Newsom was only the second.

Not only has it been a rare occurrence for lieutenant governors to become governor, but in modern times it has actually been more common for lieutenant governors to downsize themselves by running for and being elected to Congress, going from No. 2 in the largest state to one of 435.

John Garamendi in 2009, in the middle of his first term as lieutenant governor, left to run successfully for Congress in a special election. Before that, former Democratic lieutenant governor Mervyn Dymally, having lost his re-election bid in 1978, ran for and won a congressional seat in 1980. Democrat Glenn Anderson, lieutenant governor from 1959 to 1967, was also defeated running for a third term, and came back in 1968 to snare a congressional seat.

Were these promotions or demotions?

Other recent lieutenant governors have failed to move up – or down – to anything. The most recent was Cruz Bustamante, who offered himself up as a replacement for Davis in the 2003 recall and failed miserably, garnering only 31% of the vote as the only significant Democrat on the ballot. His ignominy was compounded three years later when he was demolished running as sitting down slightly [compared to last year] but we're still way down from where we were in January of 2020.

Jennifer Taylor, Economic Development Manager for the City of Santa Monica, added, "We have many businesses and many properties that are being leased and opening, so vacancies are definitely dropping, but they're noticeable because some have large shop frontage.

"We have a lot of interesting popups right now too, from Barbie to Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. So combined, those are all really helping to create destinations and experiences, which then are helping to support our brick and mortar businesses, our restaurants and retailers, and attract new ones."

Councilmember Caroline Torosis inquired as to whether any corporate landlords had reached out to the city regarding potentially sub-dividing some of the larger leases to offer an incentive to different types of business and potential tenants to come to the Promenade.

"We're in ongoing talks with a number of property owners, potential perspective businesses and commercial brokers about the size of spaces that people need," Taylor said, adding, "And I think there is definitely interest, particularly if there was city support besides just the zoning and permitting, like grants, revolving loan funds.

"We've also talked about working with property owners to create demonstration pop-up spaces so that they're plug-and-play ready to go and opposed to moving to different sites and needing whole new building permits."

Councilmember Phil Brock asked about getting businesses opened faster. "I still hear some of the same issues that I've heard for the last couple of years. And how do we get businesses permitted faster? How do we get their contracts signed? How do we get their inspections done?

"I heard twice today from a cool store that's trying to open on the Promenade, they just want their inspections, they're eager to open. How do we grease the wheel to get some of them open?"

David Martin, Community Development Director, responded, "It's a combination of many things. Eliminating a CUP [Conditional Use Permit] process takes six months off the timeframe … We were down several inspectors, and we've hired all but one position, so once that person's onboard, we'll be up to full staff in terms of inspectors. We'll be able to get much closer to that next day inspection that we've enjoyed for many years and haven't had in the last couple years."

Martin added, "For the first time since the pandemic, our counter is open to walk-ins … and some things can be done over the counter, so it makes it much easier to pull those permits."

Taylor added that boba tea outlet Odd One Out is set to move into the empty 1200 block kiosk on the Third Street Promenade. "We don't have the funding to tear down the kiosk now and there's actually really strong demand to activate the kiosks," she said.

Following some additional discussion and debate regarding the Covered 6 proposal, council rolled everything into one motion and voted unanimously 7-0 to approve: the DTSM Fiscal Year 2023-24 Budget and Work Plan; extend the the allowance of community events held at Lot 27 (452 Arizona Ave) for another two years and to temporarily activate the city-owned lot at 1318 4th Street for community events; the addition of operating a Promenade vending cart program for four additional years; the activation of the Parking Structure 6 (1431 2nd St) rooftop space as an outdoor movie theater; to adopt a finding of categorical exemption pursuant to Section 15301 of the California Environmental Quality Act guidelines.

lieutenant governor for lowly insurance commissioner – giving Bustamante the honor of being the last Democrat to lose an open-seat race for statewide office.

Lt. Gov. Mike Curb, the last Republican to hold the seat by beating then-incumbent Dymally in 1978, ran for the Republican nomination for governor in '82, and was handily beaten by George Deukmejian. Curb even came back in '86 and tried to reclaim his old job against incumbent Democrat Leo McCarthy – and was humiliated.

And speaking of McCarthy – California's longest-serving lieutenant governor, at three terms – he never ran for governor, but he did try twice for U.S. Senate while holding the post. In 1988, he easily won the Democratic nomination, but was defeated in the general election by Pete Wilson – conferring on McCarthy the distinction of being the last Democrat to be bested by a Republican in a California Senate race. He tried again in '92 as sitting lieutenant governor, but didn't even make it out of the primary, defeated by Barbara Boxer.

I bring up all of this arcane history because the current lieutenant governor, Eleni Kounalakis, in her second term, has already announced that she is running to succeed Newsom in the seemingly faraway 2026 election. She won't be alone as the only woman running to be the first female governor of the biggest state, since former two-term controller Betty Yee also has publicly declared she will be running.

Based on Newsom's success in becoming governor after two terms as second-in-command, there might be a certain inevitability in Kounalakis' bid. Her camp is certainly furiously pushing that narrative. She may well win, although it's way too early to tell.

But, again, more California lieutenant governors have failed to win higher office than have succeeded. Running for anything as sitting lieutenant governor has been a decidedly mixed bag in recent history.

Garry South is a veteran Democratic strategist who has managed four campaigns for governor of California and two for lieutenant governor. This article was originally published by CalMatters.

rate when a new tenant moves in), from establishing rent control on any unit first occupied after Feb. 1 1995, in single family homes or condominiums.

The newly qualified measure, known as the Justice for Renters Act, would repeal Costa-Hawkins

"This measure would repeal that state law and would prohibit the state from limiting the right of cities and counties to maintain, enact, or expand residential rent-control ordinances," said the announcement.

Similar propositions have been put to the public twice in recent years. Prop. 10 failed by 19 points in 2018 and Prop. 21 also failed by a similar margin in 2020.

A more recent state law put a California-wide cap on rent hikes of no more than 5% plus inflation with an absolute maximum of 10% (in Santa Monica, rent control increases are capped at 3% after voters reduced it from 6% in the last election).

Backers of the act submitted more than 810,000 signatures and officials verified over 617,000 signatures—substantially more than the 546,651 valid California voter signatures required by its random sample count method to qualify the measure to go before voters in November 2024.

At a virtual press conference, Michael Weinstein, the controversial head of the Los Angeles-based AIDS Healthcare Foundation and the chief financial backer of all three campaigns to date, said the third time may be the charm — if only because the rent continues to be too damn high for so many Californians.

"The situation has gotten so extreme and dire and catastrophic.... We can never give up, that's the bottom line," he said.

> "Costa-Hawkins has been in place in Santa Monica for 24 years. This law has single-handedly eroded the affordability of our controlled stock and stymied the mobility of renters up and down the state. Any common sense changes to it are welcome"
> - Anastasia Foster Rent Control Commissioner

Several prominent Santa Monicans including former elected officials, SMRR leadership and community advocates (Tony Vasquez, Sue Himmelrich, Denny Zane and Ernie Powell) have been backing the measure.

Rent Control Commissioner Anastasia Foster said changes are necessary.

"Costa-Hawkins has been in place in Santa Monica for 24 years. This law has single-handedly eroded the affordability of our controlled stock and stymied the mobility of renters up and down the state. Any common sense changes to it are welcome," she said. "While we need new affordable housing, our rent-controlled stock has been the cornerstone of the ability to stay in our community for renters of every income level. Costa-Hawkins should be amended to keep California's great cities diverse and accessible to all."

RENT: The Justice for Renters Act has qualified for the 2024 election.

The California Apartment Association (CAA) opposes the measure saying it would drastically slow the construction of affordable housing and contribute to the state's homelessness crisis.

An estimate of the measures fiscal impact by the Legislative Analyst and Director of Finance said the measure had the potential to reduce state and local revenues in the high tens of millions of dollars per year over time but depending on actions by local communities, revenue losses could be less or more.

PLACE YOUR CLASSIFIED HERE

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (July 31)

Your cosmic birthday gift is fierce commitment, both from you to what you care about and from other people toward you. More highlights: You'll win all the votes. A large group carries on a project you started while you head to the next exciting adventure. Small changes in your routine consistently executed over months bring your dream to you. Taurus and Capricorn adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 13, 37, 16, 3 and 8.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). At first it seems like the day is a heap of actionable items with your name on them. But once you sort problems into the categories "mine" and "theirs," you'll find that you don't have as much to worry about as you thought.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You'll feel compelled to take on a mystery. You may not know quite where you're going with the project, and that's what makes it so fun. You'll stick with the work until it tells you what it wants to be.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Awkward realness is better than smooth fakeness. Be wary of nonspecific or robotic interactions. You're unique and will appreciate attention that speaks to your distinctive qualities, or at least seems based on the moment instead of on a script.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You'll be reminded that it's within your power to decide what things mean. Society's definition may fit, but all things being equal, you'd rather put your own spin on it. Perspective is a custom job.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Life is about living, not about judging. You're living just the way you like it, with so many interesting things going on in your life that the only business you have the time to mind is your own.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You are persuasive without meaning to be. Knowing that people will notice and copy what you do, you're careful to choose actions that, if exponentially multiplied, would have a positive impact on the world.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). When one person plays many roles in your life, it puts both of you in a precarious position. Be like a director casting a whole company of players on the stage of your life. The more the merrier.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Either your creativity takes a turn toward the romantic or your romance gets creative, but the result is the same: love is art. Each interaction is unique and you're fully there for the experience.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Because you're an open-minded, curious, lifelong learner, most days you add to your knowledge and skills without even trying to. Now a more concentrated effort will be fortunate. A special training will have a lucrative end.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You're holding on to something unnecessarily. Drop it and move on. This might be about forgiveness. Everyone has learned their lesson and it won't come up again. Lighter, brighter and more playful times are ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). There's much going on in the world that you can't do anything about, and listening to it will only drain your energy. Pay attention to your inner broadcast. This is the program that will inspire your brilliant ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). The small task and the large task are equally difficult, so take on the one that will make the biggest positive difference to your mood. Your intuition will nudge you toward a challenge that's just the right size.

WOMEN OF SPACE SERIES: WOMEN IN SPACEFLIGHT

It's been a long time since the flight of Valentina Tereshkova and the frustration of the "Mercury 13," the female aviators in the 1960s who went through the same screening process as the original seven NASA astronauts, without the chance to go into space. Until relatively recently, women in spaceflight saw small breakthroughs, but little wholesale progress. While we now routinely see women in program management and mission commander positions, it has been a struggle, which lecturer Sarah Vincent will chronicle. 8:00 PM - 9:00 PM, Online Event https://www.smc.edu/community/planetarium/

SURF REPORT

WATER TEMP: 69.8

MONDAY FAIR	SURF: 2-3ft Thigh to waist	Little weekend run starts to wind down but there should still be something worth surfing for the better summer exposures. Looking like NW windswell will be dropping to smaller leftovers and be less of a factor in quality.
TUESDAY FAIR	SURF: 2-3ft Thigh to waist	Should still be something worth surfing for the better summer exposures as SSW swell lingers. Shape straightens out a bit with NW windswell dropping to smaller leftovers — less corners for the beachbreaks out west.
