Affordable housing leader steps down

BY NICK TABOREK
Daily Press Staff Writer

SECOND STREET Since becoming the executive director of Community Corp. of Santa Monica in 1991, Joan Ling has overseen the addition of 1,200 units to the city's stock of affordable dwellings, quadrupling the number of apartments the organization manages.

It's a feat that's won her immodest praise from Santa Monica's numerous affordable housing advocates. But as she prepares to retire from Community Corp. this spring, she's got nothing but humble words to describe her decision.

"I feel that we right now have an incredibly talented group of people working at Community Corp," she said. "It's time to step down and make room for people who are going to do a better job than I can."

Though she plans to stay involved with affordable housing issues by teaching college courses and consulting on housing projects, she said she plans to use much of her new-found flexibility to fulfill a long-deferred dream.

SMC looks to reverse Emeritus cuts

BY REBECCA KHEEL
Special to the Daily Press

SMC Reacting to complaints about the loss of exercise classes at Emeritus College, college officials are exploring options to reinstate the classes, possibly charging students a fee.

Two sections of yoga, one section of tai chi and one section of aerobics were cut from the senior citizen program's fall schedule in response to state budget cuts. Following the end of Emeritus' summer session on July 24, some of the students have been fighting to reverse the decision to cut the classes, including attending the most recent Santa Monica College Board of Trustees meeting Tuesday night. SMC runs Emeritus.

The majority of those upset over the cuts are members of Marsha Cooper's 60-student yoga class. All 16 speakers who spoke at the top of Tuesday's board meeting were from Cooper's class. The students spoke of how Cooper's class had positively impacted their health, as well as offered options for how to avoid cuts.

"They said they were willing to do anything to have the class," Cooper said. "If the board is not moved by that, I give up."

Though the focus was placed on Cooper's class, she said the voice of her students will benefit all of Emeritus.

The cuts, which mirrored the 3 percent cut in offerings across all of SMC, were made in response to the California Community College chancellor ending funding to non-credit physical education classes, said Jeff Shimizu, SMC's vice president of academic affairs.

Though the current plan is to phase out all Emeritus exercise classes by spring 2011, Shimizu said SMC is hoping to avoid that either by finding outside sources of funding or by rewriting the curriculum and renaming the classes so that they qualify for the chancellor's funding.

Ferrell's 'Other Guys' wins box office with $35.6M

CHRISTY LEMIRE
AP Movie Critic

LOS ANGELES "The Other Guys" are the main guys at the box office, knocking off "Inception" to take the No. 1 spot.

The buddy-cop parody starring Will Ferrell and Mark Wahlberg made $35.6 million in its opening weekend, according to Sunday estimates from Sony Pictures.

It's the second-highest debut for a film in which Ferrell has starred, and yet another strong showing for the movies he's made with his frequent collaborator, writer-director Adam McKay. Their biggest opening was "Talladega Nights: The Ballad of Ricky Bobby," which debuted at No. 1 with $47 million in August 2006. "Step Brothers" made $30.9 million and came in second place when it opened in July 2008. And their first film together, "Anchorman: The Legend of Ron Burgundy," opened in second place in July 2004 with $28.4 million.

"Inception," which had been the top film in the country the past three weeks, fell to No. 2 with $18.6 million. Christopher Nolan's mind-bending dream thriller from Warner Bros. has now made $227.7 million since its debut July 16.

Rory Bruer, Sony's president of worldwide distribution, said the studio had a good idea that "The Other Guys" would open at No. 1, but estimated it would make around $30 million. Ferrell plays a nerdy, uptight New York police detective who'd rather solve crimes from his desk than run into danger on the streets. Wahlberg is his hot-tempered, frustrated partner who's desperate for action, and the supporting cast includes Michael Keaton, Eva Mendes, Samuel L. Jackson and Dwayne Johnson.

"The tracking on the film has been really terrific — just the buzz on the film, reviews are 80-percent fresh on Rotten Tomatoes," Bruer said. "From all the screenings we had on the film, people just loved it and thought it was hilarious so we felt pretty good about it."

Ferrell-McKay productions have a solid track record, Bruer said, because "they're the ultimate funny."

"The chemistry between those two men in regards to comedy is at the top of their game," he said. "They bring out the best of each other."

The fact that "The Other Guys" and "Inception" are both so popular shows that audiences are hungry for a variety of ideas this time of year, said Paul Dergarabedian, box-office analyst for Hollywood.com.

"How much different could these two films be? They both have action elements but that's where the comparison between these two films ends," he said. "That's the cool thing about summer movies: They can run the gamut from silly, off-the-wall

Bell official's salary package topped $1.5M

SHAYA TAYEFE MOHAJER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES A former city manager's huge $787,000 salary is only half of the unusually generous total compensation given to the official in the small California blue-collar city of Bell, according to a city official.

Robert Rizzo's benefits, which included 20 weeks paid vacation, brought his total annual compensation to more than $1.5 million, according to Josh Pulliam, an interim public information officer for the city.

Rizzo was to receive $386,786 in paid vacation and sick benefits this year, in addition to his base salary, and received deposits to his investment accounts and other benefits, Pulliam said.

"As far as we can tell, it appears that Rizzo took home more money in vacation compensation than any governor in the United States makes for annual salary," Pulliam said.

The Los Angeles district attorney's office, and the California attorney general are investigating the huge salaries of several former officials and City Council members, who earned nearly $100,000 a year before recent cuts.

On Saturday, Interim City Administrative Officer Pedro Carrillo also directed the new City Attorney to launch a full investigation to analyze the legality of compensation packages for all employees as well as the departed Administrators.

Rizzo, assistant city manager Angela Spaccia and Bell's police chief Randy Adams resigned last month after a public outcry over their huge salaries in the largely working-class city of about 40,000 residents southeast of Los Angeles.

Spaccia's total annual compensation was $845,000, including her previously reported $376,288 salary, and Adams' total compensation came to $770,000, including his $457,000 salary, Pulliam said.

Rizzo was in line for a $600,000-a-year pension, but the California Public Employees' Retirement System has ordered a freeze on the benefits for all three officials pending the outcome of the investigations.

What about younger students?

Editor:

The necessity of the proposed Santa Monica College Master Plan 2010 needs to be re-evaluated for many reasons, not the least of which is the desperate state of the Santa Monica-Malibu school district's financial situation.

With so many financial constraints placed on the school district, it would be a virtual slap in the community taxpayers' faces for the college to begin cosmetic demolition and reconstruction to its campuses, when the local schools are being forced to lay off teachers and cut back on programs.

Has it not occurred to any of you that the money would be better spent in the form of assistance to the schooling of our younger children, who will be precluded from a full educational experience, due to lack of state funds to support them?

While the money may be "earmarked" for college expansion/beautification projects, we all know that where there is a will, there is a way. You, the college trustees, need to join forces with the community to assure a high quality education for the children who reside here.

The communities are coming to the realization that the constant/automatic bond requests for the Santa Monica College "improvements," to accommodate a student population that is 85 percent or more non-resident, are excessive, unreasonable and may be more related to salaries and egos.

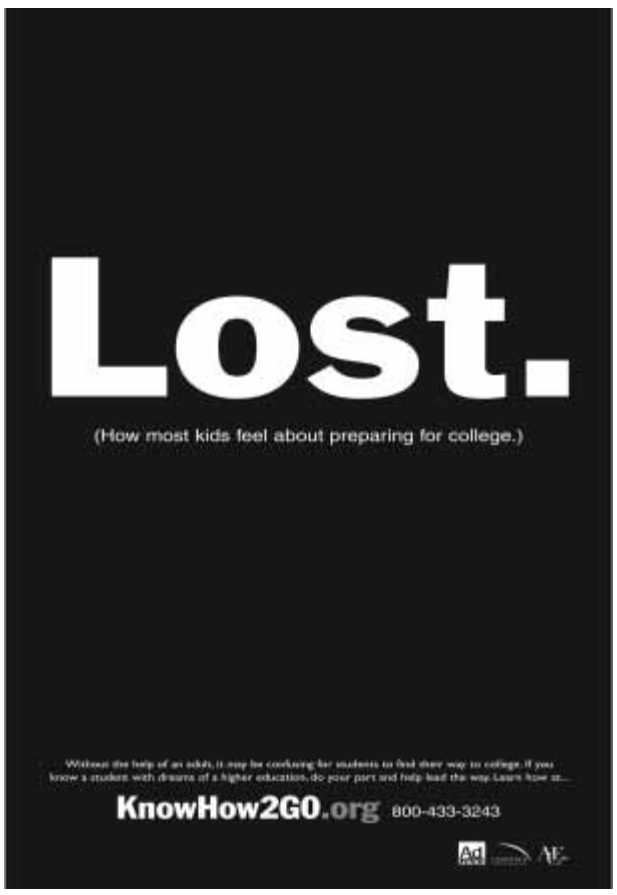

Additionally, demolishing Corsair Field is not indicated according to the Stadium Seismic Study of 2006, wherein only retrofits to the existing stadium were recommended.

The effects on the surrounding neighborhoods, relative to demolition and reconstruction of the stadium and the Liberal Arts building, will be enormous, and the proposed plan is inconsistent with the city's goals of recycling and living green.

The draft EIR includes a letter from the SCAQMD dated June 4, 2010 that notes that the college failed to assess air quality impacts during the projects' construction and operation. This oversight is indicative of a lack of concern for the health, safety and comfort of the neighboring residents and their children, and is of great concern to us all.

Remodel and retrofit needs to become your mantra, and hopefully you all will listen and take appropriate action!

Democracy takes a hit at SMRR convention

THE SANTA MONICANS FOR RENTERS' Rights annual convention Aug. 1 was a hoot and a half.

SMRR members voted to endorse candidates for City Council, Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District Board of Education, Santa Monica College Board of Trustees and the Rent Control Board. With nearly 70 percent of Santa Monica's voters being renters, SMRR's blessing is a big head start toward victory in November.

The convention is usually routine. Incumbents and candidates with a history in SMRR almost always get the party nod. Loyal party workers moving up the political ladder who've paid dues on Planning Commission or other city boards also receive prime consideration from SMRR and usually do well when seeking elected office.

Recently, newcomer candidates trying to snare SMRR's endorsement signed up friends, family and associates — all to show up and vote for them. This year, a good number of the 234 members who voted were recent joiners on hand to champion favorite candidates.

Supporters for Ted Winterer and incumbent Kevin McKeown (running for four-year council seats) also included "newbies" from the various neighborhood groups as well as from the Santa Monica Coalition for a Livable City.

Terry O'Day brought in a contingent of supporters to promote his bid for a two-year council seat. A number of school boosters joined specifically to support school activist Laurie Lieberman running for school board and Gleam Davis running for the other two-year council term. All the above candidates easily won SMRR endorsements on the first ballot.

Candidates without big "fan clubs" fared poorly. School board incumbents Oscar de la Torre and Ralph Mechur — both previously endorsed by SMRR — and newcomer Nimish Patel fell short of endorsements at the convention.

The biggest upset of the day concerned incumbent Pam O'Connor who is seeking her fifth term on council. Although she was enthusiastically supported by traditional SMRR leaders, she failed to secure enough votes for endorsement after two rounds of voting. Members then voted not to hold a third and final round of balloting. It was quite a rebuke.

In her brief remarks before the balloting began, O'Connor reminded members that she'd consistently supported the schools. However many school supporters remember her calling them school yard bullies a few years ago when they proposed that City Hall voluntarily subsidize the district or face a ballot measure they'd float that would permanently mandate city financial support to the district.

Slow growth advocates were increasingly annoyed by O'Connor's coziness with developers. Her kick-off campaign fundraiser last September was sponsored by Shutters and Casa del Mar hotels and hotel/business lobbyist Kim Karie. Ironically, many of O'Connor's contributors were the same business and real estate interests behind the anti "living wage" battles of the 1990s and that have for decades tried to wrest political power from SMRR.

Pico Neighborhood residents blame O'Connor, who sits on both the Expo Construction Authority Board of Directors and the Metro (transit) board, for not doing more to move a proposed Expo rail maintenance yard out of their neighborhood.

O'Connor has also consistently voted against landmark status for rent-controlled apartment buildings and for their redevelopment costing us both our history and the city's inventory of older and more affordable rental housing.

SMRR is governed by a secretive, 12 voting member steering committee comprised of mostly long-term SMRR party workers and ex-politicians. Behind the scenes influences include former mayor and councilman and former SMRR co-chair Denny Zane, who as executive director of the transit advocacy group "Move LA," has close ties to O'Connor. This cabal runs SMRR and dominates college, school and City Hall governance.

After the convention, the steering committee can vote to "support" and add any candidate who fell short of endorsement. This means the "supported" candidate appears on SMRR campaign literature along with candidates legitimately endorsed by SMRR's membership. It's a blatant example of cronyism and how SMRR maintains its almost exclusive domination over Santa Monica's political scene. "Supported" or "endorsed" — it's a distinction most voters won't recognize and it's patently misleading.

SMRR's power hungry oligarchy bristled about not getting their own way this year and complained about newcomers who aren't renters and who "don't share SMRR's core values." The steering committee's actions mock democracy and blow credibility out the window.

It's time for SMRR to change its by-laws and prohibit this post-convention, back-room meddling. Fat chance of that really happening.

A FEW MORE CENTS ABOUT PROPOSED TAX INCREASE

City Manager Rod Gould asked me to clarify a point concerning City Hall's consultant HDL Companies that had studied 37 of the 79 California cities which had enacted "transaction and use tax" increases and found that they had no impact on taxable sales. I commented in last week's column that in the remaining 42 cities, "there was an impact." Gould added that because the remaining 42 cities had not been studied, the extent of impacts, if any, were undetermined.

Gulf seafood industry begins recovery

BRIAN SKOLOFF
MARY FOSTER
Associated Press Writers

NEW ORLEANS BP engineers were waiting on the cement to harden in the blown-out Gulf oil well before they begin drilling the last 100 feet of a relief well, one of the final steps to permanently plugging the spill.

BP corked the well July 15, but officials want to make sure the well doesn't erupt again. When the relief well intersects the broken well, workers will pump more cement and mud in a "bottom kill" to seal the well for good.

"We expect to be back to drilling on Sunday night," spokesman Kent Wells said.

Meanwhile, the rich fishing grounds of the Gulf are beginning to reopen more than three months after crude began gushing from the sea floor. But those who harvest, process and sell the catch face a new crisis — convincing wary consumers it's not only delicious, but also safe.

"We have a huge perception problem," said Ewell Smith, director of the Louisiana Seafood Promotion and Marketing Board. "We have lost markets across the country, and some of them may be lost for good."

The Gulf accounts for a majority of the domestic shrimp and oysters eaten by Americans and about 2 percent of overall U.S. seafood consumption. But with safety suspicions abounding, consumers are turning up their noses and some wary suppliers appear to be turning to imports.

Tammy McNaught arrived in New Orleans from San Francisco on Saturday, and after seeing months of news coverage about the oil spill was trying to decide whether she would eat seafood and how much.

"It's probably nothing, but I'm not sure if it is safe. However, if it's deep fried, you know it is going to be OK," McNaught said, laughing.

"Right now the general perception is that Gulf seafood is tainted. And I'm sure some of it is," said Peter Fischbach, of Toms River, N.J., a chef with Gourmet Dining Services. "But the stuff that's tainted is not on the market. It's not safe; it's not edible. It's not going to make its way to the market."

The well's suffocation coincided with the release of a federal report this week showing that only about a quarter of the oil lost to the leak remains in or along the shores of the Gulf, with the rest having dissipated or otherwise disappeared. The remaining 53 million gallons, though, would be enough alone to rank among the nation's worst spills.

Some fishing grounds remain closed as that oil continues to wash through the Gulf, but state and federal tests have shown samples of seafood in some areas safe to eat. The Food and Drug Administration says chemical dispersants used to break up the oil do not pose a public health concern.

Doug Suttles, BP's chief operating officer, sought to ease consumers' minds and palates by saying this week he would eat Gulf seafood himself and "serve it to my family."

Some processors are having difficulty selling the seafood they can get, even to long-established customers.

"I've talked to suppliers who have sold 20 years to companies and are now being told no," Smith said. "A lot of people are substituting imported product for Gulf product."

Keath Ladner, owner of Gulf Shores Sea Products in Bay St. Louis, Miss., won't send his 70 boats out, even though shrimp season is open in some Mississippi waters.

Ladner's main national buyer sent him a letter recently telling him it wouldn't be buying seafood from the Gulf "until further notice," he said.

Even at one of New Orleans' toniest restaurants, Commander's Palace, where the menu stars dishes including pecan-crusted Gulf fish topped with jumbo lump crab, barbecued wild white shrimp or crispy soft-shell crab, some customers are hesitant to order.

Notice is hereby given that the City of Santa Monica has posted a list of stale dated unclaimed checks – any check older than three years as of March 31, 2010 - and claim forms on the City's website at www.smgov.net/finance/ and at the City Clerk's Office, City Hall, Room 102; at the Public Safety Facility's counter next to the City Council Agenda folder; and at the Main Library's bulletin board located next to the public copy machine. If said funds are not claimed by October 15, 2010, these funds will become the property of the City of Santa Monica in accordance with California Government Code Sections 50050 – 50056. These funds may be released to the depositor, their heir, beneficiary or duly appointed representative provided a claim form has been completed with the required information detailed below and an original signature.

Required claim information includes name, address, phone number, tax identification number, amount of claim, and grounds on which claim is founded. Claims must be submitted to the Finance Department, Attn: Financial Operations, 1717 4th Street, Suite 250, Santa Monica, CA. 90401 or by email to steven.hull@smgov.net. Once a claim is submitted; the Finance Department will determine the validity of the claim and if additional information is required to process the claim. The City of Santa Monica reserves the right to deny any claim that is submitted with incomplete or invalid information.

Keeping cotton clean

Dear EarthTalk

I always thought cotton was eco-friendly, but I recently heard otherwise. What's so bad about cotton? And where can I find organic cotton clothing?

WAY TO GO: The Organic Trade Association (OTA) considers cotton 'the world's dirtiest crop' due to its heavy use of chemical insecticides and fertilizers. Fortunately, there are now thousands of organic cotton retailers, including some of the big box stores. The OTA's Organic Pages Online lists vendors (and links to their websites) by product type. Pictured: An organic cotton T-shirt by Tiny Revolutionary.

THERE'S A LOT "BAD" ABOUT conventionally grown cotton — cotton grown with the aid of synthetic chemicals, that is. The Organic Trade Association (OTA), a nonprofit trade group representing America's burgeoning organic cotton industry, considers cotton "the world's dirtiest crop" due to its heavy use of insecticides. The nonprofit Environmental Justice Foundation (EJF) reports that cotton uses 2.5 percent of the world's cultivated land yet uses 16 percent of the world's insecticides — more than any other single major crop.

Three of the most acutely hazardous insecticides, as determined by the World Health Organization, are well represented among the top 10 most commonly used in producing cotton. One of them, Aldicarb, "can kill a man with just one drop absorbed through the skin," says OTA, "yet it is still used in 25 countries and the U.S., where 16 states have reported it in their groundwater."

Conventionally grown cotton also uses large amounts of nitrogen-based synthetic fertilizer — almost a third of a pound, says the OTA, to grow one pound of raw cotton. To put that in perspective, it takes just under one pound of raw cotton to make one t-shirt. Researchers have found that the fertilizers used on cotton are the most detrimental to the environment, running off into freshwater habitats and groundwater and causing oxygen-free dead zones in water bodies. The nitrogen oxides formed during the production and use of these fertilizers are also a major part of the agricultural sector's greenhouse gas emissions.

This is all true despite that the use of sprayed insecticides is quickly decreasing with the advent of genetically engineered cotton seeds that have insecticides bred right into them. A third of global cotton cropland and 45 percent of world cotton production now uses genetically engineered seeds. This poses a whole other set of issues, as some scientists fear that the proliferation of such "Frankenseeds" can lead to pest immunities and even the unleashing of so-called "super pests" that can resist virtually any pesticide.

Organic cotton farming eschews synthetic chemicals (as well as genetically engineered seed) in favor of time-tested natural alternatives that ward off pests, replenish and maintain soil fertility and generally optimize growing conditions without compromising the environment or our health. "Composted manures and cover crops replace synthetic fertilizers; innovative weeding strategies are used instead of herbicides; beneficial insects and trap crops control insect pests; and alternatives to toxic defoliants prepare plants for harvest," says the Sustainable Cotton Project (SCP), a nonprofit that helps cotton farmers in California's Central Valley discover the economic, environmental and health benefits of avoiding synthetic chemicals.

For consumers able to pay a little more, there are now thousands of organic cotton retailers. The OTA reports that American farmers increased plantings of organic cotton by 26 percent in 2009 over 2008, while sales of organic cotton fiber grew 10.4 percent (to $521 million) during the same time. The OTA's Organic Pages Online lists vendors (and links to their websites) by product type; many sell online as well as through retail chains. Even some big box stores now offer organic cotton items. So keep your eyes peeled and be a part of the solution by opting for organic cotton next time you stock up your drawers.

if we can rewrite them so they have more of an emphasis on health so that they're accepted by the chancellor," Shimizu said.

One of the suggestions raised at the board meeting was to make the currently free classes fee-based, which the college is now considering as a viable option, said Bruce Smith, a spokesman for SMC. Though the college is still researching that option, the hope is that fee-based classes might be available sometime in the fall, Smith said.

One of the people in attendance at the board meeting was Arthur Herman, who recently made a $1 million donation to Emeritus from the estate of his deceased mother, Zelda Herman. Arthur Herman did not speak at the meeting, but was moved by the support expressed for Cooper's class.

"People were effusive in praise with how their bodies have become healthy from this class. I've never heard such praise." he said. "It was such a great example of a participatory democracy."

Herman said he is upset his donation, which has been placed in an endowment, is not being used to prevent the cuts. Despite his requests, he said he was not consulted on the money's use, and he is currently trying to set up a meeting to discuss this with the dean of Emeritus, Ron Furuyama.

"We're dealing with a bureaucracy run amuck," Herman said.

Smith said the college could not comment on Herman's donation and if his desire for it to be used to prevent the cuts will be met. But Smith said SMC believes making the classes fee-based is the most viable option.

Santa Monica have good quality, affordable roofs over their heads, she's planning to spend much of her time without one, as she prepares to embark on a tour of the country's great outdoors, where she said she's always felt a sense of peace and completeness.

For the next six or seven summers, Ling, 55, said she plans to drive to a new region each year, systematically visiting each of the country's 58 national parks.

"I am a bit compulsive," she explained.

She'll pick up friends on the way and take her time to camp and hike all around the U.S., she said, without feeling like she's delaying important projects in Santa Monica with her absence.

"I just want to be able to spend a month in a place and not feel like I have to rush back to work," she said.

Community Corp.'s board of directors has hired a consultant to begin a search for Ling's replacement. No matter who they find, it seems certain Ling will be dearly missed.

Besides the sheer quantity of projects that have been completed in the past 20 years, affordable housing advocates said quality design and construction have been a hallmark of Ling's tenure.

Community Corp. developments "rival the finest condo projects in every neighborhood," said Deny Zane, a former mayor and a founder of Santa Monicans for Renters' Rights.

Besides benefiting tenants, the buildings "counter the public's adverse image of affordable housing projects just by example," he said, helping to build confidence in nonprofit housing development.

Pulling it all off in Santa Monica, where high property values and a dearth of vacant land add to the challenge, makes Ling's accomplishments even more impressive, Zane said.

"She's done an amazing job. She will be sorely missed."

Councilman Kevin McKeown, who during three terms on the council has championed low-income housing development, called Ling "the living embodiment of our community's commitment to provide affordable housing."

> "PICK ANY CHILD GROWING UP SAFE IN A COMMUNITY CORP. OF SANTA MONICA BUILDING – THAT IS WHAT JOAN HAS GIVEN US."
> Kevin McKeown

"Anything I could say about Joan pales next to the simple fact of her accomplishment — hundreds of working families, seniors, and people with disabilities, housed in dignity. Pick any child growing up safe in a Community Corp. of Santa Monica building — that is what Joan has given us," he said.

Councilman Richard Bloom added: "We have been fortunate to have her steady hand guiding Community Corp. She has a rare combination of intelligence, commitment and expertise that has made her singularly effective in helping the city provide critically needed housing assistance to thousands of low-income individuals and families."

In Ling's own assessment, one of the achievements she's most proud of has been simply to cultivate a positive reputation for Community Corp. among the organization's tenants and other Santa Monica residents.

"We're perceived in the community as a community-based organization, not a developer," she said. "We're driven by progressive values that put an emphasis on valuing individuals and families and promoting social justice."

An embodiment of that commitment, she said, was the creation three years ago of a Resident Services Department at Community Corp. that seeks to connect tenants with education, health care and career services available through a range of social resource providers.

"We are serving our residents beyond just providing a shelter," she said. "We are providing a home and security and community."

It's a legacy she's pleased to leave behind.

Parking Structure No. 2 Seismic Retrofit

Starting on Thursday, Aug. 5, the sidewalk in front of Parking Structure No. 2 will be closed to pedestrian traffic. There will still be access to businesses located to the north and south of the parking structure, but pedestrians will be directed to use the sidewalk on the west side of the street to get between Wilshire Boulevard and Arizona Avenue. The parking structure will remain open throughout construction, however the work requires temporary closure of up to 50 parking spaces per day. Also, traffic leaving Parking Structure No. 2 will not be able to exit onto Second Street. Instead, all exiting traffic will be re-routed through the alley behind the structure. Please be sure to obey all posted directional and no parking signs throughout the construction project. Estimated project completion is December, 2010.

Santa Monica Boulevard Resurfacing

Cold milling and paving is scheduled to take place on Santa Monica Boulevard from Lincoln to Cloverfield boulevards. Expect lane rolling closures of portions as well as temporary access restrictions to alleys connecting Santa Monica Boulevard. This work will take place both during the day and the evening.

Parking Structures at Santa Monica Place

Parking Structure No. 7 will be completely closed until August, 2010 for construction improvements. For construction questions, please contact George Milinopoulos at (323) 301-5661. For alternate parking location questions, contact Frank Ching at (310) 458-8295.

Dodgers: Anderson out, Gibbons in

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES Outfielder Garret Anderson was designated for assignment on Sunday by the Los Angeles Dodgers, who purchased the contract of outfielder-first baseman Jay Gibbons from Triple-A Albuquerque.

Anderson, who turned 38 years old on June 30, batted .181 in 80 games with two homers and 12 RBIs after signing with the club as a free agent in March. The three-time All-Star, who was used primarily as a backup outfielder and left-handed pinch-hitter, was in his 17th big league season. He spent last season with Atlanta after the Angels chose not to re-sign him.

Anderson played his first 2,013 games with the Angels and holds their franchise records in every major offensive category except home runs. He had the biggest hit in Angels history, a tiebreaking three-run double in game 7 of the 2002 World Series against San Francisco, and was the MVP of the 2003 All-Star game as well as the Home Run Derby champ that year.

"Gibbons probably all year long has been this guy producing down there, and Garret has been inconsistent here," manager Joe Torre said. "As tough as this was to do for me, because of how I respect this guy's career and respect him as a person, we just felt we wanted to try something different. He took it obviously with a great deal of class. He said: 'Thanks for the opportunity,' and with that just slid away. I just wished him well."

Gibbons, one of several players implicated in the Mitchell Report on performance-enhancing drugs December 2007, received a 15-game suspension a week before the report was released and later granted amnesty as part of an agreement between the players' union and the owners for more frequent testing and increased authority for the MLB drug program's outside administrator.

The Dodgers signed him on Dec. 22, and he batted .347 for Albuquerque with 19 home runs and 83 RBIs.

Heal the Bay is a non-profit environmental organization dedicated to making Santa Monica Bay and Southern California coastal waters safe and healthy for people and marine life.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card® is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A–F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ No one in his or her right mind would attempt to push you aside or demand his or her way. You clearly are on top of your game and heading in the right direction. An innate ingenuity emerges when dealing with problems. Tonight: Does any invitation entice you?

TAURUS (April 20-May 21)
★★★ If you can work from home, do. Plug extra energy into whatever you do. A new beginning is possible. Have you been considering a home office? Intensity marks your thoughts. Tonight: Make it easy.

GEMINI (May 22-June 20)
★★★★★ You find answers. Extremes come up when juggling your "adult" life with a child and/or loved one. You might decide to handle a matter very differently. A partner or associate could become controlling. Tonight: Catch up on a friend's news.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Realize that you might be overburdened by all your responsibilities. You feel pressured and become reactive. Perhaps the best action you can take is to schedule a massage or some other mini-luxury that will help you mellow out. Tonight: Gather your bills.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ Others might be reactive and, in some manner, reminding you of busy bees running around without a thought. Stop and survey the immediate situation. Don't say anything hurtful. The damages could be long term. Any decision you make has an extra push with it if made today. Tonight: Ever playful.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★ If you don't feel up to snuff, don't be surprised. Much is happening quickly. You feel as if you cannot respond to the many requests and, on a personal level, "keeping up with the Joneses." Determine what you need. Sign up for a class, like yoga, to keep you level. Tonight: Vanish.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ Zero in on key principles. Your ideas could be all over the place. Don't act or feel jeopardized. What you decide on is not only workable, it could be a home run! Tonight: Where the action is.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Schedule a must appointment. Your instincts tell you which way to go with an authority figure. Responsibilities just seem to drop on you. A new beginning becomes possible with your work and/or a parent. Tonight: Burning the midnight oil.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ A meeting determines the lay of the land. You could be touched by someone's gesture. Optimism surrounds a creative idea. Don't let a call to a child or new friend sit on the back burner. Tonight: Enjoy yourself to the max.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ If you're feeling uncomfortable with a work-related matter, create some space between you and the issue. A home office might not be as successful as you would like. Review your options. Tonight: Push comes to shove. Walk away from stress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Your airy style makes a difference. You seem to be able to absorb what might be dropped on you out of the blue. Sort through messages, and prioritize them. A new beginning becomes possible in a relationship. Tonight: Say "yes" to an invitation, even if it is Monday night.

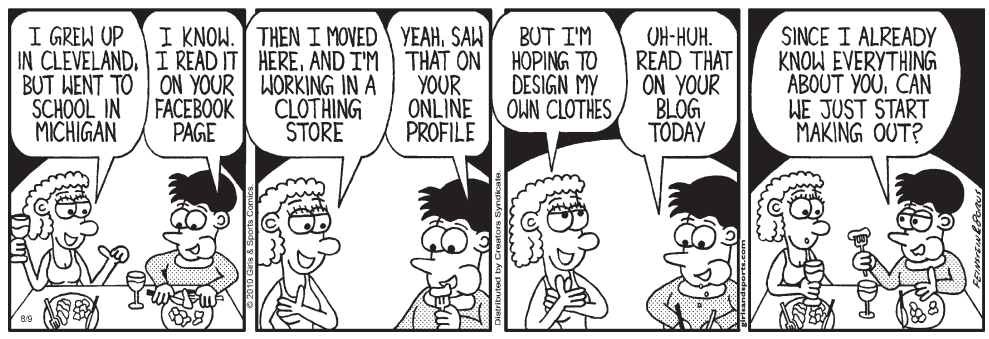

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★ While others seem to squeeze in time for socializing, it appears you need to buckle down and take a serious look at how you juggle money. You might be spending more than usual. Consider getting an extra job or putting in overtime. Tonight: A friend seems irritable.

Happy birthday

This year, you have the opportunity for a new beginning. This energy actually emanates from your determination to change certain patterns. You energize many people; they often follow your lead. A change in your daily life is necessary, even if you don't like it! If you are single, you might discover how many people are interested. Pull back and do some soul searching. Realize not all people can give you the type of relationship you want.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

ARITHMO™ CrossMath

• Fill the grid with the set of given numbers (1 to 12) to satisfy the Equa demands (7 to 24) in the shaded boxes. The Equa demands represent the sum of the digits that you will insert into the empty squares.
• Each horizontal row has one Equa demand to satisfy; each vertical column also has one demand to satisfy. Each empty square in the grid dictates the math operation (addition +, subtraction -, multiplication X, and division ÷) that must be performed to meet the demands.
• You must follow the given math operations for each square and you must make sure all the numbers satisfy the demands in the shaded boxes when connected in adjacent threes and calculated together from left to right, and top to bottom.
• The numbers you insert into the grid must satisfy the Equa demands both horizontally and vertically.

For more games, go to www.arithmo.com

Fill in the empty fields with the given numbers so when calculated together they satisfy all Equas in the gray boxes:

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ The Outer Frontiers of U.S. Immigration Policy: The $125 million Jay Peak ski resort in Vermont, with 120-room hotel, ice arena, golf course and the Northeast's largest water park, is just months away from completion, thanks to half-million-dollar investments from each of 250 foreign nationals from 43 countries who, as part of the deal, were given conditional U.S. "green cards" (for permanent residency). At the other end of America's immigration conundrum, prosecutors in Snohomish County, Wash., dropped the rape charge in July against illegal immigrant Jose Madrigal-Lopez, 46, for lack of evidence and released him back onto the street. Madrigal-Lopez has been deported from the U.S. 10 times already but keeps returning.

■ Two-year-old Ardi Rizal of Banyuasin, Indonesia, has developed a two-pack-a-day cigarette habit, according to several news organizations that splashed his story around the world in May, with video of Ardi casually puffing away as he frolics on his tricycle. Said Ardi's mother, "If he doesn't get cigarettes, he gets angry and screams and batters his head against the wall." Ardi's father, noting the kid's pudginess, seems not to sense the problem: "He looks pretty healthy to me." An additional concern is financial: Ardi will smoke only one particular premium brand, at a cost of the equivalent of about $5.50 a day.
