Split council tightens anti-camping laws

SLEEPING: Sleeping in public is not a crime but if it involves a sleeping bag, it could cross into camping.

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

Bedrolls and sleeping bags have been added to the list of items that define an illegal campsite in Santa Monica. In yet another multi-hour debate, various councilmembers said the decision was cruel, compassionate, minor, major, common sense and political posturing depending on your point of view.

The actual changes to city code are in fact relatively small. Sleeping bags and bedrolls (pads to sleep on) are now listed as evidence of a campsite in the city's anti-camping ordinance. Neither item is prohibited outright nor can either item be cause for citation alone but both are now part of the decision matrix used by officials when determining if someone has set up an illegal campsite inside city limits.

Both items were part of the code before being removed two years ago to comply with a regional court decision. That case was recently overturned by the Supreme Court and councilmembers asked staff to evaluate the city's options given the new legal landscape. Staff said the Council could approve a return to

A 19-year-old Van Nuys resident has been arrested for shooting a man near the beach over the weekend.

According to the Santa Monica Police Department, officers were called to the 1900 block of Ocean Ave. at about 1:30 a.m. on Sept. 8. for an assault with a deadly weapon call.

The caller, a friend of the victim, reported that a male suspect shot the victim several times and fled the location. Officers were on scene within minutes of the 911 call and detained several individuals as they attempted to leave. Other officers provided first aid to the 24-year-old

Homeless man fondles woman after breaking into her home

MATTHEW HALL

A homeless man has been charged with several felony crimes after breaking into a woman's home and touching her while she slept.

According to SMPD, the suspect, later identified as 34-year-old homeless man Anthony Townson broke into a home on the 900 block of 7th street at about 4 a.m. on Sept. 7. The female resident woke up to see Townson touching her leg while his penis was exposed. The victim was able to get away from the suspect and call police.

Townson fled but was found and arrested nearby. It was determined the suspect entered the apartment via an unlocked patio sliding door.

Townson was arraigned on September 10 and the Los Angeles

Heat wave dying down after rare 100-degree high

File Photo

HEAT: Temperatures cracked triple digits in Santa Monica as part of a brutal five-day heat wave.

THOMAS LEFFLER
SMDP Staff Writer

Temperatures are finally settling back to normal in Santa Monica, but the city's recent heat wave was a historic one.

From Sept. 5 through Sept. 9, according to readings from the Santa Monica Municipal Airport, temperatures hit highs of at least 87 degrees Fahrenheit. The peak came on Sept. 6, as the fiery Friday reached the 100-degree mark for only the eighth time in the city's recorded history.

The Sept. 6 high of 100 was last hit on Sept. 9, 2022, part of a heat wave that month that also featured a 101-degree day on Sept. 4. The temperature nearly approached the all-time mark in Santa Monica, which was a 103-degree day on Sept. 27, 2010. Now 11 days into the month, the average high temperature for September is 83.27, far eclipsing August's average high of 76.52.

Conditions forced the National Weather Service to issue an Excessive Heat Warning for the city, an alert that also covered all Los Angeles County beaches, the Malibu Coast and Palos Verdes Hills. The warning lasted for five days.

To deal with the heat, Santa Monica libraries opened to give locals relief, and Los Angeles City and County opened cooling centers throughout the region. In addition, city staff highlighted splash pads at Annenberg Community Beach House, Virginia Avenue Park and Tongva Park as spots to beat the heat.

Though there weren't many other local impacts besides the sheer uncomfortable nature of the situation, the weather took its toll on Los Angeles power. At the peak of the heat wave Sunday evening, about 15,200 electricity customers were without power, with impacted areas including Lincoln Heights and Highland Park. The outages also shut down roughly half of Del Amo Mall in Torrance over the weekend.

Wildfires also continue to rage across California, including just north of Los Angeles. The Bridge Fire in Angeles National Forest has grown to burn over 49,008 acres so far, with no containment as of Wednesday afternoon. The Line Fire in San Bernardino County, which was only 14% contained as of Wednesday afternoon, has burnt through 34,729 acres of land thus far, and has injured at least three people.

Due to the flames of the Line Fire, the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department announced mandatory evacuation orders for about 4,800 homes. Gov. Gavin Newsom proclaimed a state of emergency in the county, gaining a grant from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to obtain resources to battle the blaze.

Temperatures are finally beginning to drop down, as Wednesday's high dipped down to 74 degrees, and highs are scheduled to fall back into the upper 60s by Sunday. Zero precipitation is on the horizon for the city, with the last measurable rainfall coming in May, only 0.06 inches in total.

CORRECTION

A story published on Sept. 9 incorrectly stated that the City Council voted to assist in the purchase of 1402 Wilshire Blvd. for a housing project by Hollywood Community Housing Corporation (HCHC). At the Aug. 27 meeting, the City Council directed staff to continue negotiations with HCHC under the Exclusive Negotiating Agreement. Part of those negotiations include an updated proposal by HCHC for the development that includes added senior housing and additional parking and reduced building height. That proposal involves HCHC acquiring a privately-owned property at 1402 Wilshire Blvd., adjacent to the city-owned site. The city is not currently involved in HCHC attempting to acquire the property at 1402 Wilshire. While a city subsidy is proposed for the revised project, the subsidy has not yet been finalized in amount or scope and has not been dedicated for the explicit purchase of 1402 Wilshire Blvd. City Hall further clarified that development of city-owned properties, including parking lots, has been required by the state for several years to maintain a compliant housing element and as these developments begin to move forward, the city is continuing to provide information to the community.

Surf report

WATER TEMP: 71.2

THURSDAY
FAIR
SURF: Knee to thigh 1-2FT

Probably a small longboard day off a little mix of several swells (longer period S and short period NW). It currently looks like wind will be light and conditions generally clean in the morning.

FRIDAY
POOR TO FAIR
SURF: Knee to thigh 1-2FT

Steep-angled S swell and some easing NW swell in the mix. Not much but should be enough for the small wave gear across most of the region. Select spots could be fun.

Weather

Thursday: Patchy fog before 11am. Otherwise, cloudy through mid morning, then gradual clearing, with a high near 69.
Thursday Night: Patchy fog after 11pm. Otherwise, increasing clouds, with a low around 61.
Friday: Patchy fog before 11am. Otherwise, partly sunny, with a high near 69.
Friday Night: Patchy fog after 11pm. Otherwise, mostly cloudy, with a low around 60.

Sturgill!

ROCK: Sturgill Simpson brings his unique guitar expertise to the Greek Theatre on Saturday.

YA GOTTA LOVE TAYLOR SWIFT

People kept predicting she would show up dramatically at the Democratic Convention and announce her backing of Kamala Harris for President. Nope, I would opine sagely, you don't understand how these things work. No offense, Queen B fans, but I thought Beyonce might, though also not likely. Those nights belonged to the nominee, they were carefully choreographed per celebrity egos, but, at some point, Bee walking out unannounced on Kamala's left, Oprah on her right, that;s a photo op fore the ages, and the screaming would not have dropped a decibel for maybe an hour.

But Ms. Swift – is a whole different story. The book is still being written, but have we ever seen such a popular phenomenon ever, sorry Beatles, too bad Elvis. There are millions of young Americans and their moms and aunties who would turn green or communist, or maybe into a duck, if Taylor asked them. Nicely, of course, and with solid reasoning.

I think she was going to wait a bit longer, than a tweet at the end of the Great Debate, to make her declaration of support. but her hand was forced by that AI fake of her endorsing The Orange Mess, that was posted on his page – really Donny, they are not as dumb as you think – I think – that must have driven steam out of her ears. That's it. Not waiting another second. Attention, Swifties.

I think she will still make some in-person announcement, closer to election day, to mobilize her army and give them specific instructions. A lot of them will be voting for the first time. Kamala, you better figure out which cabinet post you will offer her Nov. 6, even though you know she will not take it. Girl power, indeed.

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED

STURGILL SIMPSON - HIGHLY, HIGHLY, HIGHLY, OK? I can't overhype this, because he is still so relatively unknown, yet drawing large, wildly cheering festival crowds because: Simpson is among the best songwriters we have, an affecting singer, a helluva guitar slinger, but mostly, his band can leave you stunned, they are that good. Too much? There's only one way to find out, isn't there? Lucky you. Sat 8 p.m., Greek Theatre, LA, $93-288.

THEATRICUM BOTANICUM: The long summer season is running short! Don't miss any of these. Well, if you had to miss one, of those I've seen, maybe "Wendy's Peter Pan." Big cast of kids, all excellent, a menacing Hook, but seems like there's more that could have been done with the script. And more cowbell, uh, crocodile, please! Maybe I'm just spoiled and expect greatness every time, instead of just a really good performance, which this is. "The Winter's Tale" is one of Willie the Shake's last, a tragi-comedy. He had at that point moved away from telling the stories of royalty, writing more about the emotions and lives of more everyday victim until paramedics could arrive. The victim, who sustained several gunshot wounds, was transported to a local hospital for treatment where he is currently in serious but stable condition.

Isaac Santiago Ramos was positively identified as the shooter and was in possession of a concealed handgun. Witnesses told officers that Ramos and four other men approached two of the victim's friends while they were sitting in the 2000 block of the beach and an argument ensued. Ramos pulled out a handgun and the victim attempted to intervene. Ramos shot the victim several times before fleeing eastbound.

Ramos was arraigned on September 10th and faces charges of attempted murder, mayhem, carrying a concealed/loaded firearm and resisting arrest.

Bail for Ramos has been set at $4,105,000.

Anyone with information about this incident or suspect is asked to contact Detective Reyes at Isaac.Reyes@santamonica.gov, Sergeant Lozano at Alfonso.Lozano@santamonica.gov, or the Watch Commander desk 24 hours a day at (310) 458-8427.

HOMELESS

the old rules, do nothing or study decisions by other municipalities. Ultimately, a divided council voted to both revert the local rules back to include the bag/bedroll as evidence of a camp while also studying other decisions by nearby cities.

Santa Monica's police chief and City Attorney's office supported the change.

Police Chief Ramon Batista said it would provide officers more tools to address resident concerns and more opportunities to have homeless campers begin to interact with city services.

"I think the distinction is, when our residents call us in situations where somebody is near their home, in a situation where they're experiencing homelessness and have maybe nowhere else to go, then lowering the threshold and removing that barrier makes it so that the officer has more of an opportunity to have that engagement directly with that person," he said. "There are times when we get a 911 call of the same type of report, but on our approach, we see that, there we don't really have an opening on how to begin the conversation, because the person is really, in that situation, not breaking any laws. And so I think that having the restriction removed gives the officers just one more opportunity to start that engagement and have that conversation, whereas if it's not there, then the officer may look at it and say, you know, actually, this person, while unsightly, is not breaking the law. Which happens."

Jenna Grigsby, Chief of the Criminal Division of the Santa Monica City Attorney's Office, said Santa Monica's approach to camping is about more than the specific items listed and is a balanced system that enables officers actions to withstand scrutiny in court.

"So I know we're here to focus on those three items that we removed, but really the way that the statute was written 30 years ago is very helpful, and it's very effective, because it gives the officers just enough discretion to be able to articulate the circumstances, but is specific enough so that when we craft jury instructions, the jury is looking for those, at least one of those particular items," she said.

Voting to reinstate the language were Mayor Phil Brock, Vice Mayor Lana Negrete, Councilman Oscar de la Torre and Councilwoman Christine Parra.

After reading a list of recent headlines involving homeless suspects assaulting people, de la Torre said the city was being overrun and that more enforcement of anti-camping laws would force people into services where they could receive help. He said Council should act to protect public space, especially in a city with so many renters.

"These are people that don't have, like myself, I grew up all my life not having a front yard, not having a backyard. You need the public parks. You need the beaches to be safe. You need to protect that, you know, for the sanctity of having, the public's space protected. That responsibility that we have as government, right?"

Brock said allowing people to live on the streets was a failure by the city both to people camping who degrade outside and residents who are impacted in their own right.

"I look at our residents who are calling me, emailing me when I go in person to see people, they're frustrated as hell because there are people in their alleys, on their streets and for whatever reason, whether you could say it's unjustified or not, they're fearful of their own city," he said. "They're fearful of a place where they came because we had the best climate for them. We had palm trees and a beautiful ocean and great parks, and now they're afraid to use them. I think we have to have that part of the discussion too. It doesn't have to be tonight, but that part of the discussion has to be had. How do we have compassion for our residents? How do we have compassion for the small businesses in our city who are afraid to open their damn doors, who have to put buzzers in, who have to have security guards at the entrance of restaurants. This is unprecedented."

Negrete said more tents and camps will appear without the revision. She said stronger anti-camping laws are one of the few tools available to they city and that the city shouldn't developing policy that makes it easier for people to live outside.

"We don't want to create an environment where people can create the ability to sleep outside. Why would we want to promote that you should make it as comfortable as possible to be unhoused? No, we have services and service providers, and we need more, for sure, but why not create an environment where we say we want to be able to engage and encourage you to get those services ..."

Councilwoman Gleam Davis took issue with the idea that the city should make it uncomfortable for homeless people.

"You said, the idea is to make it as uncomfortable as possible so that they won't be here. The homeless folks won't want to be here. And to me, that's really troubling, not that we want to encourage homeless folks to come here, not that we want to encourage bad behavior. We certainly don't want to encourage illegal behavior, but the fact of the matter is that if we are going to have people experiencing homelessness in our community, I do want to have genuine compassion, not sort of faux compassion by saying, 'Well, we're very compassionate. We don't arrest people, but really we're trying to make them uncomfortable,'" she said.

Councilmembers Jesse Zwick and Caroline Torosis joined Davis in opposing the measure saying the city should focus on building housing instead of penalizing people who are homeless.

"Fines, citations and other negative interactions with law enforcement decrease the likelihood that an individual will engage positively with outreach teams offering services in the future," said Torosis.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 12)

You're not fearless, but this year you'll be friendlier toward it because it comes with taking on the kind of life that expresses you the best. You'll risk and invest what's necessary to make your dream come true. More highlights: you'll gain position, friends and allies. You'll become passionately interested in a subject that leads you to travel and compete. Sagittarius and Leo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 22, 10, 50 and 1.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). When people mistakenly believe they have more or less control than they do, that's when trouble sets in. The power move of the day involves knowing what is within your realm of influence and sticking with it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). It's said that high art is subjective, so if everyone likes it, it's probably not very good. In some way you will be an artist today, pushing boundaries and making the bold moves that best express you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). It's so exciting to think about how the world changes just because you bring friends together. Plan to do it again. When you connect people, in a way it makes you an architect of fate.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Since you have no idea of the scale most befitting of your abilities, start small, get a win or two, and grow from there. And though at this point you're not performing for the applause, the applause will come.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Your inner world can be a stunningly beautiful place, though, like all places, it is subject to weather. Reading is a powerful tool against patterns of thinking that don't contribute to your well-being.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You'll be inspired by those born to seemingly impossible situations that they responded to in such a way as to carve out a good life. When we are no longer able to change a situation, we are challenged to change ourselves.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Like an athlete who relies on muscle memory and instinct to navigate the game, instinct will guide you in making a quick judgment in a high-pressure or rapidly changing situation, where there's little time to analyze.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The plot of your life will seem to yield to the best ideas. A pattern gets interrupted by a better idea, which you'll act on time and again in the weeks to come, establishing a rhythm you're better suited to.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Balanced relationships roll along while the unbalanced ones wobble and jolt, knocking your ego in the process. But at least they teach you what you're insecure about, and where to focus improvement efforts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It can feel like you are deciding who you are on a moment-to-moment basis, but the small decisions might be automatic reactions to something you decided long ago. The day shines the light of introspection on the past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Some relationships aren't fun at all -- not even a little bit. Still, you're happy for the experience because it's given you skill, experience and wisdom. This is why you're open to pursuing new ties.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Self-rejection is weakening. Instead, you accept and embrace however you naturally feel and think, as it's a starting point you can work with. It's safe to let your thoughts run wild, as they will settle into orderliness.

people. A terrific production. Molière's classic "Tartuffe" is brought forward a few centuries, right into today's headlines. How do you rid yourself of a persistent and clever con man? I hope to report next on "Latin - Vote," their topical/political offering of the season, which I have on very good authority is a don't-miss. "Vote" Sat 3:30 p.m., "Wendy" Sat 7:30 p.m., "Winter" Sun 3:30 p.m., "Tartuffe" Sun 7:30 p.m., "Vote" Mon 7:30 p.m., $15-60.

HOT CLUB OF LOS ANGELES — You can go to the Cinema Bar any Monday night, 9-11:30, for more than a decade now, and hear these hot players run through Django Reinhart-style '30s jazz. This amazing ensemble is a treasure. Mon 9 p.m., Cinema Bar, Culver City, free.

RECOMMENDED:

Tonight - "THE SUBSTANCE OF FIRE" – is still getting glowing reviews, and packing them in at our local theater treasure, The Ruskin, at the airport, in this long run. Written in 1991 by Jon Robin Baitz while still in his 20s, he drew his characters lovingly and skillfully, even those decades past his age. Directed here by Mike Reilly, the first NY production starred Rob Rifkin and Sarah Jessica Parker. Lead Rob Morrow first performed it years ago, as the youngest son. Now he plays the aging Holocaust-survivor patriarch of a family business, a book publishing company not doing well and about to be taken over by a large foreign firm. His children want him to bend his principles and publish a best-seller, but he is intent on a six-book examination of Nazi medical experiments. It's almost like two plays, first the family dynamics with his three very different shareholding children, and in the second part comes Marcia Cross as a psychiatric social worker, and a different territory opens. Thurs, Fri, Dat, next Thurs, 8 p.m., Ruskin Group Theatre, SM Airport, $25-40.

RICK SHEA, TONY GILKYSON – Another great booking by Wayne Griffith of McCabe's, two of my very favorite local picker singers, who have been playing together a long time, and it shows. McCabe's Americana in the Park, Rick Shea & Tony Gilkyson, Mustangs of the West, Gandara Park, Sun 4 - 7 p.m., free.

COMING ATTRACTIONS (also recommended): "The Substance of Fire," Ruskin Group Theatre 9/12, 13, 14, 19, 20, 21; Sturgill Simpson, Greek, 9/14; Theatricum Botanicum - "The Hispanic/Latino/Latina/Latinx/Latine Vote" 9/14, 16, 22, 29, 10/3, 6, 12, 20, 26 - "Wendy's Peter Pan" 9/14, 21, 28, 10/4 - "Tartuffe-Born Again" 9/15, 22, 29, 10/5, 13 - "A Midsummer Night's Dream" 9/23; McCabe's Americana in the Park, Rick Shea & Tony Gilkyson, Mustangs of the West, Gandara Park, 9/15; Dengue Fever, Lodge, 9/20; Tom Jones, Greek, 10/7; Joni Mitchell and the Joni Jam, Hollywood Bowl, 10/19; David Gilmour, Hollywood Bowl, 10/29, 30, 31.
