FORMERLY HOMELESS WOMEN SELL CRAFTS THROUGH OPCC PROGRAM

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

CITYWIDE It started as a therapeutic activity for the women, a way for them to put their artistic sensibilities to use. It's become a source of pride and even a little income.

Clients at OPCC's transitional Daybreak facility, who have mental illnesses and have experienced homelessness, make crafts through the nonprofit social service agency's Daybreak Designs program.

Their work will be on display and for sale during an event Aug. 28-29 at the OPCC Cloverfield Services Center, 1751 Cloverfield Ave., between Olympic Boulevard and 26th Street in Santa Monica.

The group holds about five of these sales each year, usually around holidays like Valentine's Day and Mother's Day. The women also have a permanent store that is open to the public from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays and by appointment.

The member-run art business, "empowers women recovering from homelessness to rebuild their lives through creative, personal and financial growth," OPCC officials said.

Some of the Daybreak Designs members have art backgrounds. Many do not. But nonprofit officials tout the program as key to helping women who have schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, depression and other mental illnesses. Through their participation in the collective, they boost self-esteem, develop life skills and interact with others.

"The program is set up so that women who have been participants can mentor new women," OPCC executive director John Maceri said. "That's built into the design. ... Women themselves are teachers and instructors and they'll teach the new women skills. They really create a community. It's a very purposeful part of how the program is structured. It's meant to be peer-run and peer-supported."

Program alumni occasionally return to mentor new members. Several have had their artwork on consignment or in retail stores, and at least one former Daybreak Designs artist has her own website and sells her work privately.

Daybreak Designs was born in 1999 as an informal gathering of artists, but it morphed into something more as staff encouraged them to sell their crafts.

The women design and make paintings, portraits, jewelry, greeting cards, crochet and pottery items, even candles and soaps.

The clients also operate the business with the guidance of OPCC staff. They have a president, a secretary and a treasurer. They decide sale dates, wrap gifts and collect patrons' money.

Seventy percent of the proceeds go back to the artists and 30 percent covers the costs of supplies, administration and promotion. OPCC officials note that the income is supplementary but that it provides the artists with concrete achievements.

During sales and community events, the artists set up their own tables and display their crafts. They enjoy interacting with the public, sharing their stories and revealing the inspirations behind their work.

Ultimately, the collective fits into the Daybreak program's goal of transitioning women into permanent housing as quickly as possible.

"It's really a bridge," Maceri said.

BAN ON PERSONAL-BELIEF EXEMPTIONS TAKES EFFECT NEXT YEAR

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

CITYWIDE Personal-belief exemptions remain an issue for Santa Monica schools with the 2015-2016 school year getting started and the enactment of a new state vaccination law coming soon.

The bill, co-authored by Santa Monica High alumnus and former SMMUSD board member Ben Allen and signed by Governor Jerry Brown in June, repeals California's personal-belief exemption for vaccines.

The law, which takes effect in 2016, came in part as a response to the measles outbreak that started at Disneyland and spread throughout Southern California, infecting a Santa Monica High School baseball coach and an infant at the school's child care facility.

SISTER CITIES

A delegation of local officials traveled to Santa Monica's sister city, Fujinomiya, Japan last week as part of a goodwill mission to mark the 40th Anniversary of the sister-city agreement. Mayor Kevin McKeown, Santa Monica Sister City Association President Jeff Jarow and former Santa Monica Mayor Nat Trives, who initiated the sister city bond in 1975, were part of the trip. Santa Monica has a sister-city named street "Fujinomiya Douri" on the north side of town. Fujinomiya has "Santa Monica Park," which was the location for an anniversary banquet. After a ritual Kagami-Biraki (sake cask cracking) and toast, Mayor McKeown greeted past Santa Monica visitors and addressed the host committee and Fujinomiya Mayor. "I have enjoyed meeting your students who visited Santa Monica," said McKeown. "It is a strong and supportive community in Fujinomiya that has raised such excellent young people. We appreciate your hospitality as we celebrate together our 40th anniversary as sister cities. We in Santa Monica value with gratitude the strong ties we have created in the arts, sports, music, education, and cultural exchanges."

Stingrays Spotted at Los Angeles County Beaches

Warm ocean temperatures and calm seas are attracting more stingrays than usual to Los Angeles County beaches. On Thursday and Friday alone, Los Angeles County lifeguards treated more than a dozen people who were stung by stingrays.

"We have seen countless stingrays throughout the Santa Monica Bay, with several causing stingray hits," said Lifeguard Captain Kenichi Haskett of the Los Angeles County Fire Department Lifeguard Division. "When going into the ocean, shuffle your feet."

Often found partially buried in shallow, sandy waters, stingrays are flat fish with eyes and nostrils on the top side of their bodies and mouths and gills on the underside. Their long tail has barbed spines that contain venom.

A stingray will lash its tail upwards when provoked. This action can puncture the skin and release venom into the victim. Victims say the pain is intense and radiates up the leg.

If you're stung, notify a lifeguard immediately. A lifeguard will treat the sting with hot water to decrease the pain and clean the wound with antiseptic to avoid infection.

Fortunately, being stung is easy to avoid. Lifeguards recommend doing the "stingray shuffle" - shuffle your feet along the sandy bottom to alert stingrays to your presence so they have time to move away.

Santa Monica doubles luxury home sales in July

Sotheby's International Realty recently released its July 2015 Greater Los Angeles Market Update that revealed Santa Monica, up 107 percent from 2014, had the highest single-family home sales increase in the luxury sector ($3M and higher) in 2015 across the leading 33 markets. The report also showed that despite being down six percent from 2014, Pacific Palisades remained the top market for the most single-family luxury home sales in 2015.

"Santa Monica has received great interest during the summer months from our clients with its relaxing beach culture as well as the expansion of the Metro line, making it even more accessible from anywhere in the city," said Frank Symons, executive vice president and chief operating officer of Sotheby's International Realty's Western Region. "All of this factored into the curb appeal of the Santa Monica market."

A four bedrooms, three full bath and two partial bath home of 4,829 square foot home in Santa Monica is listed at $6,250,000.

According to Sotheby's, the top five Greater Los Angeles Markets with the most luxury homes sold from May-July 2015 are Pacific Palisades 45, Beverly Hills 38, Santa Monica 31, Brentwood 28 and Beverly Hills Post Office 21.

The top five Greater Los Angeles markets with the highest average selling price of single-family luxury homes from May through July 2015 are: Bel Air - Holmby Hills $8,563,649, Beverly Hills $7,774,805, Sunset Strip - Hollywood Hills $7,750,258, Malibu Beach $7,704,500 and Beverly Hills Post Office $6,381,983.

VACCINES

School District is again ramping up efforts to get students vaccinated.

"We continue to encourage families to have their kids vaccinated, as we aggressively did last spring following the measles outbreak that did come close to home at SMMUSD," district spokeswoman Gail Pinsker said.

District officials will be discussing implementation of the new law and will follow directions from the state and county education departments, she said.

Venice Family Clinic and Westside Family Health Center provide free or low-cost vaccinations to children under 18.

"Parents should put vaccinations on their back-to-school checklists," said Karen Smith, director of the state Department of Public Health. "Vaccinations are the best way to ensure that students are protected and to stop the spread of measles and other serious diseases."

PERSONAL-BELIEF EXEMPTIONS

Personal-belief exemptions varied greatly at local schools during the 2014-2015 school year, according to data recently released by the state public health department.

Data collected in kindergarten and seventh grade offer a glimpse into the levels of personal-belief exemptions, which include families that have decided against vaccinations despite health counseling as well as religious-belief exemptions.

In seventh grade at area public schools last year, the rate of students with personal-belief exemptions was 12 percent at Santa Monica Alternative School House, 5 percent at Lincoln Middle School and 2 percent at Malibu and John Adams middle schools.

Meanwhile, a staggering 57 percent of seventh-grade students at New Roads and 9 percent of seventh-graders at Crossroads had personal-belief exemptions in 2014-2015.

The percentage of students with personal-belief exemptions at the kindergarten level last year was 29 at SMASH; 16 at Juan Cabrillo, Point Dume, Roosevelt and Will Rogers; 13 at Webster and Franklin; 8 at Grant and John Muir; and 5 at McKinley.

The rate topped 30 percent at PS1 Pluralistic School and New Roads.

VACCINATION RATES

State public health department data also shows varying degrees of inoculation at local public schools.

At the kindergarten level, less than 90 percent of students were properly vaccinated at nine SMMUSD elementary schools in 2014-2015, including SMASH (67 percent), Webster (72), McKinley (75), Roosevelt (75) and Juan Cabrillo (76). Edison Language Academy reported the highest vaccination rate (99 percent) of SMMUSD sites that serve kindergartners.

Meanwhile, kindergarten vaccination rates differed greatly at Santa Monica private schools in 2014-2015, according to the data. Crossroads (92 percent) and Carlthorp (88) had the highest inoculation rates, while figures slumped dramatically at PS1 Pluralistic School (55), New Roads (63) and Garden of Angels (67).

The state also tracks vaccination rates in seventh grade, and the four main SMMUSD sites with seventh-grade students (John Adams, Lincoln, Malibu and SMASH) all reported rates at 88 percent or higher.

In local private schools, seventh-grade vaccination rates ranged from 100 percent at St. Monica Catholic to 43 percent at New Roads.

LINC: Recipe for more congestion??

IT LOOKS LIKE LINCOLN BOULEVARD WILL soon join The Bicycle and Pedestrian Action Plans, Michigan Avenue Neighborhood Greenway (MANGo), Downtown Transit Mall and the new Big Blue Bus stops on Santa Monica's ever growing list of transportation planning misfiles.

The Lincoln Neighborhood Corridor Plan or "The Linc" promises both "short- and long-term enhancements" to the public right of way on Lincoln Boulevard between the I-10 Freeway and the city limits at Ozone Avenue.

Check out this verbiage from the Planning Department's Linc webpage. "Utilizing a strategy that balances tactical urbanism and the desire for 'Pop-Up Placemaking' with long-range capital improvements, the Plan also incorporates a layer of policy and program level recommendations for creating a more functional, aesthetically pleasing pedestrian experience that is supported and/or managed by the local business community and property owners." Sheeez!

Lincoln needs work. The street is a drab and unexciting collection of auto repair shops, filling stations, used car lots, utilitarian retail stores, inexpensive motels, a school, a couple of fast-food outlets and open strip malls, one with a struggling supermarket. The street could use some gussying up.

Residents formed a task force and initiated a street art project that has brightened many of the drab buildings and created an exciting visual element. They're advocating for landscaping, sidewalk and walking improvements, new street lighting and street furniture. However, the potential to muck up traffic flow on Lincoln should have everybody worried. Lincoln is the primary artery between the freeway and Santa Monica's downtown with all points south.

Nearly a decade ago, City council approved exclusive peak use bicycle lanes on Lincoln. They were never implemented pending the installation of similar lanes in Venice and Marina del Rey. Aside from eight to ten Number 3/Rapid 3 buses an hour, the lanes will sit empty, except for a couple dozen bicycle riders, while forty to fifty thousand vehicles daily would crowd into the remaining two traffic lanes.

In addition, city planners want physical medians down the center of Lincoln. Whether they be landscaped planters or traffic barriers at crosswalks has yet to be determined. Planners are studying four new crosswalks at currently unsignalized side streets, which, if implemented, will further impede already poor traffic flow.

A clue on how planners operate is perfectly exemplified by this poll on their Linc webpage: "Which of these options for medians on Lincoln Blvd do you prefer? Minimal medians (about 1000 feet) with most left turn opportunities preserved, maximized medians (about 2000 feet) with some left turns restricted at Cedar, Maple, Hill, Pier and Wilson Streets, Something in between?" So, what option is missing?

How about, "No medians?" Their poll is classic planning manipulation. They eliminate obvious options so the process serves what "they" want, not the public's preference. You just know at the public scoping meetings, when queried, the planner in charge will step away from his/her drawing board and announce to the assembly that nobody said they didn't want medians.

In 2005, Pico area neighbors requested street enhancements on 20th Street and Cloverfield Boulevard between Pico Boulevard and the I-10 Freeway. They asked for shade trees, improved sidewalks and new street lighting. City Hall returned with a series of proposals for removing scarce parking spots on Cloverfield Boulevard for tree wells, a crosswalk on 20th Street at Virginia Avenue, removal of traffic lanes on 20th to be replaced by dedicated bicycle lanes, planted medians, islands and other impairments as requested by those sitting on City Council at the time.

Neighbors worried that impeding the traffic flow on the heavily traveled 20th and Cloverfield thoroughfares (which are gateways to Santa Monica College and the freeway) would cause drivers to divert onto adjoining residential side streets to avoid gridlock. When I inquired what staff's traffic studies revealed about the extent of the diversion, I was told that the transportation planners didn't know because it wasn't researched!

After eight years of fighting and fussing with City Hall, Pico residents finally got what they wanted without all the traffic reforms proposed by politicians and the rainbow chasers in transportation planning.

Flawed traffic pattern alterations on Lincoln will likely cause motorists to shortcut through residential streets, looking for a route with less congestion. Once again, will the planners throw the bullpucky and say, "It shouldn't be a problem" like they told Pico residents during the 20th/Cloverfield redo or will they do their jobs and do the research?

Back on Lincoln planners hope to, "weave together phased physical design improvements to the streetscape and right-of-way with policy and program level recommendations for balancing vehicle flow and demand" says Linc's webpage. Good.

Transportation planners envision "a mixed-mode and livable street environment for pedestrians, transit and vehicles, the ability for bicycles to coexist with other modes on this busy boulevard has also been explored." Enhancing transit ridership and efficiency is another goal. Peak hour dedicated bus lanes will," planners say, "increase Big Blue Bus ridership, as well as corridor travel times for transit users." Yep, all this to save one minute of bus travel time by forcing more cars into less space. Brilliant!

Planners hope to "eliminate conflicts between vehicles, bicycles and pedestrians. Increase the number of crossings to promote pedestrian and bicycle movements across the boulevard and into the neighborhoods." How can they accomplish all of this and still "maintain and improve vehicle flow for the 40,000-50,000 motorists who use Lincoln Blvd. as the city's primary north/south commuting corridor?"

Sounds like a load to me.

How Medicare Covers Diabetes

DIABETES IS A SERIOUS DISEASE. IT CAN lead to kidney problems, glaucoma and other eye disorders, foot ulcers, amputation of feet or legs, stroke, diabetic coma, and even death.

If your doctor thinks you're at risk for diabetes, Medicare covers screening tests for it. And, if you develop the disease, Medicare covers a wide variety of medications, home testing equipment, supplies, and self-management training to help you cope with it.

Screening tests are used to detect diabetes early. Some of the conditions that may qualify you as being at risk for diabetes include:

High blood pressure;

Dyslipidermia (a history of abnormal cholesterol and triglycleride levels);

Obesity (with certain conditions);

Impaired glucose (blood sugar) tolerance;

High fasting glucose (blood sugar).

Medicare will pay for two diabetes screening tests in a 12-month period. After the initial screening, your doctor will determine when to do the second test.

You and your doctor can discuss diabetes and any other health concerns you have during a "Welcome to Medicare" visit. Medicare covers this one-time review of your health, including counseling on any screenings, shots, or other care you may need. (You must have this visit within the first 12 months you're enrolled in Medicare Part B.)

In addition, Medicare covers an annual wellness visit with your doctor, during which you can develop or update a personalized prevention plan, based on your current health and risk factors.

If you do develop diabetes, Medicare pays for self-management training to help you learn how to successfully manage the disease. Your doctor must prescribe this training for Medicare to cover it.

The training covers a variety of topics, including the risks of poor blood sugar control; nutrition and how to manage your diet; options to improve blood sugar control; exercise and why it's important to your health; and how to take your medications properly.

Also, Medicare covers medical nutrition therapy services, to help you learn what foods to eat and how to follow an individualized diabetic meal plan.

Generally, Medicare Part B (medical insurance) covers services and supplies needed by people who have or are at risk for diabetes. Medicare Part D (the prescription drug program) helps pay for supplies for injecting or inhaling insulin.

Here are some of the items covered under Part B:

Home blood sugar monitors and related supplies, such as test strips, lancet devices, and lancets;

Foot exams and treatment (needed by people with diabetic peripheral neuropathy and loss of protective sensation);

Glaucoma tests;

External insulin pumps and insulin the devices use:

Therapeutic shoes or inserts;

Screening tests, "Welcome to Medicare" visits, and annual wellness checkups.

Items covered under Part D include:

Drugs for maintaining blood sugar;

Insulin that isn't administered with a pump.

Medicare doesn't cover everything, of course. Among the diabetes supplies and services not covered are:

Eye exams for glasses (called refraction);

Orthopedic shoes (for people whose feet are impaired but intact);

Cosmetic surgery.

You can do many things to control your diabetes. Talk with your doctor about what, how much, and when you eat. Also talk with him or her about how much you should weigh, and the different ways you can reach your weight goal.

Take your medications as directed, and discuss any problems you encounter with your physician. Be active for a total of 30 minutes most days. Keep tabs on your blood sugar levels, blood pressure, and cholesterol.

If you smoke, quit. Medicare also covers counseling on how to stop smoking, if your doctor orders it.

For more details on Medicare's coverage of diabetes, read the brochure titled "Medicare's Coverage of Diabetes Supplies & Services," at: https://www.medicare.gov/Pubs/pdf/11022.pdf

The relationship between drones and conservationism

Dear EarthTalk:
How are environmentalists putting drones to use to help further their causes?

Joe Martin
Baltimore, MD

CONSERVATIONISTS ARE UTILIZING drone or "unmanned aerial systems" (UAS) technology to gather highly detailed imagery and other environmental data that is traditionally challenging to obtain. Wildlife biologist John Takekawa and his team at the U.S. Geological Survey's Western Ecological Research Center (WERC), for example, are using drones to obtain aerial images of San Francisco Bay marshlands.

"It's very hard to get some of the data sets in some of these areas that are remote or hard to reach in the marshes," Takekawa explains. "If you have something that can fly over and get sensors that can report back to your computer, that's what we're looking for in exploring these types of technologies."

Dr. Amy Woodget, a post-doctoral researcher at the University of Worcester in the UK, uses her small Draganflyer X6 UAS to collect high-resolution imagery of river channels. The images map the physical conditions within the rivers, including the channel topography, water depth and surface flow patterns, data all crucial for gauging river health and habitat conditions essential to the survival of local wildlife.

"The results obtained using UAS technologies provide unprecedented levels of detail concerning these physical river habitat parameters, with high levels of accuracy and precision," Woodget said.

Drones are also helping preserve the Peruvian Amazon forest, where illegal gold mining and logging has cleared mahogany, Spanish cedar and other old-growth trees. Carlos Castaneda, coordinator of the Amazon Basin Conservation Association's Los Amigos Conservation Concession, monitors the 550-square-mile Los Amigos reserve in southeastern Peru, home to a large diversity of plant and animal species, including palm swamps, bamboo thickets, giant otters, harpy eagles, spider monkeys and jaguars. Small drones weighing less than five pounds enable detection of any deforestation within the area.

Considering that more and more drones are being launched for conservation research, Linda Rothschild, an evolutionary biologist at NASA's Ames Research Center, was concerned when she found out that UAVs sometimes get lost in coral reefs or other sensitive habitats. "As I started to hear about this, I thought, 'Well, wouldn't it be useful if the UAV was biodegradable, so if it crashed somewhere that was sensitive, it wouldn't matter if it dissolved,'" Rothschild says.

So Rothschild created a biodegradable drone with a team of students in the 2014 International Genetically Engineered Machine (iGEM) competition. The team's prototype took its first short flight in November 2014 at the iGEM competition in Boston. The drone, which resembles a cardboard cup holder, is made primarily of mycelium grown by New York-based Ecovative Design. The team grew cellulose leather-like sheets to coat the mycelium body and then covered the sheets with proteins sourced from the saliva of paper wasps, a water resistant material that the insects use to cover their nests. The biodegradable drone body is certainly a step forward, though the drone still uses a standard battery, motor and propellers.

Rothschild's dream is to make a UAV where every part is made with something biodegradable, but for now, she says, "realistically, this is going to be much more of a hybrid vehicle."

Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card® is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ "The worshipful treatment of pets may be the thing that unites all Americans," wrote an Atlantic Magazine blogger in July, describing the luxury terminal for animals under construction at New York's JFK airport. The ARK will offer shower stalls for traveling horses, "conjugal stations" for ever-horny penguins, and housing for nearly 200 cows (that might produce 5,000 pounds of manure every day) -- and passengers traveling with dogs or cats can book the Paradise 4 Paws pet-pampering resort. The ARK is a for-profit venture; said one industry source, quoted in a July Crain's New York Business report, "You hear stories about the crazy money that rich people spend on their (animals) ... they're mostly true."

■ Officially, now, it is "unreasonable" for a federal agency (the Bureau of Land Management, in this instance) to fail to say yes or no for 29 years to a drilling permit application. (Before July's federal court decision, BLM had been arguing that 29 years was not too long.) A company had requested to drill just one exploratory well in Montana for natural gas in 1985, but the bureau had delayed the proceeding six times since then. The judge ordered the bureau to set a deadline for deciding.

Nothing but love for 'em

By C.J. Johnson

(Editor's note: Fourth in an ongoing series.)

Giive asked social media influencers to name their favorite nonprofit organization. We received a flood of awesome responses from all around the world, each an awesome story unto itself. Check them out!

Wings of Rescue
Livermore, CA – Wings of Rescue, run by pilots, has saved more than 12,000 dogs and cats and plans to rescue 7,000 more by the end of 2015.

Why is it so awesome?
"Wings of Rescue pilots ... save the lives of shelter dogs and cats facing certain death by transporting them to shelters that are under populated and in need of animals," said Denise St. Jean (PR Consulting).

Arizona Hemophilia Association
Phoenix, AZ – To enhance the quality of life for those with Hemophilia, Hemophilia-related HIV/AIDS and other inherited bleeding disorders.

Why is it so awesome?
"Imagine having to inject lifesaving medicine into your child three-times a week," said Terence J. Murnin, Public Relations and Content Creation. "Medicine costs an average of $40,000 per month. AHA provides hope and lots of fundraising. Kids with Hemophilia can't do normal things like ride a bike. It's one of the worst things that could ever happen to your son or daughter."

Get some R and R, Taurus

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Start approaching a situation involving your finances and another party. You have a special type of allure that encourages others to listen. Your vision will be well received. A close associate most likely will go along with an unusual idea. Tonight: Out with a friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ You come from a secure point of view. You will see a significant difference in perspective once you are willing to brainstorm with a partner. Somehow you will land at a midpoint that makes you both happy. Defer to others openly. Tonight: Get some extra R and R.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Your ability to tackle a problem and get ahead emerges. You will find that a different approach will work if you are able to come from a grounded point of view. Your creativity emerges and adds to the energy of today's interactions. Tonight: Ever playful.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You might not be able to see a situation in the same way someone else sees it. A strong barrier could result. You are likely to see a personal matter blow up unless you are willing to listen and sympathize. Consider the alternative. Tonight: Stay close to home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Keep the brakes on spending, and be wise about investments. With some guidance, you could be hitting a financial peak. You will discover the power of your words -- just see how people respond to you. Others naturally gravitate toward you. Tonight: Make it your treat.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ You beam and others respond in kind. Be as forthright as possible. Discussions seem to be animated and full of information. Listen well. Use caution with overindulgence. You will be a lot more upbeat than you have been. Tonight: Make a purchase that you have been considering.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Keep your own counsel rather than get yourself in trouble by saying exactly what you are thinking. Your opinion could be transformed by the end of the day anyway. Regroup and handle a personal matter in the late afternoon. Tonight: Beam in whatever you want.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ A meeting could have an excellent outcome for you. You will see a positive response, as long as you give others an entry point. Be more direct in a conversation. Touch base with a loved one at a distance whom you care about. Tonight: Play it cool.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ If you feel negative, do your best to let go of this feeling. Try to have a discussion with a loved one. Take action if need be, rather than settle into a funk. By midday, you might decide to join some of your friends. Your mood is likely to change as a result. Tonight: Don't sulk.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Connect, talk and research. You have most of the day to come to a conclusion. A friend could be very difficult and touchy. Be smart. Don't try to push this person just to get positive feedback. Leave him or her alone. Trust your judgment. Tonight: Assume the lead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ Reach out to someone at a distance, or be ready to dig in and do a lot of research. This person serves as a mentor for you. Remain optimistic and forthright when dealing with an unusual new topic. Make plans to take a vacation soon. Tonight: Relax at home.

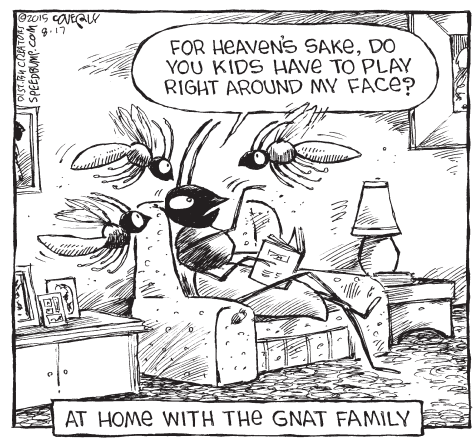

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You'll want to listen to what is being shared. At first, it could seem as if everyone has a lot to say; however, you might determine that there is little of value being verbalized. Reach out to your trusted sources before making a move. Tonight: Make time for a favorite person.

Monday, August 17, 2015

This year you go from being friendly and easygoing to being precise and detail-oriented. You will learn to mix all these different facets together. This could be a significant year for your emotional and financial well-being. Go for what you want, and you most likely will get it. If you are single, your gregarious and kind personality draws many people toward you. You will know when you meet the right person. If you are attached, the two of you become closer, especially as you will make a new commitment to your bond. As a team, you enhance your potential. LIBRA can be very superficial but agreeable.
