School Board candidates vie for endorsements in crowded race

SMDP Image

SMMUSD: In a crowded school board field, candidates are taking different approaches to endorsements.

CLARA HARTER
SMDP Staff Writer

After several cycles of relatively uncontested elections, there are now six challengers and two incumbents pursuing three School Board positions and competing for a range of potential endorsements.

So far Santa Monicans for Renters' Rights, Community for Excellence in Public Schools, and the L.A. County Democratic Party have made their selections. The Santa Monica Malibu Classroom Teachers Association and the Santa Monica Democratic Club will announce their picks on Sep 16.

SMRR endorsed incumbents Jon Kean and Maria Leon-Vazquez as did LACDP, but while SMRR selected newcomer Jen Smith as their third pick LACDP opted for Keith Coleman. CEPS endorsed four candidates for three spots by selecting Kean, Vazquez, Smith, and Coleman.

So far the incumbents Jon Kean and Maria Vazquez have received a majority of the key endorsements, which reflects a historical trend where incumbents are more likely to receive endorsements and be reelected. However, this race differs from previous ones as there are several new challengers running partially in response to the frequent reelection of incumbents.

While some of the challengers are enthusiastically applying for endorsements, others feel their energy is better invested in alternative strategies.

"There was a range of opinions on how much consideration someone like me, who would be considered an outsider, would actually get and based on how time consuming it is, if applying for endorsements would be worth it," said Jason Feldman, a first time candidate. "I decided that the members are all voters and

Leases shorter than a year in length will soon be illegal in Santa Monica when a newly approved law takes effect next month.

Councilmembers adopted an ordinance Tuesday that states leases must be longer than 365 days and rental housing units cannot be furnished. Advertising any lease of a residential rental unit that does not comply with these requirements is also prohibited and violators will be subject to fines and penalties.

The practice of entities renting out units between 31 and 365 days is defined as medium-term leases, and city staff believes it removes valuable rental housing from the market. As a result, councilmembers said last week it was only logical for the city restrict leases to unfurnished rentals because furnished units are too easy to rent to somebody who's only here for a short period of time.

There are firms who may look to evade the regulations, Mayor Kevin McKeown said as he advised the council to look back at the action it took five years ago with vacation rentals.

"Everybody told us what we were doing was too hard, too strict and too burdensome," he said. "But the reality is we saved an awful lot of units in this town from being used for two or three-night stays by people who are here as tourists. I think it's time we take this issue just as seriously..."

In addition to length minimums, the new ordinance requires all units to be rented to "natural persons" as opposed to corporations and all tenants must use the units as their permanent residence.

After approving the second reading of the ordinance, council clarified the law will take effect on Oct. 6, 2020, and it will not apply to house-sharing units that comply with the city's regulations. Council said the law could also be revised if necessary.

"We've heard from some homeowners; we've heard some people concerned about students and some other issues. And so, I'd like to once again give direction to staff to look at some of the public info about the potential pitfalls of this ordinance," councilmember Ted Winterer said.

"I think we've all received emails from people citing specific circumstances," and how they feel the ordinance will surely impact them, McKeown added. "And I think what we have to have here is a bit of a dialogue with our community to make sure we get the final versions right."

Councilmembers agreed and unanimously voted to direct staff to look at all the correspondence received and evaluate what modifications are needed to the law.

Lions Roar

For the first time in more than 65 years, there will be no Santa Monica Lions Club Pancake Breakfast. This is disappointing for our Club members, but also for our many supporters who come out to meet friends, enjoy our raffle and contribute to our only fundraising event of the year. Unfortunately, this also will affect our grants program this year as all of our grant funding comes directly from our Breakfast.

Refusing to let the pandemic defeat us, this month we resumed our regular meetings via Zoom with a guest speaker from the Lions Sight and Hearing Foundation of Southern California (LSH), David Walker. They fund services to restore the gifts of sight and hearing for those who can't afford the help they need.

Vision has been an important part of the Lions mission since Helen Keller challenged the Lions to advocate for the blind. In the 1960's Dr. Robert Sinskey, an SM Lion, started a project to provide eye surgery for those who couldn't afford it at St. John's Hospital. It evolved, partnering in 2009 with the Lions Eye Foundation of Southern California, a program affiliated with the Doheny Eye Institute, to become LSH.

In 2011 the foundation added a hearing program, recognizing that hearing impairment presented a huge unmet need since hearings aids were not covered by most health insurance, including Medicare.

Vision and hearing are two of the many things that we all take for granted. They are also important for academic and job success, building self-esteem, socialization and mental health.

With COVID-19 most of our lives have been converted to online activities such as school, jobs, meetings etc. However, if you are experiencing vision or hearing loss, using online resources becomes extremely difficult and more isolating, increasing depression. For those that have lost their jobs, the economic impact makes it even more severe with the loss of income and insurance.

Since our club will not be able to fund some very valuable resources for the Santa Monica/Westside community, we are using this opportunity to reach out to you, asking you to consider making a donation to LSH. Their 12-county service area starts at the California/Mexico border up through Santa Barbara and parts of central California. They help those who lack income and/or enough insurance coverage to meet the cost and in some cases, LSH can help with the copay. Though cataract surgery is the most common eye issue they help fund, they do help with other eye issues. However, they do not fund eyeglasses or contact lenses. As for hearing, they can help someone get the hearing aids they need.

To donate and learn more about LSH, a Guidestar Platinum Charity for 2020, go to lionssightandhearing.com. Thank you!

If you are interested in joining our online meetings and becoming a Santa Monica Lion, this is the perfect time. Monthly meetings are in the evening and require no travel time or parking. Please contact Yoriko Fisher at yorikofisher@gmail.com or 443-883-1101 to learn more.

media but they were unable to locate the suspect or the dog.

Officers returned on September 5 and spoke to the suspect by phone. They determined he still had the dog in his possession.

"Based on the information received, Santa Monica Animal Control Officers turned their reports over to the Santa Monica Police Department Detectives who will present the case to the District Attorney's Office for consideration of violation 597(a) of the California Penal Code, Malicious Mischief Against an Animal / Animal Cruelty," said a statement from SMPD.

"Animal Services Officers continue to work with the individual and local authorities in the area where the animal is believed to now reside to have the dog evaluated by a veterinarian."

If anyone has any information pertaining to this case is asked to share that information by calling 310-458-8451 or by email to crimetips@smgov.net.

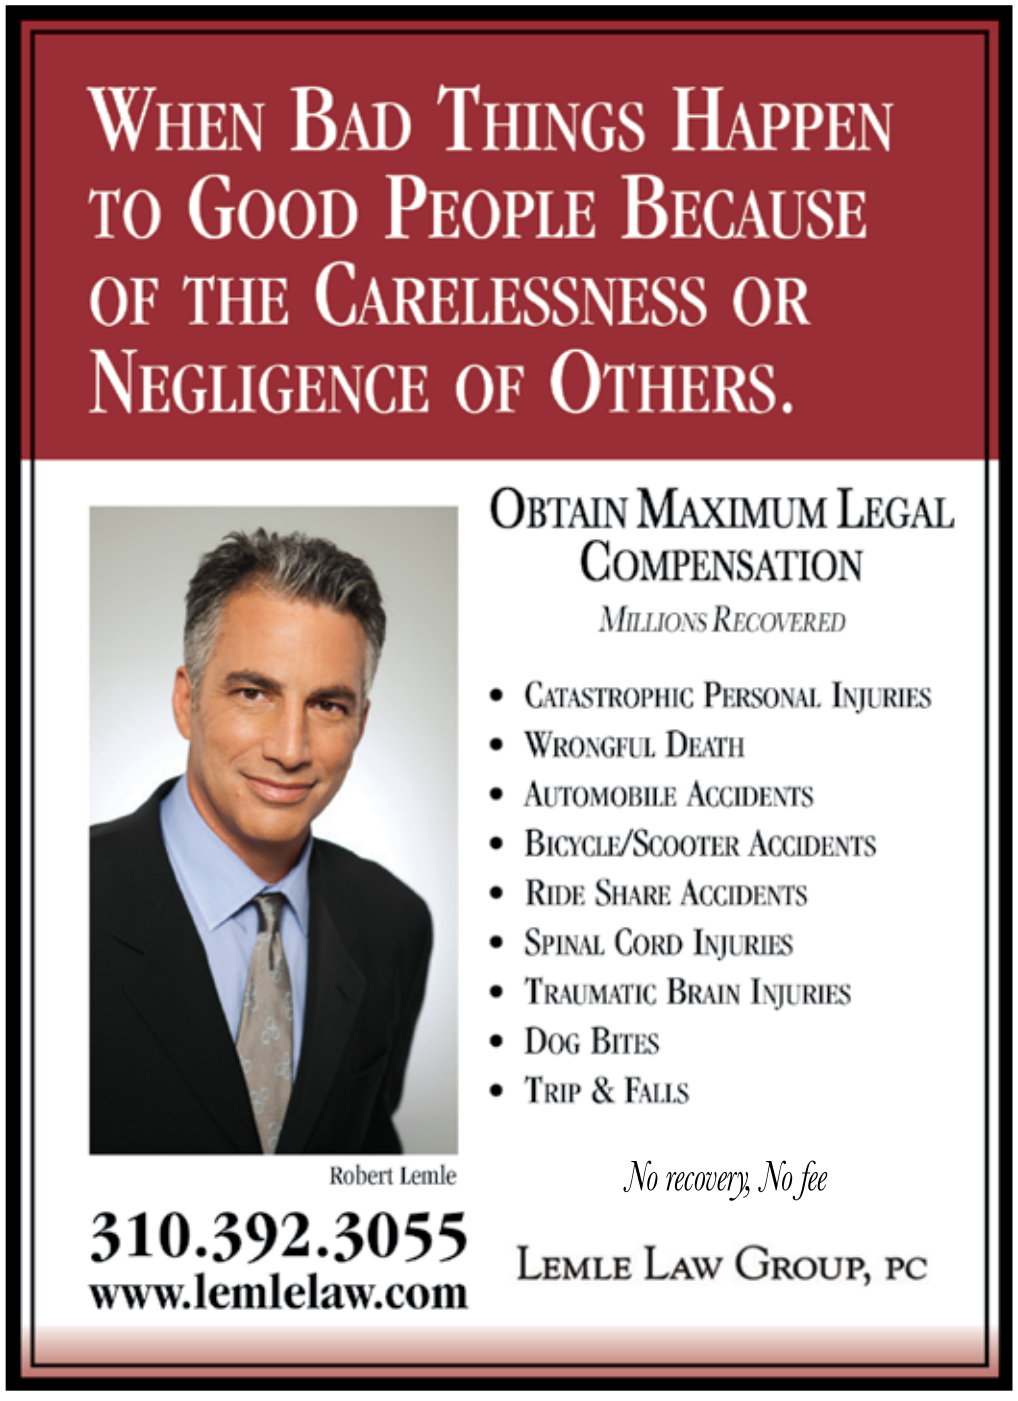

The man in the video has been identified as Jeffrey Previte, a CEO of a consulting company.

Previte has said the concierge in his building recorded the video and attempted to extort money from him before releasing it.

Previte put his condo up for sale about a week after the incident and the listing remains active.

Previte initially said he did nothing illegal during the incident but subsequently apologized for his behavior. Previte said he has taken a leave from his job, enrolled in an anger management program and has found a new home for the dog.

On 28 July 1932 General Douglas MacArthur was assigned the task to prevent the Bonus Army from crossing Anacostia Bridge. They were to be left alone at their camp site on the other side of the bridge where they were expected to slowly leave Washington after being offered money to return to their homes. Instead, MacArthur refused to follow President Hoover's direct orders to stop at the Anacostia Bridge and ordered his troops across the Anacostia Bridge and drove out the Bonus Army and destroyed their campsite. Two people died. The attack on the Bonus Army was a major factor in Hoover's loss and FDR's victory four months later. The stock market bottomed in July 1932 and the economy had by October 1932

Hoover demanded an investigation, a formal report was issued to the public on 11 Sep 1932, 45 days after the attack on the Bonus Army. Here in Santa Monica it has been more than 100 days since the events of 31 May 2020 and we still haven't gotten a report issued to the public. Enough is Enough!

Santa Monica Daily Press office (310) 458-7737

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (SEPTEMBER 12)

Do you imagine that your imaginings are better than imagined? Because you'd be right about that. The phantasmagorical is so within reach. It's your time to be at once inside your life while pushing the limits of your imagination zone. The more you push nonreality, the better reality gets. Free your mind, and the rest will follow. Libra and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 3, 39, 14, 22 and 8.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Recognize when you're being obsessive, which is, at least in today's case, another word for self-interested. Then open it up by focusing outside of yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Is it wrong to want someone to feel sorry for you? Well, if what you're doing is pitiful, then no. Get your sympathy where you can and move on with it. That's just human.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Do you find that people who are overly tense repel you? Relaxed people are attractive people. The things you do to put yourself in a relaxed state will be worthwhile.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). People will come to expect more from you than they do from the others, if only because you keep making good things happen. Maybe it's great, but also it sets a bar.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The bottom line is that you shouldn't have to shell out much money to follow your dreams. In fact, you can be paid to chase them. At this time, internships are better than classes, which will cost you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Rainbow chasing can be a lovely pastime. But don't chase the ones that promise effortless, fast results for the low, low price of BLANK (insert high, high price).

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). If you want a job done right, give it to someone who is already working. Working people are following physical laws like the law of inertia: What moves keeps moving unless acted upon by force.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Self-awareness is where it's at. Everyone has it to varying degrees, but the ones who have it more keenly are usually better off. So, if you pick on yourself a little, count it as an asset.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). How can you be so truthful and charming at the same time? The answer is that it is impossible. But you are, nonetheless. Welcome to the complexities of Sagittarius.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Do you have the belief that someone is going to save the situation? It's not going to happen as grandly or dramatically as that, but help is definitely on the way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You don't go around thinking that your feats are more herculean than the next person's. Even so, can you deny that they are substantial? Can you give yourself a little more credit?

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). The thing about self-expression is that it's often hampered by the presence of others, or even a mirror. Certainly, it is by the implied significance of video. Proceed advisedly.

Adoptable Pet of the Week

Martin Hernandez

PET: The Adoptable Pet of the Week is available from the Santa Monica Animal Shelter.

Pepe

Hi I'm Pepe. I'm a 1-year old gray tabby who is the epitome of extroversion! I prefer interactions with people and find toys to be mundane. I love being picked up and can't get enough petting. But nothing gives me more pleasure than to spread the love with my expressive purrs, head butting, and constant ankle rubbing. Some say I'm like a dog because with my tail in the air, I am deter-mined to always follow people around, and I can't help but inhale a tasty meal. I say I'm versatile, and people can't help but line up to be my friend. Pepe, ID#A0660339, is available for adoption at the Santa Monica Animal Shelter located at 1640 9th Street, Santa Monica CA, 90404. The shelter is closed to the public and adoptions are by appointment only by calling the shelter at 310.458.8595.

PET TIP OF THE WEEK: PETS AND COVID-19

According to the Center for Disease Control, little is known regarding the spread of COVID-19 be-tween people and pets. But there are important ways to promote safety for you and your pets from the virus.

People cannot get COVID-19 from petting dogs and cats. Certain bacteria and fungi can travel in the air and on pet's skin, fur, or hair, but there is no evidence to suggest that this includes viruses or COVID-19.

There have been a few cases worldwide where animals contracted the virus from a person that was infected by COVID-19. The risk of spreading the virus to animals is still considered low. But, be aware of signs of illness in your pet such as breathing, difficulty, coughing, lethargy, diarrhea, vomit-ing, nasal or ocular discharge. If you have any concerns about your pet's health, contact your veter-inarian.

If you are sick, limit the amount of physical interactions you have with your pet such as kissing, pet-ting, snuggling, and sharing a bed. Wash their equipment and bedding frequently. Wash your hands before and after you handle your pets and wear a mask.

You can walk your dog, go to the dog park, day care, boarding, and the groomers. Always practice social distancing, and do not allow other people to touch your pets. Avoid touching items at the dog park. Clean and disinfect your dog's equipment and toys with pet safe products after each use. If you must go to the groomers, day care, or boarding facilities, make sure the establishments are adhering to COVID-19 safety protocols. If you or your dog are sick, or have been exposed to the vi-rus, stay home, and limit your walks to areas with less people.

While COVID-19 is primarily spread from person to person, it is important to promote your pet's safety by continuing to practice the same safety protocols that you practice for yourself. For more information on COVID-19 and pets, visit the CDC's website www.cdc.gov.

Pet of the Week is provided by Carmen Molinari, a long-time volunteer at the Santa Monica Animal Shelter and founder and CEO of Love At First Sit, a pet care and dog training company in Santa Monica. Learn about her, pet tips, and Love At First Sit services at loveatfirstsit.net

BOARD CANDIDATES

speaking to anybody about the issues, what I care about, and why I am in the race seems like a positive thing."

Feldman applied for the SMRR, SMMCTA, LACDP, SMDC, and CEPS endorsements, and while he has not received any of these endorsements yet, he did receive an endorsement from the Stonewall Democratic Club and 36 individuals.

"It was definitely a lot harder as an outsider. The incumbents have been in this game for a while and there is a certain way to maximize your chances," said Feldman. "Some of these candidates have been on these committees, have held positions in these committees, so they are personally familiar with many of the members."

Feldman is running on a joint slate of challengers, which also includes Esther Hickman and Steven Johnson. According to Johnson, their slate is allied with the City Council anti-incumbent slate which includes Oscar de la Torre, Christine Parra, Phil Brock, and Mario Fonda-Bonardi.

The School Board challengers seek to offer a coordinated alternative to the incumbents and are running on a platform of increased transparency, reigning in spending, and advocating for teachers.

Hickman and Johnson have been much less active in the endorsement application process than Feldman, but are both seeking endorsement from the Santa Monica-Malibu Classroom Teachers Association.

"The only endorsement I particularly care about that I'm willing to work for right now is the teachers union," said Johnson. "The layoffs this spring inspired me to run. No one was speaking out for the teachers at the board meetings."

"I am participating in the process, but I'm not attached or necessarily going after endorsements," said Hickman. "Right now it's really about me being a parent; it's really about our slate going after transparency and accountability and the administration and the board being public servants to the taxpayers and their families."

Both Hickman and Johnson were latecomers to the race and said they were not included several of the earlier endorsement application processes.

Jen Smith is also a first time candidate, but unlike the slated group she is not running a campaign against incumbents and has received endorsements from five current School Board members. She has also been endorsed by three city council members, SMRR, and CEPs.

"The values of the organizations that endorse you show you who your candidate is," said Smith. "I was definitely honored to get the SMRR endorsement, I have a lot of respect for the work they do in the community. I've been a renter in Santa Monica in a rent controlled apartment for 20 years."

Smith is well known by the existing board, having twice served as PTA president and was endorsed by Kean and Vazquez.

Keith Coleman is also a first time candidate who is not aligned with the anti-incumbent group. However, his platform does emphasize bringing change and innovation to the board based on his background in education innovation, public policy, and technology.

"I'm not running a negative campaign because my focus is really more about finding solutions to the challenges that are facing the District," said Coleman. "However, I do recognize that having lengthy time in an environment can often cause an individual to become less innovative as humans can become bound by habit."

Coleman has received endorsements from CEPS, LACDP, School Board members Ralph Mechur and Craig Foster, and Councilwoman Kristin McCowan.

"I think that endorsements are overrated in the sense that they can miss the mark in people listening to and understanding who a person really is," said Coleman. "I am thankful that these individuals have endorsed me, but I think what's more important is people listening to and or reading the narrative that an individual brings forward."

Kean, who is finishing his first term on the school board, acknowledges that experience and a proven track record are essential qualifications, but also believes that endorsements are powerful in this race.

"Endorsements are important, especially for a school board race where most of the voters do not have school age children, said Kean. "How do voters make up their minds when they don't have a lot of knowledge about the school district? Usually it is friends telling them who they are voting for or it's seeing endorsements from elected leaders or groups who they respect."
