THIS WEEK IS SOBRIETY CHECKPOINT WEEK

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ About 1,000 animals were scheduled to be dug up from Pet's Rest cemetery in Colma, Calif., after owners realized that their lease had run out (June). And the Green River Cemetery in Greenfield, Mass., began hurriedly moving and re-burying bodies, which had begun sliding down a muddy slope into the river (July). And about 100 skeletons were recently unearthed from an old graveyard beneath the St. Joseph's Church, which the Archdiocese of Boston demolished in 2004 and sold (July)

■ In the city of London, England, began selling used burial sites (for the equivalent of about $5,600), offering to inter bodies on top of previous burials and to re-mark gravestones with new names (July).

■ The robber of a Bank of America branch in Tampa, Fla., in August is actually still at large, but according to witnesses, the bag of cash he took and stuffed down his pants as he fled had exploded, from the chemical dye pack inside, creating a temperature of about 425 degrees. Said a police spokesperson, "There's no way that he was not injured." (In his spirited post-ignition dash, the man jettisoned almost all the money.)

■ In 2001, News of the Weird mentioned William Lyttle, then age 71, of North London, England, who was notorious for obsessively digging tunnels underneath his 20-room home. That year, he had dug past the property line for the first time and created a 15-foot hole in the street. Earlier in 2006, Lyttle was temporarily evicted when his tunneling threatened the integrity of the entire street, and building inspectors feared that his accumulation of junk would cause the house itself to sink into the ground already weakened by 40 years' worth of burrowing. Engineers are considering cementing in all the tunnels.

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Never tell anyone that you're: writing a book, going on a diet, exercising, taking a course, or quitting smoking. They'll encourage you to death."

Habitat helps house locals

Five homes built to shelter families

BY KEVIN HERRERA
Daily Press Staff Writer

PICO NEIGHBORHOOD — Low-income residents looking for a permanent place to rest their heads in Santa Monica may be in luck.

Habitat For Humanity of Greater Los Angeles, founded in 1990 to build quality housing for those who are struggling to find shelter, is looking for Santa Monicans suffering from financial hardship to become owners of one of five townhomes at 2018 19th St., currently a vacant lot.

The project is a joint housing effort with City Hall.

"The city of Santa Monica approached us with the idea of creating an affordable housing project in which people could own their own homes," said Erin Rank, president of Habitat For Humanity of Greater Los Angeles. "They had affordable rental programs in place, but never had they done an affordable home ownership program such as this."

"We wanted to partner with them to see if we can make home ownership a reality for someone currently living or working in Santa Monica because we understand that affordability is hard to come by," Rank added.

Fabian Lewkowicz/Daily Press

The vacant lot at 2018 19th St. will soon become a Habitat For Humanity project, housing low-income families.

City Hall helped Habitat purchase the land for $425,000 three years ago and have been partners in the design process, incorporating environmentally-friendly concepts that use green-building technology, Rank said.

To qualify, a family of four must make no more than $34,650 a year, have a steady source of income and be willing to dedicate 500 hours of "sweat equity" into the construction of their home, Rank said.

Habitat staff is currently hosting a series of orientation meetings (see box for details) where interested parties can learn more about the project and fill out an application to see if they qualify. Rank said staff will be looking for those families who are paying a disproportionate amount of their income on rent, as well as those who live in substandard, dangerous living conditions, which may

WILSHIRE BLVD. — On a daily basis, thousands of motorists drive on 11th and Wilshire and stare at the man on the corner, holding a sign and dancing like a madman.

His name is Philip Parks, someone who enjoys making policemen smile and has a strong tendency to speak in rhyme. When Parks puts on his costume and heads out to the street corner he becomes "Rental Man."

Parks wears a red cape, the standard Westside Rentals "Rent Me" shirt, black and red striped shorts, boots and a huge grin. Behind him is his stereo, blasting his favorite tunes. He holds a Westside Rentals

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have:

★★★★★DYNAMIC    ★★★★★ POSITIVE    ★★★ AVERAGE    ★★SO-SO    ★DIFFICULT

♈ ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★★ Step up to the plate. You take charge of your life, professionally or personally. If you would like to move on a special project, the timing is right. News clears a different path for you. Investigate new beginnings. Consider a mind-opening experience — a trip or perhaps a seminar. Tonight: Go for what you want.

♉ TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★★ Read between the lines. You will see a situation differently. Detach, and you'll get answers before you realize it. Think positively about what you need to do. Think before you take a stand. Your words have an impact. Tonight: Togetherness warms up a bond — and the night.

♊ GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★★ Work with one person this morning, and you'll get ahead. Think before you change directions. Read between the lines and get to the bottom of a problem. Others might be malleable and rethink their position. Tonight: Take an overview.

♋ CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★★ You might need to revise your thinking or approach a problem from a different vantage point. You discover how much working with key associates could benefit you. Don't sell yourself short — now or ever. Tonight: Choose to be with favorite company.

♌ LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★ Stay even and roll with the situations. You might want to revise a project or creative endeavor. You will come out on top. Surely you move quickly and with precision. Your high energy brings new beginnings. Tonight: Time for a budget.

♍ VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Your creativity comes out, no matter what realm you are dealing with. Information comes forward that encourages a different point of view. You will open a new door if you are willing to take a stand. Change directions if need be. Tonight: Get some exercise.

♎ LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You come from a solid point of view and might not be sure of what is best. In fact, as you gather information, your perspective could and will totally mutate. Think in terms of dynamic change and positive relating. Tonight: Happiness surrounds you.

♏ SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ Communicate what you want. You might find that your needs change, especially as others are willing to pitch in. Your inner circle comes through. Be willing to revamp expenses with an eye to the future. Tonight: Head home. Relax.

♐ SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Much that has eluded you becomes available — finally. You have a way of revising your thinking. Expenses need a hard look. Sometimes your laissez-faire attitude plays into your thinking. Tonight: Speak up.

♑ CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ You might want to think through what you say and do. You might find a different perspective opening up. The more you understand, the more you empower yourself. Ask questions that force growth and thought. Tonight: Gather your bills.

♒ AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ Use the morning for accepting a situation as it really is. You could see life far differently if you open up to what is going on. Allow in greater lightness and happiness. Friendship always plays a significant role in your decisions. Tonight: As you wish.

♓ PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ Zero in on your priorities. Think in terms of gains and growth through a key person. You take a stand and work with it. Listen to a friend who confides in you. You might change your stance as a result of this discussion. Tonight: Take some time off.

COMMUNITY BRIEFS

Climbing for a cure

By Daily Press staff

Local resident Todd Gelfand plans to take a deep breath and enjoy the view from 19,563 feet on Sept. 21.

Gelfand is one of 10 people from eight different countries who make up the Ascent for Alzheimer's World Team. The six-day hike to the top of one of the world's highest peaks will help to increase awareness of Alzheimer's disease, but it is also a personal journey for Gelfand who lost his mother, Judy, to Alzheimer's.

"Unfortunately World Alzheimer's Day is just another day in the struggle to find a cure," Gelfand said, speaking from his home where he is the managing partner of Gelfand, Rennert and Feldman, an entertainment business management firm with a celebrity roster. "But it is exciting to combine the need to raise funds and awareness of Alzheimer's disease with something as personally challenging as the ascent to Kilimanjaro."

Alzheimer Society of British Columbia founded Ascent for Alzheimer's eight years ago. The first Ascent for Alzheimer's was held in 1998. Since then, teams have climbed Mount Kilimanjaro in Tanzania and Gokyo Ri in Nepal to help raise funds and awareness about Alzheimer's disease.

World Alzheimer's Day is coordinated by Alzheimer's Disease International and observed on Sept. 21 each year. The day was launched with the support of the World Health Organization in 1994. Alzheimer organizations, other groups and individuals typically mark the day with events throughout the world. This year, Gelfand is one of only three Americans, and the only one from California who is undertaking the challenge.

This climb is not Gelfand's first attempt to channel heartbreak into change. After watching his mother lose a nine-year battle with Alzheimer's, Gelfand made a commitment to join the search for a cure. He and his family established The Judy Fund which, to date, has funded over $2.4 million in Alzheimer's Association grants. In addition, The Judy Fund sponsored the Pioneer Award, the Alzheimer's Association's largest grant of $1 million. These funds will be used to support a five-year study on the quality of care in assisted living facilities with the goal of establishing a best-practice model for Alzheimer's care.

All funds raised from the climb to Kilimanjaro will be used for Alzheimer's research.

Public input needed for development zoning

MY WRITE BY BILL BAUER

Proposition 90 on the November ballot is a statewide "pay to protect" measure that would give virtually everyone and anyone the right to sue cities and government entities by claiming a law or regulation has caused an economic loss and negatively impacted their property values.

Taxpayers could wind up paying out millions of dollars for claims against basic zoning laws that protect the environment and our neighborhoods from over development. Zoning codes and regulations that restrict undesirable businesses and overdevelopment, protect water, habitat and air quality and enact consumer protection statutes could attract frivolous litigation and result in horrendous legal costs and expensive payouts.

Here in Santa Monica, the Land Use and Circulation Element (LUCE) has been undergoing updating for a couple of years. If City Hall was to downzone a neighborhood or mandate a lower level of development than a property owner believes his property can accommodate, that developer could sue under the provisions of Prop. 90 — if approved by California voters. Taxpayers could be on the hook for the value of property at its densest level — even if the community opposed or couldn't handle the proposed development.

Rulings in place before election day aren't subject to Prop. 90's provisions, therefore implementation of revised zoning for the six city neighborhoods most likely to experience the greatest amount of redevelopment must be done before Nov. 7.

For example, on Main Street, current zoning allows for buildings twice the size of the mostly one- and two-floor buildings there now. Proposed changes would maintain the street's existing scale and charm. If City Hall was to downzone Main Street after an approved Prop. 90, City Hall could be sued if a property owner claims that new codes prohibit larger, previously permitted developments and results in loss of property value. Depending on the judgment, the cost could be considerable especially if many property owners litigate.

City staff has made a number of recommendations subject to review and approval by the Planning Commission and City Council. Their recommendations, as summarized by City Councilman Kevin McKeown in an informational e-mail to neighbors are:

■ In R2 zones (smaller, low density, multifamily apartments and condos), reduce the base standards for permitted projects from five to four units on a typical parcel. Reduce the building footprint from 50 percent to 45 percent lot coverage.

■ Reduce the R3 (medium density, apartment buildings and condos) standards to current R2 standards for lower height, less mass and fewer units. In both the R2 and R3 multifamily districts, give "preferred" priority only to Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) certified environmental buildings; affordable housing; apartments — as opposed to condos — including market-rate rentals; historic projects and senior housing. "Preferred" projects would be allowed to build to existing standards.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

City Hall customer service plan needs some tweaking

Editor:

With regard to the article "A new era of service at City Hall," (SMDP, Aug. 30, page 1) while any effort to erode the insularity of city staff is both laudable and welcome, an illiterate slogan makes a questionable start. "We do the right thing right" does not give one confidence. This sounds like a fast food slogan. The addition of a comma and a question mark makes for better grammar: "We do the right thing, right?" but lacks conviction. The seven "standards" could use some work too. I'll wager that not a single city staffer could recite them from memory. The first standard is typical: "Maintain the highest level of ethical standards." The first standard is to maintain more standards? Rubbish. It might read "Maintain the highest levels of ethical behavior." Although that may imply more accountability than City Hall desires. I, for one, find the commercial jargon used in these guidelines repellent. We're not "customers." We're citizens. If this business model must be used, then we are "shareholders" in our civic enterprise. Progress is being made, certainly. The amelioration of the dog waste bag dispenser debacle is a hopeful sign. It shouldn't have happened in the first place, but at least the wrong-headedness was corrected. There is much to do and it is heartening to see that the new city manager is determined to narrow the gulf between city administration and those it serves. The proof will be in the doing, not in the slogans, PC and PR.

Bill Worden
Santa Monica

■ In those and other residential zones, reduce the allowable height by forbidding projections like elevators, stairs, parapets and mechanical rooms and screening. Instead, require that such items be accommodated only within the permitted volume allowed by the existing code and proposed amendments.

■ In R2R zones (low density, single-family home or duplex, residential district along the beach south of Pico Boulevard), re-establish design review on all homes. Change R3R (medium density, multiple family coastal residential district) standards to be consistent with R3, thus reducing building density.

■ On most of Main Street's commercial district (CM2) reduce the allowed maximum floor area ratio to almost half of what is permitted now (1.5 to .8). Prohibit lot consolidations over 6,000 square feet to help preserve scale and character.

■ In M1 zones (industrial conservation district), remove "artists studio" height incentives.

Public comment is requested. Voice your opinions and don't be afraid to present your own suggestions for zoning and building code changes. Now is the time to act and here's what to do:

■ Read the staff report on City Hall's Web site <http://santa-monica.org/home/>. Go to Planning Commission, agendas, Sept. 6, 2006, item 11B — staff report. Zoning maps also are on the Web Site, under Planning and Community Development.

■ Give your input by e-mailing shapethefuture2025@smgov.net or the City Council at council@smgov.net.

■ Attend the Planning Commission meeting Wednesday, Sept. 6, or City Council on Tuesday, Sept. 12 and speak out.

include no electricity or heat. Those who live in high-crime areas also will be awarded extra consideration, she said.

Those who are chosen will be given a 20- to 30-year mortgage with a 0 percent interest rate. The homes will be sold at cost.

Rank said the development will include four, three-bedroom townhomes and one two-bedroom unit. Two will be equipped for those who suffer from physical disabilities. The project also will include subterranean parking for residents and their guests, a picnic area and a small community center where residents can host meetings of their homeowner's association.

Those chosen will have to help in the construction, which is expected to begin in the first quarter of next year, perhaps in March, Rank said. The final five families will be notified sometime in January or February.

"Habitat seeks to make decent shelter a matter of conscience and action in our community by providing home ownership opportunities to families in need," Rank said. "We are looking for people in substandard living conditions who are interested in getting a hand up, not a hand out and are willing to pay back a mortgage and invest time in building the home so they can give their family a better future."

Those who do participate will be helping other families as well because their mortgage payments help finance the purchase of additional property, Rank said.

All residents of Santa Monica are encouraged to help with the construction, as well as become mentors for the families, guiding them through the difficult stages of home ownership, Rank said.

"We really do want the community to be a partner in this," Rank said.

Since its founding in 1976 by Millard and Linda Fuller, Habitat For Humanity has built and rehabilitated more than 150,000 homes across the world, becoming one of the leaders in addressing the issues of poverty. Former President Jimmy Carter helped raise awareness about the organization when in 1984 he and his wife, Rosalynn, took their first Habitat work trip, the Jimmy Carter Work Project, to New York City.

This is Habitat's first housing venture in Santa Monica.

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

“Know before you Go” is a weekly update on construction projects throughout Santa Monica. Here is a run-down of this week’s construction projects initiated by City Hall

Airport Park and Airport Avenue improvements
Site grading, constructing new artificial turf soccer fields, constructing new playground, restrooms and dog park area, and reconstructing a portion of Airport Avenue. On-site detour possible during street reconstruction.

Civic Center parking structure
Construction continues on a new 900-space Civic Center public parking structure, located on Fourth Street next to the Public Safety Facility. Construction will require the closure of the Fourth Street sidewalk. Lanes on southbound and northbound Fourth Street are subject to closure while work is occurring. There will be traffic control on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. There also may be delays entering the Civic Center parking lot from Fourth Street entrance. Use the Main Street entrance.

Emergency Southern California Edison vault repair
Southern California Edison has completed its repair and replacement of high-voltage underground cables in the downtown area. All streets and alleys are open through Labor Day, Sept. 4. Beginning Tuesday, Sept. 5, through Friday, Sept. 8, the bus lane on Santa Monica Boulevard and the Second Street Court alley will be closed from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. to accommodate work crews and equipment. Also, on Monday, Sept. 11 through Saturday, Sept. 16, the bus lane on Santa Monica Boulevard and one lane on Broadway is subject to closure from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. to accommodate work crews and equipment. All parking structures are open and accessible to vehicles. Updates and changes will be posted as improvements continue.

Fire serve installation
The Santa Monica Water Resources Division is in the process of construction work on Main Street, between Pico Boulevard and Bay Street. Work conducted is for the purpose of supplying water for fire protection to the 150 Pico Blvd. property that is located at the southwest corner of Main Street and Pico Boulevard.

Gas main installation
The Gas Company will install a new two inch gas main on the east side of 23rd Street from Carlyle to Georgina avenues. Detours and lane closures may occur, and will be posted at various sites during construction. Work hours will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Los Angeles County Department of Public Works Storm Drain Repair
Installation of a low-flow diversion unit on Ashland Avenue, between Main Street and Neilson Way. There will be detour signs posted around the work area.

Marine Street utility undergrounding
Relocation and undergrounding of electric, phone and cable facilities on Marine Street, between Lincoln Boulevard and Prospect Court. Parking limitations will be posted daily and detours may be announced as necessary.

Street/park lighting retrofit program
Installation of a new light standard and circuit conversion from series to multiple and all other apparatus to provide a complete and operational street and park lighting system. Occasional traffic slowdown at the following locations Wilshire Boulevard and Yale Street Virginia Avenue and 21st Street; and Delaware and 22nd Street.

Street and parking lot resurfacing
Street and park parking lot resurfacing, sidewalk, driveway, curb and gutter repairs. Repairs are scheduled through October 2006. Sidewalk, driveway, curb and gutter repairs begin on Bay Street from Euclid Street to Lincoln Boulevard; Pacific Street from 14th Street to 11th Street; Pearl Street from 14th Street to Euclid Street; Pearl Street from 11th Street to Lincoln Boulevard; Ninth Street from Pico Boulevard to I-10 Freeway; Michigan Avenue from Ninth Street to the east alley; 10th Street from Pico Boulevard to I-10 Freeway; 11th Street from Pico Boulevard to Olympic Boulevard; 12th Street from Pico Boulevard to I-10 Freeway; Euclid Street from Pico Boulevard to I-10 Freeway; and Michigan Avenue from 11th Street to 14th Street. Lane closures around work posted as necessary.

Water fluoridation system project
Installation of a fluoridation system at 19th Street at San Vicente Boulevard. Street closures will occur on 19th Street and on San Vicente, traffic will narrow to one lane in each direction.

Water main replacement
Installation of new water main complete with service connections throughout the city. Detours and lane closures may occur, and will be posted at various sites during construction.

New water main installation
Installation of new water main complete with service connections at 17th Street between Pico Boulevard and the 10 Freeway. Detours and lane closures may occur, and will be posted at various sites during construction.

Emergency Southern California Edison Vault Repair
Edison and city crews are working to mediate an emergency vault explosion in the downtown area. On Wednesday, Aug. 23, there will be a partial closure on Broadway, between Second and Fourth streets. On Santa Monica Boulevard between Second and Fourth streets, one lane will be open to traffic at all times. Parking is prohibited on the north side of the 200-300 blocks for traffic. Court 2 (alley) is closed between Santa Monica Boulevard and Broadway to all vehicular and pedestrian traffic until further notice. Updates and changes will be posted as improvements continue on the city’s web site at santa-monica.org.

Montana/Wilshire Storm Water Diversion Structures
Installation of a Storm Water Diversion debris removal and diversion facility will begin Aug. 7 at Ocean Avenue at Montana Avenue and Wilshire Boulevard. Traffic will narrow to one lane in each direction on Ocean Avenue at Montana Avenue.

Euclid Park Project
Construction of a new public park. The project scope will consist of site grading and construction of a new play area (with swings and climbing apparatus), a new garden area, two small green lawn areas, three circular-shaped seating areas and a trellis entry. Construction is projected until May 2007.

Fierce moves

sign, gesturing and spinning it as he pumps his arms and legs, twisting, bobbing, jumping and turning heads.

Parks dances between six and eight hours a day to advertise for Westside Rentals. On Sundays he heads to Costa Mesa to keep grooving. His enthusiasm seems unlimited. He dances rain or shine, and regardless of the hour he never seems to let up or slow down. Some cars cheer him on, some jeer and a few don't even notice him but Parks never lets them get in the way of his rhythm. But beneath the dancing machine exterior is a man who has finally landed the perfect job.

Although Parks has only been employed by Westside Rentals for the past two months, his passion for dancing stems from his childhood. Growing up in Seal Beach, Parks danced frequently — at any venue he could find. He danced so much that his parents finally sent him to military school to get some discipline. They were concerned because he spent so much time dancing on street corners trying to get attention.

After military school, Parks went to Pasadena City College and Glendale College, where he continued with his passion by taking jazz, ballet and modern dance classes.

However, during his year at the Army Navy Academy, Parks was forbidden to dance. He said he feels that the excess discipline just pent up his energy and perhaps that's why at 33-years-old, Parks is still dancing on street corners, now trying to get the attention of prospective apartment rental customers.

Parks stopped dancing for a few minutes to sit down with the Daily Press to discuss a life of dancing.

When did you begin dancing?

"I started dancing in the Boy Scouts when I was 9. I did like a 10-minute rap, freestyle rap, and I started dancing for all the dudes and they all loved me out there. Then I did a one-minute rap and dance for a drama class. They liked it so much they wanted me to do it for every class. I was the only in one class but they all wanted to check out the action. I used to dance a lot at Los Alamitos basketball games, football games and Laker games at the forum. My goal — and I finally got it — was I got on the big tron, the big tron, 'cause I had it going on, the big tron where everyone saw me and was checking out my moves."

How did you get this job?

"I was discovered (dancing) at a basketball game. I've been noticed at basketball games, not really discovered, and I've been on TV a few times but I've never been offered a job like this. I didn't expect anything, that's probably why I hadn't. I didn't have a big tip jar outside the basketball games trying to get money. I was just doing it for fun."

What was your former profession?

"I was in the military in the early '90s. I'm glad I'm not in it now 'cause there's a war going on. It's not worth it."

What did you think of the military?

"Good for discipline, bad for killing and taking people's lives in the war. The war is the worst thing about the military, the best thing is discipline and teamwork. But I'm not in the military now, so I don't have to worry about the war, there's enough of a war outside. A war of words."

What is your attitude towards your job?

"It's good exercise. I get kind of tired of the treadmill at the gym so it's a good cardio workout. It's a good way to get advertising. It's hard to get everyone's attention, but if you can get smiles on people's faces and get a few people to come in here and there you're doing pretty good. Every job you do at the very beginning is going to be hard, or it's not worth it. So the road is a long and winding road, and the road can be tough at times but if you persevere and you keep working hard you will win it. Like a basketball game in the fourth quarter, you will come back and win it."

Do you exercise off the job?

"I do a lot of abs, because I want people to take me seriously like catching cabs, you know. I work on my boulder shoulders, treasure chest, work on my wings so maybe I can get a lady to take me to an Angles game someday for free. I work my guns, (he flexes his biceps) registered guns, so then I can show a lot of people out there that I'm a lot of fun and strong. I work on my arms so I can bring a lot of people more excitement than lucky charms. That's why I have a look that's fresh off the farm."

What do you eat to keep you going?

"Organic, I mostly eat organic. And California Chicken Cafe, it's the No. 1 food in LA, all the way. Um, and I like Whole Foods, it puts me in a good mood, and it makes me one major healthy dude, prevents me from being rude. I'm eating organic because I want to make it big like the movie 'Titanic.' And if I want to get discovered and become gigantic in a famous way I think it's good to go healthy. It gonna make you feel real wealthy. It makes me dance better. It makes my moves better, 'cause this one time I ate salad for breakfast and I was dancing all day on this one salad alone ... I don't overeat, you know, like the song from Dave Matthews band, I don't eat too much and I don't drink too much. He might, but he has the right. I'm just trying to keep everything in moderation because I haven't made it real famous yet, but I'm working my way up the ladder."

What is the public's attitude towards you?

"Some people are making fun of me out there, some people are having fun with me. It's a mixture, like a cocktail. It's a mixture. I try not to listen to people who are just negative, who are haters — 'cause that's just going to hurt my moves, my dance moves. So I try to keep positive music out there you know, create positive vibes. You know, Chicago, Michael Franks, Al Jarreau, keeping that glow, create that good glow."

What role does the outfit play in Rental Man?

"Superhero. To get an identity going as Rental Man, because if you say you're Rental Man but you don't have any costume you're kind of lying to the public in a way because they're not going to believe you. You have to have some symbol to symbolize the outfit. When I first started I was just dancing with the sign but people are going to get bored after a while if you do something repetitively. That's why you always have to switch things up to keep people interested. Because it's the same people going down the street everyday, you gotta get 'em, you gotta do some shock value. It's not an easy thing to do.

"You gotta keep a balance there. You want shock value but you want to be professional. You want to do it at the same time. You want to be effective to bring in the business and you want to have fun at the same time. It's just a balance and I'm still trying to perfect that balance. It's an ongoing process but the more I do it, the better I'll get at it. It's like a basketball game, if you don't shoot the ball you won't score. If you want the ball enough you got to rebound, you got to make war inside the paint, and you gotta take the punishment out there. You gotta take the good with the bad. But I take everything with a grain of salt because I know there's always gonna be a few negative things. But as long as most of it's positive I can't complain about it. I don't want to complain at all.

Balance is key

"I'm trying to have a complaint-free job, which is difficult to do in LA but the less I complain the more it's gonna be pleasurable pain. People may think I'm acting insane but it's good on the job as long as you're on and if you're not on the job you're sane so you balance it all out. You'll be a complete normal human being that has a fun lifestyle."

Have you had any unusual incidents occur at work?

"I had some guy spit boba at me through a straw. He'd been working as a construction worker. He didn't have a license plate number so I couldn't get him but I was pissed. I was kinda mad — I was mad for a minute but then I just forgot it and moved on. Always there are people who are gonna throw things at you. I've had some people try to throw water bottles at me but nothing serious yet, hopefully it'll stay that way. I always wonder 'I hope nothing happens' in the back of my mind because it can be dangerous. There are some wackos out there that will do things to try to ruin a person's day."

What are your likes and dislikes about Santa Monica?

"There are some snooty people here I have to admit. They're pretty snooty, they need more personality. They're driving around like zombies, like every day and night is Halloween ... That's what I'm trying to do — I go out there and twist and shout trying to wake them up, let them loose, you know, try to put a little light into their spirit. Even if it's just a shred of light maybe it'll expand, like a disease but in a good way, maybe it'll multiply. It'll multiply into something that'll put them at ease.

"I'm trying to make it easier for people, I'm trying to connect people, to get people connected. You know, if they're looking for an apartment they're looking to feel motivated to really try to get there and get an apartment 'cause it takes work, it takes hard work to find a good place ... So my goal is to be funny but still be serious, you know, kinda mix it together so people will know that I'm still professional but that I have a personality as well. The best of both worlds. It can happen in business, and if every business had that they would be much more successful.

"Balance you know, fun and business. Some people are too much business and some people are too much fun and they never find a common ground. The right communication. I mean, the job does get tough at times, but it's the time of the year, summer, and it should get easier. I told myself that if I can start this job in the summer and stick with it then things should only get better. It's like the song from Howard Jones, things can only get better.

"I wanna make it happen, I want to put my dreams into action and this is a good way of starting it ... I'm on a mission, I'm trying to build the perfect beast, to bring nothing but peace through music, peace through a business that's in motion. I don't want fame for my selfish reasons, I want fame to help inspire people to be better. But I don't want to do it for just my selfish desires because that's not a true soul on fire. That's just like being a liar, it's all about the truth and I don't want anything to be uncouth."

What is your dream for your job and your dancing?

"Just to go from zero to superhero. Because before I felt like a zero, nobody wise but finance wise, and not really having a direction or going anywhere. I've lost a lot of friends and relationships because I didn't have a job. But this job I want people to know that I have a job that's not trivial. A lot of men and women here — I'm not a sexist — I believe in general, men and women believe my job is trivial. They think I'm a joke. I don't mind people thinking I'm a joke on the job, but I just don't want people thinking I'm a joke in my life. I want to have fun on the job, and I think people take their lives so seriously that their whole life is almost a joke because they don't know how to let loose, and I'm letting loose everyday on the job. I don't know hardly any jobs where you can pick your own music and have fun. And not worry and be happy. Especially starting out like that. I don't feel like I'm a robot out there I feel like I'm my own human, my own person."

Beach life is not ideal for Hawaii's homeless

Just up the coast from the luxury resort complex of Ko Olina, an estimated 4,000 homeless people spend their days on a 16-mile stretch of what could be prime beach-front property along the Waianae Coast on Oahu's western shore.

Dinner comes from food stamps, flies circle trash bags and low-paying jobs don't provide enough money to move from sand to a house.

"This is real life. This is as real as it gets," says the 48-year-old Bustamante, who has been living in Nanakuli Beach Park since last fall. "Why is life this way? It could be worse. I could be without food. I could be without water. But that's life."

They bathe in beach showers and sleep in tightly packed tents with as many as eight other people. But they say their Spartan life in the sun beats the creeping cold of a down-town bed made of concrete.

Some have jobs in recycling centers, restaurants or hotels, but those jobs don't pay enough to rent an apartment or buy a house on Hawaii's main island, where the median price for a single-family home exceeds $650,000. Beach-front lots would cost millions.

They end up on the beach because of misfortune, drug problems, mental illness or lifestyle choice.

Bustamante admits he has done drugs in the past and ended up on the beach with his wife and nine kids after losing his rented house and job.

Roxy Bustamante, his wife, is the breadwinner for the family, working at a pizza delivery call center and making about $2,000 a month.

She feels like she's stuck on the beach because her husband needs to watch over the kids, and she doesn't earn enough to move to a more permanent residence.

"Whatever we had, we had to use it all," she says. "That's what brought us here, because we were a one-income family."

There's no firm count on the number of homeless people in Hawaii, but there are probably fewer than 10,000, said Kaulana Park, who was appointed by Republican Gov. Linda Lingle in July to head plans to end homelessness.

The islands' homeless problem reached a crisis in March when Honolulu officials cleared hundreds of homeless people from a city beach park, leading the state to convert a dockside warehouse into a temporary shelter.

A new 200-person shelter is expected to open in November in Kalaeloa, along the coast, which will provide education, job training and other services in addition to beds, he said. It isn't clear when other shelters will be ready and how many will be needed.

"There's no one thing that causes homelessness, that's for sure," Park said. "It goes from domestic situations to job losses to high rent costs. There are drug issues and mental health issues and on and on."

The camps along the Waianae coastline are like a small village in a third-world country, where a basketball goal hangs from the side of a tree and grills substitute for ovens. Children weave secondhand bicycles through an obstacle course of park benches and old trucks to meet up with their friends.

Nearby residents have complained to the governor and mayor, saying they want their beaches to be safe and open to the public.

But the tent dwellers won't leave, saying this is about as good as it's going to get for people without homes. Every Friday, they load up into cars and head to a city hall annex to renew their one-week camping permits.

"They think we're all criminals because we live on the beach. It's a vicious cycle. I'm just trying to survive, make it to the next day," says 19-year-old Josh Andrus, who is disabled from a car accident and has lived on the beach for four months. "The only thing you can do is keep your chin up and remember you are in paradise."

The youngest children wear life vests instead of shirts so they can safely play in the water. The older kids go to school, and people in the community bring them to church some weeknights while the adults wonder how they're going to make ends meet.

"I like living on the beaches. We're like three seconds from the ocean, so anytime we want, we can jump in the water and have a good time," says 11-year-old George Orpilla. "What I don't like about being on the beach is that there's no electricity, there's no hot water, there's no TV. I really miss TV."

Sometimes, life on the beach is the best option for families who have nowhere else to go.

A few of the beach homeless don't want to leave. They enjoy a simple life, where they're answerable to no one and their only needs are basic.

Dead birds wash ashore in Alaska

By The Associated Press

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Hundreds of dead sea birds washed ashore on Unalaska Island over a two-day span and scientists were trying to figure out why.

Several hundred shearwaters died after flying into a crabbing boat early Wednesday morning in Unalaska Bay, said Forrest Bowers, a fisheries biologist for the state Department of Fish and Game in Unalaska.

The boat captain reported a hail of shearwaters struck the vessel for up to 30 minutes, Bowers said. The crew threw the dead and dying birds overboard.

Other boats were in the area and also might have been struck by the birds.

There have been other reports of such occurrences, but not usually in such large numbers, according to Bowers.

Seabird specialist Art Sowls at the Alaska Maritime National Wildlife Refuge in Homer was called in to consult on the deaths. He said shearwaters can be in flocks of more than a million birds. The birds go through a molting process that limits their ability to fly.

"They can fly," he said, "but they are somewhat immobile."

Reid Brewer, a local marine biologist with the University of Alaska Fairbanks, said he counted more than 1,600 bird carcasses on shores near homes in Unalaska and along beaches outside the Aleutian island community.

He said the birds don't look thin and aren't oiled. Some had necks twisted as if they had smashed into something.

Starvation would be a far more likely cause for the deaths than a collision, said David Irons, a seabird authority with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"They don't normally run into ships," he said.

But it is possible, he said, that birds weakened by hunger could have hit boats or that the carcasses washing ashore could be a combination of birds that starved and birds that hit ships.

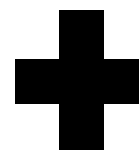

Irons said he expects that the dead birds will be checked for avian flu.

Not just sugar and spice for Ginger

Geri Halliwell has complained to police that her 3-month-old daughter was physically abused, the singer's assistant said.

The singer's complaint was about "an incident concerning her daughter Bluebell whilst in the care of a temporary member of staff," Antony Read said Saturday. Halliwell made the complaint at a London police station Aug. 18, Read said. "Bluebell is now happy and well, and there are no further concerns for her welfare," he added in a statement.

London's Metropolitan Police confirmed the force was investigating an allegation of physical abuse involving a 3-month-old. No one has been arrested.

Halliwell - Ginger Spice of '90s "girl power" group the Spice Girls - gave birth to Bluebell Madonna, her first child, in May.

Binoche's secret role

Juliette Binoche got some insight for her role in the thriller "A Few Days in September" from an acquaintance who, as it turned out, was a secret agent.

whose mission goes wrong. Binoche sought background from the acquaintance on the history of the Middle East and relations with the West.

In the film, directed by Argentinian Santiago Amigorena, Binoche plays a French secret service agent

"I was able to understand that you can never really retire as a secret agent, because you will always have secrets," Binoche said at the Venice Film Festival on Friday. "I think an actor needs a certain realism and truth to be real on the screen."

The movie also stars John Turturro and Nick Nolte.

Stolen celeb guitars found

Two men accused of stealing guitars once used by Faith Hill and Nickelback have been sentenced to probation.

Jeffrey H. Lanahan, 44, was accused of stealing at least a dozen instruments from his employer, Paul Reed Smith Guitars. He gave them to Michael J. Kelly, 42, accused of passing them along to another man who sold them on eBay.

Lanahan and Kelly, who had pleaded guilty, were sentenced Friday. Circuit Judge Ronald A. Silkworth ordered Lanahan to serve three months of house arrest and five years of probation. Kelly was sentenced to three years' probation.

Both men must undergo evaluation for drugs and alcohol, as well as pay restitution for the stolen guitars. Of the nearly $60,000 worth of guitars, all but $21,050 worth were recovered. Lanahan agreed to pay $21,050 in restitution, while Kelly will pay $5,000.

Lanahan and Kelly apologized.

Lanahan worked for the company for eight years until he left in 2004. His task of delivering guitars allowed him to establish relationships with clients, such as U2 and Jimmy Buffett. Company officials reported the missing guitars to police in May 2005. An investigator found a man selling the merchandise on eBay and traced it to Lanahan and Kelly.
