Ultimate Frisbee league looks to provide sports alternative

FUN AND GAMES: Locals are trying to increase the visibility of Ultimate Frisbee.

ANGEL CARRERAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

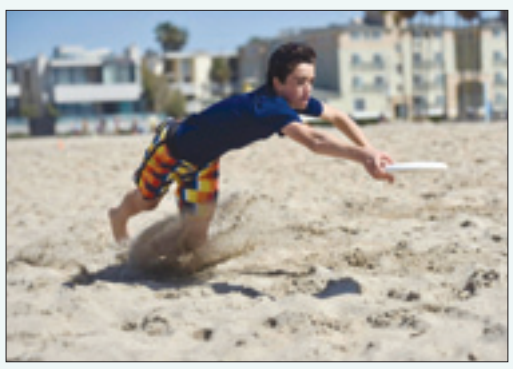

With students starting the nascent months of the school year, they'll begin to form friendships, build camaraderie, and potentially have their interest stoked in group activities that are the natural progression of these things: sports. Football, basketball and wrestling are all popular Fall season sports, but there's one black sheep of the sports family that's looking for recognition. That sport is Ultimate Frisbee.

The non-physical sport — involving not much else besides willing bodies and a frisbee — is easy to dismiss, but Grant Boyd, executive director of ultimate frisbee league Southern California Youth Ultimate, feels the sport should be taken just as seriously as others.

Boyd has been running a beach league for the sport in Santa Monica for several years, but with the opening of Lincoln Middle School's new field and a City invitation to use that space, Boyd is trying to get more eyes on the sport.

"Quite frankly, it's just a really cool sport," Boyd says with a laugh. "Most people consider it an alternative to traditional sports, but we feel

Council approves cell phone antennas on residential streets

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

City Council has denied a pair of appeals that would have prevented the construction of new cell antennas in residential neighborhoods.

Residents objected to the installation of the new technology on the 900 block of 18th street and the 2200 block of 23rd street but Council said the appeals were either overruled by federal mandates or lacked a basis in current municipal code.

The appeals cited health concerns related to function of the towers, aesthetic problems, concerns over depressed real estate values, alleged problems with the permitting process and questions over the future maintenance of the antennas.

Staff said federal law prohibits denial of an antenna based on the environmental effects of radio waves provided the equipment complies with FCC regulations. In addition, city rules only allow for consideration of four criteria when reviewing the applications: the proposed facility complies with all of the applicable laws, the proposed facility will not interfere with the use of the public right-of-way, the proposed facility's impacts have been mitigated through the use of camouflage / concealment elements and the proposed facility is in compliance with all federal electro-magnetic frequency (EMF) emissions standards.

Manish Butte, a pediatric doctor at UCLA, was one of the appellants. He acknowledged the restrictions on EMF arguments but said the proposed equipment posed other safety concerns, would

Mallika Chopra wants to help Santa Monica children (and the world) relax

ANGEL CARRERAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

Santa Monica resident Mallika Chopra (daughter of Deepak) is a multi-hyphenate mogul who has found a way of finding calm in the storm of everyday life: meditation.

The media entrepreneur-CEO-mom-author has written about wellness before, but her target audience has always skewed towards adults, an age-range typically wanting reprieve from stress. Now, Chopra has released "Just Breathe", a kid-friendly wellness book focused on meditation, her favorite method to help prevent stress and anxiety.

The illustrated children's book details simple mindfulness techniques, allowing children and adults alike to, Chopra hopes, walk away with new methods to relax and decompress, keeping stress and it's side effects at bay.

Chopra talked with the Daily Press to discuss her new book and how important meditation has been to her and her family's lives.

IS THIS SOMEWHAT OF A KIDS VERSION OF YOUR PREVIOUS BOOK, 'LIVING WITH INTENT'?

'Living with Intent' is more about a narrative of what I've gone through. That book is more relatable to busy women and parents struggling with so many things. This is similar exercises. It's so simple and practical and some of the feedback I'm getting back from adults is its the easiest. There's not a lot of intellectual thinking, it's all very practical exercises distilled in simple short way.

Theatre Palisades Presents "BARK! The Musical"

Theatre Palisades' first musical of the 2018 season is "Bark! The Musical" runs through October 7 with performances on Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. at the Pierson Playhouse in Pacific Palisades.

Directed by Susan Stangl, Gary Nesternuk is the musical director and with choreography and costumes by Heidi Dotson.

Gavin MacLeod and Arnie Wishnick are executive producers and Ria Erlich and Sylvia Grieb are producers.

"BARK! The Musical" composer is David Troy Francis; book by Mark Winkler and Gavin Geoffrey Dillard. Lyrics by Gavin Geoffrey Dillard, Mark Winkler and Robert Schlock, with additional lyrics by Jonathan Heath and Danny Lukic. The show's original producers are David Troy Franis, Michael Boustead, Jerry Ryan and Chandler Warren.

The cast, in alphabetical order: Greg Abbott (older, wiser King); Elena Coleman (motherly, sock-a-holic Boo); Ben Fuligni (energetic puppy Rocks); Julie Hinton (diva-like operatic Chanel), Peter Miller (macho, street tough Sam) and Marina Curtis Tidwell (brassy, sassy Golde).

"BARK! The Musical" is a tuneful tribute to dogs and their intrepidly human hearts. You will delight in the antics of Boo, Chanel, Golde, King, Rocks and Sam as they navigate their way through doggy day care, the dog park and a dog's life in general. Howlingly funny and sweetly touching, "BARK!" is for all you dog lovers out there.

Tickets are $25 for adults and $23 for seniors and students at Theatre Palisades Pierson Playhouse, 941 Temescal Canyon Dr. (just south of Sunset), Pacific Palisades 9272. Call (310) 454-1970 for more information.

7th Annual Bowling for Birthdays

On Sunday morning September 9th, Bowlmor Lanes Santa Monica will be filled with hundreds of supporters and participants coming together to bowl with one goal in mind... raising money to help create birthday parties for homeless and foster youth. In partnership with shelters across Southern California, the 501(c)3 nonprofit organization Cause for Celebration hosts its 7th Annual Bowling for Birthdays! Join us for a fun morning of bowling – Start or join a team and invite everyone you know – Each team bowls for one-hour – choose round 1 at 10 a.m. or round 2 at 11 a.m. – $20 pp; $15 students, and $10 for children under 12.

In partnership with shelters in Southern California, Culver City-based Cause for Celebration provides birthday parties for homeless and foster youth. Birthdays are a special time of year. Yet for so many children the day passes like all the others, without any acknowledgment. We believe that children should be celebrated throughout the year, and not just during the holidays. Your participation and tax-deductible gift will help create funding necessary for these celebrations.

As the organization's largest event, Bowling for Birthdays! serves to fund approximately 60 birthday parties a year which provides children long-lasting memories of feeling special and the chance to just be a kid on their big day. At the birthday parties, children are treated to games, crafts, food, music and so much more. The day is all about building self-worth and showing each child that they are valued through the power of celebration.

The 3rd Annual Autism Rocks Concert

The 3rd Annual Autism Rocks concert, which is organized by the nonprofit Swag Squad Inc., is being held at the Third Street Promenade in Santa Monica from 3-5pm on Sunday, September 16, 2018. It will be an afternoon of celebration, and an opportunity for people on the autism spectrum to showcase their talents.

This year's Autism Rocks show will be hosted by the founder of Autism Rocks and Secretary of Swag Squad Inc., Alex Lin. The concert will be headlined by Dylan Dunlap, Logan Heroes, Elvis Suissa (frontman for Three Bad Jacks), and Miracle Project Live, featuring Soulshocka. The two previous Autism Rocks concerts were held at Universal Citywalk in Hollywood with American Idol's James Durbin, Adanna Duru, and YouTube sensation Travis Atreo, among others. Shawn Mendes and NBA superstar Blake Griffin also supported this cause in previous years.

"I am a 19 year-old kid with mild Asperger's Syndrome," reveals Alex Lin. "I started this concert with one mission in mind: to spread awareness and educate others on the topic of autism. Growing up as a person with Asperger's, I felt like no one understood or supported me, so I wanted to create an event that would educate others and showcase the talents of people with autism, and illustrate that people on the spectrum are as talented and valuable as anyone else.

"Additionally, I started this concert as a way to honor my grandmother Grace's legacy. She always loved and understood me unconditionally, even though I was considered different to everyone else. So I wanted to make sure that my Grandmother's unconditional love would be given to the rest of the autism community, because they also deserve every inch of the love my late grandmother gave to me."

Responding to Veteran Hunger on the Westside

HUNGER AND HOMELESSNESS ARE devastating, costly hardships that I'm willing to bet most veterans did not intend to sign up for when they enrolled in the Military. Nevertheless, veterans are now experiencing and at risk of hunger and homelessness in high numbers, especially as they age and require more significant care. A 2017 study in the Journal of Nutrition, Health & Aging found that 15% of older veterans in home-based care were malnourished, and that veterans in general may face a greater risk of malnourishment because of the chronic diseases and social risk factors that are prevalent among this population. In Los Angeles County, this risk of hunger is compounded by the enduring homelessness crisis. Despite a sizeable decrease in veteran homelessness overall over the past year, the Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority recognized in its 2018 Count that nearly 4,000 veterans in LA County are still experiencing the hardship of life without secure roofs over their heads.

The good news is that social service agencies on the Westside of LA County, with the help of the Westside Coalition, are focusing on programs that consistently provide nourishing food specifically for these veterans. Founded in 1982, the Westside Coalition is an alliance of 47 organizations, public agencies and faith communities committed to working collaboratively on issues of housing, hunger and health through service coordination, public education and advocacy. While there is much work still to be done, the Homeless Count referenced above found that in the West LA area, veteran homelessness decreased by 53% from the prior year, as compared to the citywide decrease of 18%.

This progress is aided greatly by the work of 20 Westside Coalition member agencies that regularly provide food, mental health services that cater to PTSD-induced trauma, street outreach and case management, transitional housing, and medical services for veterans. Last year, over 20,000 unduplicated veterans were served by these agencies.

Westside Food Bank (WSFB) and Meals on Wheels West's combined hunger relief efforts for veterans is particularly indicative of the work of the Westside Coalition on Hunger Housing and Health, to which both organizations belong. Their Executive Directors both serve on the Board of the Coalition, WSFB's Bruce Rankin as a founding member. Together, they are able to provide food for veterans who are homebound, homeless, and seeking treatment at VA facilities on the Westside.

For veterans who are homebound, Meals on Wheels West (MOW West) offers its signature free home meal delivery, with a side of social interaction, for veterans who can often find themselves becoming both mentally and physically isolated as they age and heal while at risk of experiencing hunger. As Noe Aguirre, a Sergeant Marine Corps veteran who helps connect other veterans with Meals on Wheels West explains in a promotional video for the organization's extensive program, "Homebound veterans are still recovering from combat wounds or severe trauma, or TBI [Traumatic Brain Injuries] or PTSD in general…but help is just a phone call away." By increasing focus on veterans in recent months, MOW West has been able to triple the number of veterans it serves. For 73-year-old Vietnam veteran Purple Heart recipient Bruce Nakashima, those meals and the friendship that he formed with the volunteer and fellow veteran who delivered his food meant the difference between isolation and community, hunger and health. Urging veterans to seek this help, Aguirre says, "You've earned that right, it's not charity."

At Westside Food Bank, which distributes food for nearly 70 social service agencies on the Westside, providing food for homeless and food insecure veterans who are concurrently seeking treatment or services at VA facilities requires a multi-pronged approach. First, the food must be nutritious and easy to access. This means pop-top cans that do not require can openers, fresh fruits and vegetables that can be eaten raw, and diabetes or heart-disease friendly foods that conform to veterans' often restrictive diets. To get this food to veterans, WSFB operates an extensive raised-bed garden at the West LA VA's Bandini Foundation Heroes Golf Course; provides food to multiple veteran-centric member agencies; delivers weekly bagged lunches to VA campus buildings, including their Homeless Outreach and Welcome Centers; and perhaps most notably, runs a weekly farmers' market-style produce distribution right next to the West LA VA's main hospital pavilion. In 2017, Westside Food Bank's food reached over 11,000 veterans.

Together, the food provided by Meals on Wheels West and Westside Food Bank reaches veterans who are homebound, experiencing homelessness, or receiving treatment at a VA facility, and who don't have adequate access to nutritious food. To find out more about the work being done by the Westside Coalition, Meals on Wheels West, and Westside Food Bank, please visit their websites: www.westsideshelter.org, www.mealsonwheelswest.org, www.wsfb.org.

FRISBEE

it'll revolutionize how parents and kids see sports. We develop great athletes and people."

For those unfamiliar, Boyd calls the sport a mixture of basketball-meets-soccer-meets-football, with teams throwing a frisbee to teammates (a la football), taking a few steps per possession (basketball-ish) in order to get to an end zone (football). But what can be revolutionary about tossing a frisbee around?

Boyd says two things, mainly, with the first being no-contact. In an age of concussion awareness, he says a no-contact sport is a "no-brainer" with Ultimate Frisbee avoiding lifetime injuries that other more physical sports could possibly accrue with their players.

Next would be self-officiating. "We're teaching [players] peaceful conflict resolution. How to have discussions with an opponent in a possibly heated moment. To actually listen to another human being, see their perspective and reach a reasonable solution is the rules, but it's also life lesson."

Jennifer Morgerman, a parent who helped nudge the City to allow the sport at Lincoln Middle School's field, is passionate about the sport.

She says the non-contact and peaceful resolution aspects appealed to her ("Doesn't that demonstrate exactly the kind of world we want to show our kids, especially right now?"), but the inclusiveness of the sport made her a lifelong fan.

"Ultimate appeals to the kind of kid I see a lot of, one that I think often gets left out of team sports ... This is the kid who would love it and really benefit from it, but for whatever reason … more traditional offerings are just not the right fit for them."

Boyd is taking steps to introduce the sport to schools, attempting to make it an official sport.

He's worked with the after school program LA's Best and has done Ultimate Frisbee clinics with CREST Sports, a non-competitive Santa Monica recreational program. His biggest dreams are seeing the sport as a varsity sport someday and hopefully even see it in the Olympics.

Yes, the Olympics.

The International Olympic Committee recently recognized frisbee as a sport, opening up eligibility for a 2024 or 2028 run for the sport.

"It would be incredibly cool for Santa Monica to start producing talents and developing athletes to be the face of Ultimate Frisbee. This could be ground zero for the beginning of that."

SCYU's Back to School sessions begin September 7. For more information on Ultimate Frisbee, visit SCYU.org

MEDITATION

IN AN AGE OF IPADS, NINTENDO SWITCHES AND A LOT OF DIGITAL STIMULATION, WILL CHILDREN AND PARENTS OF THESE CHILDREN HAVE A HARD TIME GETTING THEMSELVES TO MEDITATE?

Yes. I think all of us, parents included, have problems trying to find time to meditate.

Parents are also distracted by an onslaught of stimulation — social media, texts, YouTube, emails — and I think it's difficult for everyone to find time to meditate. Sometimes it feels like you can't stop, that you need to be doing something.

My goal is to introduce easy, simple, short techniques that can help us disconnect for a minute or even just give ourselves a deep breathe to connect with the inner-self, not just rely on external stimulation.

IS IT HARD FOR YOU TO DISENGAGE WITH TECH, TOO?

Always! (laughs) It's always so hard to disengage.

I have a Youtube channel with my brother and father that I did, a series called Perfectly Imperfect Parents. In the trailer, it's me talking about being present and mindful...but I'm peeking at my iPhone while I'm saying it. (laughs) I think all of us are distracted, probably more so than we'd care to admit.

iPhones, computers — these devices have become an extension of ourselves and we [check for notifications] without thinking about it, it's muscle memory now. Part of mindfulness is getting away from that.

HOW HAS MEDITATION AND MINDFULNESS IMPACTED YOUR LIFE AS WELL AS YOUR FAMILY'S LIVES?

I learned how to meditate when I was 9. I've been irregular with meditation practice, but I have this technique with myself that's provided an anchor to deal with stress that allows me to be happier.

[Meditation] was a gift my parents gave me as a child and something I wanted to share with my kids, who are now 13 and 16. My parents never forced me or my sister, they gave us tools and we used them when we needed it.

We see meditation techniques as ways to take a deep breathe and deal with stressful situations, to be more aware of mindfulness. For example, if I was panicking, I breathe, observe, think about my internal dialogue and complaining, and that mindfulness helps me.

I wrote this book more as a guide to think, to live a life with these really simple techniques, to help [people] be happier. It's filled with life lessons as a kid that helped me. As a parent, meditation became something I felt I didn't have time to do. As I got stressed and anxious in my own life, I rediscovered mediation. Just doing 5 minutes in the carpool lane can help me. (laughs)

WHY AGES 8-12?

I wanted to write a book for children, just for kids. I want to empower them to take control and do things on their own. I think ages 8 - 12 is a perfect age for it, kids are intelligent, curious, willing to try things at those ages.

My greatest hope with this book is that parents explore mindfulness and meditation with their children, discover it together. My advice to parents is they follow the techniques themselves and have children learn by watching them, ask them to join and try the techniques.

IS THERE AN AGE THAT'S TOO EARLY TO LEARN MEDITATION?

I don't think there's too early an age, but I encourage parents to find their own practice and pace then lead by example.

WHAT CAN PARENTS OR OTHERS OUTSIDE OF THE 8-12 GROUP LEARN FROM THIS BOOK?

I feel like meditation is the most valuable gift my parents gave to me as a child. I've talked to so many people in Santa Monica and in the Westside, I've seen how its helped them and I just want to share this knowledge. Kids are stressed and anxious in this day and age: bullying, homework stress, social media envy. I think this helps. We all want a healthy community.

Well Being Trust Announces grant to St. John's

Well Being Trust (WBT) has announced $8.5 million in new grants as the second round of grants to mental health and well-being initiatives in California.

"Mental health challenges do not exist in isolation—they are intertwined with chronic health conditions, lack of safe and clean housing, substance use disorders, economic and transportation deficiencies and a myriad of other issues," said Tyler Norris, MDiv, chief executive, Well Being Trust. "With both rounds of grants, we intend to meet people where they are and where they need help and focus on all of the issues that impact one's mental health and well-being."

As in the first round, for round two, Well Being Trust worked with California-based partners to identify the most significant areas of need and the community-level programs that could provide substantial health and well-being improvements across the state.

Providence Saint John's Health Center's Community Care Coordination Program for Vulnerable Patients received funding. This program brings together The People Concern, St. Joseph Center, and Venice Family Clinic to provide intensive patient navigation and case management for high needs individuals experiencing homelessness, ensuring a smooth transition from the Emergency Department to community services. Case managers at The People Concern and St. Joseph Center will work with social workers, other case managers, and community care coordinators at Saint John's Health to develop a coordinated care plan for individuals and establish a permanent medical home at Venice Family Clinic.

This is grant will help to fund the hospital's the Homeless Care Navigation Program, which provides patients who are homeless with information about resources. The funding also will provide additional case managers for two of our partner organizations serving the homeless, St. Joseph Center and The People Concern. The goal is to expedite patient referrals from Providence Saint John's to these organizations.

Well Being Trust is a national foundation dedicated to advancing the mental, social, and spiritual health of the nation. Created to include participation from organizations across sectors and perspectives, Well Being Trust is committed to innovating and addressing the most critical mental health challenges facing America, and to transforming individual and community well-being. www.wellbeingtrust.org.

Promote A Healthy And Happy Lifestyle At Santa Monica's Buy Local Health And Fitness Festival

The Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce and the City of Santa Monica will host the Buy Local Health and Fitness Festival on Saturday, Sept. 8 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Reed Park. This free event brings together Santa Monica's local businesses, services and nonprofits for a fun filled day while raising awareness about the economic, environmental, and community benefits of thinking local first.

The event will kick-off with Walk with the Mayor that will leave Reed Park (corner of California Avenue and 7th Street) at 10 a.m. and return to Reed Park for the official start of the Buy Local Health and Fitness Festival at 11 a.m. The one-mile loop will showcase Santa Monica's first neighborhood walking loop created in partnership with Adopt-A-Walk. Children should be in strollers or capable of walking the whole route and dogs are welcome!

THIS YEAR'S EVENT WILL FEATURE:

- Food trucks, local pop-up stores and activities to learn about fitness from every Santa Monica neighborhood.
- Homeless Task Force Hygiene Kit Assembly Station.
- Bike and scooter skills course for kids
- Interactive pet wellness zone
- Free health screenings and one on one's with doctors from the top hospitals in town
- As well as opportunities to learn about the many services and resources the City offers.

The event's lead sponsors are Fairmont Miramar Hotel and Bungalows, Kaiser Permanente, UCLA Health Center and Cedars Sinai. The event is in partnership with Santa Monica Classic 5K/10K Run, Santa Monica Education Foundation, Main Street Business Improvement Association, Montana Avenue Merchants Association, Pico Improvement Organization, and Downtown Santa Monica Inc.

reduce property values and was the result of a defective approval process.

He said safety studies are invalidated by elevating the antennas above ground level (installation would occur atop existing light poles) and that the nature of the raised work creates privacy concerns for residents like his young daughter whose window is directly across from an antenna.

"I think we really need to make sure there are regulations requiring notice and restricting times of day that these cell towers can be serviced," he said. "That might partially benefit all of us if this is going on."

Butte said while there are limitations on the council's authority, they do have some authority over installation and maintenance.

"Your hands are not tied in this matter; you do have the ability to regulate and protect us on this issue," he said.

Butte also said the entire approval process is broken and in need of repair.

Councilman McKeown reiterated the restrictions on local governments. He said Federal laws have systematically reduced the power of local jurisdictions over cellular technology and that no arguments over radiation fears can be entertained provided the equipment meets existing standards.

He said the council will be overwhelmed by similar appeals if it doesn't incorporate some of residents' legitimate concerns into the approval process.

"There's a lot of towers that people are going to be very concerned about and I don't want to spend every night for the next five years talking about cell towers," he said.

While Council approved the two locations, they directed staff to come back with additional rules to govern future applications that will cover the appropriateness of locations, service rules, perception of blight, perception of real estate values and possible working hours for antenna owners.

L.A. premiere: HRW presents documentary Naila and the Uprising with discussion, reception

Human Rights Watch will host the Los Angeles premiere of Naila and the Uprising on September 26. By looking at the little-known yet instrumental role of women during the First Intifada, the movie opens a window into issues still at stake in today's conflict in Israel and Palestine.

Join organizers starting at 6:15 p.m. at Santa Monica's Aero Theatre for Mediterranean food and drinks and stay after the movie for an engaging discussion with director Julia Bacha, producer Rula Salameh, and Human Rights Watch's Deputy Director for the Middle East and North Africa Division Eric Goldstein.

When an uprising breaks out in the Occupied Palestinian Territories in 1987, a young woman in Gaza must make a choice between love, family, and freedom. Naila and the Uprising chronicles the remarkable real-life journey of Naila Ayesh, a key figure in the First Intifada, which forced the world to recognize the Palestinian right to self-determination for the first time. Using evocative animation, intimate interviews, and exclusive archival footage, this film tells the story the mainstream media missed: of a courageous clandestine women's movement at the head of Palestinians' struggle for freedom, bringing out of anonymity the courageous women activists whose contributions and sacrifices changed history, but whose stories have remained untold until now.

All attendees are invited to stay after the screening for a Q & A followed by a dessert reception with panelists Director Julia Bacha, Deputy Director, Middle East and North Africa Division Human Rights Watch Eric Goldstein and Producer Rula Salameh

General tickets are $30 and student tickets are $15. Tickets are unreserved and seating is first-come, first-served. 6:15 p.m. Doors open; Hors-d'oeuvres & Drinks. 7 p.m. movie, followed by Q&A. 8:45 p.m. light dessert reception.

Through regularly scheduled screenings and discussions, Human Rights Watch's Film Club in Los Angeles creates a forum to advance awareness of human rights issues and empower audiences with the knowledge that personal commitment can make a difference.

For 40 years, Human Rights Watch has been at the forefront of the international human rights movement, investigating human rights abuses and exposing the truth in order to bring about deep-rooted change. Around the globe we work in tandem with local activists who often put their lives at risk to protect the rights and dignity of others.

Notices will be handed out to residents and businesses who will be affected by the water shut-off during the connection process. Traffic will be reduced to one lane. Please use alternate routes whenever possible.

LA Metro public art project – "Tears Of Santa Monica"

For the week of September 3, construction will take place at the westerly wall of the Expo light rail station at 4th and Colorado. The project will run from Summer until the early part of Fall. Intermittent easterly sidewalk and northbound 4th Street lane closures will take place. For any questions or further information, please contact Henry Servín, at (310) 458-8291 or Leticia Ivins at LA Metro at IvinsL@metro.net with any questions/concerns regarding this project.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 3)

You relate to others brilliantly, making them feel witty, accomplished and winning. This catapults you to popularity and political power. At times during this solar return, you will work too hard, but at least you'll have a good time with it. Fun on the job will be a daily occurrence. You'll make a big sale in May. Cancer and Gemini adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 3, 33, 25 and 17.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

The assumptions people make about you will usually tell you more about who they are than about who you are. So regardless of how favorable or unfavorable is the response you're getting, do consider the source.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Relationships will be better without interference. Things improve when you stop listening to the advice of your resident know-it-all. Feel your way through.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)

It's hard to see your own progress. Things may seem to be coming together more slowly than you would have liked. But what you're doing will be super impressive to those who haven't checked in on you in a while.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)

Even though you've been striving to do something more outrageous than what you wanted before, the little things are still what matter to you. A moment of connection will be the highlight of your day.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Shed your reservations; they won't do you much good today. In other words, don't hesitate to introduce yourself, ask your question or speak up about what you notice, and go in for the hug.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Things will trend in one direction, and quite logically at that. For instance, tensions will tend to compound on each other, or the opposite way will happen, wherein relaxation leads to laziness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

The powers that be push you to the brink of self-discovery. Your reactions are surprising to you. It's true you were born with certain gifts and limitations. But ultimately, you decide who you are.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)

If someone had told you that this would be where you'd end up today, you wouldn't have believed the person. Your relationship with a Cancer or Capricorn could help you make the most of the opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Favored activities include doing business overseas, dealing in different languages or chatting up that mysterious person in your neighborhood who comes from far away.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

The kind of clients and customers you desire want to work with people who have passion for the job. The more enthusiastic you are the more money you'll make.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Will you get what you want? There are as many reasons you could as there are reasons you could not. So hope for the best and try your hardest. You'll feel good about what happens, regardless of the outcome.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

Simple and small goals will win the day. Reaching out to one person, committing to one project or making one phone call will make more of a difference than trying to do more.

Lunar Whimsy

When following riskier, wackier and generally more unusual pursuits, leave the pessimists out of it. Though there are times when it's good to have a dubious person in the mix, today that would only sully the experience of moving full steam ahead with unreasonable whimsy under the trendy Gemini moon.

WELL NEWS BY SCOTT LAFEE

Best Medicine

■ Sam visits his doctor for his annual physical.
■ "Everything looks good," declares Sam's doctor. "You're doing OK for your age."
■ "For my age," exclaims Sam. "I'm only 75. I want to know if I'll make 80."
■ "Well" replies the doctor, "do you drink or smoke?"
■ "No," says Sam.
■ "Do you eat fatty meats or sweets?"
■ "No."
■ "What about activities? Do you engage in thrilling behaviors like racing cars or skiing?"
■ "Absolutely not," says Sam. "I would never engage in dangerously thrilling activities."
■ "In that case," the doctor says, "why would you want to live to be 80?"
