An Independent streak to the core

Bloomfield promises to bridge he Democrat, Republican divide

BY ASHLEY ARCHIBALD
Daily Press Staff Writer

DOWNTOWN Bill Bloomfield has a big job ahead of him.

Between now and Nov. 6, he has to convince Westside and South Bay voters why they should choose him, a retired businessman, over 38-year veteran Rep. Henry Waxman (D-Santa Monica) for the 33rd Congressional seat.

In Bloomfield's eyes, the choice is simple — the partisan politics that has resulted in only gridlock or him, an Independent with a vision to fundamentally change how Washington, D.C. does business.

The choice to run boiled down to a fairly

New orchestra forms to perform community concerts

BY KEVIN HERRERA
Editor in Chief

DOWNTOWN Orchestral music groupies who were disappointed by the decision in August by the Santa Monica Symphony Association to suspend the 2012-13 season of free concerts because of a lack of money now have something to applaud.

Maestro Allen Robert Gross, who led the Santa Monica Symphony Orchestra before the suspension, has been charged with directing a new group of professional, amateur and volunteer musicians under the banner of Orchestra Santa Monica.

This new venture, funded by donors and musicians who are committed to providing affordable concerts for the community, plans to offer three performances in its inaugural season, the first scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 27 at 7:30 p.m. at Barnum Hall on the campus of Santa Monica High School, according to a press release issued by Orchestra Santa Monica last week.

A family concert is also planned as part of Santa Monica's Martin Luther King, Jr. weekend celebration.

The next task will be raising enough funds through grants, ticket sales and donations to fund the third concert of the season, Gross said.

"We have a significant commitment to the community and Santa Monica is a city that is very proud of the level of cultural participation we have," Gross said, explaining why he felt it was critical to resurrect orchestral music in the city by the sea following the Santa Monica Symphony's suspension. "As we get going we hope to raise our profile and get significant support, both from personal donors, corporate support and grants to be able to continue this. We have a sustainable vision. We will be thriving."

Gross was clear that Orchestra Santa Monica is not a "stop-gap" measure until the symphony resurfaces. Officials with the symphony said they hoped to reorganize and provide free concerts sometime in 2013.

"We intend to be a permanent, viable organization that represents the best of what Santa Monica has to offer," Gross said.

Accomplishing that could prove to be difficult. Community orchestras across the country have found financial difficulty because of the struggling economy leading to a drop in donations. An aging fan base has also been cited as a factor for orchestras filing for bankruptcy.

Some suggestions that have been made to help these organizations survive include having fewer concerts, changing how musicians are paid to a per-concert model, creating more cutting-edge programming to attract a wider audience and appoint professionals in the field to the boards of directors.

Los Angeles temperatures start cooling off period

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES Southern California got a much needed dose of cooler temperatures on Sunday after two days of sweltering heat that broke decades-old records.

The mercury started falling back to more seasonal temperatures in the 80s in a cooling trend that is expected to continue into the week, said David Sweet, meteorologist with the National Weather Service.

"We're seeing the return of the sea breezes that function as our natural air conditioning system," he said. "We're transitioning back to a normal pattern."

Thermometers soared Friday and Saturday when an area of high pressure hovered over the region, coupled with a flow of air from the Nevada desert that pushed westward, blocking the normal cooler air heading onshore from the Pacific Ocean, Sweet said.

The result was some extreme temperatures.

Saturday's high of 103 degrees in downtown Los Angeles broke the previous record of 102 degrees set in 1979. Long Beach also posted a record high of 103 degrees on Saturday as did the Santa Monica Pier with 87 degrees.

On Friday, a 100-degree temperature in downtown Los Angeles broke the record of 99 degrees set in 1894. Long Beach saw a record-breaker of 104 degrees.

Beaches and highways leading to them were jammed throughout the weekend with inland and urban dwellers seeking ocean breezes. Electric fans were nowhere to be found at retailers.

The dry heat coming at the end of the summer when vegetation is already burn-ready sparked several wildfires through the region.

One burned near the famed Getty Center art museum atop a Los Angeles mountain while another scorched 1,200 acres of Camp Pendleton, a Marine base in San Diego County. Several other smaller blazes were reported in Los Angeles and Orange counties.

So far, all the fires have been in wildland areas and have not threatened lives or property.

'The Master' smashes box office records

CHRISTY LEMIRE
AP Movie Critic

LOS ANGELES Paul Thomas Anderson's cult drama "The Master" commanded a huge following in its opening weekend, smashing records on just a handful of screens.

The Weinstein Co. release made $729,745 in five theaters in New York and Los Angeles for a record-setting per-screen average of $145,949, according to Sunday studio estimates. The hugely anticipated film, which just won several of the top awards at the Venice Film Festival and will open in more cities in upcoming weeks, stars Philip Seymour Hoffman as a charismatic cult leader and Joaquin Phoenix as his wayward protege.

The No. 1 film at the box office was "Resident Evil: Retribution," which took in an estimated $21.1 million in its debut. This is the fifth film in the Sony Screen Gems action franchise, starring Milla Jovovich.

That topped the 3-D re-release of the Disney Pixar animated favorite "Finding Nemo," which opened in second place with $17.5 million.

The 3-D "Resident Evil: Retribution" was directed by Jovovich's husband, Paul W.S. Anderson, who has made three of the five films. It features the actress once again as the warrior Alice, the last hope for the human race as an evil corporation unleashes a deadly virus that creates more flesh-eating undead on a worldwide scale. And fittingly, the film performed even better internationally, where it made a healthy $50 million.

"You have to give so much credit for that to Milla," said Rory Bruer, Sony's head of distribution. "She's such an incredible star and absolutely just works so hard in every country. Whether it's Russia or Japan, everywhere she's gone, she's worked so hard in regards to making the franchise a success."

The re-do of "Finding Nemo" follows in a recent tradition of Disney converting its classic animated movies into 3-D for a whole new audience. The 2003 underwater comedy about a tiny, lost fish named Nemo, featuring the voices of Albert Brooks, Ellen DeGeneres and Willem Dafoe, won the Academy Award for best

Paying lip service to our forefathers

Editor:

I have become particularly alarmed by the amount of people who are under the perception that this country was founded by Christians. In a recent letter to the editor (which was fabulous, aside from the comment I am about to mention), a Santa Monica resident stated that this country was "founded by Christians and the Constitution is an implementation of Christian principles" ("Paying lip service to God," Letters to the Editor, Sept. 14). He also went on to say that "nothing will ever be able to change that fact." This statement is simply not true. Most of the most prominent of our founding fathers, responsible for writing the constitution, were actually Deists. In fact, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Abraham Lincoln, George Washington, Thomas Paine, Benjamin Franklin, and finally the man who is considered to be "the father of our constitution," James Madison were all not Christians. Though the majority of our country is Christian, and many of the men who ratified the constitution were Christians, the most brilliant and influential minds responsible for founding our nation, writing our constitution, and running this country from its inception were not Christians.

Tsunami of big developments coming to Santa Monica

THERE WERE A NUMBER OF community meetings last Monday night.

The "Chain Reaction" sculpture and the old Downtown post office building were on the Landmarks Commission's agenda. The North of Montana Association (NOMA) neighborhood group hosted a presentation about development and traffic. City staff held an open house for residents to learn more about the repaving and other "enhancements" planned for Lincoln Boulevard between the I-10 Freeway and the Venice border.

I was torn between attending the NOMA meeting or the Lincoln Boulevard open house.

According to City Hall's website, "Lincoln Boulevard was recently relinquished to Santa Monica by Caltrans and the city is undertaking a new project, funded by the Federal government, which will be implemented in late 2012 ..." Included are rehabilitation of the roadway with new rubberized asphalt for a smoother and quieter street which I'm all for. Traffic light signal cameras will be installed to monitor both vehicles and bicycles. I'm all for this, too, as it should be a good tool to facilitate flow.

However, enhanced striping to include "better" crosswalk markings, left-turn lanes and/or pockets are another matter. Don't kid yourself. This isn't just about refreshing existing street markings.

You can bet your Prius this will result in a totally redesigned street layout and more vehicle impediments — as has happened everywhere else in the city where markings have been repainted. Expect even more congestion and short-cutting through adjacent residential neighborhoods. Can planted medians and curb bump-outs be far behind? Think Pico Boulevard streetscape on crack.

The big change will be rush hour, bicycle and bus-only lanes "to provide priority transit service during peak commuting periods." Curb parking will be prohibited during peak commuting periods between Pico Boulevard and Ozone Avenue — between 7 a.m. and 10 a.m. north-bound and between 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. south-bound.

The City Council approved the lanes in September 2005 but they weren't implemented pending installation of similar lanes in Venice and Marina del Rey which haven't happened, yet. Still, transportation managers are chomping at the bit to "calm" and "beautify" Lincoln.

This is traffic planning Santa Monica style. Where most cities would convert curb parking lanes to traffic lanes during the rush to facilitate traffic movement, City Hall designates them for eight buses and a few bicyclists per hour while tens of thousands of cars jam remaining lanes.

Proponents say dedicated lanes will speed up bus service, making it more attractive to commuters. Unfortunately, a little more than a mile of bus/bike lanes will save a minute or two of travel time, at best. And, most buses will have to use traffic lanes to turn left onto Pico Boulevard.

I wasn't in the mood to hear traffic mismanagers spin how their ill-conceived proposals were going to turn Lincoln into a more pleasant, traffic-efficient artery. I went to the NOMA meeting instead.

The highlight of NOMA's get-together was a presentation from Diana Gordon who heads the Santa Monica Coalition for a Livable City. She talked about the massive amount of new development in Santa Monica's future.

Gordon described key developments and their impacts — mega-developments such as the 760,000-square-foot Bergamot Transit Village Center at the site of the defunct Paper Mate plant at Olympic Boulevard and 26th Street and the Fairmont Miramar Hotel renovation and expansion. She mentioned the dozens of new smaller hotels and office/commercial/residential combo developments that will spread across town

Gordon mentioned that at least a half-dozen four- to eight-floor residential projects with 275 to 425 square foot, single and one bedroom apartments (with some retail space) are planned or under construction in the downtown area on and near Lincoln.

She disclosed that they're all from just one major builder — NMS Properties. She wondered if thousands of tiny apartments with rents starting at $1,700 per month would be home to long-term residents who would be involved in the community or short-term tenants on the move. "Is this good urban planning," she queried?

Another $100 million worth of nonprofit affordable housing projects are proposed or under construction as part of City Hall's affordable housing initiative weren't included in her presentation.

I think the packed house in the Main Library's Martin Luther King Auditorium was stunned by the sheer volume of projects and their size. When she quoted City Hall's favorite mantra, "They'll generate no new net rush hour trips," everyone had a big laugh.

She urged the public to get involved, early. She described the political process, in which developers and their cronies donate to campaigns of pro-development council incumbents and candidates who, when elected, return the favor by supporting these projects — all while ignoring their negative effects or lying about how there will be none or they'll be fixed.

Council member and Metro transit board member Pam O'Connor was in the house. She said the coming Expo Light Rail will alleviate traffic because it'll provide an alternative to driving private vehicles.

The assertion was greeted with hisses and boos. This crowd knows that Expo won't negate the massive increase in traffic all these new developments will cause. O'Connor doesn't get it. Lucky for her, she's not up for re-election.

If this "slow development" movement gains community-wide traction (which it appears to be doing), how will it affect the campaigns of incumbents Terry O'Day and Gleam Davis, who've been consistent development supporters and who have also opposed public disclosure of developer largess to political campaigns?

Inquiring minds want to know.

Guatemala eruption turns to unlikely tourist draw

ALBERTO ARCE & ROMINA RUIZ-GOIRIENA
Associated Press

ANTIGUA, Guatemala A terrifying eruption of one of the world's most active volcanoes tapered off Friday into a draw for delighted tourists, who snapped photos from a neighboring colonial city and made plans to take night hikes to see glowing rivers of lava.

Villagers were returning to their homes on the flanks of the Volcano of Fire as it wound down its largest eruption in nearly four decades, spewing smaller amounts of ash and lava. Guatemalan authorities reduced the alert level from the highest, red, to orange around the Volcan del Fuego, or Volcano of Fire, and said Thursday's ferocious lava flow was now two smaller, 3,000-foot streams.

Tourists walking the cobblestone streets of the colonial city of Antigua, about six miles from the volcano, said they were making plans to take guided trips to the mountain to see the lava, and guide companies said they were getting dozens of calls for tours.

Celina Huang, a 25-year-old Spanish student, was taking photos of the volcano, which looms over the Baroque churches and brightly colored arches of Antigua.

"This fire and red light is something I've never seen before," she said. "In my country, Taiwan, there are volcanoes but they're dormant. This is the first time I've seen an eruption."

Nilton Dasilva, a church group leader from Northfield, Illinois, said he decided to take a detour during a group trip to a nearby coffee plantation and try to get as close as safely possible to the volcano.

"Now that we know it erupted, we're going to try to stop on the way and maybe take some pictures," Dasilva said.

Emergency workers reported that many villagers living around the slopes of the volcano had begun returning home. The Red Cross of Guatemala was winding down operations, coordinator Sergio de Leon said.

Guatemalan authorities ordered the evacuation of more than 33,000 of the 62,000 people living immediately around the volcano, many in isolated indigenous villages. De Leon said many people had moved to the homes of friends or relatives a little farther away from the volcano. Local media reported about 5,000 had evacuated, while emergency officials said the figure may have been much lower.

Gustavo Chicna, a volcanologist with the national weather, earthquake and volcanology institute, said the Volcano of Fire, Guatemala's most active, appeared to be in the final stages of its biggest eruption since 1974, when the event was five times more powerful than this week's.

The tapering-off occurred around 4 a.m., more or less when the institute had predicted.

Chicna said that while predicting volcanic activity was difficult before an eruption actually started, estimating the duration of the activity is easier. Vulcanologists measure the seismic activity around the volcano and estimate how long the eruption will continue based on when the seismic activity peaks and begins decreasing.

"There have been dozens of calls from people interested in going to the Volcano of Fire," said Irma Celada, a 31-year-old tour operator in Antigua. "People want to go at night because they want to see the lava. We're getting ready to leave when the sun goes down."

She said the tours wouldn't go all the way to the crater of the volcano, as usual, before tour operators got authorization from the authorities.

Villagers and farmers living at the foot of the volcano were awoken Thursday by a massive roar during a series of eruptions that darkened the skies and covered surrounding sugar cane fields with ash.

"It thundered and then it got dark as the ash began falling," said Miriam Curumaco, a 28-year-old homemaker from the village of Morelia who had evacuated along with 16 family members to a makeshift shelter at a nearby elementary school. "It sounded like a pressure cooker that wouldn't stop."

The Volcano of Fire spewed rivers of bright orange lava down its flanks, prompting authorities to order evacuations in 17 nearby communities.

Hundreds of cars, trucks and buses, blanketed with charcoal gray ash, drove away from the volcano, which sits about six miles (16 kilometers) southwest of Antigua, toward Guatemala City. Thick clouds of ash reduced visibility to less than 10 feet in some areas. The elderly, women and children were evacuated in old school buses and ambulances.

Authorities set up a shelter at an elementary school in Santa Lucia, the town closest to the volcano, and by Thursday night some 750 people had arrived. Most were women and children carrying blankets.

Guatemala's emergency agency said lava rolled nearly 2,000 feet (600 meters) down slopes around the 12,346-foot-high (3,763-meter-high) Volcano of Fire.

Chicna said streams of extremely hot gas were also rolling down the sides of the volcano.

The Green Scissors Campaign was launched in 1994 as a partnership between the environmental group Friends of the Earth (FoE) ad budget watchdog Taxpayers for Common Sense (TCS) to call attention to subsidies and programs that both harm the environment and waste taxpayer dollars-and which should be cut accordingly. The campaign has been issuing reports since 1996 detailing how Congress can cut specific programs to save money and the environment.

For the most recent report, Green Scissors 2012, the two organizations were joined by free market think tank R Street, which was started by former staffers of the libertarian Heartland Institute (previously a Green Scissors partner). This unlikely trio that spans the political spectrum left to right identifies some $700 billion in wasteful and environmentally harmful programs that could be scrapped over the next decade. Such savings would amount to almost two-thirds of the $1.2 trillion in spending cuts Congress is required to make beginning in 2013 under the terms of last year's Budget Control Act.

"It is perverse that we are staring down the barrel of budget cuts that will lead to dirtier drinking water as we reward corporations with tens of billions of dollars a year to poison the public," said Benjamin Schreiber, tax analyst with FoE. "We need to take the common sense solution of saving money by ending environmentally harmful spending."

The proposed cuts include $269.78 billion from energy programs, including $158.7 billion of fossil fuel subsidies; $167.09 billion of agricultural subsidies, including $89.82 billion of federal crop insurance disaster aid; $212.02 billion of transportation subsidies, including $125.80 billion of general revenue transfers to the Highway Trust Fund; $101.8 billion of federal flood, crop and nuclear insurance subsidies; and $24.99 billion from wasteful or environmental damaging public lands and water projects. Given the collaborative nature of the Green Scissors campaign, only those programs that FoE, TCS and R Street agreed were both wasteful and environmentally harmful were included on the list of recommended cuts.

"As lawmakers argue over what to do about the enormous deficit and looming automatic budget cuts, we have come together to present them with almost $700 billion in cuts," said Ryan Alexander, president of TCS. "Whether it's getting rid of high-risk energy loan guarantees, reining in wasteful crop insurance or ending lucrative oil and gas tax breaks, eliminating wasteful spending that harms the environment just makes sense."

"Taxpayers want Congress to stop bickering and get cutting," adds Alexander. "Green Scissors shows them where to start." Those interested in finding out more specifics can download the entire Green Scissors 2012 report for free in PDF form from the campaign's website.

Paul Dergarabedian, box-office analyst for Hollywood.com, said the No. 1-opening for the latest "Resident Evil" movie came as a bit of a surprise. He figured "Finding Nemo" would come out on top, given the track record of the Pixar brand and the strong opening a year ago of Disney's "The Lion King" in 3-D, which debuted at No. 1 with $30.1 million.

"The Screen Gems label, they know how to create a profit-making franchise," Dergarabedian said. "It's become so important if you have a star who resonates in the international marketplace — you can have a real winner worldwide."

Last week's No. 1 movie, the Lionsgate exorcism thriller "The Possession," fell to third place with an estimated $5.8 million. It's now made about $41.2 million over the past three weeks.

Among the other new movies this weekend, "Arbitrage" opened in 12th place in limited release with nearly $2.1 million. Richard Gere stars as a hedge-fund billionaire juggling scandals that could destroy him personally and professionally.

The huge opening for "The Master" beats the per-screen-average record for a live-action feature debut set earlier this year by Wes Anderson's "Moonrise Kingdom," which made $522,996 when it opened on four screens in May for an average of $130,749.

Asked who the audience was for "The Master," Weinstein Co. president of theatrical distribution Erik Lomis said: "We didn't do exit polls but from eyeballing the ArcLight (Cinemas), everyone in Los Angeles showed up."

Part of the allure was the rare opportunity to see the film projected in lush 70mm, which was possible at four of the five locations where it was playing. Expertly paced trailers released over the past few months revealed nothing, and unannounced screenings in select cities created more buzz. And some of the film's mystique may have come from its parallels to the origins of the secretive Church of Scientology. Anderson has said the church's founder, L. Ron Hubbard, provided inspiration for Hoffman's character.

"We knew we would do a lot of business but we didn't think it would be this big," Lomis said. "We knew from not only the pop-up screenings and the guerrilla marketing PTA does but also from the Venice Film Festival and the Toronto (International) Film Festival that we had something special. But you can never expect these kinds of numbers — it blew the doors off the theaters."

As Dergarabedian phrased it: "Paul Thomas Anderson, among film buffs and film fans, is a directing god. He's on Mount Rushmore with Christopher Nolan and some other great filmmakers. When he puts out a movie, it's a long lead time — we're forced to wait for a new Paul Thomas Anderson film. 'There Will Be Blood' was 2007.

"In the independent world, directors are the stars," he added. "They draw people to the theater and fill theaters."

Estimated ticket sales for Friday through Sunday at U.S. and Canadian theaters, according to Hollywood.com. Where available, latest international numbers are also included. Final domestic figures will be released Monday.

More than 57,000 people gave up their Saturday to pick up debris along the coastline and inland waterways as part of an annual clean-up aimed at protecting public safety and marine wildlife.

Organizers tell the San Jose Mercury News that volunteers in 70 percent of the counties collected 105,816 pounds of cans, bottles and other recyclable material.

This year, volunteers were on the lookout for debris from the massive earthquake and tsunami that struck Japan last year.

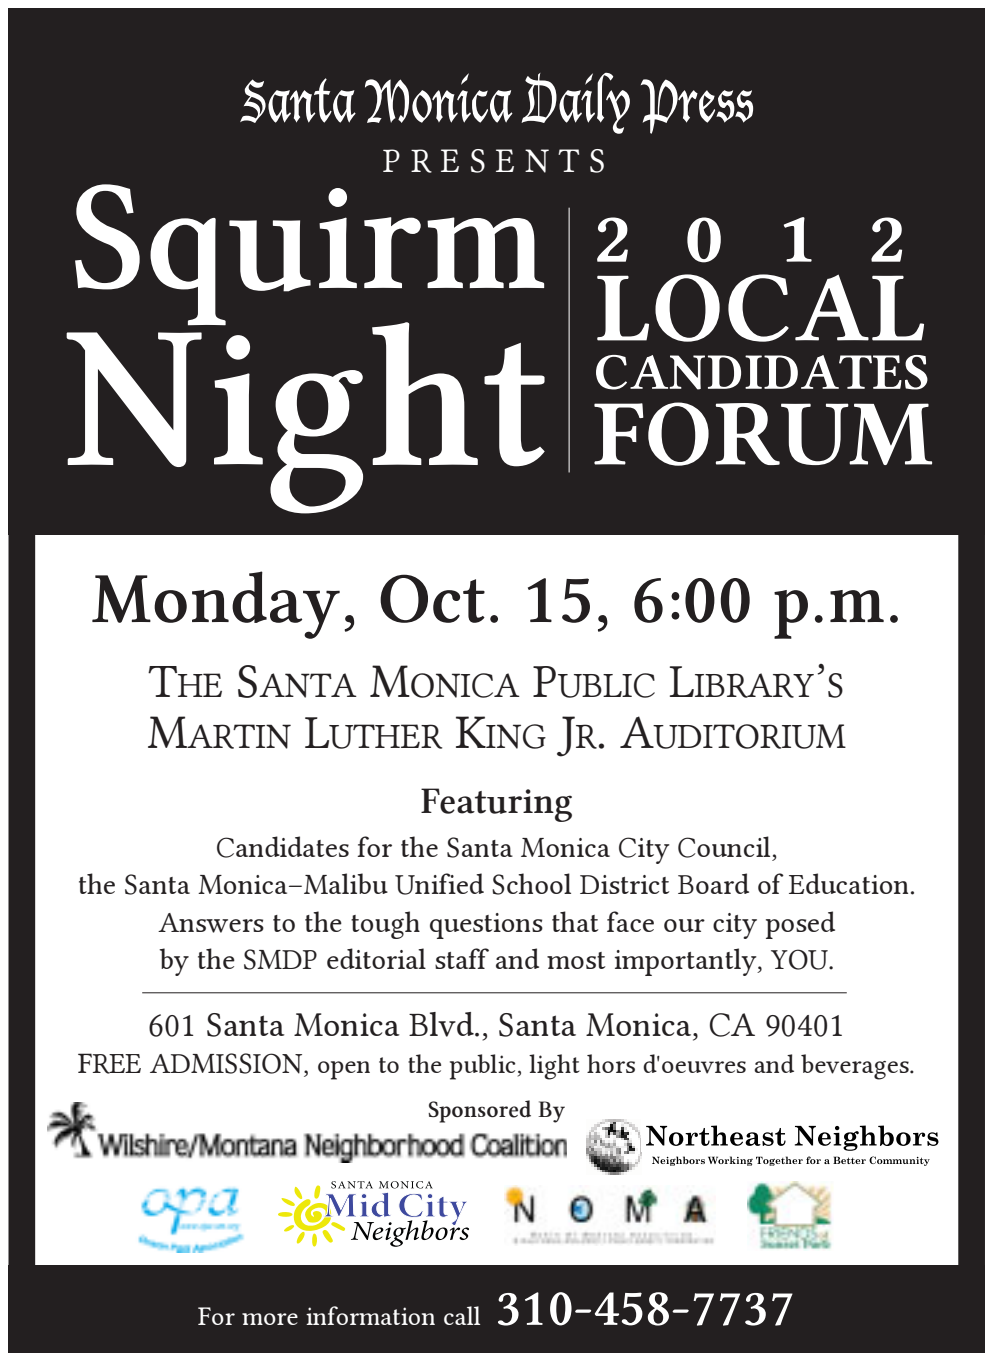

The commission's Eben Schwartz says volunteers at a Santa Cruz County beach found a buoy with Japanese writing, and picked up buoys and water bottles with Japanese writing in Mendocino County.

Common Sense vs. Santa Monica City Hall.
An Update on the AIDS Walk Ads.

We offer you this report back on the City of Santa Monica's refusal to run AIDS Walk Los Angeles ads on the Big Blue Bus.

The news is mixed, and AIDS Project Los Angeles (APLA) continues to fight the good fight.

Mayor Richard Bloom did not provide effective leadership on this matter. His public remarks were conflicting, confusing, and lacking in vision and determination.

Judge for yourself:

From the Los Angeles Times…

"Although Bloom said the topic warranted discussion on free speech grounds, he said he was concerned that buses could become a forum for 'counterproductive speech.'"

– Los Angeles Times (September 12)

From the transcript of Tuesday night's City Council meeting…

"I wanted to bring this to the Council so that we could have a full discussion, and ask staff, if we want to, to come back with information and alternatives and recommendations with respect to what we can and can't do with Big Blue Bus advertising."

– Mayor Richard Bloom, City Council Meeting (September 11)

Mayor Bloom sought to placate AIDS Walk supporters, avoid standing up to the unelected administrative staff he is responsible for overseeing, and dodge the tough call. The result was predictable.

We want to express our deep appreciation to Mayor Pro Tempore Gleam Davis and Councilmember Terry O'Day, both of whom were able to articulate the issue and show leadership in advocating for this common sense position.

If ads from oil companies or for extra large soft drinks can run on our buses, then community groups confronting global warming, childhood obesity or AIDS should have the same right to buy ads. Remember we are not talking about BBB donating ads to charities. These are PAID ads – just like McDonald's!

And this is Santa Monica!

For nearly 30 years, APLA has been leading the way in L.A. County's fight against AIDS. We all owe APLA a debt of gratitude not only for its lifesaving services, but also for championing free speech and highlighting this issue on behalf of charitable organizations throughout the Southland.

While Santa Monica City Hall sideswipes the First Amendment and our community's values, those east of Centinela are having no such problem.

AIDS Walk Los Angeles ads are on L.A. buses right now – just as similar ads were on San Francisco buses this summer and New York buses last spring. Sadly, the unelected executives at Santa Monica City Hall have it wrong. And they now have a record of avoiding meetings with constituents. So it is up to each of us to take action.

Like hundreds of other Santa Monicans, we walk in AIDS Walk Los Angeles each year in appreciation and support of APLA.

Join this effort – by Santa Monicans, for Santa Monicans – to continue supporting APLA, and to bring responsible values and healthy, active choices to the sides of the Big Blue Bus. Visit aidswalk.net and join our team, Santa Monicans for AIDS Walk L.A.

"I could run for congress or I could sit back and continue the status quo," Bloomfield told the Daily Press.

Two years ago, Bloomfield counted himself as a Republican, the party of choice for a wealthy man who made his money in the business world. He's since left the party and struck off as an Independent, done with the Republicans that valued their social ideology and partisanship over governance.

If elected, Bloomfield promises to bring a fairly radical (and mixed) ideology to Washington.

He's for the controversial Keystone XL oil pipeline, but wishes every American had a plug-in hybrid vehicle. He'd keep President Barack Obama's health care reform, but tweak it to allow for a more open marketplace and reduce paperwork for physicians. He's running for office, but believes that most problems with the country originate with the government.

The Daily Press met with Bloomfield to learn more about the man with a plan to end the stranglehold of hyper-partisanship in the nation's capital.

(Responses and questions are edited for clarity and length)

Daily Press: What inspired you to run for office?

Bill Bloomfield: I'm running because I'm very concerned about our country. We have a Congress locked up in hyper-partisan gridlock and not working on any of the serious problems that threaten our future, starting with the budget deficit, our very very weak economic recovery, our school systems which are all too dysfunctional on the inner cities and an energy policy only terrorists love. I could go on and on.

I think I'm uniquely qualified to work on the task at hand. Number one, (I've had) a lifelong (career in) business. I started several businesses. Number two, I've spent a lot of successful time working on election reform, which I think is terribly needed in order to change what's going on in Washington. Number three, I have tangled with and taken on special interests that traditionally are suppliers of funds for both side of the aisle.

And I've taken the first steps necessary to help reform Congress. I got fed up with partisan politics, left the Republican party here, registered as an Independent and I'm cofounder of No Labels.

I got involved with them over two years ago, and I very much believe in what they're trying to do to get people in Congress to put a priority on solving problems and not worry about the party labels. I also believe in not taking (political action committee) money because I think special interest money comes with a string attached.

DP: So does that mean that only wealthy people can run?

(According to financial documents filed with the Federal Election Commission, Bloomfield has essentially bankrolled his campaign, putting in over $1 million so far this year)

BB: I'm very much in favor of campaign finance reform, starting with Proposition 32, which I'm in favor of and have been involved with it since the drafting stage. The proposal in Congress to require full disclosure of (political action committee) money, that needs to come about.

But look, Congressman Waxman has been there for 38 years. The fact is that we have a system right now that you have no chance to run if you have no name ID and if you can't figure out how to come up with a lot of money. You either have it yourself or you fund it. Sadly one of the easy funding mechanisms that a lot of people go to is they take money from (political action committees).

(Proposition 32 is a measure on the ballot in November that would restrict fundraising for unions and corporations in California.)

DP: If you're elected, you'll be one man in a House of Representatives with over 400 members. How do you propose to end the gridlock?

BB: It's easier to identify that Republicans are more conservative than they used to be and the Democrats more liberal. But look — I remember, the Reagan administration sadly like it was yesterday and (Thomas) O'Neill was Speaker of the House for six of the eight years, the Democrats controlled the entire house for eight years. But (Thomas) and Reagan forged a really good relationship. They worked together and an awful lot happened during the Reagan administration because the two of them put their politics aside and worked on solving our nation's problems. That's simply not happening today and it needs to happen.

For the record, if I could run for all 435 seats, I would. The founding fathers wouldn't let us do that.

I am one person, I would be the only Independent. The first thing I'm going to do is I'm not going to caucus. I'm not going to agree to choose a side. I'll meet with Speaker (John) Boehner or Speaker (Nancy) Pelosi and remind them that 40 percent of the voters in the country now identify themselves as Independent. The House makes its own rules. Darn it all, it's time to allow someone to be there and be an Independent and not have to be labeled and choose sides. If they refuse, yeah that's going to be my cause because I won't be there long enough to build up a following or get seniority because I'm too old.

I will hold out until they change the rules because that's what they need to do. Frankly, I am optimistic. I don't believe Nancy Pelosi or John Boehner are back there to gridlock and not have stuff done. I think that they both in their hearts want the country to go forward … They may not want to publically voice it, but I have to believe in their hearts they would view this as a good thing and that I would get what I want. And what I want is to be on a couple of decent committees without having to choose as far as some of the caucus duties.

No Labels has on its agenda for the 2013 Congress to continue growing the coalition and create hopefully a caucus of 40 House members — Democrats, Republicans and at least one Independent — that will meet and work together on the central issues of our time.

DP: Make the case for someone on the Westside to put you in office over Rep. Waxman, who has 38 years of experience and the influence that comes with it.

BB: No disrespect to the post office of Santa Monica — and I do hope Waxman by the way is able to cause the post office to keep it where it is — it's not why I'm run-

PROFESSOR

Irving S. Reed

Passes Away

IRVING STOY REED - (November 12, 1923 – September 11, 2012)

Emeritus Professor Irving S. Reed passed away on September 11, 2012, at the age of 88. Professor Reed was a member of the Ming Hsieh Department of Electrical Engineering faculty from 1963 until his retirement in 1993 as Powell Chair of Engineering Emeritus.

Professor Reed was one of the truly outstanding engineers of the past century, who made fundamental contributions to digital computers, communications, and radar. His many major awards included election to the U.S. National Academy of Engineering (1979), to the grade of Fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers (IEEE) (1973), to the receipt of its Hamming Award for Communications (1989), and the Shannon Prize, its highest award for Information Theory. In 1995, he shared with the late Gustave Solomon the IEEE's Masaru Ibuka Award for their invention of Reed-Solomon Codes, for decades the most widely used system for protecting the integrity of both stored and transmitted data. In 1998, he also received the IEEE's Golden Jubilee Award for Technological Innovation.

Professor Reed received his academic degrees (including the Ph.D.) from the California Institute of Technology (Caltech), and served in the U.S. Navy during World War II on board the USS Duncan (DD-485) from 1945 to 1946. Upon discharge from the Navy, while still a graduate student at Caltech, Professor Reed participated in the creation of one of the very first digital computers, Northrop Aviation's Magnetic Drum Digital Differential Analyzer (MADDIDA), used to control the guidance system for the Snark cruise missile. (Professor Reed and members of his team flew the device to Princeton for a demonstration for mathematician John von Neumann.)

At MIT's Lincoln Laboratories (1951-1960), Professor Reed pioneered in three crucial areas: the development of computer programming languages, the theory of radar design and performance, and the Reed-Muller and Reed-Solomon codes for protecting digital information.

After three years (1960-1963) at the Rand Corporation in Santa Monica, Professor Reed joined the faculty at the University of Southern California (USC) in 1963, where he spent the remainder of his career, retiring in 1993.

At USC, Professor Reed was a key faculty member in the departments of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, and a founding member of both the Signal and Image Processing Institute and the Communication Sciences Institute. With his graduate students, he continued to develop improved decoding algorithms for error-correcting codes, as well as the data compression methods that became the basis for jpeg and the AOL system. Millions of people today enjoy the benefits of Professor Reed's many inventions and contributions of technology, without being aware of their remarkable benefactor.

Professor Reed was a lifelong aviation enthusiast and student of history. He is survived by his wife Bernice; his two sons; his ten grandchildren; his four great-grandchildren; and a myriad of past students who carry on his work today.

FINAL VISITATION WITH PROFESSOR REED WILL BE HELD ON TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18TH BETWEEN 10:00 AM AND 11:00 AM AT WOODLAWN CEMETERY MAUSOLEUM AND MORTUARY, 1847 14TH STREET, SANTA MONICA, CA 90404 (310) 458-8717. MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR PROFESSOR REED WILL FOLLOW THE VISITATION, BEGINNING AT 11:00 AM AT THE SAME LOCATION. ALL FAMILY, FRIENDS, COLLEAGUES, FORMER STUDENTS, AND OTHERS WHO WISH TO PAY THEIR LAST RESPECTS TO THE PROFESSOR ARE ENCOURAGED TO ATTEND.

ning. It's country first. I care about the economy in Casper, Wyo. as much as I care about the economy in Santa Monica.

This is going to sound like I'm blasting the guy, and I don't mean to, but if he has so much power, how come when I go on a tour of the Veteran's Administration a few weeks ago it looks exactly like it looked when I was 5 years old? How come the place looks the same except that a lot of the housing is boarded up? One of the nicest things they have there is a brand new soccer field and it's padlocked because the people who live there can't use it. It's been leased to one of the private schools or the AYSO or the community so their child can use it.

Tell me a priority that's more important than our veterans, with wars we've been in since (Waxman's) been in power? I mean, come on. Seriously.

DP: What's your take on the Santa Monica Airport?

BB: Full disclosure, I used to fly. I got my license when I was in high school and I've flown out of Santa Monica many many times.

The central issue for me, the immediate issue, is safety. Santa Monica Airport's runway is 5,000 feet. It is smack dab in the middle of an urban center. Van Nuys is not that far away, it has an 8,000 foot runway. One of the things I want to look at when I get in office is this decision on how big the jets can be landing in Santa Monica.

I think the city of Santa Monica should be able to say what happens with that land. It should be up to them if they want an airport or not. Simple as that.

DP: Where do you stand on the Bush tax cuts?

(The cuts lowered the marginal tax rates for nearly all taxpayers, but have been extremely controversial regarding their effect on the U.S. economy. President Obama will have the opportunity to extend them or let them expire.)

BB: I don't have a problem with some of those tax cuts expiring if they would take the money and, for fairness reasons, use the money to grow the economy. Would it be a good trade off to let the tax on the wealthy expire on earned income and take that revenue and throw it into the corporate tax rate, get rid of the give-backs ad take aways and get our corporate tax rate of 39 percent and crash it down to 20 or 25 percent? Absolutely, where can I sign because that would create jobs.

DP: What is your stance on gay marriage?

BB: BB: I voted no on Proposition 8. I'm in favor of the state of California allowing same-sex marriage. As far as the federal government, they should recognize same-sex marriage in states that have legalized it so I would vote to repeal the Defense of Marriage Act. I am against a constitutional amendment shall we say requiring that the state of Mississippi recongnize gay marriage. That may be appropriate some day, but I'm not in favor of it.

Heal the Bay is a non-profit environmental organization dedicated to making Santa Monica Bay and Southern California coastal waters safe and healthy for people and marine life.

Heal the Bay

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Get errands done, Cappy

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Defer to others, and you will enjoy watching them deal with various issues that you face every day. Hopefully, you will be appreciated more as a result. Optimism surrounds communication. Tonight: Go through your choices.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ An unexpected revelation could encourage you to slow down. Express your feelings with sensitivity, and note the response you get. Your sixth sense comes through, especially with finances and your dealings with others. Tonight: Work through a problem by getting some exercise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Where others seem to hit a dead end, you naturally continue in the right direction. Whether or not you are aware of it, you are an endless source of information and creativity to many people. Tonight: Whatever puts a smile on your face.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You juggle different concerns, especially involving your home and domestic life. More often than not, your concerns revolve around this area of your life. Stop to get a token of affection for a not-too-happy camper in your life. Tonight: Chill at home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You share, and others respond; however, there is no guarantee that you will like their answer. Be ready to take a leap of faith and handle a personal matter. You might want to reorganize your schedule in order to deal with another issue. Tonight: Meet with friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ Be aware of your finances and how much you need to spend. Revise your budget, and be careful not to strap yourself too tight. Tonight: Take a risk, but do so carefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ You smile, and others find your positive mood contagious. When you reach out to have an important discussion with someone, keep that smile on your face. Do not feel as if a problem cannot be solved. It can -- just not on your schedule. Tonight: Be prepared to take a risk.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ The less said right now, the better. You know the power of words, and whether or not you are aware of it, you are experiencing a change that could transform your opinions. Tonight: Vanish while you can.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Meetings with groups and individuals punctuate your day. You gain through open conversation and mutual respect. An opportunity comes in the form of another person, and simply could walk right through your door. Tonight: Where your friends are.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ A must appearance arises again when in a leadership position. You might wonder what would be the best way to proceed. You laugh, and someone responds. People naturally seem to follow you. Tonight: Get errands done.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Listen to your need to reach out for someone at a distance. You could feel very uncomfortable at first, but ultimately you'll feel much better. Reveal your feelings. Remain cool in your dealings, even if you need to process a substantial change. Tonight: Detach from a hot situation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Work with a key partner directly; you could find the interaction exciting. You might decide to change the direction of an idea or project. A family member or domestic issue demands your attention, no matter what you want to do. Tonight: With a favorite person.

Happy birthday

This year you express your compassion, which you demonstrate through your actions. You often will carry more than your share of responsibilities, and will handle them magnificently. The result could be that others will want you to accept more and more responsibility. Know when to say "no," or you might not have any free time this year. If you are single, you could attract someone who is emotionally unavailable. Take a full year before considering this bond seriously. If you are attached, the two of you gain through mini escapes from reality into your own world. Try to take more weekends away together. Try not to be possessive of LIBRA.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Researchers Having Fun: Scientists from the Primate Research Institute at Japan's Kyoto University reported in an August journal article that they had given helium gas to apes (gibbons), which, predictably, made their voices goofily high-pitched. However, it was not a fraternity prank or lab assistant's initiation, but a way for the scientists to determine whether the famously sonorous gibbons could yell just as loudly at a higher-than-natural pitch. The gibbons succeeded, showing a rare talent similar to that of the world's greatest human sopranos, who maintain their booming amplitude by altering the shape of their vocal tract, including their mouth and tongue.

■ The seaside city of Qingdao, China, is (as described in August by NPR) "not a vacation community for superheroes" even though many beachcombers wear masks while lounging and sunbathing. The garments are "face-kinis," or light cloth coverings that protect against the "terror of tanning." While Western cultures celebrate skin-darkening, many Chinese associate it with lower-status, outdoor occupations, and a pale skin suggests having lived a pampered life.
