Samohi grad Cody Decker called up by Padres

Baseball dream comes true for longtime minor leaguer

MAKING THE BIGS: Former Samohi student Cody Decker achieves his major league dreams.

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

Cody Decker had waited his entire life to say those five words. So when his dream came true, he felt compelled to type in all caps.

"I AM A BIG LEAGUER," the Santa Monica native wrote on Twitter last week, sharing the news that he had been called up by the San Diego Padres after toiling for years in baseball's minor leagues.

Decker, who was added to the Padres' 40-man roster, made his MLB debut Sept. 14 against the Arizona Diamondbacks as a pinch-hitter.

With his deep-blue No. 28 jersey tucked into bright white pants, the Santa Monica High alumnus twisted his torso and stretched his legs as he held his bat in the on-deck circle.

He then walked calmly to the plate to face pitcher David Hernandez with the Padres leading by nine runs in the top of the ninth inning of an eventual 10-3 road victory.

Entering the batter's box, he tightened the straps on his gloves and swiped the dirt with his foot. Friends and family watched intently. Fans chanted his name from the stands.

After adjusting his helmet, Decker turned his head toward Hernandez and awaited his first pitch. A low 94-mph fastball whizzed past him for a ball. An 80-mph curveball was called a strike. Another curveball missed the strike zone.

On the 2-1 pitch, Decker made contact on a 94-mph fastball but popped out to Diamondbacks first baseman for the third out.

Just like that, the 28-year-old who had played 761 games over seven seasons in the minor leagues was in the books.

It marked a major turning point in the career of the 5-foot-11, 225-pound Decker, who had struggled to crack the bigs despite compiling gaudy statistics in high school, college and the minor leagues.

As a senior at Samohi, Decker hit .490 with 11 home runs and 40 RBI while leading the Vikings to a 20-10 record, according to Daily Press archives.

Decker's reputation as a power hitter grew at UCLA, where he smacked 47 home runs to finish his career in seventh on the Bruins' all-time list. He belted a conference-leading 21 home runs while hitting a career-best .322 during his standout senior season in Westwood.

Decker had been playing for Triple-A El Paso when he was called up, logging team highs in home runs (21) and RBI (75) while hitting .252 this past season.

Decker's 154 home runs in the Padres' farm system are the most by any MLB-affiliated minor league player since he was drafted in the 22nd round in 2009.

An attempt to reach Decker was not successful.

A self-described anti-hero, Decker has made a name for himself with his affinity for pranks, off-field antics and active social media accounts.

Before his first game in the bigs, Decker shared a photo of his new Padres jersey with his 20,000-plus followers on Twitter.

"No matter how surreal this feels... It appears that it actually IS real!" he tweeted.

School board debates role of advisory committees

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

It started as a routine agenda item as the Santa Monica-Malibu Board of Education prepared to hear from district advisory committee representatives about their goals for the school year.

But it quickly turned into a prolonged philosophical debate as school board members discussed the role the committees should play in shaping policy for the school district.

What sparked the conversation at the school board's first September meeting was a presentation by Alan Kapen, who stood before the governing body to share the goals of the district's child development committee.

Kapen mentioned that the committee was hoping to craft a five-year plan for neighborhood preschools on all elementary campuses in SMMUSD, a proposal that seemed to catch school board members off guard.

"I don't know realistically what it

MIDDLETOWN A new wildfire in Northern California has killed one person and destroyed or damaged 10 homes in Monterey County, a week after two other blazes killed five people and destroyed at least 1,400 homes, fire officials said Sunday.

The blaze burning about 2 miles north of the community of Jamesburg in Monterey County quickly grew to 1,200-acres after starting Saturday afternoon, the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection said.

Green Prize for Sustainable Literature

The Santa Monica Public Library celebrates the 9th Annual Green Prize for Sustainable Literature with the program Paul & Anna Cummins: A Father and Daughter in Conversation on Thursday, Sept. 24, at 7 p.m., in the Martin Luther King Jr. Auditorium at the Main Library, 601 Santa Monica Blvd.

Santa Monica's own educator and author Paul Cummins and emerging environmental leader Anna Cummins discuss how we can envision ourselves as leaders for social justice and a sustainable planet. Paul Cummins is the lead founder of Crossroads School and the founder/CEO of the Coalition for Engaged Education (formerly New Visions Foundation). He is the author of four books on education and two volumes of original poetry. Anna Cummins, Paul's daughter, is the co-founder and executive director of The 5 Gyres Institute, whose goal is to empower citizens to become leaders in combatting the global health crisis of plastic pollution.

This year, the library has awarded Prizes to nine titles. The 2015 Green Prize Pioneer Award, which honors a writer who has paved the way for discourse on sustainable issues, goes to E.O. Wilson, biologist, conservationist, and the author of many books including the 2011 Green Prize-winner "Anthill."

The Green Prize for Sustainable Literature is co-sponsored by the City of Santa Monica's Office of Sustainability and the Environment, and was established to encourage and commend authors, illustrators and publishers who produce quality books that make significant contributions to, support the ideas of and broaden public awareness of sustainability. The City of Santa Monica's Sustainable City Plan defines sustainability as "meeting current needs - environmental, economic and social - without compromising the ability of future generations to do the same." For more information on the Green Prize, visit smpl.org/greenprize.

The winners of the 2015 Green Prize for Sustainable Literature Awards are:

Youth Winners - Our Green Earth series by Anne Flounders, published by Red Chair Press. "Branching Out: How Trees Are Part of Our World" by Joan Marie Galat, published by Owlkids Books. "The Soda Bottle School: A True Story of Recycling, Teamwork, and One Crazy Idea" by Laura Kutner & Suzanne Slade, Illustrated by Aileen Darragh, published by Tilbury House Publishers. "Every Last Drop: Bringing Clean Water Home" by Michelle Mulder, published by Orca Book Publishers. "National Geographic Kids Cookbook: A Year-Round Fun Food Adventure" by Barton Seaver, published by National Geographic Children's Books.

Adult Winners - "The Third Plate: Field Notes on the Future of Food" by Dan Barber, published by The Penguin Press, "War of the Whales: A True Story" by Joshua Horwitz, published by Simon & Schuster, "This Changes Everything: Capitalism vs. The Climate" by Naomi Klein, published by Simon & Schuster, "The Sixth Extinction: An Unnatural History" by Elizabeth Kolbert, published by Henry Holt and Company

Pioneer Award Winner - E.O.Wilson.

This event is free and open to the public. Seating is limited and on a first arrival basis. The Santa Monica Public Library is wheelchair accessible. For special disabled services, call library administration at (310) 458-8606 at least one week prior to event. For more information, call (310) 458-8600 or visit smpl.org. Another monstrosity coming to Lincoln Boulevard

A PROPOSAL FOR ANOTHER NEW, BIG and ugly apartment building was approved by the planning commission Wednesday night. 1601 Lincoln Boulevard, formerly the location of Norm's Coffee Shop at Lincoln Boulevard and Colorado Avenue, is a 77,608 square foot mixed-use project consisting of two buildings: a four-story (47-feet) and a five-story (57-feet) structure with 90 residential units; 10,617 sq. ft. of ground floor commercial space and an inadequate 168 space, two-level subterranean garage. Fifield Co. Ltd. (FSTART 1601 LLC) is developing. It's the first of seven similar projects in the pipeline for this short stretch of Lincoln.

Fifield was rewarded with height and density bonuses for a plethora of so-called "Community benefits." The on-site affordable housing Fifield proposed was double the minimum 10 percent on-site unit requirement (for 50 percent income households) pursuant to the City's Affordable Housing Production Program, yet the commission voted to add another affordable unit for a total of 19.

Additional community benefits include a monetary contribution of $820,000 towards transportation programs, $595,000 for parks and recreation programs, $175,000 for additional affordable housing in the city, $150,000 for early childhood initiatives, $50,000 towards historic preservation, $80,000 for Big Blue Bus transit improvements and $50,000 for transportation management association programs.

All this is supposed to make up for a massive, mundane two-building development that we'll be stuck with for decades? Fifield expects to make a profit on this development, so the costs of all those community benefits will be passed on to future tenants making their non-income restricted units more expensive and further out of reach for the middle class.

"Diversity" is a big buzzword in this community. This is another in a growing list of proposed developments that eliminates housing opportunities for middle, and even upper middle-income, households. We'll never achieve real diversity when we build housing only for the very wealthy and extremely poor. Next step: city council.

CITY HALL'S NEW PR MACHINE PANNED

My column last week about City Hall's new department of communications generated a lot of response from readers.

My Gmail box has been filled with remarks ranging from "How much money?" to "… This development has been in the works since before the last election, when the former mayor argued that we needed new forms of citizen-city communication to offset the prejudicial interventions of a small minority of aging civic activists."

My favorite was a comment from a neighborhood leader, and echoed by other emailers, along the lines of, "My guess is that after Cole spent time visiting the community groups and speaking to a bunch of people, he discovered that residents are ANGRY... Cole is strategic. The best way to avoid a resident revolt is to hire a gold-plated PR team and make us pay for it."

At the YMCA, one gentleman poked a finger at my chest and said that he'd never heard anybody say, "We need more PR [communications] from City Hall. It isn't on anybody's priority list ... it'll cost us $1 million a year..."

Residocracy and other politically themed Facebook pages were filled with dozens of gems. Jim Pickrell got straight to the point. "How about six people hired to LISTEN? I'm not sure a shortage of PR is a problem were facing."

Laura Wilson-Hausle posted. "Another Dept. to pour out propaganda from the City's pro-development Staff intended to silence and over shadow the voices of residents?" And Rebecca Katz posted, "$10,270 per month for multiple new positions in the SM PR pro-development department? You gotta be [omitted] joking. It's a joke, right?"

Liz Victoria's post made me chuckle, "Cole said, "The city needs to embrace new communications technologies; Twitter, Tumblr, Pinterest, Facebook. I disagree…. It's a smoke and mirrors non-solution. While I don't dispute that the city needs more effective, transparent, fool-proof means of collecting resident input and responding to that input, I very much dispute that developing an internally-staffed solution is the way to go… We should probably anticipate that we will probably see the electronic equivalent of the BBB toadstool debacle - ill-conceived apps, worthless Tumblr fluff (OMG, LOL) and lots of digital obfuscation vs. clarification."

Danielle Charney called it "The Great Wall of Santa Monica…" Reinhard Kargl added, "The Municipal Propaganda Ministry ... Employees must be politically vetted to reflect the views of SMRR (Santa Monicans for Renters' Rights), the City Council, Downtown Santa Monica Inc. and the various lobbying groups."

The only somewhat positive post was from Phil Brock who wrote, "I think Rick Cole has the right idea. He needs to remind our staff forcefully that they work for the stakeholders of our city. Those are not just the people with money and access. They need to work for all of us."

HAVE YOU SIGNED?

Wednesday, Residocracy announced an online e-petition dubbed LUVE (Land Use Voter Empowerment) aimed at mandating voter approval for major aspects of the development process. The LUVE e-petition is designed to gage interest in floating an official ballot measure that would require voter approval for development agreements that exceed zoning codes and developments above the Tier 1 (two to three floors across most of the city and four floors downtown).

Voter approval would also be required for major amendments to planning policy documents such as the General Plan, any area

California Gov. Brown to sign expanded fair pay legislation

BY JANIE HAR
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO Female employees in California are poised to get new tools to challenge gender-based wage gaps and receive protection from discrimination and retaliation if they ask questions about how much other people earn.

A bill recently passed by the Legislature and that Gov. Jerry Brown has indicated he will sign won't suddenly put all women's salaries on par with men's or prod employers to freely disclose what every employee makes, which could make it easier for workers to mount pay discrimination claims.

But the legislation expands what supporters call an outdated state equal pay law and goes further than federal law, placing the burden on the employer to prove a man's higher pay is based on factors other than gender and allowing workers to sue if they are paid less than someone with a different job title who does "substantially similar" work.

So, a supermarket clerk could challenge her pay based on what a male clerk might earn at the same supermarket 10 miles away. Or housekeepers at a hotel could challenge their pay based on what janitors make at the same hotel, arguing that they do similar work. The pending legislation allows them to learn pay details from asking clerks or janitors at other locations, again, without fear of blowback from management.

"The requirement that they be in jobs that are identical has really hindered women from bringing suits and has failed to provide appropriate incentive for employers to make sure they're not engaged in subtle discrimination," said Deborah Rhode, a law professor at Stanford Law School and expert on gender discrimination.

California's labor commissioner, for example, has received only a handful of complaints in recent years alleging violation of the state's equal pay provision, said Jennifer Reisch, legal director of Equal Rights Advocate, which lobbied on the bill: Eight in 2012, 7 in 2011, and 6 in 2010.

That's tiny, she said, when compared to other pay-related complaints.

The goal, however, isn't to clog the courts with new lawsuits, she said, although the newer standards should make it easier to prevail on a lawsuit.

"What it's designed to do is to make the enforcement more attainable and to remove barriers to effectuating the purposes of the law, which is to make sure that women and men are being paid equally for doing substantially similar work," she said.

Starting Jan. 1, women can file these expanded claims in court or through the state labor commissioner's office.

California's pending Fair Pay Act stipulates employers can justify higher wages for men only if the pay is based on seniority, a merit system, quantity or quality of production, or any other "bona fide factor other than sex." It cleared the Legislature with bipartisan support and the backing of the state Chamber of Commerce.

The legislation would also make California one of a several states to prohibit employers from discriminating or retaliating against a worker for asking how much her counterparts earn, said state Sen. Hannah-Beth Jackson, D-Santa Barbara, who sponsored the bill. A similar provision in Congress has stalled for years.

"This is a very specific and explicit provision," she said, "that there can be no retaliation."

But there's no obligation that employers provide salary information, leaving some questioning how effective the provision might be in promoting pay equity. Also, California has long had a law prohibiting employers from requiring employees to keep quiet on their own wages.

The new law "arguably goes a little bit further than current state law but I don't think employers were drawing that fine a distinction," said Michael Kalt, an employment lawyer and lobbyist for CalSHRM, the state chapter of the Society for Human Resource Management.

Supporters of the bill cite studies showing that on average, full-time female workers in California earn 84 cents for every dollar that a man makes, losing out on roughly $33 billion a year.

That's a collective figure and doesn't mean, for example, that all female workers at a company earn less than their male colleagues who do the same work. It does mean that women as a group earn less than men for a variety of reasons — because they may have taken time out to raise children or they're overrepresented in lower-paying jobs or perhaps they weren't as aggressive as their male counterparts in seeking a raise.

State lawmakers say they were motivated by heartfelt pleas for equal pay from high-profile Hollywood actresses at this year's Academy Awards. Lawyer Ellen Pao also made national waves when she filed a gender discrimination lawsuit against a prestigious venture capital firm in Silicon Valley.

While she lost, the publicity prompted embarrassed soul-searching in an industry dominated by male managers.

Elizabeth Ames, vice president at the Palo Alto-based Anita Borg Institute, said legislation alone can't reverse decades of wage discrimination, but gaps going forward also can't continue in an age where women are taking home a majority of the advanced education degrees.

"They represent a huge percentage of our intellectual capital, and for them to be under-rewarded, under-promoted and under-represented is a problem," Ames said.

Shuttle to the Hollywood Bowl

Editor:

Since years I have chosen to take the shuttle from Santa Monica to the Bowl for concerts.

Last night I did so again. On the ticket it says the ride takes 40 minutes. With our traffic nowadays this is a joke, in fact it took 1 hour and 40 minutes. The bus gets there so late that one can hardly reach the seats in time for the start of the music. Why does the first bus only leave at 6 p.m.??

After getting there so late, the young lady comes on the bus and distributes little paper tickets and announces that without this passengers will have to pay $12, in cash!

For several passengers on the bus, including myself this was unbelievable!! After all we paid in advance. If they want to be sure the same people who entered the bus from S.M. are returning on that bus, why do not let these people just keep the initial tickets??

It certainly would save time.

COMMITTEES

means for you to take that on as a charge," said board president Laurie Lieberman, the board liaison for Kapen's committee. "I'm concerned ... I don't mean this to be critical. I just wonder what's really viable for our DAC to do."

The district currently has advisory committees on child development, as well as English language learners, health and safety, intercultural equity, special education, and visual and performing arts. The groups typically meet monthly to discuss ongoing issues and provide insight for board members and administrators. Each committee has board representation and a staff liaison.

The board reviews committee goals annually.

"It is not the intention that advisory committees become policy-making bodies or that they manage or direct staff," board policy reads. "Committees are advisory in nature only; that is, they inform, suggest, and recommend to the Board of Education."

Board member Ralph Mechur said the work of the committees should be aligned with what the board and district are doing. The child development group's work on a preschool plan, for example, should follow guidance from Superintendent Sandra Lyon, he said.

"We're looking at charges or objectives being brought to us by our DACs and then we're in a position to green-light or red-light and without having done the substantive work of mapping [objectives]," board member Richard Tahvildaran-Jesswein said. "We've got to commit ourselves to a retreat where we sit down and say, 'OK, what do we need from this DAC and that DAC?'"

Maria Leon-Vazquez, who has participated on several district advisory committees, said the groups should be allowed to move forward with their plans for 2015-2016. She said it's up to the board and staff representatives to keep the committees on task.

"It feels like the committees are moving further than what's happening on staff or what the district is doing," she said. "As liaisons, we have to make sure we keep abreast of what's going on, and if they're straying from what the district is doing we have to bring them back."

Lieberman said it's not always clear how the advisory committees are supposed to function.

"There's a lack of clarity overall about how the parts fit together," she said. "The ones that work the best function, in a way, as a support system for the staff person, which is not what they were created for. I don't have a solution for all of this, but if they work with their staff then there's more likely to be alignment."

Tahvildaran-Jesswein said the committees should aim to work within the parameters of PERCS, a district acronym for overarching themes with which Kapen was not familiar: professional learning communities; equity and access; response to instruction and intervention; Common Core state standards; and science, technology, engineering and math (STEM).

"We have to move forward in a definitive way as a board ... where we're having a conversation about what [we want to see] from our DACs," Tahvildaran-Jesswein said.

Members of other advisory committees were planning to present to the board Thursday, but those dialogues were put on hold. Arts committee member Zina Josephs, for one, was not pleased.

"This is extremely frustrating," she said.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON SEPTEMBER 8 AT ABOUT 12:20 P.M.

Officers responded to a call of an attempted theft at Haggen, 2627 Lincoln Blvd. They met with the store manager who told them a woman attempted to steal a bottle of vodka. Employees confronted the woman at the door and she responded by swinging the bottle at them and threatening them. The woman then opened the bottle and began to pour out its contents, which rendered it unable to be sold. The woman was placed under citizen's arrest for vandalism and assault by officers at the request of the store manager. Chantel Bemis, 47, of Topanga, had bail set at $20,000.

ON SEPTEMBER 10, AT APPROXIMATELY 9 P.M.

An officer was dispatched to the 1200 block of Wilshire Boulevard in reference to an arson call. Upon arriving, the officer noticed a male sitting right next to a planter box that was on fire. The male subject, later identified as Matthew Levy, 38 of Rancho Park, stated that he was cold and was just trying to stay warm. Levy put out the flame with his boot and told the officer he had used his shirt to start the fire. Levy was arrested for arson. Bail was set at $50,000.

Heal the Bay

Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

© 2015 Copyright Heal the Bay. All rights reserved. Printed on recycled paper (without bleach)

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

EXPO LIGHT RAIL LINE:

Train Testing This Week - The Expo Light Rail Line extension from Culver City to Santa Monica is scheduled for train testing activities in Santa Monica this week and will continue for several months. The trains are now operated on their own power. Testing will be ongoing along the entire alignment in Los Angeles and Santa Monica. The testing activity will test train clearances, the Overhead Catenary System which powers the trains, the crossing gates and traffic signals, and all related systems before the project is turned over to Metro for pre-revenue operations.
A more detailed notice is online at http://goo.gl/AMLPxq

Safety Tips:

Please obey all warning signs and traffic signals when crossing the tracks. Always look both ways before crossing any street. Never walk on railroad tracks. Watch for trains from both directions. Use the crosswalks. Do not jaywalk across the tracks.

not been identified.

Evacuation advisories were issued for residents of Jamesburg and the nearby community of Cachagua, Cal Fire said.

Farther north, two wildfires have destroyed 1,400 homes and continue to threaten thousands more, fire officials said.

Damage assessment teams have counted 888 homes burned in Lake County, many of them in the town of Middletown, California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection spokesman Daniel Berlant said.

Berlant said teams are getting access to affected areas as firefighters make progress but that the count is far from over.

The fire, which killed at least three people and charred 117 square miles was 53 percent contained. Another 6,400 homes remain under threat.

"Our damage assessment team continues to go in and count home by home, structure by structure but they still have a ways to go before they are finished," Berlant said.

Another 535 homes were destroyed by a separate blaze that killed at least two people and that has burned 110 square miles in the Sierra Nevada foothills, about 170 miles southeast. That blaze was 70 percent contained Sunday but continued to threaten thousands of structures.

Residents of Middletown, the area hardest hit by the massive wildfire in Lake County, were allowed to return home Saturday afternoon. Evacuation orders for other areas in Lake County remained.

The Lake County fire tore through 62 square miles in 12 hours, causing thousands of residents to flee after it ignited a week ago. About 19,000 people were ordered to evacuate.

A weekend of heat had descended on the wildfires after several favorable days, raising fears that major gains could be undone.

That makes it essential that the smoldering remains of the two giant blazes be dealt with as quickly and thoroughly as possible, Scott Mclean, a battalion chief with the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection, said.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ In September, Tennessee Attorney General Herbert Slatery concluded that records of an investigation need not be released to the Memphis City Council -- because there was no comma. The law requires the records' release "only in compliance with a subpoena or an order of a court." Slatery said if there had been a comma after "subpoena," a council subpoena would get the records, but without the comma, only court subpoenas. And in July, Andrea Cammelleri prevailed on her parking ticket challenge because there was no comma. A West Jefferson, Ohio, ordinance banned parking of any "motor vehicle camper, trailer." A state appeals judge ruled that, with a comma after "vehicle," Cammelleri's truck would have been banned, but without it, only campers and trailers were.

■ In April, the City Council of Columbia, Missouri, rigged a specially drawn "Community Improvement District" to pass a sales tax increase. Under the law, if the District had no "residents" to vote, the "election" would be decided by the tax-friendly business owners. However, the Council somehow missed that college student Jen Henderson, 23, actually lived there and had registered to vote, meaning the business owners could not vote and that the tax increase would be decided by ... Henderson. (In late August, the Council "postponed" the election and at press time were in a quandary, as Henderson said she's against higher taxes.)

No bigger fish to fry

By Mikey Tittinger

Grouper or Salmon? Dolphins or sharks? These aren't the Red Lobster catches-of-the-day. Chances are two of them will be gone for good in the near future. Just in the last 40 years we've lost half of all the marine vertebrate species in the ocean. Holy mackeral!

The World Wildlife Foundation's Living Blue Planet Report found that our planet's mammal, bird, reptile and fish species declined by 49 percent from 1970 and 2012! And the hits keep on coming: Coral reefs may by extinct by 2050; a third of seagrasses can no longer be seen; and mangroves are just gone, man.

Why are fishies fading faster than an Adam Sandler comedy? It's the elephant seal in the room, of course. Climate change. Warming oceans are wreaking havoc more rapidly than at any point in the last, oh, say three million years. Carbon emissions alter ocean currents, warm sea temperatures and increase acidity levels.

Don't wait for world leaders to sing "Kumbaya"? President Obama has pledged to work with the Arctic nations to get all bold about climate change, but these kids aren't waiting. They're suing Obama on behalf of future generations, making sure he gives more than lip service.

Stand up for the oceans! There's still time, but we have to act. Search the Causes directory at giive.org for environmental nonprofits in your community. Or else Nemo will never be found.

Hang out at home, Scorpio

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Follow through on what you have planned for today. You might be more visible than you would like to be. A discussion with someone in the know will help you consider other options. Use your instincts in choosing the best one. Tonight: Could go later than anticipated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ You'll express a willingness to blaze a new trail, as long as it will help you to manifest a long-term desire. A meeting with a colleague will give you a sense of being supported in your present choices. Allow your imagination to roam free. Tonight: Have fun.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Deal with key people directly. In fact, they are likely to seek you out before you even try to connect with them. Listen to what they have to say. You might question how grounded each person is before you decide to accept what is being shared. Tonight: Dinner for two.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Act in a direct way, and others will respond to your clarity. As a result, you finally will be able to grasp the big picture and see where you fit in. You have the ability to energize others and encourage them. Your communication skills excel. Tonight: Run errands first.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Your effectiveness and organization might be put to the test. A partner is likely to contribute a lot of ideas and playfulness to whatever you share with him or her. Consider buying a gift for a friend or loved one. Tonight: Allow your true personality to emerge.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ Where others seem to encounter hassles, your ingenuity emerges to find solutions to potential problems. A partner or friend will add fun to your day. You might decide to go out for lunch with this person. Show him or her your appreciation. Tonight: Add some naughtiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Don't get yourself into a tizzy over a problem. Know that the situation could effectively be handled in a different way. You might not see eye to eye with the other party involved. Funnel some of your creativity into your plans. Tonight: Home is where your heart is.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You'll be coming from a solid perspective, whether you're speaking about a heartfelt interest or allowing your imagination to tackle a difficult problem for a close friend or loved one. Make a call to someone at a distance later today. Tonight: Hang out at home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Money dominates whatever you do right now. Use caution when handling financial matters, even if you're just counting your change. If you can delay any financial matters and decisions, do. In a few days, you will have a better sense of what will work. Tonight: Pay bills first.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ You seem to wake up with high energy. Follow your intuition in a discussion. Listen to what others share. Don't dismiss someone else's point of view simply because it is not relevant to you; it is relevant to that individual. Tonight: Go for what you want.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★ You might need some downtime away from the people who punctuate your day-to-day life. You could be dealing with a personal issue, and would prefer not to share what is going on with others. A partner or loved one will give you positive feedback. Tonight: Togetherness.

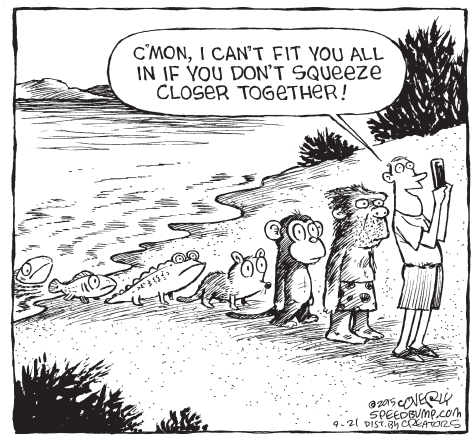

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You might be giving a problem more thought than you had in the past. A discussion with a special friend will shed a different light on a situation. You might feel as if this friend is a gift in many ways, as he or she always seems to be there for you. Tonight: Catch up on others' news.

Monday, September 21, 2015

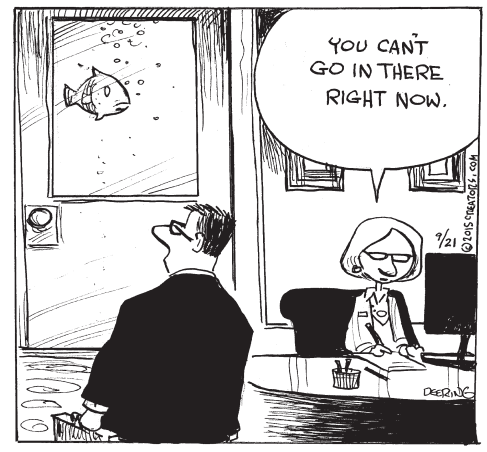

This year you will be starting a new life and luck cycle. You will feel as if you are on a roll come summer 2016. You expand your immediate circle and enjoy your day-to-day life far more. You also learn not to get involved in power plays. If you are single, the kind of person you choose might be very atypical for you. This bond could be long-term. If you are attached, the two of you will want to clear up a disagreement. You will become a lot closer in 2016, and this issue will seem irrelevant. CAPRICORN entices you.

If you believe that you or a family member are entitled to compensation for an injury, the best thing you can do is speak to an experienced personal injury attorney. You may be entitled to compensation for your injury including lost wages.

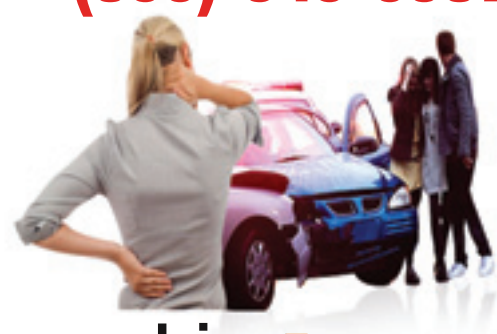

Negligence and Auto Accidents

To have a valid car accident claim, you must first determine the negligent party or parties that caused the car crash. You may suspect that another driver, pedestrian, motorcyclist etc. acted carelessly, but cannot identify what traffic laws they violated. A skilled car accident attorney, however, can examine police reports and state traffic laws and speak to witnesses to determine who was at fault for your motor vehicle accident.

Tip: Act Quickly

If you seek legal advice, it's important that you do so as soon as possible after an accident. You're more likely to get the compensation due to you if your attorney is able to act quickly.
