Samohi opens season with emotional win

Vikings' Comas returns two punts for scores against Leuzinger

BY DANIEL ARCHULETA

LAWNDALE On a night when the Samohi Vikings had more on their minds than just football, the points just kept on coming against Leuzinger as both teams opened their seasons on Friday night.

Playing the game in memory of the late Norm Lacy, the school's popular athletic director who passed away in May, and in honor of Cody Williams, a player who suffered a severe spinal injury during last season's opener, the Vikings routed host Leuzinger, 42-6.

Kris Comas, who led the charge by returning a pair of punts for touchdowns and catching another from quarterback Brock Miller, couldn't help but feel the emotions following the game.

"I had a lot of people on my mind," said Comas, who had "C-Dub" written on his eye black in a nod to Williams. "We did this for Cody and Lacy."

The Vikings wasted little time putting up points. Samohi scored on the game's first possession with junior running back Kori Garcia scoring on a 14-yard run to put the

Pepperdine University takes 'Step Forward'

DOWNTOWN On a cloudy Saturday morning, Emily Richardson, unlike many college students her age, is not sleeping in. Instead of hitting the snooze button, she boards a school bus that takes her from Pepperdine University to the Salvation Army in Santa Monica, where she will coordinate volunteers for her school's Step Forward Day.

"It's really just a way to kick off the service year. It's kind of a huge school-wide effort to get everybody started off serving at the beginning of the year and get excited about the service projects throughout the semester," said Richardson, a senior majoring in rhetoric and leadership.

From campus beautification projects at elementary schools to interacting with residents of a nursing home, participants of the 22nd annual Step Forward Day, an international day of service put on by Pepperdine students and staff, arrived early Saturday morning to volunteer at organizations in their local communities.

More than 2,000 students, alumni and staff members lent a helping hand in cities mostly in the Los Angeles and Ventura counties, with some alumni participating from as far as Tokyo, Japan. In Santa Monica, 195 volunteers served at seven sites, including Seaport Care Center, Roosevelt Elementary and the Salvation Army.

"Everybody just goes and helps out in the community wherever they can, and try to make a difference with a lot of people in a short amount of time," said Dr. Sarah Watt, a communication professor and director of forensics at Pepperdine University.

Richardson, who first got involved in the project her freshman year, led about 60 of

County opens vet court

Military veterans who risk their lives and make it back home usually do not return unscathed. Some are fortunate to return with no physical scars, but many come back with emotional and mental health problems. When left untreated, the problems can affect the veteran, the veteran's family members and society as a whole.

In recognition of these facts, Los Angeles County will launch Veterans Court today in Department 42 of the Foltz Criminal Justice Center. The Veterans Court will allow veterans who suffer from mental health problems stemming from U.S. military service to receive treatment as an alternative to incarceration for nonviolent felonies.

It is a joint venture among the Los Angeles Superior Court, District Attorney's Office, Public Defender's Office, Alternate Public Defender's Office and the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA). Superior Court Judge Michael Tynan will supervise. The program is modeled after the Orange County Veterans Court program and other similar programs around the country, and is the first of its kind in Los Angeles County.

Participation in this voluntary pilot program will be offered to veterans who have served in the U.S. military and suffer from mental illness, post-traumatic stress disorder, traumatic brain injury, military sexual trauma, and/or substance abuse. Veterans Court will provide eligible defendants the opportunity to participate in mental health and substance abuse treatment programs specifically designed for veterans.

To be admitted into Veterans Court, the defendant must meet program guidelines, and all parties must agree to refer the veteran for further evaluation. The VA will perform an assessment and make a recommendation to a specific treatment program that best fits the needs of the veteran, and gives the veteran the best chance to successfully address the issues contributing to involvement in the criminal justice system.

There must be a conviction in the case before Judge Tynan makes the final sentencing decision. The participating veteran will then be ordered to complete the recommended treatment plan, and comply with any other terms and conditions of probation imposed by the court.

Judge Tynan will supervise and monitor the veteran's progress in the program, and compliance with all court orders.

Green school site needs toxic soil cleanup

CHRISTINA HOAG
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES Students at a new green themed school named for noted conservationists Rachel Carson and Al Gore don't have to go far for a lesson in environmental contamination: Their $75 million campus was laden with toxic soil.

Los Angeles Unified district officials have spent $4 million to clean up the site of the new Carson-Gore Academy of Environmental Studies, which is set to open Monday.

The three-acre site, located in a low-income neighborhood west of downtown LA, was contaminated with carcinogenic solvents that leaked from 17 underground storage tanks discovered during construction. The land had been previously used by light industrial businesses.

The school district said the school has been cleared by state toxic control authorities and is ready to receive its 675 elementary students, whose curriculum will be sprinkled with environmental themes.

But a coalition of environmental groups argues the district is not going far enough to prevent possible soil vapor intrusion into classrooms from an outside source of contamination. The site is bordered by a gas station and an oil well.

Testing at the site indicated that contamination was coming from a source other than the storage tanks onsite, said Jane Williams, executive director of California Communities Against Toxics, who has been monitoring the issue. That pollution could affect the groundwater, which could send vapors into the building.

"The site is not completely cleaned up,"

'Resident Evil' makes a slaying at the box office

JAKE COYLE
AP Entertainment Writer

On a weekend that Hollywood was largely content to cede to football and late-summer barbecues, Sony-Screen Gems' "Resident Evil: Afterlife" led the box office.

The 3-D horror film earned $27.7 million over the weekend according to studio estimates Sunday, a total that exceeded expectations. It's the fourth "Resident Evil" film, all of which have starred Milla Jovovich. This installment opened better than the three previous movies.

"Resident Evil" was the only film in new release on the historically slow moviegoing weekend following Labor Day. With an estimated box-office total of $82 million, it was the lowest grossing weekend of the year.

Screen Gems' "Takers," in its third week of release, came in second with $6.1 million. Last weekend's top film, the George Clooney thriller "The American," took in $5.9 million for Focus Features.

With little competition, "Resident Evil"

Editor:

The death toll continues to rise at SeaWorld after a 12-year-old orca named Sumar died at the theme park's San Diego location. Sumar died far short of the expected 50- to 60-year lifespan of orcas who roam the vast oceans, their rightful homes.

Orcas are intelligent marine mammals who think and plan and work cooperatively. They share complex extended family relationships and swim for up to 100 miles every day. At SeaWorld, their worlds have been reduced to tiny, barren concrete tanks where they perform tricks for food and splash shrieking crowds.

These animals will continue to live and die in misery as long as the public buys a ticket. The next time your family is considering a trip to SeaWorld, please ask yourself if it's right to expect the lifelong confinement of intelligent and aware animals for a few hours of diversion. Please say no.

I was a cancer nurse at Saint John's Hospital for 14 years until forced to retire in September. Getting hurt on the job helping lift a 400-pound patient shouldn't have cost me my job, health insurance and savings. I smelled sewage for five years and contacted everyone including OSHA. I also contacted the California Nurses Association and was suspended without pay for insubordination and had security called on me. I was reinstated due to the support of my fellow nurses. It is good to hear some truths about Saint John's! The nurses struggle each day to provide excellent care, often times in spite of the administration. Apparently the poor and disadvantaged in the mission statement are the patients and nurses.

WHAT A MESS: For a 'World-Class City,' Santa Monica needs to step up trash collection.

Lets talk trash

THOSE OF US AMONG THE TEEMING masses who live in multi-family residential neighborhoods are generally satisfied with city services. But there's room for improvement.

One of those services where improvement is needed is trash and recyclables disposal. In Court 13, south of Montana Avenue, trash is picked up from the large, black, circular containers twice a week — less often from the big, blue recycling bins.

When the city truck comes by, its mechanical arm picks up and dumps bin contents into the truck. The bins are returned to the alley. The truck moves on leaving overflow materials next to the bins along with any litter that fell out of the truck during the emptying operation.

The whole system that's deployed discourages the single truck operator from getting out of his/her cab and picking up the loose paper and trash — that's up to us residents. I'm not criticizing the drivers who do a good job and work hard for their pay — rather a system that only does half the job and often leaves a mess for residents to deal with.

I guess we're lucky in my neighborhood. My buddy on 21st Street near Virginia Avenue says that many times his trash isn't picked up at all necessitating frequent calls to Solid Waste Management for service and a second truck being dispatched to take care of what the first truck missed.

Most of my neighbors don't crush or cut up large cardboard cartons either — preferring to casually toss them into blue bins that quickly overflow. Persons who come later with trash and recyclables leave it on the ground because they're too lazy to walk a few hundred feet to the next bin.

Because of the less frequent pick-up, many recycling bins literally brim over. You'd think that because every other hour, 24/7, there's someone (or sometimes entire families) picking through the bins and removing cans, aluminum, plastic and glass, there'd be nothing remaining. But, there's enough kitchen garbage, tree cuttings and less valuable papers and cardboard boxes left behind to cause a mess.

The illegal recyclers load their plunder into pick-up trucks, shopping carts or campers and haul them to wholesale "gypsy" operations on Rose Avenue in Venice. This means City Hall loses the direct income from recycling valuable materials and doesn't even get the sustainability credits, either.

Some neighbors apparently think the blue and black bins (and green bins in some places) are just fashion statements and don't realize (or care) that the blue bins are for recyclables and the black bins are for garbage, so they use whatever bin is closest to them.

Others leave stale bread, pastry and other food on or next to the bins for the homeless. But, all this does is attract rats and vermin. Then there's the dog owners who leave plastic bags filled with excrement on trash and recycling container lids, on lawns, sidewalks and in street gutters. This is just boorish and disgusting.

We are, in the words of Councilman Richard Bloom, "A world-class city." Therefore, we should have world-class solid waste removal. Although we pay ever-increasing fees for essential services, we seem to get less and less for our money, And that my friends, is a real load of garbage.

Residents return home after pipeline blowout

GARANCE BURKE
TREVOR HUNNICUTT
Associated Press Writers

SAN BRUNO Residents returned Sunday to the ruined hillsides of their suburban San Francisco neighborhood, three days after a natural gas pipeline exploded into a deadly fireball.

A nearby segment of the line was due to be replaced, the utility responsible said, because it ran through a heavily urbanized area and the risk of failure was "unacceptably high." That 30-inch diameter pipe about two and a half miles north was installed in 1948, and was slated to be swapped for new 24-inch pipe.

California regulators ordered the utility, Pacific Gas and Electric, to survey all its natural gas lines in the state in hopes of heading off another disaster.

Investigators still don't know what caused Thursday night's blast, and even as dozens of people returned to their scorched homes — accompanied by gas workers to help restore pilot lights and make sure it is safe to turn power back on — officials tried to confirm just how many people died.

The remains of at least four people have been found, and authorities have said five people are missing and at least 60 injured, some critically.

San Mateo County Coroner Robert Foucrault said they're still trying to confirm whether some of the remains they found are human and identify victims.

Streets were crowded Sunday with PG&E cars and trucks, and representatives were handing out gift certificates for grocery stores. Nearly 50 homes were destroyed and seven severely damaged in the blast, while dozens of other homes suffered less severe damage in the fire that sped across 15 acres.

Pat and Roger Haro and their dog, Rosie, have been living in a hotel room since Thursday after fleeing their home with the clothes they were wearing, dog food, water and an iPad.

When they returned, their home was marked with a green tag — indicating less damage than others with yellow or red tags — and their electricity was still off.

"Once I saw the house was still there then I felt a whole lot better," Pat Haro said. "I think we'll be a tighter community."

A few blocks away, houses have collapsed into black and white debris on ground, with a smell like charcoal in the air. All that remain standing is a row of brick chimneys, while across the street, some homes are undamaged.

Meanwhile, local and federal officials are probing the cause of the explosion that blew a segment of pipe 28 feet long onto the street some 100 feet away, creating a crater 167 feet long and 26 feet wide.

PG&E submitted paperwork to regulators for ongoing gas rate proceedings that said a nearby section of the same gas line a few miles away was within "the top 100 highest risk line sections" in the utility's service territory, the documents show.

The company also considered the portion that ruptured to be a "high consequence area" requiring more stringent inspections called integrity assessments, federal Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration spokeswoman Julia Valentine said.

Nationwide, only about 7 percent of gas lines have that classification, she said.

PG&E spokesman Andrew Souvall said the company had planned to replace the piece of the gas line mentioned in the documents as a part of its broader proposal to upgrade infrastructure that the commission began considering last year.

Souvall said Sunday that no one complained to the utility's call centers of smelling gas in the San Bruno neighborhood in the week leading up to the blast.

He said the ruptured section was checked for leaks in March. He didn't immediately provide details about what was found.

The segment farther north was checked for leaks on Friday and none were found, Souvall added.

"We take action on a daily basis to repair our equipment as needed," he said. "PG&E takes a proactive approach toward the maintenance of our gas lines and we're constantly monitoring our system."

In ordering the company to conduct the leak survey on its natural gas lines, the state's Public Utilities Commission said Sunday that PG&E must give priority to higher pressure pipelines, as well as to lines in areas of high population density.

The order comes after Lt. Gov. Abel Maldonado, the state's acting governor, asked the commission to order the utility company to conduct an integrity assessment of its natural gas pipeline system.

The commission also plans to appoint an independent expert panel to help with their investigation.

An inspection of the severed pipe chunk in San Bruno revealed that it was made of several smaller sections that had been welded together and that a seam ran its length, but a federal safety official said that did not necessarily indicate the pipe had been repaired.

Asked whether a welded pipe was more susceptible to leaks or corrosion, National Transportation Safety Board vice chairman Christopher Hart said: "Maybe, and maybe not."

The Q Line

Tough choices

With a few notable challengers in this year's City Council race, we got to thinking about the possibility of, say Ted Winterer or Susan Hartley, seriously challenging the likes of Bob Holbrook and Pam O'Connor for seats on the dais.

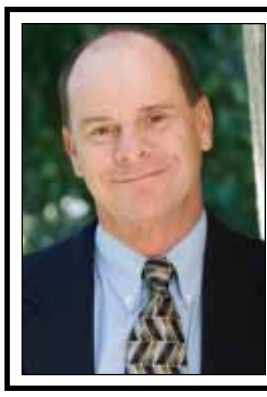

So, this week's Q-Line question asks:
In November's election, are you more inclined to vote for an incumbent or a newcomer?

Call (310) 285-8106 before Friday at 5 p.m. and we'll print your answers in the weekend edition of the Daily Press.

LOSING GRIP: Around the world, communities that can't afford to keep fresh water supplies clean, safe and accessible have increasingly turned over management to private companies. In many cases, the experiments have gone badly and local citizens have forced their governments to take back control. Pictured: A signpost ('Water for the People') created in Bolivia at the 10th anniversary of the Cochabamba water conflicts there, during which Bechtel Corporation was given control of water management and later forced out.

New world water

Dear EarthTalk

Is it true that some countries have turned over public water supplies to private companies, effectively denying local communities much-needed access?

J. Johnson
Lancaster, PA

WATER IS SUCH AN IMPORTANT PART OF life that it has long been regarded as a public good worth entrusting only to public entities. But given the mixed track record of municipal, regional and national governments to properly manage water resources, outsourcing to private companies is becoming more common. But critics of such privatization point out that the end result for consumers is not always so positive.

Perhaps the best known example transpired in Bolivia in the 1990s, when water systems in poor regions were put up for sale to private investors at the urging of development agencies intent on steering poor countries away from state control of industries and toward free market systems. Bolivia hired U.S.-based Bechtel Corporation to take over and manage water in the Cochabamba region there. Bechtel made good on its pledge to provide water to many previously underserved Cochabamba areas, but it also raised prices significantly. "Many were unable to pay such high rates, and even though water was now available to them, they couldn't access it because they couldn't afford it," reports the non-profit World Savvy.

In 2000 riots erupted in Cochabamba as hundreds of residents filled the streets, angry that a private, foreign entity was preventing them from accessing water. "The violence shook the confidence of the local government and international investors," says World Savvy. "Bechtel was forced out, resulting in not only chaos in water delivery in the area, but also in a serious blow to foreign investment in the country." Similar conflicts have played out in other parts of Bolivia as well as in Ghana, Uruguay and the United Kingdom.

In the U.S., the federal government ensured the protection of waterways and drinking water in the 1970s through passage of the Clean Water Act and Safe Drinking Water Act, which among other benefits increased funding for community water systems to help cities and towns maintain high standards and inexpensive access to fresh water. "However, since the 1980s, the federal government has been cutting back funding to communities for water infrastructure, with assistance falling to historic lows under the Bush administration," reports the non-profit Food & Water Watch. Without federal funding, communities that can't afford to keep fresh water supplies clean and safe are increasingly turning to private companies.

But at what cost? Food & Water Watch cites dozens of examples from across the country where water privatization has gone woefully bad: "[H]igh rates and bad service plague communities who transfer control of their water service to the hands of corporations." Common complaints include skyrocketing rates, sewage flooded basements, broken pipes, bad water quality, and cost overruns. "The water barons prioritize stockholder returns over public wellbeing and leave municipalities to clean up the mess."

Not everyone thinks water privatization is all bad, especially when governments can't efficiently manage the sourcing, sanitizing and distribution of life's most vital resource. "There is evidence that privatization may work when the cost of water is subsidized for poorer populations," reports World Savvy. Regardless, the debate will rage on as more and more governments turn to water privatization as stress over accessing water becomes more commonplace in a quickly warming and increasingly drought-stricken world.

STRONG SEASON OPENER: Samohi running back Kori Garcia celebrates after running for a touchdown against Leuzinger on Friday night. The Vikings would go on to win the game, 42-6.

Vikings up, 7-0, early in the first quarter.

After forcing Leuzinger to punt away the next possession, Comas fielded the ball at his own 30 yard-line and scampered 70 yards for the score, giving Samohi a 14-0 edge.

Leuzinger would score on a long passing play to make it 14-6 with nearly two minutes to play in the first quarter, but Samohi's Comas would again prove too much for the Olympians. Miller connected with the senior wide receiver for a 14-yard scoring pass putting the Vikings up 21-6 with five minutes to go in the half.

"This was his coming out party," Samohi Head Coach Travis Clark said of Comas. "We knew he had this kind of talent."

Comas was expected to be a playmaker on last season's team, but a groin injury sidelined him for most of the year. Clark said that he saw improvement in the speedy wideout and expected him to contribute this season. Who would have known this is how he would show that potential.

Careful to spread the love, Comas gave credit to his blockers for creating lanes on his two long punt returns, the second of which came early in the fourth quarter to put Samohi ahead, 35-6.

While Comas made all the flashy plays, it was running back/defensive back Brandon Taylor who quietly helped Samohi to victory. He intercepted a pass from Leuzinger's Laron Barnes deep in his own territory during the third quarter to end what looked like a promising Olympian scoring drive. He would cap the subsequent drive with a 28-yard scoring run that essentially put the game out of reach at 28-6.

"Our line balled out today," Taylor said. "We knew what we wanted and went out and took it."

The Vikings' next game is Thursday at Palisades High School.

her fellow students at the Salvation Army's center and senior housing complex. The group assisted with deep cleaning the building's exteriors, organizing cabinets, washing cars and other miscellaneous cleaning tasks.

"Step Forward Day is pretty much Pepperdine students and staff living out the motto, 'freely receive, freely give,'" Richardson said. "We're just here to do whatever they need."

The volunteers at the Salvation Army in Santa Monica alone contributed about 200 hours, said Capt. Mario Ruiz, commanding officer at Salvation Army.

"Here we are only six people, so all of these tasks we put off — because there's no time to do it — when [volunteers] come here, it's incredible. There's a big, big difference," Ruiz said. "What they're doing … it's not only helping us, but it's also helping them to see and give back in some way."

Across town at Roosevelt Elementary School, students distributed school supplies, pulled weeds and helped teachers prepare for the upcoming school year.

"A parent volunteer … thought that it was angels coming down to save her. She was just overwhelmed by how much paper needed to be distributed," Assistant Principal Rebecca Chu said.

Planning for the event started in June, when coordinators reached out to local community organizations in need of volunteers.

Meredith Miller, assistant director of the Pepperdine Volunteer Center, credits the hard work of the students involved.

"Watching our students come together, it's exciting. It's kind of an honor to be around them and support them when they create something so big for a community," said Miller.

Step Forward Day began in 1988, when two students found a need for volunteers in their community. From one volunteering event in Malibu, the day has grown to encompass 83 organizations locally and internationally.

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

Parking Structure No. 2 Seismic Retrofit

Starting on Thursday, Aug. 5, the sidewalk in front of Parking Structure No. 2 will be closed to pedestrian traffic. There will still be access to businesses located to the north and south of the parking structure, but pedestrians will be directed to use the sidewalk on the west side of the street to get between Wilshire Boulevard and Arizona Avenue. The parking structure will remain open throughout construction, however the work requires temporary closure of up to 50 parking spaces per day. Also, traffic leaving Parking Structure No. 2 will not be able to exit onto Second Street. Instead, all exiting traffic will be re-routed through the alley behind the structure. Please be sure to obey all posted directional and no parking signs throughout the construction project. Estimated project completion is December, 2010.

For more information on projects, please visit the Know Before You Go Web site at www.knowB4ugo.smgov.net.

was able to capitalize on the post-Labor Day weekend, when two of the previous entries to the franchise were also released.

"It had all of what its core audience was looking for and more," said Rory Bruer, president of worldwide distribution for Sony.

Bruer credited the marketing of the film and the draw of its 3-D, which he said "was made to be that way." The film also got a boost from IMAX, where it was released on 141 digital screens and earned $2.6 million.

That the fourth "Resident Evil" performed so well suggests that a fifth is likely. Asked if he expects one, Bruer said he didn't know, as it's produced by Constantin Film. But he acknowledged: "It wouldn't surprise me."

Hollywood.com analyst Paul Dergarabedian said the weekend's low performance wasn't reflective of any industry malaise but merely a historical trend. The same weekend last year performed similarly, with Tyler Perry's "I Can Do Bad All By Myself" debuting with $23.4 million.

"This is never known as a high grossing weekend, but it can be the land of opportunity for a film like 'Resident Evil,'" said Dergarabedian. "That's turning lemons into lemonade if I've ever seen it."

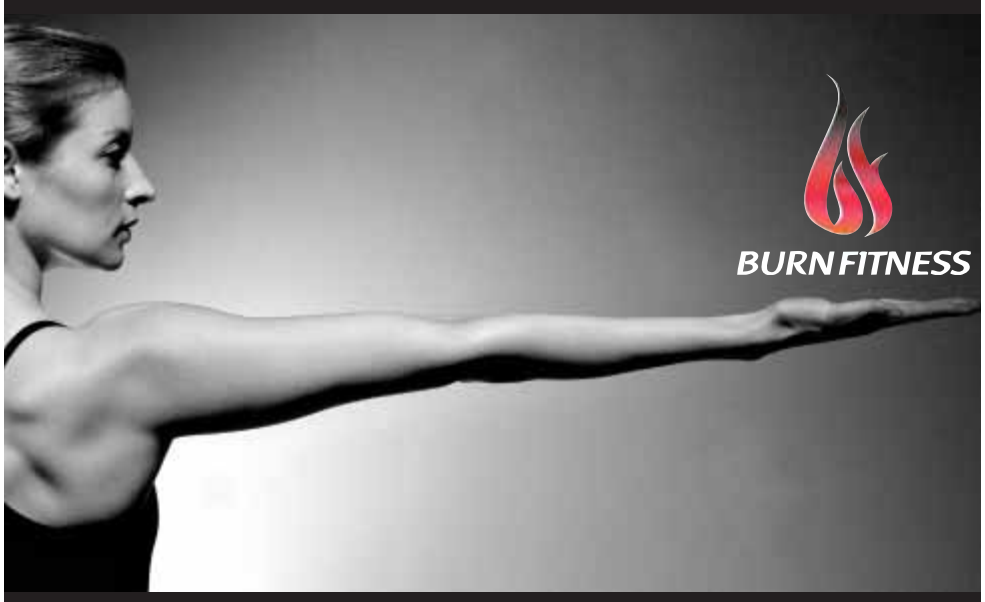

Next weekend begins the fall moviegoing season in earnest, with releases such as the potential Oscar-contender "The Town" from Ben Affleck, "Easy A," the Emma Stone-starring update of "The Scarlet Letter," and the limited release of "Never Let Me Go," another film being positioned for awards contention.

After a bumpy summer of lower attendance and a crop of disappointing movies, many are glad to see the season come to a close.

"Thank God it's over," said Dergarabedian.

Estimated ticket sales for Friday through Sunday at U.S. and Canadian theaters, according to Hollywood.com. Final figures will be released Monday.

Williams said. "They should have surveyed the whole site, and they need to monitor the air in the school."

In a statement, the school district said the groundwater is being remediated and will be monitored according to state requirements. Toxic soil has been replaced with clean soil to a depth of 45 feet and a barrier has been installed along the property line with the gas station as part of the $4 million remediation plan.

The neighboring oil well has been assessed and does not pose a threat to the school. California has the strictest environmental regulations in the nation and the district is meeting them all, the statement said.

"There are NO significant health risks identified in the Environmental Impact Report," the statement said. "The Carson-Gore elementary school is safe and will open for students on September 13, 2010."

Despite that reassurance, parents are concerned, said community activist Deborah Bellholt, who has represented parents at meetings. "There's very little information that's given to parents," she said.

In an Aug. 31 e-mail to the school board and Superintendent Ramon Cortines, the coalition noted the irony of naming of a polluted school site for Carson and Gore.

"We feel that renaming this terribly contaminated school after two famous environmental advocates is an affront to the great work these individuals have done to protect the public's health from harm and greenwashing," wrote the California Safe Schools Coalition.

Gore's office declined to comment. The school is believed to be the first named for the former vice president, who was not notified about it, said Gore spokesman Matthew Feldman.

Gore has won numerous honors for his defense of the environment, including the Nobel Peace Prize and an Academy Award for a documentary based on his book "An Inconvenient Truth" in 2007.

The school's other namesake, Carson, who is credited with founding the environmental awareness movement, would have applauded the school, but would have been horrified at its pollution, said Linda Lear, a former environmental history professor considered the foremost expert on Carson's work.

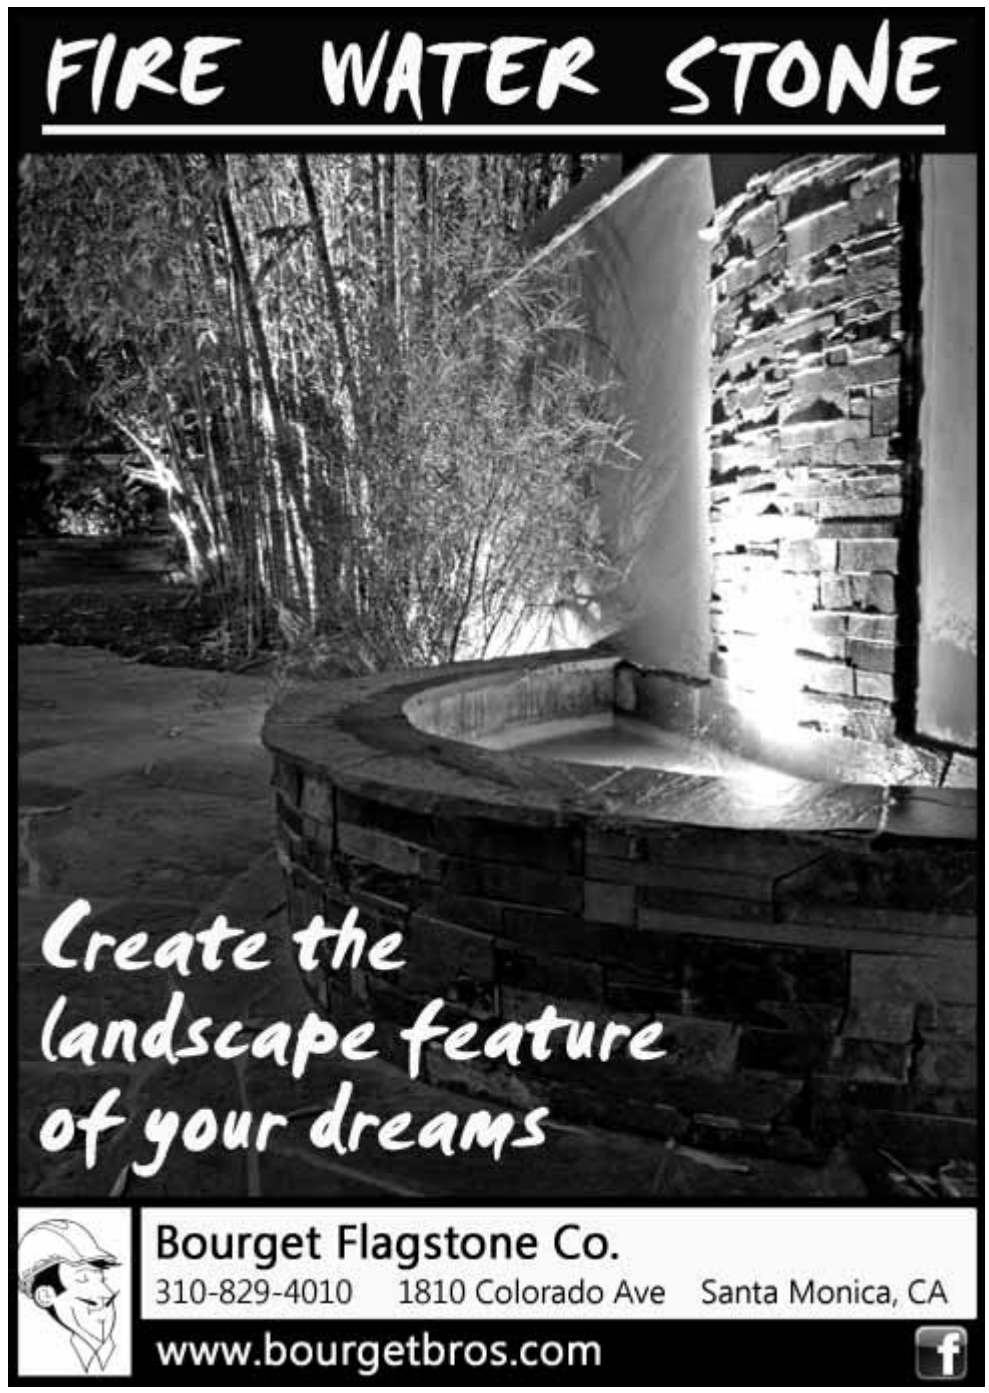

Students will receive "a wonderful lesson of restoration," Lear said.

Carson, who died in 1964, was the author of "Silent Spring," which sparked public awareness of the effect of pesticides on the environment and human health. A number of schools in the Maryland and Virginia area, where Carson mostly lived, have been named for her, Lear said.

Environmentalists said they will continue to monitor the school's environmental health.

"My hope is that they meet the standards of the fine work Rachel Carson and Al Gore have done and gone beyond," said Robina Suwol, executive director of California Safe Schools Coalition.

Swell Forecast

The Easter Island swell should back down to waist to chest max.

Long Range Synopsis

Late week should see some southerly swell build into the area from the French Poly system. Waist to chest at dawn, then chest+ late morning seems like a reasonable expectation at south facing breaks as this swell starts to fill into the area.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card®is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Heal the Bay is a non-profit environmental organization dedicated to making Santa Monica Bay and Southern California coastal waters safe and healthy for people and marine life.

NFL

Carroll wins return to pros

TIM BOOTH
AP Sports Writer

SEATTLE Pete Carroll thoroughly enjoyed his return to the NFL, and so did his Seattle Seahawks.

Matt Hasselbeck threw for two touchdowns and ran for another as the Seahawks gave their new coach a 31-6 victory over the San Francisco 49ers on Sunday.

Coaching his first NFL game in 11 years, Carroll stalked the sideline, marching up and down almost constantly in motion. The only times he stood still was giving congratulations to his players as they came off the field.

And there was plenty to give.

The Seahawks put their offense on Hasselbeck's arm and the veteran quarterback delivered. After throwing an interception on Seattle's first play and running just seven plays for 11 yards in the first 1? quarters, Hasselbeck completed 10 of his next 11 throws.

He finished 18 of 23 for 170 yards and touchdowns of 13 yards to Deon Butler and 3 yards to Deion Branch. He also bootlegged and sprinted for a 1-yard TD run in the second quarter that gave Seattle a 7-6 lead.

Jordan Babineaux and Marcus Trufant each intercepted San Francisco quarterback Alex Smith. Trufant returned his interception 32 yards for a touchdown early in the second half to give the Seahawks a 21-6 lead.

Smith started 9 of 10 passing, then missed 12 of his next 21 throws. The questions of how in sync San Francisco's offense would be considering both Pro Bowl tight end Vernon Davis and second-year receiver Michael Crabtree missed the entire unbeaten preseason, were raised again.

Crabtree looked at Smith after the pair failed to connect on two throws in the third quarter, the second returned by Trufant for the first regular season touchdown of his career.

Smith finished 26 of 45 for 225 yards. Davis had eight catches for 73 yards a day after signing a five-year extension with San Francisco.

The 49ers were the trendy pick to win the NFC West, but have trouble winning on the road. Last year, they lost six straight road games — five in a row by a combined 19 points — before winning at St. Louis. That stretch included a 20-17 loss at Seattle in early December in which the Niners gave the game away late

Hang out with favorite people, Libra

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Respond to an inquiry only once you determine that this person is ready to hear the response. A key person in your life could be overly serious and touchy. You will have an opportunity to clear the air. Tonight: Think in terms of the big picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Deal directly with someone who can affect much of what goes on in your life. Your fatigue level is subject to change. You might want to rethink a personal matter. Be careful not to push someone into a corner. Tonight: A talk establishes a stronger mutual base.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Defer to others, understanding what is going on behind the scenes. Your creativity will soar once you clear out a difficult problem. A boss or an authority figure is challenging. Tonight: Let the good times begin.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Stick to the basics until you get through a certain amount of errands and must-dos. A communication could trigger a long-overdue conversation. The unexpected adds insight and dimension to a situation. Tonight: Opt for something easy, but squeeze in some exercise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Forthcoming news might be more exciting than you thought. There is a lot of excitement in clearing out a matter that could involve friends and/or money. You will gain through your innate abilities. Tonight: Let the weekend spirit continue.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★ You are coming from a secure spot where you discover the difference between friends and family. The decisions you have made might not have been as grounded as you think. You'll have an opportunity to change directions. Tonight: Mosey on home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ Keep the conversation active, and you'll discover a whole new perspective. Your innate energy and liveliness communicate the essence of what is going on. Keep sharing, and you might be surprised by the nugget that drops on you. Tonight: Hanging out with favorite people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Keep talking and sharing. You are able to make all the difference. Honor who you are, and move a project forward. Others discover that you had a firmer grasp on a situation than they did. Tonight: Don't you want to treat yourself or a friend?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Clearly, you have a lot going for you. Investigate a situation with a newfound openness and direction. Investigate what someone presents. This information might add confusion to a work-related matter. Tonight: The world is your oyster.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★ Know when to lie back and not push. Your instincts are right-on. Investigate a personal matter more thoroughly before making a decision. Be clear about your choices and direction. You need to listen more. Tonight: Take some much-needed timeouts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Open doors rather than slam them shut. Your ability to understand what is happening can change your direction. A friendship grows because of a discussion. The comfort level remains special and unique. Tonight: Managing to have fun only in the middle of the night.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ A boss has a lot of energy. Your ability to move in a new direction and clear out a problem marks your decisions. If you feel you cannot support another person's decisions, you might need to make a move. Tonight: The only answer is yes.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS
The stars show the kind of day you'll have:
★★★★★Dynamic ★★ So-So
★★★★ Positive ★ Difficult

Happy birthday

This year, you will break precedent and open up to new possibilities. Certain situations need your focus and directness. At the same time, you remain anchored, allowing for an even smoother moment. You will discover that good will heads in your direction. At the same time, your responsibilities increase, perhaps adding additional pressure. If you are single, you suddenly have quite the pick of suitors. You can afford to take your time deciding who is right for you.

Speed Bump

Procrastination is a problem when it comes to doing my disaster plan. As a business owner I have a lot to do. It's not like a disaster is going to happen tomorrow. Besides, we have that new business pitch. I've been waiting for this to happen for a while now. I'll get the disaster plan finished eventually. Nothing to worry about, it'll happen.

Whether natural or man-made, at least one in four businesses affected by a disaster never reopen. Though emergencies are unpredictable, when you have a plan in place you can adapt, recover and stay in control.

It's never too late to protect your business until it is.

Make a plan.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Professional Training Required: The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration announced in August that it had contract work for up to 2,100 language specialists to transcribe wiretaps, with immediate needs in the Atlanta field office for 144 Spanish experts, along with 12 for Vietnamese, and nine each for Korean, Farsi and "Ebonics." Ebonics is recognized by some linguists as the "nonstandard" form of English spoken by African-Americans. (In one example cited by the Associated Press, offered by Stanford professor John Rickford, "th" endings are pronounced as "f," e.g., "both" as "boaf.")

■ Texas State Rep. Joe Driver, an 18-year House veteran whose website notes his opposition to "big spending habits of liberals in government," was revealed in August to have been routinely double-billing the government for travel expenses and to have been genuinely surprised to learn that voters and colleagues might find that improper. Wrote the Associated Press: "Driver insists he thought the double-billing was perfectly appropriate -- until talking about it with the AP," at which point he appeared to change his mind. "Well, it doesn't sound (appropriate) now (if) you bring it up that way," he admitted. "(To learn that) pretty well screws my week." For at least five years, Driver had been collecting from the government for expenses already reimbursed by his re-election campaign.
