NEWS OF THE WEIRD

BY CHUCK SHEPARD

According to an Associated Press report, Texas House Speaker Tom Craddick told a middle-school class he was visiting in April that the U.S. Congress is different from the Texas legislature, in that in Washington there are “454” members on the House side and “60” in the Senate. (The real numbers are 435 and 100.) And The Kansas City Star, reporting in May on a Missouri legislative debate on the Confederate flag, quoted Rep. Jim Avery as stating that the 1803 Louisiana Purchase involved a fight with France over the territory: “Well, we fought over it. We fought over it, right? You don’t think there were any lives lost in that? It was a friendly thing?” (It appears well-settled in history that the Louisiana Purchase was just a land deal.)

Bayside looks to boost its budget

BY CAROLYN SACKARIASON
Daily Press Staff Writer

DOWNTOWN — Despite financial constraints, officials in the Bayside District have high hopes of making big changes in the coming years to attract more tourists to the area.

Board members of the Bayside District Corp., which manages a 30-block area downtown in conjunction with City Hall, recently approved next year’s proposed $961,900 budget, along with its operations and marketing plan.

It includes new parking and movie theaters, as well as programs that will bring more services to visitors and capital improvement projects that will clean up the area.

Many of the ideas have been batted around for years with no tangible results. However, it does appear that change will be inevitable once plans to redevelop the faltering Santa Monica Place Mall become a reality.

After three years of no increase, City Hall will give Bayside 2 percent more in its subsidy this year, or $620,900. Last year, Bayside received $610,418 from City Hall.

Promenade might give alley cats new home

THIRD STREET PROMENADE — Business leaders are hoping a new venture on the Promenade will lead to a few good strikes.

Members of the Bayside Business District Corp. — a nonprofit organization that regulates downtown businesses with City Hall — supported plans on Thursday for a second-floor property on the Promenade to be converted into an “upscale” bowling alley.

The 14,000-square-foot facility, located above the Armani Exchange clothing store at 1322 Third Street Promenade, is in the process of becoming a 12-lane bowling alley, complete with bar and lounge. It was previously office space and once a Woolworth’s.

The property’s investors are said to have been looking at ways to make an exciting and active use of the empty space, said David Hibbert, a local architect working on the project.

Hibbert said the new bowling alley is still in the conceptual stage. It will require a conditional use permit approved by City Hall before going online. He said the bowling alley, if

Ysidro Reyes: A reflection of SM’s past

BY WINTER JOHNSON
Special to the Daily Press

Ysidro Reyes IV is a child of Santa Monica, and not only because he was born here.

Born in 1911 on 11th Street and Wilshire Boulevard when “there were only three houses on the block,” 93-year-old Reyes is a direct descendant of Spanish soldier Ysidro Reyes, one of Santa Monica’s original Spanish land-grant owners.

The Reyes family made an architectural mark on early Los Angeles, with his great-great-grandfather building the first home in Encino in 1796, called the “Reyes Adobe.” His great-grandfather built the first house in the Pacific Palisades in 1838.

The Reyes Adobe still stands today, labeled as a landmark. The family later sold its land to Colonel Robert S. Baker, one of two men credited with the founding of Santa Monica.

The Santa Monica that Reyes describes differs from the current and growing population of more than 84,000. According to Reyes, the land of his childhood was full of haystacks and sycamore trees, scattered homes and the lowing of cattle.

Contrary to today’s fashions, men in those days had such large mustaches that their teacups had small porcelain barriers to prevent

★★★★-Dynamic ★★★★-Positive ★★★-Average ★★-So-so ★-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Knowing when to cut back and make your life easier could be important. You might want to ask yourself why you are living your life. What are your goals? If you stop and think, not everything involves money and responsibility. Tonight: Home base.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ You have the energy, drive and charm to make others take notice and listen. Use this talent to move a project ahead that could be important to your life. Others prove to be unusually responsive. Tonight: Make yourself available.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Your instincts might be good with money; still, you don't want to do anything that could make a big change or impact your finances badly. Minimize risk, for your sake, even if you feel that you're right-on. Tonight: Check out a purchase carefully.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ The Moon in your sign helps you mobilize others in a powerful and dynamic way. Unusual but true — your words come off a bit harsher than you realize. You want action and will not settle for less. Tonight: Act like top dog.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Evaluate what could happen if you don't take an active position and encourage others to take action. Sometimes being a cheer-leader or supporter proves to be most rewarding. Try out this experience now. Help others do what they want. Tonight: Take some time off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Often, friends play a significant role in your choices. Someone presents a different but dynamic solution. You might want to evaluate this new but risky idea. Remember, if you don't risk in life, you'll never get anything. Tonight: Brainstorm and toss out ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ You might want to stay on top of work and responsibilities. An associate could be critical. If you get too much flak from this person, let him or her run the show. He or she might have a different point of view quite suddenly. Tonight: Don't count on an early night.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You could be surrounded by petty squabbling that could feel a lot more virulent than usual. Let the air clear. It might be smart to detach and not get involved. You will be much happier in the long run. Tonight: Let your mind relax.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Others put in their two cents. You might want to think before you allow more feedback or participation. You have a lot of energy, and if it's directed positively, you'll get a lot done. But be sure to let someone feel that he or she is part of the group. Tonight: A quiet chat.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Let others run with the ball. You have a lot of creativity and ideas. Don't try to push your thoughts on others, though that might be your nature. You might want to take some independent action, if you can. Tonight: Listen to others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Easy does it. You might find upheaval or change impossible to prevent on the personal front. Go with the moment. Funnel your energy into work or a project. Others might be surprised at how much you accomplish. Tonight: Put your feet up.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ You need to carry out an idea or finish up a situation. You need to clear the air by making phone calls and returning your messages. Meetings prove to be provocative, but you have more control than you realize. Tonight: Have fun with a loved one.

Nighttime movie fun on the Santa Monica Pier

By Daily Press staff

Santa Monica is mixing philanthropy and the silver screen through a series of nighttime drive-in movies this summer at the pier.

The Santa Monica Drive-in will feature five movies throughout the month of August to benefit the Cancer Relief Fund. The movies, which will be played every Tuesday, are Back to the Future, Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery, The Sting, Zoolander and West Side Story.

Organizers said last year's events were extremely successful, featuring The Wizard of Oz, Ferris Bueller's Day Off and Super Size Me, and a performance by The Henry Mancini Jazz Alumni Quintet. In addition, several celebrities, including Sandra Bullock and Cuba Gooding Jr., made appearances at the events.

All proceeds from the events support Arts Fighting Cancer programs and help fund the Cancer Relief Fund. Last year's drive-in helped financially support more than 25 families going through treatment. Founded in 1999, Arts Fighting Cancer is a nonprofit organization that promotes the filmmaking and the arts while raising funds to benefit those fighting cancer, officials say.

The Santa Monica Drive-in begins Aug. 2 and ends on Aug. 30. Doors open at 7 p.m. Admission is free, but tickets are required to enter. Tickets can be found at the Santa Monica Convention and Visitor's Bureau, 1920 Main St., suite B; the CVB kiosk in Santa Monica Place Mall and on the Third Street Promenade, as well as the visitor's center at 1400 Ocean Ave. Call the CVB at (310) 319-6263 for more information, or check www.smff.com.

Animal-rights activists are criticizing City Hall for its attempts to reduce the local population of squirrels — the fleas of which can carry disease — by setting out pesticide bait traps. Officials, who say the city stopped setting the traps in late June, contend the measure was necessary in the interest of public health.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Public input falling on deaf ears

Editor:

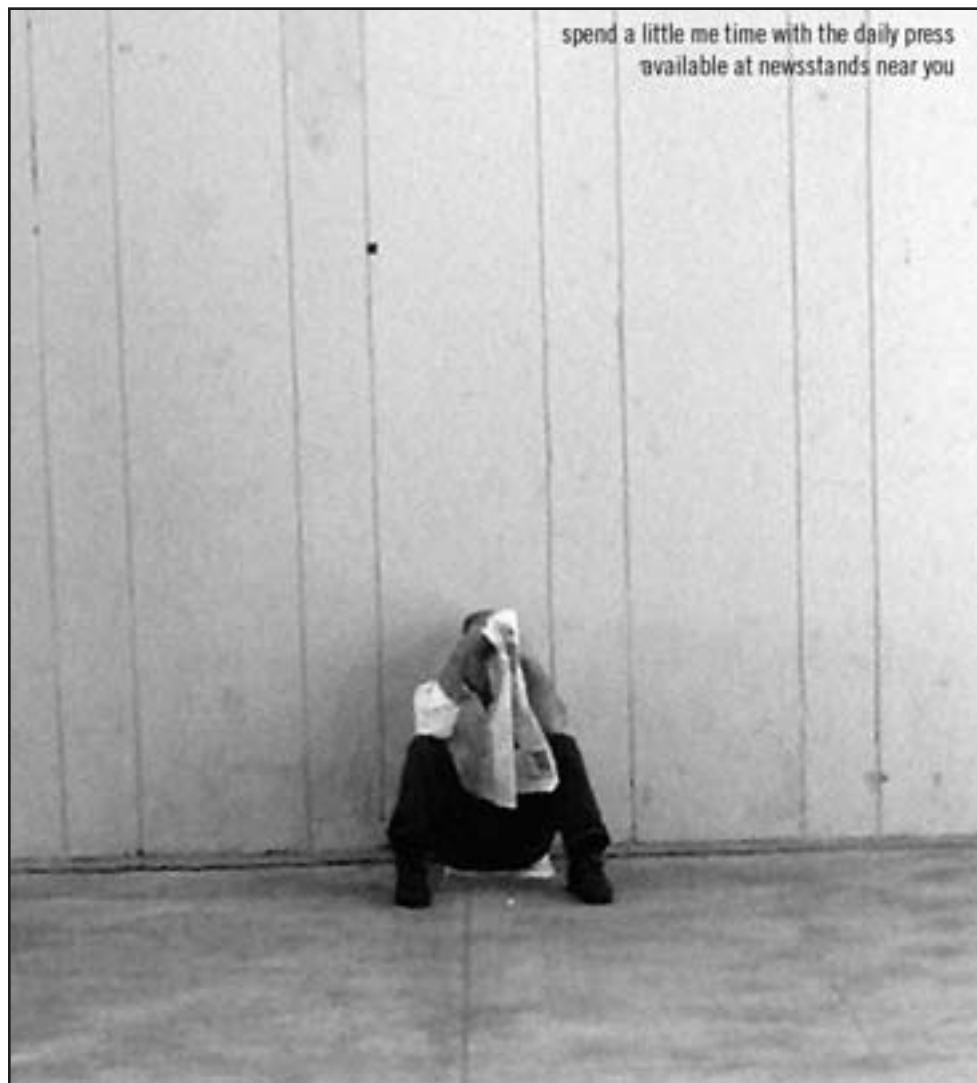

I noted the letter to the editor from Mr. Katz (SMDP, July 26, page 6) mildly berating Ms. Groves, and am forced to comment. While the City Council does actively pursue comments from the public, they often completely ignore comments from the citizens, probably because the council considers they don't understand the facts.

A case in point is the recent decision to put a small park on Euclid Street. Your paper reported several meetings of the council with the local residents, during which a vast majority of the citizens objected to the park, stating their fears that it would become "a magnet for the homeless who would use the park as a bedroom/outdoor bathroom."

The council thanked the people for their input, and then overwhelmingly approved the park.

If they don't put a restroom in the park, I'm sure the citizens' predictions will come true.

Planning decisions not neighborhood friendly

MY WRITE

BY BILL BAUER

You'd think that when a proposed building project is short 96 on-site parking places, the Planning Commission would turn it down. Not in Santa Monica. Especially when it's an "activist" church.

Commissioners at the July 20 Planning Commission meeting unanimously approved an application for a conditional use permit (CUP) by the Unitarian Universalist Community Church to expand without providing any additional parking space as required by code. That's on top of the 84 required spaces the church already lacked.

Two weeks ago, the church requested permission to expand onto adjacent property next to their present sanctuary at 1260 18th St., and convert a single-family house and garage into an office and nursery facility.

A three-phase building program includes expansion of the church sanctuary from seating for 201 worshippers to 240, construction of a two-story classroom addition to the social hall and adding a total of three on-site parking spaces.

The church also asked to be declared a legal, nonconforming use and for a waiver of the requirement for 12 additional parking spaces. City staff and commissioners agreed that this project is "good for the neighborhood."

Wait a minute.

Being that there is no on-site parking to begin with and the church is short so much parking, how could this be good for a neighborhood plagued by a dire shortage of on-street parking?

The church now has an agreement to share parking at UCLA-Santa Monica Hospital's parking lot 500 feet away on Sunday mornings. Although the project's architect, Ralph Mechur, has said the arrangement is not likely to change, that agreement could be terminated on short notice. Then what?

The church hosts many community meetings throughout the week in addition to its own activities. Hospital parking access is limited weekdays, so there's even more demand for already inadequate on-street parking.

I'm sure commissioners wouldn't grant this kind of parking variance to any other developer. The bottom line is that by allowing any entity to develop and expand without providing adequate on-site parking exacerbates parking problems throughout the city. It's just bad planning — and even more irresponsible when requests are granted based on emotion, favoritism or as a reward for political correctness.

I wrote (Daily Press, March 12, 2004, page 6) when a similar proposal for a CUP and variance was approved, that commissioners were really rewarding the church for supporting liberal pro-homeless policies, labor issues such as the Living Wage, affordable housing and other favorite City Hall and Santa Monicans For Renters' Rights social causes.

I noted, then, that Commissioners Darrel Clarke and Jay Johnson were both married in the church and should recuse themselves from voting. They didn't then and voted for the CUP and variance, again. So much for objectivity.

Even more insulting were commissioners' comments to concerned neighbors such as "we're glad you came out to speak," "stay involved" and "we value your input." Commissioners weren't even honest enough to tell it the way it really is: "Talk all you want. We'll still do it our way."

Most troublesome was when commissioner Julie Lopez Dad, who has always favored this project, left the meeting, followed politically connected Ralph Mechur to a hallway, threw her arms around him and gushed, "I'm so glad you won. It's a great project for the community." No wonder people are fed up with the system.

Most of the planning commissioners live in single-family homes north of Montana Avenue or in Sunset Park. Parking isn't a problem for them. I'll bet the family Buick they'd vote differently if they had to drive around for a half hour every night before finding a parking space six blocks from home.

At the same meeting, commissioners granted car dealerships the right to construct multi-level parking garages up to 28 feet high on residentially zoned lots currently used by the dealerships. This action grandfathers in all dealer parking structure applications before the revised general plan is approved.

Every auto dealership in town will have a multi-story parking lot on their premises even if the revised general plan were to limit or ban them. It's just another example of bad planning, Santa Monica style, and smells of political back-scratching.

Somehow, none of this bodes well for a livable community and resident-friendly, low-scale development in our future.

District might raise the fees paid by merchants

Bayside raised $336,000 on its own through filming and special events fees, as well as central business district assessments.

"It's a healthy sign that a third of the budget is generated by Bayside," said Kathleen Rawson, executive director of Bayside.

City Hall collects $2.3 million from four different fees assessed to property owners and tenants downtown, which is then transferred to the general fund and less than half is given to Bayside.

Some officials and merchants question where the rest of the money goes and think more of it should go into the Bayside District, especially since it's the main economic engine that drives tourism.

That's why Bayside hopes to continue adding to its revenue stream through its own means, such as special events and filming permits.

"The more we can generate the better," said Bayside board member John Warfel.

But officials also recognize that new programs and services can't be realized from current revenue streams. That's why they are considering passing even more of the cost of doing business onto merchants and property owners through new assessments, as well as expanding the business district. If the estimated goal of $1 million a year can be raised, it will further Bayside's goals.

"We need to find ways to create a downtown plan that is vital for the next 19 years," Rawson told the board in June. She added that the Third Street Promenade has been largely successful over the past two decades because of the initial investments made to it. But now it's time to re-invest.

City Hall already has committed to giving Bayside $3.4 million for capital improvements in the downtown area. A $91 million downtown parking plan also is in the works.

And even though it faces challenges, including limited financial resources in marketing in an increasingly competitive market, Rawson said she is excited about the possibilities.

"I don't know what this organization looks like in 12 months, but it almost feels like a new job," she said.

Bayside plots slight growth

By Daily Press staff

Financial growth is expected to be minimal next year for the organization that manages downtown Santa Monica.

Bayside District officials estimate that they will see a 7 percent increase in revenue for 2005-06 — $961,900 compared to $931,786 last fiscal year.

Bayside officials also predict that they will spend all of that revenue this year, leaving a zero balance in 2006, according to the budget. Last year, there was a $57,001 balance. In 2004-05, Bayside's total expenditures amounted to $874,785.

Salaries and other personnel costs account for a large portion of next year's budget — $401,900, a 1.6 percent increase over last year. A slight savings was realized last year in that category because of a staff change and because Bayside's executive director, Kathleen Rawson, didn't take a raise.

Administration, which includes rent, general office supplies, telephones, professional services and insurance, accounts for $167,890 in next year's budget — a 3.2 percent increase over last year.

Business development, which includes costs associated with holding meetings and hiring consultants, is proposed to cost Bayside $46,250. Bayside's newsletter, the Bayside Beat, will cost $69,000 this year.

Another $99,000 will be spent on holiday events and maintenance, including the costs associated with decor, security and advertising. Two new events will be added to downtown, which will increase Bayside's community and merchant costs to $10,000. Last year, it was $4,000.

Bayside will spend $75,000 on advertising in local and regional markets, which is a 15.4 percent increase over last year. Bayside also will spend $32,000 on visitor guides and $38,000 on street lighting.

Minimizing sound a consideration

Santa Monica has another bowling alley within one mile, located at 234 Pico Blvd., across the street from the Civic Center.

Although Bayside board members were hoping for a terrace to accompany the bowling alley, Hibbert said he is not certain it will be possible.

Access to the site includes a steel stairwell and elevator that connects to the Armani Exchange. In addition, there is another service elevator behind the building.

Bayside board members expressed optimism that the bowling alley will be a good addition to the Promenade.

"This will bring an added entertainment element, with a good and innovative second-floor use," said Bayside vice chair

John Warfel.

However, some have expressed concern that the bowling alley might be too loud. One neighbor, which occupies an office next door, sent a letter to Bayside requesting assurances that excess noise would be addressed by the property owner.

Bayside board members didn't feel it was their place to make such a requirement. Rob York, a Bayside retail consultant, said the bowling alley would be inside a building made of concrete walls.

Hibbert said he has designed well-insulated music recording studios throughout his career. He would like to use the same technology on the bowling alley.

"It's a high-density rubber, and it works really well," Hibbert said. "Recording studios make more noise than that building will."

facial hair from dunking in their beverages; Reyes has such an antique in his home, property of his great-grandfather.

Transitioning from his boyhood days, Reyes has, since his graduation from University High School, built his career as a mortician, an occupation he still practices on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at Gates, Kingsley & Gates Moeller Murphy in Santa Monica.

Reyes met his wife after the war, and they were married in 1948 at St. Monica Catholic Church. Now boasting two daughters and six grandchildren, the couple still resides in Santa Monica today.

A World War II navy veteran and an advocate of the free press, Reyes has served on many community organizations during his lifetime, including the Santa Monica branch of the American Cancer Society and the Santa Monica-Brentwood Kiwanis Club.

The Daily Press caught up with Reyes to discuss his values and opinions about Santa Monica.

Do you feel you've seen Santa Monica change for the better or for the worse?

"Both. Three things that Santa Monica has: a good private police department, a good fire department and a good bus department. As for public works, they don't pay attention, and for the other departments, you can forget it. I never get into politics because they don't tell you the truth anyway. On the bad side, we used to have three governments: the mayor, the commissioner of finance and the commissioner of public works. Now you've got these people in public office with stuff between their ears. Some of these people run for ego. Herman Michael was the last good mayor, who was president of the Edgemar Milk Company. City government is a business today, and popularity is not the answer. In my lifetime, I've never seen such a mess in this city. Clean out the monkeys that are running the city now."

What do you think Santa Monica needs?

"It's got a great future, but the problem with Santa Monica is that we don't have a good newspaper. The daily paper that comes out is trying to get in to do something, and I hope that they have the background and the support of this community so that they can bring these things to the people's attention. Sure, I don't agree with everything they say, but the press is fundamental to the independence of this country. You gotta have someone to find out what's going on. These people down in City Hall are going to run down the gauntlet."

What do you think about the homeless situation in Santa Monica?

"I think it's a problem that has to be dealt with by the city government, not me. It's too bad that we have them. You can go down as far as Hermosa Beach, and they don't have them because we have them all here, due to the parks here. Something has to be done. I feel sorry for those people, but some of them could get a job if they wanted. I admire some of these guys who go up and down the alleys picking up bottles trying to make a living. But they're just bums in my book. We harbor them here, and it's not my responsibility. It's their responsibility."

What is your favorite place in Santa Monica?

"The parks, especially Palisades Park. There's no place in California that has the parks like we have here."

What's your philosophy on life?

"Treat people right. Respect people. Don't try to bully me and try to push me out of the way, because I will just ignore you. Without people you get nowhere. You're nobody individually. People make you. It takes all types of people to make a community. Progress is all about education. Without that, forget it. There ought to be more money in education than anything else. There used to be an old saying, 'The world owes me a living,' but the world doesn't owe you anything, you have to make it. There's no big shots in this world. They all contain the same amount of iron and blood. If someone says, 'I'm better than you are,' that's a lot of malarkey."

What piece of advice would you give the next generation?

"The advice I would give is for them to educate themselves. Education is a fundamental thing for anybody. If you don't know anything, you will be guessing, and there are no more guessing games today. You have to have a foundation, and that is education. The pen is mightier than the sword. I think if a person is not able to take care of their own children, they should not have any more children. Stop playing around."

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

Know before you go is a weekly update on construction projects throughout Santa Monica. Here are the construction projects initiated by City Hall for the week of Aug. 1:

Cingular telecommunications lines

Cingular is installing telecommunication lines on San Vicente Boulevard between 17th and 19th streets. There may be detours around the work area.

Civic Center parking structure

Construction of a new 900-space Civic Center public parking structure located on Fourth Street, next to the Public Safety Facility, continues. Construction will require the closure of Avenida Mazatlan and the Fourth Street sidewalk. One lane of southbound Fourth Street is subject to closure while work is occurring. There also may be delays entering the Civic Center parking lot from Fourth Street. Use the Main Street entrance.

Gas Company main replacement

Southern California Gas Company is replacing a 4-inch main on Ocean Park Boulevard between 14th and 16th streets. There will be detours around work areas. Follow posted signs.

LADWP electrical transmission line repair

The city of Los Angeles Department of Water & Power has begun emergency electrical transmission line repair at 2677 Centinela Ave., just north of Ocean Park Boulevard. LADWP anticipates that repair work will take several months. The target completion date is Aug. 30. Construction crews will work from approximately 8 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. daily. During construction, one lane of Centinela Avenue just north of Ocean Park Boulevard will be blocked. There also may be some impact to parking along Ocean Park between S. Bundy Drive and Centinela Avenue. Call LADWP at 1-866-546-9997 for more information.

Main Library

Construction is underway on the new main library, located at 601 Santa Monica Blvd. During construction visit the temporary library at 1324 Fifth St. or any of the branch libraries. There is currently no sidewalk access on Santa Monica Boulevard, Sixth Street and Seventh Street adjacent to the project.

Memorial and Los Amigos parks

Demolition of existing park buildings and construction of new restrooms, concession stands and storage buildings. Park buildings will be inaccessible during construction. Memorial Park is located at Olympic Boulevard and 14th Street, and Los Amigos Park is located at Fifth and Hollister streets.

On-Fiber telecommunications lines

On-Fiber is installing telecommunication lines on 26th Street from north of Colorado Boulevard to Pennsylvania Street, and along Pennsylvania Street from 26th Street to Stewart Street. There may be detours around the work area.

Street and park lighting project

Work continues on upgrading street lighting with new fixtures and circuits. The contractor is currently installing new poles and lights. Construction for the project occurs in the sidewalk area and may impact pedestrians, vehicles and park visitors. Parking restrictions also will be in place immediately adjacent to the work areas. This work is currently scheduled to occur on Colorado between Ocean Avenue and Sixth Street; Fifth Street from Colorado to Santa Monica Boulevard; between Seventh Street and Euclid Street; Santa Monica Boulevard from Sixth to 12th streets; and Wilshire Boulevard from Seventh to Euclid streets, as well as Marine and Clover parks.

Seismic retrofit of parking structure No. 5

Seismic retrofitting is underway on Fourth Street between Broadway and Santa Monica Boulevard to bring it up to current code requirements and enable it to better withstand future earthquakes. Additional work will improve access for those with disabilities. During construction, the parking structures will remain in full operation, and plenty of parking will be available. However, there may be some added congestion around the entrances and exits.

Traffic signal upgrade

The transportation management division is upgrading traffic signals on Ocean Park Boulevard at Cloverfield Boulevard and at 23rd Street. There will be detours around the work area. However, the contractor will maintain at a minimum one lane in each direction on all streets. For information on this project, please call (310) 458-4982.

Virginia Avenue Park

Major renovations at the park, located at the corner of Pico and Cloverfield boulevards, are expected to continue through fall. The park is closed at this time. This project also includes construction of new turning lanes, traffic signals, striping, and irrigation and landscaping on Cloverfield and Pico boulevards adjacent to the park.

Scott Peterson thanks supporters on web site

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Double murderer Scott Peterson, convicted of killing his wife and unborn son, has issued his first public message via the Web — a thank you to supporters — since he was condemned to death in Modesto in December.

“For me, the amount of support we have received is just incredible,” he writes in a note dated July 21 from San Quentin prison on a Web site hosted by the Canadian Coalition Against the Death Penalty, based in Toronto.

“Those who have decided to reach out to our family have made such a difference. In every conversation among our family there is always the mention of your thoughts and letters. At mail call I am encouraged by, and enjoy hearing from people.” The short message is bordered by a drawing of barbed wire and features a photo of Peterson in a suit sitting at a defense table in court.

“Coming soon,” the site promises, “family photos, holidays.” There are also downloads of court documents, links to sites supporting Peterson’s innocence and an appeal to “send Scott messages of support” to his new home on death row.

Peterson says in the message he would like to respond with personal notes but some receiving his letters have sold them and sometimes “fabricated content.”

Peterson does not have Internet access on death row. His note was posted on the site by the Canadian group which hosts similar pages on behalf of some 500 death row inmates.

Peterson was convicted of killing his pregnant wife, Laci, on Christmas Eve 2002 in a case that riveted the nation. Laci Peterson’s body and the tiny corpse of her unborn son were found on the shore of San Francisco Bay months after she disappeared.

Peterson’s attorneys have filed for a new trial.

Roller coaster accident at Disney’s California Adventure injures 15

By The Associated Press

ANAHEIM — One train rear-ended another on the “California Screamin” roller coaster at Disney’s California Adventure theme park Friday night, slightly injuring 15 people, authorities said.

Most of those injured suffered minor neck and back injuries, Anaheim city spokesman John Nicoletti told reporters outside the park.

“At this point we don’t have a cause,” he said of the accident, which was reported at 6:39 p.m. Nicoletti said investigators with the California Division of Occupational Safety and Health had been contacted and would investigate.

He said the crash happened near the end of the ride, on a horizontal stretch of the roller coaster and not one of its steep drops where cars reach a speed of 55 mph. He compared it to a minor “fender-bender” traffic accident.

ment late Friday night saying Disney officials were “taking all necessary steps to help those affected by this incident.”

“The safety and security of our guests is our highest priority,” the statement said.

Disney’s California Adventure, which opened in 2001, was designed to turn Disneyland into a resort destination, much like Disney theme parks in Florida, Paris and Tokyo.

Disney spent $1.4 billion to build California Adventure, an adjacent hotel and a retail strip filled with restaurants and shops. California Adventure’s main attractions include “Soarin’ Over California,” where people are lifted 40 feet in the air to give the sensation of hang-gliding, and “California Screamin”, which hits a speed of 55 mph in about 4 seconds.

Friday’s crash was the second accident in four months at a Disneyland Resort park in Anaheim.

It sent a fleet of 18 ambulances racing to the park, which is part of the Disneyland Resort complex and is located adjacent to the venerable Disneyland amusement park, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year.

The roller coaster was closed immediately after the accident but other portions of the park remained open.

Nicoletti said 48 people were on the two coasters when the accident occurred. Eight people had to be helped off the ride by emergency personnel, while the other 40 were able to make their way to an adjacent catwalk and exit on their own.

Fifteen people were taken to a hospital, while the remainder were examined at the scene and released.

The hospitalized included two children whose ages were not immediately available.

The Disneyland Resort issued a state-

In March, a 4-year-old boy broke a finger and severed the tip of his thumb while on the Storybook Land Canal Boats ride at Disneyland, forcing the ride to close for nearly two days while state authorities investigated the accident.

The accident occurred when the child’s fingers were pinched between the boat and the dock while passengers were unloading.

Four people were hurt in December when a float at a Disneyland parade struck them. One of the four was treated at a hospital.

In 2003, a 22-year-old man was killed and 10 people were injured when Disneyland’s Big Thunder Mountain Railroad roller coaster derailed. The California Division of Occupational Safety and Health concluded the accident that killed Marcelo Torres, 22, of Gardena was the result of mechanical failure caused by improper maintenance.

Astronomers claim discovery of 10th planet in solar system

BY ALICIA CHANG

AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES — Astronomers announced Friday that they have discovered a new planet larger than Pluto in orbit around the sun.

The finding will likely renew debate over what exactly is a planet and whether Pluto should keep its status.

The unnamed object — the farthest-known object in the solar system — is currently 9 billion miles away from the sun, or about three times Pluto's current distance from the sun. Astronomers do not know its exact size, but its brightness shows that it is at least as large as Pluto and could be up to 1 1/2 times bigger.

"This is the first object to be confirmed to be larger than Pluto in the outer solar system," Michael Brown, a planetary scientist at the California Institute of Technology, said in a telephone briefing.

The briefing was hastily arranged after Brown received word that a secure Web site containing the discovery was hacked and the hacker threatened to release the information.

Brown labeled the object as a 10th planet, but there are scientists who dispute the classification of Pluto as such. There is no official definition for a planet and setting standards like size limits or orbital patterns potentially invites other objects to take the "planet" label.

Brown and colleagues Chad Trujillo of the Gemini Observatory and David Rabinowitz of Yale University first photographed the object in 2003 using a 48-inch telescope at the Palomar Observatory. But it was so far away that its motion was not detected until data was analyzed again this past January. It will take at least six months before astronomers can determine its exact size.

The new planet is rocky and icy, similar to Pluto, and is the third brightest object located in the Kuiper belt, a disc of icy debris beyond the orbit of Neptune, Brown said.

It has taken scientists this long to find the planet because its orbit is at an angle compared to the orbits of most planets.

Alan Stern of the Southwestern Research Institute in Boulder, Colo., said he was not surprised by the discovery since other objects around the size of Pluto have been found in the Kuiper Belt. What's unique about the latest finding is that the object appears to be bigger than Pluto, he said.

"Unless they've made a grave mistake, this is for real," said Stern, who had no role in the discovery.

On Thursday, another group of astronomers claimed that they found a bright object beyond Neptune, but it turned out to be smaller than Pluto. Brown said his group also found another object that was also brighter but smaller than Pluto.

Brown has submitted a name for the new planet to the International Astronomical Union, which has yet to act on the proposal. He did not release the proposed name.

The research was funded by NASA.
