Student pilot and instructor die during flight lesson

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

A flight instructor from Santa Monica Flyers, a flight school located at the airport, and a student were killed while trying to land following an introductory flight lesson at about 4:25 p.m. on Thursday afternoon.

National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) Accident Investigator Eliott Simpson said the flight took off at about 3:30 p.m., flew along the coast for about an hour and everything appeared normal during the landing approach before the plane suddenly climbed and crashed.

"We have witness statements and video at the airport indicating that airplane, shortly after or possibly just before touch down, pitched into the air aggressively nose up, climbed to about a hundred feet and rolled back to the ground," he said.

Firefighters were assisted by the Santa Monica Police, Santa Monica Airport Operations, and NTSB. There were no impacts to Santa Monica neighborhoods.

Santa Monica Firefighters were on scene within a couple of minutes and reported finding the wreckage on fire. Simpson said his team worked on their investigation Thursday night and the airport reopened at its conclusion.

NTSB is leading the investigation and more information related to the investigation will be made available at www.ntsb.gov. Simpson said a preliminary report on the crash would be available in about 10-14 days. A final report will be issued

Coastal Commission Extends Review Period for Venice Median Project Up to Year

JAMIE PAIGE
Special to the Daily Press

The California Coastal Commission gave its staff more time to do its due diligence regarding a massive project that would significantly impact Venice if it moved forward.

The Commission voted Thursday to grant an extension of the consideration period for Coastal to review the Venice Median Project land use plan amendments up to a year.

The extension will give the Commission time to properly evaluate the project, a 103,957-square-foot commercial and residential mixed-plan building planned on 40 lots in the historic Venice Canals.

Traditionally there is a 90-day time limit for the review of projects in the coastal area. Under a section of the Coastal Act and California Code of Regulations, the Commission may extend any time limitation established on projects for up to one year. In this case, Staff recommended that the Commission review the

Local British residents mourn the Queen

GRACE INEZ ADAMS
Daily Press Staff Writer

A memorial for Queen Elizabeth II has been set up outside of Ye Olde King's Head, a British pub in downtown Santa Monica, following the announcement of her death on Thursday Sept. 8.

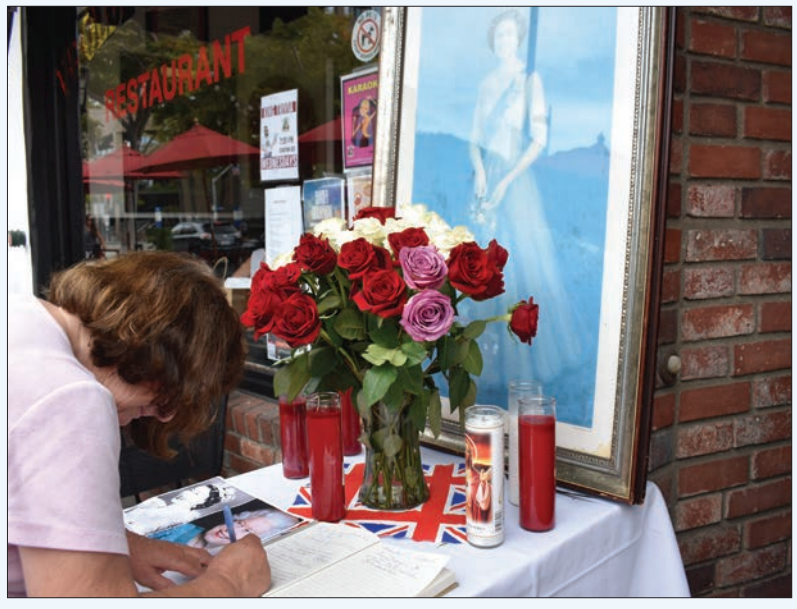

Customers and passersby stopped on Friday to write in a book set out on the memorial table along with an assortment of candles, roses and photos of the queen. Dusty Kerr, the restaurant manager, said they plan to send the book full of signatures and condolences to Buckingham Palace.

At the associated Ye Olde King's Head Giftshoppe, Bakery and Coffee next door, managers Lisa Powers and Dympna Madeley were busy putting up additional British flags and moving around merchandise to make room for new commemorative memorabilia of the queen.

Madeley said that there has been a spike in sales of the pub's Queen's Cosmo cocktail since the news broke. She added that they have already sold one of the commemorative boards with the queen's face on it that they had just gotten in and that more commemorative items were on the way. Powers said they were also waiting to receive up-to-date newspapers, magazines and other media from the UK about the queen's passing.

"When something like this happens everyone comes to the King's Head," said Powers. "This is where all the expats come, everyone wants to be together – it instills a sense of community."

MEMORIAL: Ye Olde King's Head is collecting condolences that will be sent to England.

The restaurant will be serving a special afternoon tea in the queen's honor over the coming days and Powers said they plan to broadcast the funeral and memorial services as details emerge.

The restaurant is located in Downtown Santa Monica at 116 Santa Monica Blvd.

City of Santa Monica

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING
BEFORE THE SANTA MONICA PLANNING COMMISSION
VIA TELECONFERENCE
Pursuant to AB361

SUBJECT: Recommendation to the City Council on Adoption of Revisions to the 6th Cycle (2021-2029) Housing Element of the City's General Plan.

A public hearing will be held by the Planning Commission to consider adoption of a resolution recommending to the City Council that the City Council adopt revisions to the 6th Cycle (2021-2029) Housing Element of the City's General Plan. The proposed revisions were prepared in response to a letter from the State Department of Housing and Community Development ("HCD") February 8, 2022 determining that the adopted 6th Cycle Housing Element required revisions in order to comply with State Housing Element law. On September 6, 2022, the HCD issued a letter determining that the revised draft Element meets all statutory requirements described in the February 8, 2022 letter, and that it will comply with State Housing Element law when it is adopted, submitted and approved by HCD.

DATE/TIME: THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 2022 AT 5:30PM

LOCATION: In an effort to reduce the risk of spreading Coronavirus (COVID-19), members of the Planning Commission and City Staff will participate via teleconference. The meeting will be broadcast on CityTV Channel 16 and streamed on the City's website as normal, but participants may also join the teleconference via https://primetime.bluejeans.com/a2m/live-event/fuegrfpv or by dialing in at 1-415-466-7000 (PIN: 5931780#)

California State law requires that communities prepare and update the Housing Element of the General Plan every eight years. The Housing Element serves as the City's guide for addressing the housing needs of all segments of Santa Monica's population. Housing needs are determined by the California Housing and Community Department (HCD), which decide the numerical housing targets for each regional council of governments. Each council of government across the State then further allocates the regional housing number (known as the Regional Housing Needs Allocation – or RHNA) to every city and county within its jurisdiction. The RHNA is a targeted housing number - cities and counties must plan for the RHNA and show that under current land use and development standards, there is capacity to accommodate for this number of housing. For the proposed 6th Cycle 2021-2029 Housing Element, the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) determined that the City's draft RHNA allocation is 8,895 units, more than 5 times than the last cycle. The significant increase in the City's RHNA housing number is indicative of the severity of the current housing crisis. As part of the proposed 2021-2029 Housing Element, Santa Monica must demonstrate to the State that there is available capacity within its jurisdictional boundaries to meet its targeted RHNA number.

On October 12, 2021, per State requirements, the City Council adopted its 2021-2029 Housing Element, which is available online at www.santamonica.gov/housing-element-update. The proposed revisions to the adopted 6th Cycle Housing Element are based on achieving Housing Element compliance as determined by the State Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD). The adopted Housing Element sets forth a series of goals, policies and programs to be implemented over the next 8 years of the 6th Cycle.

On February 8, 2022, the State Department of Housing and Community Development ("HCD") issued a letter determining that although the Adopted 6th Cycle Housing Element addressed "many statutory requirements," "revisions would be necessary to comply with State Housing Element Law". The proposed revisions were prepared in response to the comments received from HCD and are consistent with the draft revisions the City Council reviewed at its June 21, 2022 meeting and directed staff to submit to HCD for review.

On September 6, 2022, the HCD issued a letter determining that the revised draft Element meets all statutory requirements described in the February 8, 2022 letter, and that it will comply with State Housing Element law when it is adopted, submitted and approved by HCD.

California: Drought, record heat, fires and now maybe floods

National Weather Service

STORM: Rain from a hurricane is expected to break the heat wave that has baked the state.

BRIAN MELLEY
Associated Press

Californians tried to weather the extremes of a changing climate Friday, as a punishing heat wave that has helped fuel deadly wildfires had the state teetering on the edge of blackouts for a 10th consecutive day while a tropical storm barreled ashore with the promise of cooler temperatures but also possible flooding.

The abrupt swing in conditions even whipsawed weather junkies.

"This is perhaps the singularly most unusual and extreme weather week in quite some time in California — and that is saying something. Whew," Daniel Swain, a climate scientist at the University of California, Los Angeles, wrote on his western weather blog.

While the rains may be welcome in the drought-plagued state and will bring relief with more normal temperatures, deluges and more brutal heat waves are forecast to become regular fixtures as climate change warms the planet and weather-related disasters become more extreme.

"We'll see these heat waves continue to get hotter and hotter, longer and longer, more wildfire-plagued," said Jonathan Overpeck, dean of the University of Michigan School for Environment and Sustainability. "The odds of really intense precipitation are going up. And so that's why we are worried about flooding associated with this remnant hurricane."

California is just the latest casualty in a year of sometimes deadly heat waves that began in Pakistan and India this spring and swept across parts of the Northern Hemisphere, including China, Europe and the U.S.

Climate change also has exacerbated droughts, dried up rivers, made wildfires more intense and — conversely — led to massive flooding around the globe as moisture evaporating from land and water is held in the atmosphere and then redeposited.

Scientists are reluctant to attribute any specific weather event, such as Hurricane Kay, now downgraded to a tropical storm as it heads into California, to global warming. But they say heat waves are exactly the type of change that will become more common.

The so-called heat dome that cooked California was stuck in place by an exceptional high pressure region over Greenland, of all places, that essentially created a meteorological traffic jam, said Paul Ullrich, a professor of regional climate modeling at the University of California, Davis. That prevented the high-pressure system that was forcing hot air over California from moving along.

A marquee outside a former theater in LA's Chinatown said: "Satan called. He wants his weather back."

Temperatures hit an all-time high in Sacramento of 116 degrees on Tuesday. Many other locations hit record highs for September and even more set daily high marks.

The heat that colored weather maps dark red for more than a week in California is only a preview of coming attractions.

Sacramento, the state capital, has about 10 "extreme heat" days per year and that will double again by the middle of the century. In the 1970s, the city had five, Ullrich said.

"That's pretty much going to be the story for much of the Central Valley and much of Southern California," Ullrich said. "This kind of exponential growth in the number of extreme heat days. If you tie those all together, then you end up with heat waves like we've experienced."

For nine days the vast energy network that includes power plants, solar farms and a web of transmission lines strained under record-setting demand driven by air conditioners.

"If we're going to build a statue to anybody in the West, it will be a Willis Carrier," said Bill Patzert, retired climatologist at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, about the inventor of the air conditioner. "Really large areas of Southern California would essentially be unlivable without air conditioning."

Air conditioning puts the biggest strain on power sources during a heat wave and operators of the electrical grid called for conservation and warned of the threat of power outages as usage hit an all-time high Tuesday, surpassing a record set in 2006.

The state may have averted a repeat of rolling outages two summers ago by sending a first-ever text alert that blared on 27 million phones urging Californians to "take action" and turn off nonessential power. Enough turned up thermostats, turned off lights or pulled the plug on appliances to avoid power cuts, though thousands of customers did lose power at various times for other reasons.

The West is in the throes of a 23-year megadrought that has nearly drained reservoirs and put water supplies in jeopardy. That, in turn, led to a sharp decrease in hydropower that California relies.

"Part of the country that's getting hit worst is the Southwest and Western United States," Overpeck said. "It is a global poster child for the climate crisis. And this year, this summer, it's really the Northern Hemisphere has been just an unusually hot and wildfire-plagued hemisphere."

The heat helped fuel deadly wildfires at both ends of the state as flames fed on grass, brush and timber already "preconditioned to burn" by drought and then pushed over the edge by the heatwave, Overpeck said.

Firefighters struggled to control major wildfires in Southern California and the Sierra Nevada that exploded in growth, forced thousands to evacuate and produced smoke that could interfere with solar power and further hamper electricity supplies.

Two people were killed in the fire that erupted last Friday in the Northern California community of Weed at the base of Mount Shasta. Two others died trying to flee in their car from a fire in Riverside County that was threatening 18,000 homes.

What remains of the hurricane is expected to bring heavy rains and even flash floods to Southern California from Friday night through Saturday. Strong winds could initially make it difficult and dangerous for firefighters trying to corral blazes, Patzert said.

Heavy downpours could also unleash mudslides on mountainsides charred by recent fires. While several inches of rain could fall, much of it will run off the arid landscape and will not make a dent in the drought.

"It comes at you like a firehose and you're trying to fill your champagne glass," Patzert said. "Everybody's sort of excited, but on Saturday night a lot of people will be saying, 'Yeah, we could have done without that.'"

12-18 months after the accident.

PAST FATALITIES AT SMO:

1990: A pilot became disorientated in dense fog and crashed into the ocean while attempting to land.

1992: A pilot hit power lines at the end of the airport while trying to make an emergency landing due to engine failure. The NTSB report said the probable cause was water leaking into the fuel tanks due to a defect in the aircraft's design and a lack of preflight inspection to uncover the problem before the flight took off. A passenger was also in the plane at the time of the crash.

1993: A student pilot, his instructor and a qualified commercial pilot died when the plane fell from the sky during a steep turn and crashed into a residential area about two miles from the airport. The NTSB said the probable cause was the student pilot's failure to maintain minimum airspeed in flight which resulted in an inadvertent stall/spin. Contributing to the accident were improper weight and balance, inadequate altitude, and inadequate supervision.

1994: A plane hit a utility pole and crashed into a residential garage after the pilot refueled as part of a cross-country trip. The NTSB said the pilot probably failed to select the fuel tank that contained fuel and a corresponding drop in airspeed while attempting to land resulted in an inadvertent stall.

2001: Three people died when a pilot became disorientated while flying over the ocean. The NTSB report said the pilot was not familiar with the flying conditions and the crash was likely a result of pilot error. Contributing factors were the dark night, the marine cloud layer that restricted the pilot's cruising altitude, and the pilot's lack of familiarity with nighttime flight over the ocean.

2001: Two people died when a plane failed to become airborne during a takeoff attempt and vaulted over the end of the runway before crashing into a guardrail on an airport service road. The NTSB report found the pilot had failed to remove a gust control lock, a device that prevents flight control surfaces (ailerons, elevator or stabilator, or rudder) from moving when the plane is parked and subsequently abort the attempt in sufficient time.

2006: Two people died when a plane lost power and crashed into the ocean. The NTSB said the cause was mechanical failure due to substandard maintenance of the plane. In addition, the report said use of a safety harness would have significantly increased the chances of survival.

2009: Two people died when a plane lost power shortly after takeoff causing the aircraft to dive into the runway. The cause was found to be selection of the wrong fuel tank for takeoff and the pilot's failure to maintain control during the return attempt.

2012: A pilot died after striking treetops while trying to return to the airport shortly after departure. The pilot declared an emergency during his return but did not clarify what specifically was wrong. The NTSB found no mechanical faults with the craft or obvious pilot errors and the accident's cause is undetermined.

2013: Four people died when the pilot lost control of the plane following landing. The plane left the runway and hit a hanger that subsequently collapsed on the aircraft. The cause was determined to be the pilot's failure to decrease ground speed and maintain control during landing.

CRIME WATCH

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

On August 27 at midnight

While in route to another call, SMPD officers located a female near the 2000 block of Ocean Front Walk completely nude from the waist down. The individual ignored the officers instructions to stop and continued to walk away from them. The suspect was placed into custody for public nudity and transported to the Santa Monica Jail. While being searched at the jail, a clear glass pipe with a bulbous tip was found concealed under the suspect's breast. She was booked for public nudity and possession of drug paraphernalia and ultimately issued a citation.

'Performance Failures' by SMPD Detailed in Critical Review by Commission.

Council has yet to take up PSROC's Nov. Report on 5/31 policing crisis.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This Commission, after extensive examination, discussion, consideration, and community input finds the OIR* Report to be accurate, authoritative, and deeply concerning. The number of OIR recommendations is extraordinary, as are the very serious SMPD performance failures and ongoing deficiencies upon which they are based. Events of May 31st exposed SMPD's structural, planning, and operational weaknesses.

The OIR Group Report contained sharp criticism of SMPD on numerous topics of importance including SMPD's leadership, communications and policy flaws, as well as violations of its existing policies. This includes potential criminal violations by officers during May 31, 2020.

SMPD's leadership sought to camouflage failures into success by perpetuating a false and misleading narrative. This included the blatantly non-credible insistence by the former Police Chief Cynthia Renaud and Interim City Manager Lane Dilg that SMPD deserved an "A grade" for its performance on 5/31.

The volume of footage captured by SMPD officer's body-worn cameras was regularly cited by top City officials as the primary reason why a meaningful report on the events of 5/31 was not made available to the public for 13 months. These officials neglected to inform the public approximately half of the officers did not activate their body-worn cameras, resulting in far less footage than would have been expected. We believe this was a key part of the "False Narrative" that was being widely promoted at the time by SMPD and City officials.

The OIR Report points out, and we do as well, that SMPD's declarations of an illegal assembly on Ocean Avenue and its use of tear gas, rubber bullets, etc., while deeply flawed both tactically and procedurally, were not entirely without a Constitutional basis. Some key procedures, including at least one warning announcement, were performed by SMPD.

We want to acknowledge that the OIR Group Report observed "it is only fair to put SMPD's shortcomings in context," noting that law enforcement agencies all over the country were overmatched by the size, scale and complexity of the unrest that followed George Floyd's death. OIR Group also noted that SMPD cooperated fully in its investigation.

The Commission is concerned that a recent false narrative was promoted by former Interim Police Chief Seabrooks and continues to be promoted by other SMPD officials. This narrative holds that the poor outcomes of 5/31 can be entirely explained by the performance failures of one former Police Chief and the unique circumstances of that one day. We find this storyline lacking in credibility.

project up until November 15, 2023.

Before voting on the extension, a member of the Commission highlighted that 116 letters were submitted to weigh in on the extension; of those, 114 were in favor of it.

An organization fighting the project, Safe Coastal Development, stated in an email this week that the extra time is needed because the City ignored its pleas to address the project's severe environmental issues and violations of the Coastal Act.

Last month, the Commission sent the Project application back to the nonprofit developers, Venice Community Housing Corporation (VCHC) and Hollywood Community Housing Corporation (HCHC). The Commission asked for more information on more than 20 critical items, including matters pertaining to sea-level rise, groundwater use, public access, how parking decisions were made and the nature of the financial arrangements involving the developers.

The same week, numerous appeals were filed by a wide-ranging group of people and organizations against the project. California Coastal Commission Executive Director John Ainsworth also filed an appeal on behalf of the Commission. Ainsworth noted several essential contentions against the project: design standards, height concerns, parking requirements, boat-launch issues, cultural resources and coastal hazards.

CD11 candidates have differing opinions on the project. Erin Darling recently voiced his support for the project during a backyard meet and greet. Darling cited his backing for the nonprofit developer VCHC.

Traci Park, also a candidate for CD11 has stated she stand with the "thousands of Venice community members who oppose the Venice Median Project."

"From the constant misinformation, due process violations and lack of transparency, serious environmental concerns, loss of coastal access for tens of thousands of visitors, to the significant change to the historic Venice Canal community, this project is wrong for Venice.

"The exorbitantly high fees and costs per unit are reason enough to oppose this development. Despite Mike Bonin's efforts to mislead the City Council and ram this through before he leaves office, the Executive Director of the Coastal Commission has filed his own appeal on the project, which substantiates many of the concerns and issues the city has ignored.

"We must work together as a community to build affordable and workforce housing, but this proposed development is not the solution."

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 10)

Whatever time you spend dreaming, it will be worth it. Your rich inner world will be expressed and reflected in your outer experience. Reading, spiritual study and travel will all play a part in your beautiful year. You'll be tested and your high score will lead to accolades and responsibility. Capricorn and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 2, 20, 18, 4 and 16.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You'll go out of your way to understand a person today, not because you're particularly curious, but because you're interested in self-development, which almost always requires the understanding of those different from you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). When you're stuck, does it really matter what got you there? Don't look back, that's irrelevant now. Really the only thing to do is wiggle. Figure out what's got you pinned, what's movable, what can be leveraged... you'll get free.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). It's like the starting gun goes off and you're not sure which direction to run in. You're not confused so much as responding to an intuitive call. Listen to weird wisdom as it whispers to you: Is this really a race worth running?

CANCER (June 22-July 22). There is no doubt that fun is contagious. It's also subjective. If they're having fun and you're not, you're in the wrong place. The opposite is also true. Good vibes are mutual vibes. If not, keep moving forward.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The same situation can be called a problem or a blessing. It will conform to whatever you call it. Make things simple by deciding it's a blessing and sticking to that until you see the blessing in it. It won't be too long now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). When trying to make sure everyone else is happy, it shouldn't come at the expense of your own good time. If there's a way to do both, you'll find it. If there isn't, choose your fun over theirs for once.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Sometimes learning is fun — also frustrating and tedious. You're getting used to the frustration and you refuse to accept it as a legitimate reason to give up. Your attitude is stellar and so will be your results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). "Travel light" is a principle that helps you whether or not you're actually venturing from home. The guiding principle here is need. Decide what you need and take only that. There is much to be gained with so little to carry.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Since you never can quite tell how others are going to react, start with creating what you might delight in. Oddly enough, if you never do more than that, you'll be counted among the most charming.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). People want what they want, not what others think they should want. You'll root around in search of the motivations of others. On some level you know that if you understand this, you understand a lot more.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Though there are no better or worse people, there definitely seem to be people who act more or less effectively in the given situation. When you strive to be your best, you strive to work the situation for the highest good.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). There's much that gets lost at the altar of the literal. Taking things too literally often leads to a very limited perspective and bad moods are sure to follow. Joy is expansive. Do what makes you feel joyful.
