2018 SMC Men's Soccer preview & early season recap

BLAKE ATWELL
SMC Corsair / Daily Press reporter

After a 14-4-5 season in 2017, the Santa Monica College Men's Soccer team is off to an impressive 5-1 start in 2018.

Coach of seven years Tim Pierce said they have a good group and they're used to winning some games from last year. Sophomore captains Cesar Oliva, Ruben Soria and Narciso Cervantes bring valuable experience and an infusion of young talent. With Coach Pierce at the helm, SMC has high expectations for the rest of the season.

Cervantes, a redshirt sophomore who earned team MVP two seasons ago is one of the team's most dominant midfielders despite missing the 2017 season due to a concussion. Redshirt freshman Aydin Kose (goalkeeper) and Eto Atiabet (forward) have starred in each of the first five games ending in shutout victories over Bakersfield, El Camino, Palomar, MiraCosta, and a 5-1 triumph against Antelope Valley.

Kose hasn't allowed a single goal yet this season, and Atiabet is first on the team with six scores. Originally from Sakarya, Turkey, Kose has started all of SMC's first five games and compiled 13 saves over 395 minutes. He was recommended to Pierce by a former Corsair soccer player, also from Turkey.

Atiabet has come a long way from this time one year ago, when he was trying to earn a spot on the soccer team via physical education classes at SMC. Pierce didn't see a strong enough focus in Atiabet as a student athlete at first. The local Hamilton High School alum refocused and was turning heads come last spring.

"He's an incredible athlete – we

CONCERT: A free concert will be held Downtown on Sunday to support autism awareness.

ANGEL CARRERAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

An afternoon of inclusion and awareness will rock the Third Street Promenade this Sunday as Santa Monica hosts the third annual Autism Rocks concert.

The free concert is a nonprofit celebration of sorts, a showcase of talented performers on the autism spectrum as well as those who are there in support.

Alex Lin, the 19-year-old co-founder and host for this year's Autism Rocks concert, says the event is meant to destigmatize any negative connotations or stereotypes people may have about autism.

"We want people to know that people with autism are just like anyone else and talented, too," Lin says. "We want to show that side of autism to people. We don't want people to feel pity. I want them to feel after this, 'These people are awesome and unique.'"

Lin was inspired to establish the event due to the stigma he himself has faced growing up with Asperger's.

"It's something people can't run away from," he says about developmental disorders. "[People with autism or Asperger's] can't change who they are. I know what it feels like to go through that every day."

New this year aside from the change of location (the event has previously been held at solely ay Universal Citywalk) will be a wide-range of performers.

Singer/songwriter Dylan Dunlap headlines this year's concert with musicians Logan Sheppard and his band Logan's Heroes, Elvis Suissa (frontman for Three Bad Jacks), and Miracle Project Live featuring Soulshocka adding their talents to the event.

Lin says he and the Autism Rocks producing team chose the Promenade for the event's location this year due to the shopping center's many intangibles.

"I feel like the Promenade is a special place. A nice, lively, outdoor place for younger people to check out. A lot of tourists, too, so a lot of people can come to see what we're doing."

His greatest hope, he says, is for the event to inspire empathy.

"I want to make [people with Autism's] lives better with this concert. It's physical proof that someone with autism can make it, do whatever they want to do. They're as valuable as anyone else."

Autism Rocks takes place Sunday, September 16, 3 p.m. – 5 p.m. at the 3rd St Promenade.

For more information or to donate, please visit: autismrocksla.com

All donations will go towards production costs of the event with all surplus funds going towards autism-related charities.

2018 SMC Women's Soccer preview & early season recap

ANA DURAES PEIXOTO
SMC Corsair / Daily Press Staff writer

Returning as Western State Conference champions for the first time in history with an impressive 15 wins, three losses and two ties, the SMC Women's soccer team's goal is to push to even higher levels and uphold the program's high personal, academic, and competitive standards.

With the regular 2018 season underway, the Corsairs have managed to defeat their first four opponents: Oxnard College, Long Beach City College, El Camino College and MiraCosta College with a successful average of 5.25 goals per game.

Head Coach Aaron Benditson said the team was ready to take on their biggest challenge so far with Santa Barbara City College (SBCC).

"If we want to obtain what Santa Barbara has obtained, getting into a state championship, making deep runs into the playoffs, we are gonna run into these types of teams," he said. "How do we react against them, how can we shape up against them? I just want us to be as confident and ready as we can be for the opportunity to play against them."

Despite their preparation, SMC lost to the state runner-ups, SBCC, who won 2-1. The SBCC Vaqueros finished their past season undefeated and presented a formidable challenge to the Corsairs.

"It's about progressing everyday. I always tell the girls we are gonna test ourselves against the best in the state because that will give us a sense of really where we are at," Benditson said.

The Corsairs' current top scor-

Santa Monica College to Break Ground Sept. 21 For Brand-New Malibu Campus

Santa Monica College (SMC)—in collaboration with the office of Los Angeles County Supervisor Sheila Kuehl—will break ground on a brand-new SMC Malibu Campus and Los Angeles County Sheriff's Substation, providing a permanent location for offering college classes and for housing Los Angeles County Sheriff personnel. The groundbreaking ceremony will take place on Friday, Sept. 21 from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on the site of the new campus at 23525 Civic Center Way in Malibu.

SMC Superintendent/President Dr. Kathryn E. Jeffery; SMC Board of Trustees Chair Barry Snell; Los Angeles County District 3 Supervisor Sheila Kuehl; Los Angeles County Sheriff Jim McDonnell; County of Los Angeles CEO Sachi A. Hamai; and City of Malibu Mayor Rick Mullen are among those expected to speak at the event.

The three-acre campus, SMC's first in Malibu, will include a two-story educational building with dedicated labs for science and art; a multipurpose physical activity space; a 100-seat lecture hall with raked seating; a computer lab and two general education classrooms. Designed by QDG Architecture with numerous sustainability features and fulfilling the city's "dark skies" standards, the campus will also provide space for an interpretive center to support Malibu's unique culture and history.

A one-story wing of the structure will house the Los Angeles County Sheriff's substation, with the multi-purpose room doubling as an Emergency Operations Center. The campus is expected to open in 2022—with an estimated total cost of $50 million—which includes costs for construction, contributions to the City of Malibu for clean water facility improvements, and full prepayment of rent to the County.

"SMC's Malibu Campus builds on a legacy of valuable educational services that the college has offered to the Malibu community in the past, ranging from art to general education and noncredit offerings," said Dr. Kathryn E. Jeffery, SMC Superintendent/President. "We've envisioned how that legacy might be further enhanced so that Malibu community members have the best possible learning experience right in their own backyard. Special thanks to the voters who approved the 2004 bond Measure S and the 2016 Measure V to make this campus a reality!"

Dr. Jeffery added, "It took teamwork to bring the Malibu Campus from vision to actuality. Multiple agencies—including the County of Los Angeles, the City of Malibu, and Santa Monica College—collaborated extensively to find creative solutions to fulfilling community needs within an overall vision of education, public safety, and clean water improvements for Malibu."

An important partnership has been the Malibu Public Facilities Authority, formed on October 12, 2004, through a Joint Powers Authority agreement between the City of Malibu and Santa Monica College to pursue planning for clean water facilities and an educational campus in the city and the acquisition of property. The Authority includes two City of Malibu councilmembers and two members of the SMC Board of Trustees. A vital second partnership was forged In April 2011, when the County of Los Angeles and SMC entered into a Memorandum of Understanding that would provide a site for the new campus and would include a community Sheriff's substation to be built as part of the project. This will be the first time since the early 1990s that Malibu has had a police substation within city limits.

Along with the police substation, an existing antiquated emergency communications tower will be updated, and the multipurpose community room will double as an emergency operations center, if and when needed.

"The new SMC campus in Malibu will be a great addition to the educational and cultural opportunities in the community," said Supervisor Kuehl. "This revitalization provides numerous opportunities for SMC and the County of Los Angeles Public Library to collaborate and also enhances public safety with an on-site Sheriff's substation, as well as improved emergency communications systems and emergency services. It's a terrific example of the opportunities for collaboration between the County and one of our County cities that will provide benefits to our residents for years to come."

As part of its responsibilities towards the Authority's goal of providing clean water facilities for the Malibu Civic Center, SMC contributed $2.5 million for the acquisition of Legacy Park, which serves as a storage site for storm water, and an additional $2.5 million towards facilities for the treatment of wastewater. The 15-acre Legacy Park—which opened in October 2010 immediately to the south of the campus site—is widely considered one of the most innovative urban runoff and storm water projects in California, and has won numerous awards. The wastewater treatment facility and its complex system of piping, treatment and discharge through injection wells has just opened and is now successfully in operation.

"Malibu is excited about the valuable benefits that the new SMC campus will bring to our community," said Malibu Mayor Rick Mullen. "Students here will have access to SMC's great curriculum close to home, and the Emergency Operations Center and Sheriff's Substation will be tremendous assets to our public safety and emergency preparedness and response capabilities. We look forward to a long and mutually beneficial relationship with SMC."

SMC's educational offerings in Malibu—which, along with the city of Santa Monica, lie within the single-college district's "boundaries"—extend as far back as the 1970s and early 1980s when the college offered a full program of about 70 general education classes. Over time, the difficulty of securing a permanent site for classes led to a reduction of SMC's Malibu offerings. In more recent years, SMC has offered a few classes at the Malibu Senior Center in City Hall as part of the college's noncredit Emeritus Program for older adults, in addition to a small program of evening credit classes at Webster Elementary School.

When unveiled, the new Malibu campus will offer classes that are likely to include what was offered before physical space became a constraint. Hence the building includes a classroom for art featuring wet sinks; a lecture hall that will have raked seating with capabilities for music and film and open floor spaces for dance and yoga. In addition, the general-purpose classrooms will host first-year and/or dual enrollment general education classes and some specialization classes in disciplines such as geology, life science, or ecology, to tie into the rich and varied coastal features nearby.

Those interested in attending the groundbreaking should RSVP to Shari Davis at (310) 434-8668.

Both Sides of the Serena Saga

THE U.S., AND SEEMINGLY MUCH OF THE planet, is so polarized that it appears to have crept into the world of professional tennis. I'm referring to the recent U.S. Open Women's Final that pitted 23-time Grand Slam champion Serena Williams, 37 on September 31 and considered the greatest female player in history, against Japan's Naomi Osaka, 20, the daughter of a Haitian-American father and Japanese mother, playing in her very first major final.

The match ended with such controversy on subjects ranging from sexism, racism, cheating and integrity that it's still reverberating over a week later. (It's even been covered by the Wall Street Journal, not normally known to follow the coming and goings of tennis.)

For those unfamiliar with the event, here it is in a nutshell. If Serena had won, she'd have tied the all-time record of Grand Slam titles with 24. By winning the $3.7 million prize money, Naomi exceeded her entire earnings to date. Suffice it to say, a lot was on the line.

After Osaka decidedly won the first set (6-2), the firestorm began. It occurred when veteran chair umpire Carlos Ramos gave Williams a warning for "coaching." I should note tennis may be the only sport that forbids coaching during a match, even from the stands via hand signals. And yet it goes on all the time and rarely, if ever, is penalized. But Ramos saw fit to do so and Serena threw a fit. (That said, Serena may have been justified.)

Infuriated, Serena walked over to Ramos and said she was insulted he was accusing her of cheating. "I don't cheat to win, I'd rather lose," she proclaimed as now the crowd was getting deeply into the controversy. Shortly thereafter, with her frustration boiling, Serena slammed her racket to the ground, thoroughly destroying it. Yikes!

Ramos immediately cited Serena for "racket abuse" and assessed a point deduction. The next conduct violation would come with a game penalty. (And, if there was another, Serena would be defaulted.) The crowd was fully engaged and Serena was fully enraged, meanwhile poor Naomi was understandably overwhelmed.

With the second set score 4-3 Osaka, Williams called Ramos a "thief." He proceeded to assess her a third code violation for "verbal abuse." The packed crowd seemed primarily sympathetic to Serena's plight. (Or maybe they just wanted to see a dramatic 3rd set.)

Osaka was due to serve at 4-3 providing a possible opportunity for Serena to break and even the set. But this time the violation resulted in a game penalty against Serena. (Ouch!) That put young Osaka up 5-3 and one game away from the championship.

Serena held her serve and, with the score 5-4, Naomi brilliantly served out the match and was the U.S. Open champ for 2018. However, the post-match trophy presentations were anything but normal.

First off, instead of receiving the typical honor for umpiring the match, Ramos was escorted off the court. The chorus of boos threatened to ruin the entire ceremony for Osaka, whose tears were streaming. That's when Serena asked the crowd to refrain and graciously put her arm around Naomi to comfort the young champion.

In the post-match press conference, an emotional and still angry Serena noted that male players had called umpires far worse than "thief" and never suffered a game penalty. She also made reference to a female player who was penalized in this Open whereas a man would never be. (The player discovered her shirt was on backwards, took it off, momentarily revealing a sports bra, and hurriedly put the shirt on correctly but was still given a violation.)

After the match, opinions came flooding in. Tennis legend and activist extraordinaire Billy Jean King fully supported Serena and encouraged her to keep fighting for women's rights. Beloved sportscaster Mary Carillo, commented, "On this one Serena blew it." (Though she still adamantly admires and loves Serena.)

Also somewhat critical of Serena was legendary tennis coach and analyst Brad Gilbert. On the other hand, Gilbert felt, given the the occasion, that Ramos should have told Williams "this will be your last warning."

Former Santa Monica resident and 22-time Grand Slam doubles winner Pam Shriver revealed that Serena's coach, Patrick Mouratoglou, was indeed coaching, wanting Williams to move to the net more. However, Shriver also noted that "Just about everybody does it." Many are now questioning why the rule even exists.

Reportedly worth $200 million, Serena was fined $17,000 for the three code violations. Meanwhile, with strong arguments on both sides, the controversy continues. Unfortunately, Fox TV owner Rupert Murdoch's News Mercury in Australia ran an undeniably racist cartoon looking right out of the Jim Crow era, mocking Serena. #Sad. Apparently, the tennis world is no different than the rest of the world. Stay tuned.

always knew that – but it was a matter of getting him refocused and having him commit himself to the group," Pierce said.

Since joining the team, Atiabet has done nothing but produce results. He leads the team with six goals, good for 13 points.

The team's first match, a home game against Bakersfield College, featured goals from freshman Jaylen Erhahon (10th minute) and sophomore Cyrille Njomo (40th minute). Kose saved all five shots-on-goal.

The Corsairs traveled to El Camino College for their first road test of the season and prevailed 2-0 for the second straight game. Sophomore Yoel Cohavy scored in the eighth minute and Atiabet followed with a goal in the 58th. SMC attempted nine shots-on-goal to El Camino's two. Each team was called for one offsides penalty. El Camino gained the edge in saves (7-2) but lost the corner kick battle, 10-2.

SMC kept the road trip going over the weekend with two games in San Diego. Another Corsair soccer match meant another shutout, as Kose saved four more goals in 80 total minutes of action to seal a 4-0 victory against Palomar. Cervantes kicked off scoring for SMC with a goal in the 28th minute, via a Juan Torres assist. Cohavy picked up two assists, one to Njomo in the 52nd minute and another to Atiabet in the 73rd. Atiabet wasted no time to score again, netting a goal moments after in the 75th minute.

MiraCosta College gave SMC their toughest test of the season thus far, but the Corsairs found a way to emerge victorious for the fourth game in a row. Atiabet scored in the 85th minute to give SMC a 1-0 win. MiraCosta gained in advantage in shots-on-goal (5-0), saves (7-2) and corner kicks (2-0), but couldn't translate any of it to goals.

In the 80th minute of the matchup with Antelope Valley, freshman goalie Kevin Negrete gave up SMC's first goal of the season. Kose held another shutout in 45 minutes of action, however, and Atiabet scored two goals to seal a 5-1 Corsair victory.

Despite the hot start, Pierce is focused on keeping the Corsairs grounded. "Just because you're not conceding goals doesn't mean you're playing perfect soccer," Pierce said. He added, "We need to constantly improve, get better and keep assessing ourselves."

The rest of SMC's 2018 schedule, after this week's matchups, include seven home games and eight road games. Western State Conference play kicks off in October for SMC, on the road against LA Mission on Oct. 11.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

ers are midfielders Antoinette Saldana and Filippa Struxsjo with seven and six goals respectively. The challenge for the team is to find a balance with a quick two-year rotational system after top players such as Daisy Serrano, Josseline Espinoza and goalie Emma Romero moved on with their academic careers.

"We have a lot of talented players, especially our sophomores" said Benditson. "Number six, Antoinette Saldana our center midfielder, she is one of our top players."

Twelve new freshmen join the ten sophomores, adding novelty and power combined with the strong leadership skills required at higher level.

"We have a great international player, Filippa Struxsjo (midfielder no. 17) from Sweden. I am also very excited about our new freshman Ceirra Little (forward no. 7), she is super explosive, a dynamic runner with and without the ball, she is very exciting to watch," said Benditson.

He also praised a recent addition to the team.

"And last but not least I would say a newcomer that has come in and is gonna make an impact right away is Daily Ramos (midfielder no. 13), those are just a couple that really are sticking out and have already shown their quality on the field," he said.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON SEPTEMBER 6, AT ABOUT 3:51 P.M.

Officers responded to a radio call for service regarding a burglary in progress. The reporting party observed a male subject break into an apartment. When officers arrived, they observed a possible suspect in the apartment complex. Officers conducted a search of the subject and recovered methamphetamine, narcotics paraphernalia and an identification card in the name of another person. An investigation of the property led to officers noticing signs of forced entry to the apartment. The subject was taken into custody. Beaty Yielding Upton, 23, homeless, was arrested for burglary, possession of methamphetamine, possession of narcotics paraphernalia; and misappropriation of lost property. Bail was set at $20,000.

1. any period during which a state has no ruler or only a temporary executive.
2. an interval of time between the close of a sovereign's reign and the accession of his or her normal or legitimate successor.

WELL NEWS BY SCOTT LAFEE

Last Words

■ "Nothing but death."

■ British author Jane Austen (1775-1817) when asked by her sister if there was anything she wanted. There is much speculation about Austen's cause of death. She suffered from deteriorating health in the last year or so of life. Attributed causes include Addison's disease, Hodgkin's lymphoma, bovine tuberculosis (associated with drinking unpasteurized milk) and a form of typhus.

CREATORS SYNDICATE © 2018 STANLEY NEWMAN STANXWORDS@AOL.COM 9/15/18

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 15)

Not only will you feel a great sense of belonging at home, you'll also feel it where you didn't expect to — with friends, in the community and even in places you've never been before. What you do to express admiration will begin an adventure. Don't invest until you feel it in your bones. October is luckiest. Pisces and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 10, 7, 33, 38 and 16.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Each group has its own culture. You could fit in very well with this new one. How far should extend yourself? Go slow, but be a giver. Not giving costs more than giving.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
It doesn't usually work like this, but in certain moments you'll be able to take hold of your mind and essentially tell it who's in charge and how you need it to think. Oh happy day!

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
You may find that other people's opinions and even their expectations mean next to nothing to you today. It's your own ideas about what you should be that matter. Still, when the applause is for you, take your bow.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
The light within you is shining bright, something that is extra convenient in situations that tend toward the shady. In fact, you might save someone today, just by being you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
When you're in an authority position, it's rather easy to get people to work for you. Getting them to work with you is different. They'll do this not because of your position but because of the character of your leadership.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Your loved ones may be curious about your limits, or perhaps they are just having a mindless moment that causes them to cross you. Either way, now at least they'll know where your boundaries lie.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
New friendships are coming into your life and they could evolve into love, business or both. The window of possibility is wide open for your social life these days.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)
People say that love takes work, but it's usually the kind of work that you don't mind doing because it comes so naturally to you. Anyway, it won't feel like an effort at all today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
You're not always readily available to your loved ones, and this is how it should be. Otherwise, you won't know what it's like to have your own undivided and uninterrupted attention. Keep boundaries clear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Good teachers cause their own obsolescence. Not only is it noble to take your students to the point of getting along without you, but if you don't, you'll be forever doing the work that should go to others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
You don't automatically believe hearsay, but something will feel very true about what's going on today. It's worth staying alert to, but don't act on anything unproven.

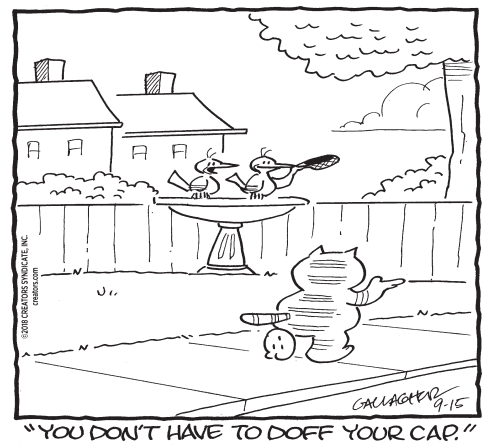

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Your attitude is more important than what actually occurs today. It will have more bearing on the results than the facts. A stellar attitude can turn problems into opportunities.

Trine of Responsibility

Mercury and Pluto form a trine that bodes well for the responsible people of the world, and those who wish to be. Responsibility can be the difference between a thriving venture and a wish. Those who step up and take more on will have to work harder but they'll also get to enjoy a greater feeling of agency and accomplishment.

St. Matthew's Music Guild announces 2018 – 2019 Series in Pacific Palisades with Music Director and Conductor Dwayne S. Milburn

St. Matthew's Music Guild has announced its thirty-fourth series of concerts in Pacific Palisades featuring the critically acclaimed Chamber Orchestra at St. Matthew's under the direction of its new Music Director and Conductor, Dwayne S. Milburn. Guests artists include South African pianist Petronel Malan, 2017 National Sphinx Competition winner, violinist Annelle K. Gregory, International Prokofiev competition winner, pianist Robert Thies, internationally renowned cellist and UCLA faculty member, Antonio Lysy, and Minnesota based male vocal ensemble Cantus.

The Music Guild's new Music Director and Conductor, Dwayne S. Milburn, is a multi-faceted conductor, composer, singer and keyboard artist whose career has taken him around the world over the past twenty years. A native of Baltimore, Milburn earned Bachelor and Ph.D. degrees in Music Education and Composition at UCLA and a Master's degree in Conducting at the Cleveland Institute. For three years, he was Director of Cadet Music and the Glee Club at West Point and in 1993 he joined the U.S. Army, serving as Bandmaster of the Continental Army Band and U.S. Army Band "Pershing's Own." Since then, he has served in the Middle East and Eastern Europe and most recently as Commander and Conductor of the U.S. Army Band and Chorus in Europe. He is retiring from the U.S. Army this September.

The Music Guild season will include five concerts featuring The Chamber Orchestra at St. Matthew's and two concerts by guest artists Robert Thies and Cantus Vocal Ensemble.

The season opens October 12 with an all-Beethoven concert featuring pianist Petronel Malan in the "Emperor" concerto, plus the "Coriolan Overture" and Fourth Symphony. On November 9, violinist Annelle Gregory returns to the Music Guild for a 100th Anniversary Commemoration of the end of World War I featuring music of Ravel, Copland and the Violin Concerto of Wolfgang Erich Korngold.

Cantus Vocal Ensemble will present a program entitled "Alone Together," exploring our struggle to build meaningful connection in a world that has never been more connected. They will perform music by Libby Larsen, David Lang and others on February 1. Los Angeles pianist Robert Thies presents a solo recital of music by Schumann, Chopin, Debussy and Rachmaninoff on April 5.

Argentinian ellist Antonio Lysy will be the guest artist on March 1 for an all-strings program featuring Schubert's "Arpeggione" Sonata, and music by Britten, Holst and Piazzolla.

The Choir of St. Matthew's joins the Chamber Orchestra for a holiday concert of music by Bach, Vivaldi and Handel on December 7 and the season will conclude on June 7 with Beethoven's Mass in C, Ives's "Unanswered Question" and the world premiere of a new Music Guild commissioned work by Los Angeles composer Diana Woolner.

All concerts are on Fridays at 8 p.m. at the architecturally stunning award-winning St. Matthew's Church, 1031 Bienveneda Avenue, Pacific Palisades. All concerts (except October) are preceded at 7:10 pm by "Liner Notes" – a preview and discussion of the evening's music featuring Music Guild President and former Music Director, Thomas Neenan.

Tickets for the concerts are $35 at the door. Advance tickets, discounted season passes for all concerts, and more information are available through the Music Guild's website, MusicGuildOnline.org or by calling the Music Guild office, (310) 573-7422.
