Samohi senior Taira Sakamoto participates in international judo competition

Marcus Sakamoto

JUDO: Taira Sakamoto qualified for an international competition based on her Junior Olympic performance.

GRACE INEZ ADAMS
SMDP Staff Writer

Taira Sakamoto, a senior at Samohi, had never been to Europe until last month, when she traveled to the country of Bosnia and Herzegovina with her dad to compete in the Cadets World Judo Championship.

Sakamoto, who has been doing judo since the age of five, qualified for the competition by placing second at the Junior Olympic National Championships in San Jose, CA this June.

Math teacher wins award for implementing project based learning

GRACE INEZ ADAMS
SMDP Staff Writer

Students in Rose Moe's sixth grade math class at Lincoln Middle School are given a mission each year: to design the ultimate lunchbox. Working in groups of three, they embark on a four to six week unit focused on this task, designed to allow them to learn and apply geometry concepts and also develop teamwork, critical thinking and other skills.

Moe's Lunchbox unit is an example of project based learning (PBL), and recently won her an award from PBLWorks, a national education nonprofit.

Moe has been a middle school math teacher for 24 years, 17 of which have been at Lincoln. She began implementing PBL in her classroom four years ago after learning about it through a professional development opportunity.

PBL is a teaching approach that fosters student learning through engaging in projects that are applicable in real-world contexts and meaningful to them personally. Instead of just having a project be a "dessert" at the end of a unit to demonstrate learning, PBL makes it the "main course," through which students learn, as explained by the PBLWorks website.

PBL also emphasizes designing projects around guiding questions for students to explore. In Moe's case, the question she poses to

City Council wants needle programs removed from public parks

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

Council meets on Tuesday, Sept. 13 with an agenda heavy on second readings of past decisions. However, new business includes a pair of items addressing homelessness and a discussion of new ways to solicit input into federal housing aid.

NEEDLE EXCHANGE PROGRAM

Santa Monica officials want the County of Los Angeles to stop distributing free needles to drug users in Santa Monica parks and instead move their needle exchange program to an indoor facility with additional services.

Councilmembers Lana Negrete and Phil Brock have requested the full council discuss a letter that would be sent to the Board of Supervisors and both candidates for Supervisor outlining the steps Santa Monica takes to address homelessness and ask for the needle exchange program to move out of public spaces.

"It has come to our attention that the Venice Family Clinic under the purview of the Los Angeles Department of Public Health, Substance Abuse and Prevention and Control Division is providing clean needles to individuals in our parks and open spaces through the Harm Reduction Syringe Services Program," says the letter. "We understand our limited regulatory

CRIME WATCH

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON AUGUST 27 AT 11:20 A.M.

SMPD officers were dispatched to the 1400 block of 11th Street for a prowling that had just occurred. According the reporting party, a suspect forced his way into the victim's apartment. In summary, the victim noticed an unfamiliar male on the landing in front of her 2nd story apartment. She then opened the door and asked the male if he needed assistance. The male, later identified as Robert Brom proceeded to start yelling at the victim and accused her of being in his apartment. She immediately attempted to explain that the apartment did indeed belong to her. Brom refused to leave after being asked to do so multiple times and eventually crossed the threshold into the victim's apartment and grabbed her by her wrists. This caused the victim to stumble backwards, thus breaking the hold. Brom then exited the apartment and was located near the 1100 block of Wilshire Blvd. He was placed under arrest for battery and issued a citation.

her students is: "how can we, as engineers, design the best lunchbox for middle school students?"

"We work in the math throughout the unit by changing their designs, including different shapes, looking at the area of triangles and different figures," she said. "Then with volume, looking at the size of their lunchboxes to see how realistic it is for the food that they eat."

In addition to math, she also incorporates other elements to help interest all students. She even attended a patent training last summer to be able to teach her students about the legal aspects of creating a product.

"So they looked at patents and figured out things like 'how can I design a patent,' what's legal... and then we also looked at designing their brand, so they created logos and that kind of thing," she said. "So there's always something for every kid."

Moe said PBL builds off of student's curiosity and allows them to learn material in an engaging and fun way.

"They're more on task when they're working on PBL than something that's like, you know, just math problems to solve because they're using it in a project and sometimes they don't realize that they're really doing math," she said.

At the end of the unit, students make their designs out of cardboard and share them with one another. Moe said she's always looking for ways to improve the project and wants to try to get a 3D printer in the future to really bring the designs to life and add a computer coding element to the unit.

As part of her award, Moe was invited to attend the PBL World conference in Napa Valley this past summer. She participated in four days of workshops where she met other teachers from across the country, shared her work and learned about theirs. She said it was an inspiring experience that reinforced her desire to keep implementing PBL in her classroom and help her students develop real-world problem-solving skills.

"When we look at our world and how much work we need to do," she said, "bringing that into the classroom –because these are the kids that we want solving those problems– it's really worth it."

Help ease patient pain during Sickle Cell Awareness Month

During Sickle Cell Awareness Month in September, the American Red Cross emphasizes the importance of a diverse blood supply to help meet the needs of those with sickle cell disease – the most common inherited blood disorder in the U.S.

Sickle cell disease impacts more than 100,000 people across the country, most of whom are of African descent. Regular blood transfusions are critical to managing extreme pain and life-threatening complications faced by many. Unfortunately, they may develop an immune response against blood from donors that is not closely matched to their own. However, because most individuals who are Black have unique structures on their red blood cells that are not often found in other donor populations, 1 in 3 African American blood donors is a match for people with sickle cell disease.

Seasonal changes can trigger pain crises for those battling sickle cell – possibly increasing the need for lifesaving blood transfusions. As summer ends, book a time to give blood by using the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org or by calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). As a thank-you, all who come to give through Sept. 18 will get an exclusive Red Cross T-shirt, while supplies last.

LIFE-THREATENING COMPLICATIONS

Sickle cell disease distorts soft, round blood cells and turns them hard and crescent-shaped, which can cause severe pain. "When cells harden, they can get caught in blood vessels, potentially leading to stroke and organ failure," says Ingrid Green, Southern California Regional Sickle Cell Account Manager. "Transfusions provide healthy blood cells, unblocking blood vessels and delivering oxygen, minimizing crises patients with sickle cell may face."

JOINED BY BLOOD

To help ensure patients have the blood products they need, the American Red Cross is working with partners in the Black community to grow the number of blood donors who are Black through the sickle cell initiative, which launched in 2021. In the first year of the initiative, the number of first-time African American blood donors who gave with the Red Cross increased by 60%. In September and October, the Red Cross launches Joined by Blood, a fall component of the initiative where the Red Cross is teaming up with community organizations, like the National Pan-Hellenic Council and others, to host blood drives and inspire donors who are Black to give blood to support patients with sickle cell disease. Santa Monica activist to speak at United Nations summit

An activist from Santa Monica is set to address world leaders at a historic UN education summit this September. The first-generation daughter of Mexican-Colombian immigrants is one of five youth ambassadors selected by global children's charity Theirworld to address the United Nations in New York.

Jennifer Borrero, a 27-year-old campaigner, will advocate for change at the Transforming Education Summit in September in front of world leaders as the education crisis reaches breaking point. The five Theirworld Global Youth Ambassadors will put pressure on world leaders to make real commitments that will make education a reality for every child.

Governments and donors everywhere are underfunding education, and that has to change. In New York on September 19, world leaders will have the opportunity to come together and make commitments that could save this generation's education.

Globally, 260 million children do not have a place in school. At this rate more than half of young people – 825 million – will leave school without the reading and writing skills needed to enter the workforce, leaving the future of a generation is at risk.

Jennifer hopes that the summit will serve as an opportunity for world leaders to implement action, instead of creating more of the empty promises that youth around the world have been hearing for too long.

Jennifer Borrero said: "Education for me has meant being able to provide for my family. My education has been the difference between just surviving and completely changing the course of my family's life".

Previously Jennifer has led programs on education and housing and now works in Los Angeles where she focuses on the intersection of Social Impact initiatives and Technology. She currently sits on the Homelessness Council within the Urban Land Institute, an organization focused primarily on housing policy in California.

Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra Names Anne-Marie Spataru as Board Chair

Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra (LACO), one of the nation's leading orchestras renowned for its wide-ranging repertoire and adventurous commissioning initiatives, has named Anne-Marie Spataru Chair of the Board of Directors, announced LACO Executive Director Benjamin Cadwallader. The West Los Angeles resident succeeds Leslie Lassiter, who assumes the role of Vice Chair after serving a four-year term as Chair. Spataru, who enjoyed a 30-year-career in project management with the UCLA Capital Programs Department and joined LACO's Board in 2018, began her three-year term as Chair on July 1, 2022. Additionally, Cadwallader announced the three-year Board appointment of Amy Rabwin of Highland Park, a former French Horn player and administrative professional with over 20 years of experience supporting C-Suite executives in the arts and finance.

"Anne-Marie Spataru brings a wealth of experience to LACO with her inspired vision, formidable business and leadership skills, and tremendous passion for music and the Orchestra," says Cadwallader. "We are thrilled to have her at the helm to help guide LACO, as its national and international acclaim continues to grow under Music Director Jaime Martín due to the Orchestra's exceptional artistry, impactful live performances, and innovative digital offerings spotlighting the full spectrum of the chamber music repertoire and LACO's abiding commitment to championing new music. We are also very grateful to Leslie Lassiter for her exceptional guidance. During her tenure as Chair, LACO successfully navigated the global pandemic, one of the most daunting chapters in the organization's history. We have tremendous appreciation for everything she has done to facilitate the Orchestra's continued fiscal and artistic health and propel its forward momentum."

> "Anne-Marie Spataru brings a wealth of experience to LACO with her inspired vision, formidable business and leadership skills, and tremendous passion for music and the Orchestra - Benjamin Cadwallader"

Cadwallader adds, "We are very pleased to welcome Amy Rabwin to the Board. She brings a unique perspective to LACO with her extensive music background, professional acumen in business and the arts, and history with the Orchestra, where she previously served in an entry level executive support position at the beginning of her career some two decades ago."

Spataru retired in June 2013 as Director of Special Projects with the UCLA Capital Programs Department. During her 30-year project management career, she performed critical responsibilities in the planning, development, and fiscal management of major construction projects on the UCLA campus with an overall value in excess of $2 billion. Born and raised in Bordeaux, France, Spataru earned a BA in English and a second BA in Political Science from the University of Bordeaux and an MBA from the UCLA Graduate School of Management, after which she made Los Angeles her permanent home. As a long term philanthropic volunteer, Spataru served for 11 years on the Board of the Santa Monica–Westside YWCA, with a final term as Board President (2014-2017), and previously served on the Board of the UCLA Dashew Center for International Students and Scholars (2001-2011). Spataru currently serves on the boards of several UCLA volunteer organizations: Women and Philanthropy (President 2018-2020), Design for Sharing, Faculty Women's Club, and Gold Shield Alumnae (President 2022-2024). Spataru and her husband, Alex, are long-time supporters and advocates of LACO.

Rabwin has served as Executive Assistant to the CEO of Blackstone, the world's largest alternative asset manager for the past 14 years. In this role, she leads a team of assistants and manages high level operations, logistics, and administration related to the professional, personal, and philanthropic life of an extraordinarily busy CEO. She previously pursued a career in classical music administration and held positions at the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra and The Metropolitan Opera. An active community volunteer, Rabwin serves as a Court Appointed Special Advocate with CASA LA, advocating for children and families in the child welfare system. She regularly fosters dogs for various Los Angeles-based animal rescue organizations. Since June 2020, she has coordinated twice-weekly yoga classes in her backyard, benefiting local yoga teachers and the community during uncertain times. Rabwin holds a Bachelor of Arts in Music from the USC Thornton School of Music. She and her husband, Dave Cacarillo, and their dog and cat, share their home with a rotating cast of foster dogs.

REAL ID enforcement begins in eight months

If you don't have your REAL ID yet, add it to your list of back-to-school tasks. Applying for one takes less time than shopping for new clothes and school supplies.

In just eight months, you will need a REAL ID or another federally approved form of identification to fly within the United States and enter secure federal facilities. If you get yours now, it will be one less thing to think about when you return to college for the school year or plan your next family trip by air after May 3, 2023.

"Whether you're a parent dropping off the kids at school or a college student taking your last class before lunch, make plans to swing by a DMV office afterward to complete your REAL ID application," said DMV Director Steve Gordon. "Don't forget to do your homework before heading to the DMV office – you'll need to fill out your REAL ID application online ahead of time."

> "Whether you're a parent dropping off the kids at school or a college student taking your last class before lunch, make plans to swing by a DMV office afterward to complete your REAL ID application - Steve Gordon

Get started at REALID.dmv.ca.gov. You will need to provide one proof of identity, two separate proofs of California residency, and your Social Security number. You are encouraged to use the REAL ID checklist to find out which types of documents you can submit. Once completed, bring your original uploaded documents and a copy of the confirmation page to your office appointment, where you will have your documents verified and take a photo for your new REAL ID. The office visit generally takes less time than taking a pop quiz.

The Transportation Security Administration (TSA) does not require individuals under the age of 18 to provide identification when traveling within the U.S. However, the companion will need to show a federally approved form of identification, such as a REAL ID.

Most DMV tasks do not require an office visit. The DMV encourages customers to use its online services and other service channels to complete transactions, including vehicle registration renewals. Customers can also use the Service Advisor on the DMV website to learn their options to complete DMV business.

authority, however, rather than implement this program in our parks and open spaces, we seek your assistance in immediately moving this program to a service rich environment (preferably indoors) where individuals in need of substance abuse, mental health, and other services can coordinate and work directly with service providers."

The letter outlines efforts the City has made to address homelessness and specific programs catering to homeless individuals. It states local parks are frequently used by families who lack private outdoor space due to living in apartments and says the City has strong partnerships with the County that should be built on to address the current problem.

"As a next step, our staff will be asking the County for a formal proposal and it is our aspiration that, at a minimum, what materializes is a pilot project in which the County places restrictions on the time, place, and manner in which the Harm Reduction Syringe Services Program is administered that aligns with the City's strategy to address homelessness," says the letter.

The request comes after an overdose was listed as the suspected cause of death for a homeless person found in Palisades Park in July.

SLEEPING IN DOORWAYS

The Santa Monica Police Department is asking Council to expand an existing prohibition on blocking entryways to local businesses from its current Downtown/Main Street borders to the entire city.

City Hall adopted a ban on sitting, lying, or sleeping in doorways and blocking access to the entrances of their businesses in the Downtown and Main Street areas of Santa Monica in 2002 and according to a report prepared by Police Chief Ramon Batista, businesses in other parts of the city have lodged numerous complaints about the problem in recent years.

"The proposed amendments presented to Council in this report would serve to protect access to property when owners and tenants are not present to protect it themselves," said the report. "It would also protect public health by reducing sanitation risks and preserving aesthetics. Additionally, it would eliminate the hazards attendant upon people sitting, sleeping, or lying in those unsafe locations. Importantly, the ordinance would not prohibit anyone from sitting or lying in a doorway during a medical emergency, nor would it not prohibit anyone from entering or standing in a doorway. Moreover, it would not generally prohibit activity on the public right-of-way and only prohibits sitting, lying, or sleeping where access to the entrance of building is blocked, in consideration of recent cases on this topic."

RESIDENT ADVISORY BOARD (RAB)

Council will hear options for new ways to solicit input into the Santa Monica Housing Authority. SMHA oversees federal housing aid in the form of vouchers and part of the rules for receiving that aid is a Resident Advisory Board composed of voucher holders that can provide input into decisions.

The City's current system allows everyone receiving a voucher to provide input into specific meetings but the Housing Commission recently proposed a new system that would create a more defined board based on the needs of voucher holders. Council will hear an oral report on the Housing Commission's recommendations plus debate three written alternatives.

Option 1: Create a virtual communication channel to facilitate group communication that could be created as an informational forum for RAB members, who voluntarily opt-in, to converse in general about voucher program issues.

Option 2: Organize and conduct an annual RAB workshop, in-lieu of the traditional annual Housing Commission forum for feedback on the SMHA Plans. This option could be paired with the virtual communication channel.

Option 3: Council could appoint a subset of participants to a RAB to represent all 1,300+ HCV participants and staff would then organize and support quarterly RAB meetings.

Staff said any options could be tabled for the time being if Council wanted to wait for the outcome of a ballot measure in November that would alter the necessary requirements.

Council will meet at 5:30 p.m. on Sept. 2. Meetings are streamed on the City's Youtube channel and agenda's can be found online at https://santamonicacityca.iqm2.com/Citizens/Detail_Meeting.aspx?ID=1322.

At the recent international competition she competed against athletes from Greece and Uzbekistan in the Women's 52 kg category. She said some of the rules at the international level were different and took some getting used to, but she feels she gained a lot from the experience.

"Even though we didn't all speak the same language, seeing all these girls, with my same interests, all in one place was just amazing," she said.

In addition to Judo, Sakamoto also wrestles and is the captain of Samohi's co-ed wrestling team. Growing up doing these two sports, she was aware of the lack of female presence.

"They're both male dominated sports, so not having many female role models around me was difficult," she said.

Over the last few years, however, she has seen this changing and has been a part of expanding the sport for girls at Samohi.

"The girl's program has grown significantly," she said. "It started with three girls, me included, and now we're promoting it more – it's the number one women's fastest growing sport, I believe."

The Samohi team now has 15 girls and, according to data from the National Wrestling Coaches Association, the number of women who participate in high school wrestling has grown from 804 in 1994 to over 28,000 as of 2021.

"Having 15 new incoming girls this year is just amazing and being able to lead them is like a whole different experience," Sakamoto said.

She said the wrestling team practices everyday, with morning weight practices starting at 6:30 a.m. In addition to her Judo training, which she does at Hollywood Judo, it's a lot to juggle.

> "The girl's program has grown significantly - Taira Sakamoto"

"But honestly, being in these sports has made my high-school experience," she said. "All of the people I've met through them, all the connections I have now, it wouldn't be the same without this."

Sakamoto is now in the process of applying to colleges and is unsure if she will continue competing in either sport, especially because not many colleges have a judo program. Regardless, she said she has learned a lot through both that she'll carry with her and be able to apply throughout life, including determination, perseverance and overcoming challenges.

"Especially with judo, people think it's very rough, but it's mostly self defense," she said. "You use what your opponent gives you, it's not just like 'oh the stronger person wins,' even if someone's a lot heavier, you can still use their momentum against them and beat them."

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 12)

You'll be involved in a long-term pursuit that will eventually land you on a distant, bounteous day, looking back amazed at what you were able to build. Even so, results won't be immediate or steady. You'll need faith and tenacity to get to the easy, joyous part. Good people around you make work worthwhile. Taurus and Aquarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 1, 3, 33, 27 and 17.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You'll feel a responsibility to respect, lift and help. Don't try to work out ahead of time how you'll do this. There's no way to prepare for the sort of surprises you'll face, but you can count on your instincts to meet the moment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Whenever there is an opportunity to be useful, you'll take advantage of it. You'll see an opportunity where others only see a problem. It will be a pleasure to go through all the steps involved in finding a solution.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). However much you enjoy the company of certain people, being around them can still seem like work. Why do you think this is? If you're willing to look for it, there's a nugget of self-knowledge at the heart of this phenomenon.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Ideally, you'll identify a confluence of interests early on in a relationship. Where needs match up, what is given and received makes sense to both parties. If this isn't happening naturally, don't worry, just focus on what's working.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). No matter how much you love doing a thing, it can still get tedious. Whether it's work or a hobby, the repetition necessary to get good at it will, at some point, get harder. It will be energizing to reconnect with the reasons for doing this.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). While nothing in this circular life is truly complete, a matter of importance will be resolved to whatever degree it can possibly be resolved. Your new chapter will begin on a note of relief.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You sense what others need and provide it before they ask. It's a risky move. What if you're reading the signals wrong? What if you're incorrect? But you won't be because you're coming from a selfless awareness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Taking time to listen to someone will lift their mood. You'll be included in decision-making and looped into conversations. People feel heard and understood by you. You'll get an overview of situations that few are privy to.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). It causes as much negativity to take offense when none was intended as it does to unintentionally offend. You try not to take things too seriously or personally. Your light touch on social matters will be appreciated.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). The reason you're obsessed with getting better at something is that you know that, without work, you won't be where you want to be at all. So, in a weird way, your modesty and humility will make you exceptional.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Your relationship with others is an extension of your relationship to yourself. As you nurture your No. 1 connection, other relationships blossom, including those of a platonic, romantic or business nature.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You have much to contribute, though there are those who would prefer you were their echo instead of your own distinct voice. The easiest way to shine is to keep company that's inclined to encourage and appreciate you.
