Memorial Park expansion to move forward following pandemic delay

EMILY SAWICKI
SMDP Staff Writer

Santa Monica City Council had high hopes for the expansion and redevelopment of Memorial Park when plans were approved in October 2019. Then came the pandemic.

Drastic budgetary restrictions due to COVID-19 derailed the nine-figure project (estimated at $100 million - $116 million, plus up to $3 million to relocate city equipment and offices) that would see the 70-year-old public park expand from 10.3 to 13.2 acres, with the addition of sports fields and other amenities.

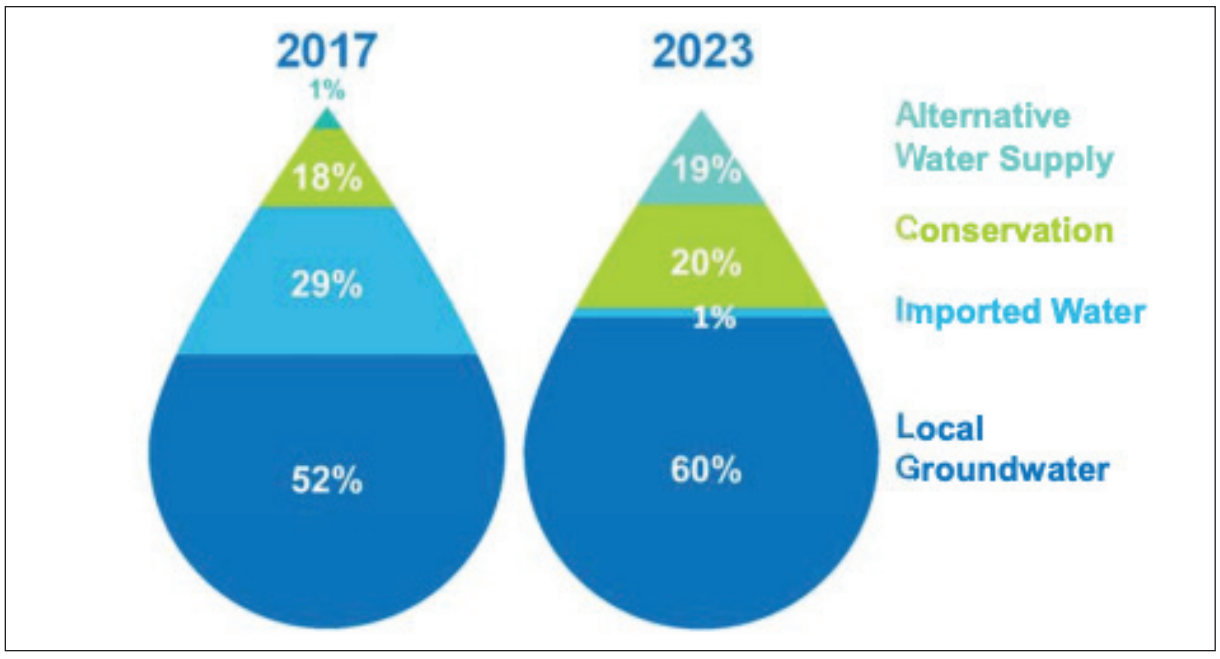

But this week, council will once again take up the project, split now into bite-size phases that will help keep the budget on track.

Currently, Memorial Park takes up almost 80% of the grid bound by Colorado Avenue to the north, 16th Street to the east, Olympic Boulevard to the south, and 14th Street to the west. The project would integrate the final 20% of the area — 2.9 acres along Colorado Avenue — into the park.

Plans for the park's expansion go back to 1997. By 2005, the City had purchased a lumberyard that previously occupied that final 2.9-acre parcel and began using the property for staff offices and equipment storage, but it took more than a decade before plans began taking shape for how to integrate that land into the park.

Water Conservation efforts paying off in Santa Monica

WATER: Locals have been able to cut water use this year and the City's conservation goals are on track.

GRACE INEZ ADAMS
SMDP Staff Writer

Even as the recent 15-day watering ban in LA county ended earlier than scheduled last week, water – specifically lack of water – remains a top concern for many city officials. However, Santa Monica Water Resource Manager Sunny Wang reported to the planning commission last week that unlike some nearby municipalities, Santa Monica's is on track to maintain the stability of the city's water supply and eventually make the city self-sufficient in terms of water.

"If you compare July of this year 2022 to July of 2021 we saw about an eight to nine percent reduction in total water consumption," he said. "Overall our city has been doing great in terms of residential average – we're using less than 80 gallons per person per day which is really great compared to some of our neighboring cities and what they're doing."

He added that the instability and unpredictability of imported water from sources like the Colorado River makes it worthwhile to focus on developing local water sources. He said the city plans to reduce the amount of imported water used in Santa Monica to just 1% by 2023 and Wang said conservation is a vital part of achieving that goal, especially in the face of climate change.

"Climate change continues to challenge the reliability and resiliency of our water supply, leading to higher average temperatures, more intense heat waves and wildfires," Wang said.

Following droughts in 2014, Santa Monica ramped up conservation efforts which he said have stayed in place ever since and allowed the city to remain at lower water-use levels.

"We've actually maintained those levels," he said. "A lot of cities backed off on that but we kept our foot on the gas and maintained that and our residents are doing a great job of conserving and meeting that

Malibu homeless population drops by 66% following large 2021 encampment clearances

EMILY SAWICKI
SMDP Staff Writer

While LA County homeless count numbers showed an 11% reduction in the number of unhoused people residing in Santa Monica between January 2020 and February 2022, up the coast in Malibu, the homeless population was reduced by six times that, with an overall 66% reduction in people experiencing homelessness in Malibu in those two years.

Malibu's Feb. 23 point-in-time homeless count registered 81 people experiencing homelessness, down from a high water mark of 239 people counted in 2020.

Malibu Public Safety Director Susan Dueñas said that reduction was a reflection of two years of work through Malibu's contract with homeless outreach nonprofit The People Concern and LA County Sheriff's Department HOST (Homeless Outreach Services Team), including clearing two major encampments and devoting resources to find temporary housing for displaced people.

Dueñas said that her team was "not surprised at all" by the latest figures, which she felt were accurate.

"There's two main drivers. One is there was a very concerted effort last year to clear out the Zuma Creek area where a lot of homeless people were living, and also an area in Tuna Canyon, and we work with the sheriff's department homeless

Community Corp. Holds Ribbon Cutting for Pacific Landing Affordable Housing Development

Last Friday, Santa Monica Mayor Sue Himmelrich, State Senator Ben Allen, and Assemblymember Richard Bloom attended Community Corporation of Santa Monica's ribbon-cutting ceremony for their recently completed affordable housing development, Pacific Landing. After touring the property, elected officials discussed the importance of continued affordable housing development with Community Corp. residents, staff and board members.

Pacific Landing provides 37 newly constructed, 100% affordable apartments. The building will also house an approximately 459-square-foot coffee shop on the ground floor. The units in the building will be a mix of 1,2, and 3-bedrooms and will target individuals making between 30% and 80% of Area Median Income. Site amenities include a community room, a central courtyard with playground, landscaping, on-site laundry, and a fourth-floor roof deck.

The construction is 100% electric including PV panels on the roof, energy star appliances, and EV charging stations. Architectural company Patrick Tighe Architecture designed the building and Walton Construction brought the property to life.

"Santa Monica celebrates the opening of Pacific Landing, which leveraged more than $9.5 million from the City's Housing Trust Fund for construction," said Santa Monica Mayor Sue Himmelrich. "This is yet another example of how Santa Monica is expanding affordable housing units citywide. To the Santa Monicans who will soon move in, we say: 'Welcome home!'

Assemblymember Bloom shared, "Pacific Landing, Santa Monica's newest housing development, is their best housing project yet. With nearly 40 units of badly needed affordable housing and various amenities that foster a sense of safety and community, Pacific Landing helps ensure that Santa Monica remains diverse and welcoming to all in an architecturally beautiful, green building. I am grateful for the work of Tara and her great Community Corporation team!"

"We're thrilled to unveil this beautiful property in the heart of Santa Monica, offering those of modest means housing on the beautiful west side of Los Angeles" said Tara Barauskas, Executive Director of Community Corp. "We are confident that our Pacific Landing development will enable residents to build a bright future in a high-opportunity neighborhood and are thankful to everyone who helped materialize this vision."

About Community Corp: Community Corporation of Santa Monica is a non-profit organization that restores, builds, and manages affordable housing for people of modest means. Founded by community leaders in 1982, Community Corp. has built or restored more than 80 properties throughout Santa Monica, creating over 1,800 affordable homes and transforming the lives of more than 4,000 people every year. services team in partnership to do this, and it was a long process. A lot of people got housing out of that," Dueñas said. According to Dueñas, each encampment housed about 20 to 40 individuals.

"And then the other driver is our outreach team has done a phenomenal job of getting people into housing in the last year," she went on to say. "Not all permanent housing, but at least temporary shelter. They've been getting vouchers. The combination of more people being moved into interim and permanent housing, and the fact that we cleared out the hotspots and we've maintained them, have really driven down the numbers. And so we've definitely — we see it."

The encampment clearances were approved after Malibu saw a staggering 17 fires that began at homeless encampments from January through August 2021. Because of Malibu's location in the Santa Monica Mountains, with Santa Ana winds and drought conditions, in the fall and winter the entire city falls under the CAL Fire definition of a Very High Fire Hazard Severity Zone (VHFHSZ). Declaring all of Malibu part of the VHFHSZ allowed Malibu City Council to ban encampments anywhere in Malibu, since the risk of fire in such a zone could prove disastrous.

"Malibu bears this designation based on vegetation, its steeply sloping topography, its fire history, and fire weather factors, all of which increases the risk of wildfire from unpermitted heat sources," according to a staff report prepared by Malibu Fire Safety Liaison Gregory Hisel. "Factors, such as wind, relative humidity, and temperature, combined with fuel moisture affected by extreme drought conditions, can produce dangerous fire risk to lives to the City, including its residents, visitors, and the unhoused population."

Since the 2018 Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decision Martin v Boise, which blocked municipalities from clearing homeless encampments if they do not offer adequate shelter options, encampment clearance has been difficult to navigate legally — especially in Malibu, where there are no shelter beds available. But the declaration, which lasted from late August 2021 through early January 2022, allowed the two major encampments to be cleared without a legal challenge.

At the next Malibu City Council meeting, scheduled for next Tuesday, Sept. 27, council is set to once again consider declaring an emergency that would allow any encampment to be cleared in the VHFHSZ — encompassing all of Malibu.

From January through August of this year, five unhoused people living in Malibu attained permanent housing. During the same period, 24 individuals living in Malibu encampments were recorded as receiving "temporary housing" according to The People Concern data. But, since no shelters exist in Malibu, that means they are being moved to other communities.

Dueñas said the vast majority of Malibu's unhoused people who are receiving services are getting them in the City of Los Angeles, not Santa Monica.

The latest The People Concern report, from August 2022, shared that a homeless individual in Malibu consented to move to a Santa Monica shelter, but many other reports stated that people worked with the St. Joseph Center or Venice Family Clinic.

"We're … moving people into shelter and housing like anybody does," Dueñas said when asked about the perception that Malibu homeless people are being relocated into neighboring communities. "And even Santa Monica, when they move people into shelter and housing, it's not always in Santa Monica. It could be other places, as well.

"We go where it's available," Dueñas added. "I mean, we aren't shooing people out."

Dueñas also pointed out the fire danger posed by hillside encampments, as well as an uptick in people struck and killed by vehicles while walking in or along Pacific Coast Highway in Malibu. (Law enforcement believes up to seven pedestrians killed along Malibu's 21-mile stretch of PCH in 2021 were homeless people.)

Looking into the future, Dueñas said she believed it was unlikely Malibu would see another major decline in its number of unhoused people over the next year or two. Her reasoning was two-fold — first, that the 2020 figure of 239 homeless people was an outlier that she believed had to do with a change in county overnight parking rules, and second, because moving people out of Zuma Creek and Tuna Canyon represented a one-off encampment clearance that could not be replicated.

"My prediction would be we'll maintain [this number]," Dueñas said, adding she might get some blowback for that forecast. "We've always had a pretty consistent number of homeless people now, but we had one year where it went up … We tend to always have about 150, and 150 has always included the Zuma Creek and Tuna Canyon area, but so, by keeping those two areas clear, and if we maintain them, then I think our number will probably stay consistent based on historical numbers."

Re: Housing element

It's unclear whose myopia is worse — the city's or the state's.

The original number of proposed new housing units was already unrealistic, given the lack of both water and power to support those units and the low number of affordable options among them. Increasing the total from just under 8,900 to over 13,000 makes it clear that elected officials are either blind or deaf... in addition to being environmentally dumb.

Lake Mead is approaching "dead pool" status when it will no longer provide either hydropower or water for human and agricultural consumption. There are no new wells to tap for water, and there isn't sufficient green power to augment current generation capabilities. The city has already restricted water use for the existing residents, and the state has asked for voluntary cutbacks in the use of electricity. Apart from some extreme conservatives who claim there is no climate crisis, there is general agreement that it's here and is likely to get worse.

How, then, will the city and state accommodate 13,000 new households... just in Santa Monica? Who believes that, because there's a strong desire to live in California, it's mandatory to accommodate those people? If a concert hall has 9,000 seats that are all taken, the best that the 9,001st person can hope for is that the venue sets up a video feed in the parking lot. They don't have a "because I want to" right to get in and take a seat that isn't there.

This is not exclusionary. It's the reality of the situation. It's not that there's no room in California, it's that there aren't sufficient resources for the tens of thousands of people who the new housing is supposed to accommodate. If the units are built and if they are filled and if the residents who were already here are told that they have to make further cutbacks in water and electricity use, there won't be a politician left standing who supported the expansion.

Cement reproductive rights in California's Constitution

The quest by anti-abortion lawmakers to strip pregnant people and their families of the power to make reproductive decisions and to give that power to the government leaves us all vulnerable—especially since the June ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court threatens not only abortion rights, but all rights protected under the right to privacy.

It's important for California to shore up the rights we're losing at the federal level and to reaffirm the idea that basic decisions about reproductive health care should lie with individuals, not government officials.

That is why Proposition 1 is on the November ballot.

Prop. 1 will explicitly enshrine protections for abortion and contraception in the California Constitution. Protecting these rights by name will ensure that even in the face of any future political shifts in the state Legislature or state courts, a person's fundamental right to abortion and to use or refuse contraception will be protected in California.

Let's set the record straight on what the proposition does or doesn't do. Prop. 1:

Secures the right of Californians to decide for themselves if and when to grow their families, and it keeps personal medical decisions where they belong: between patients and their medical providers. Enshrining these liberties explicitly in the state Constitution prevents activist judges in the future from holding that the privacy protections in the California Constitution do not extend to abortion.

Amends the California Constitution to "expressly include an individual's fundamental right to reproductive freedom, which includes the fundamental right to choose to have an abortion and the fundamental right to choose or refuse contraceptives." This provision is worded in broad terms because that's the nature of constitutional provisions: Their purpose is to articulate general principles and identify basic rights—enabling legislatures to fill in the details. That's why criticism by anti-abortion forces that Prop. 1 doesn't reference the term "viability" is so misplaced. "Viability" is not a term that belongs in the California Constitution. It is not a legal term. It is a medical term—and a complicated and hard-to-define one at that. This is one of the only issues on which the conservative justices who decided the case that overturned abortion rights agree with the major medical associations: The court devotes pages in its ruling to attacking the notion that viability is a legally meaningful line.

Preserves legal protections Californians enjoy and strongly support. It is the opponents of Prop. 1 who are seeking radical change. Their ultimate agenda is to take personal medical decisions out of the hands of individuals—and out of the health care settings, where they belong—and turn them over to politicians and law enforcement. That is not what Californians want.

After Prop. 1 passes, doctors will still be subject to the same medical licensing and professional ethics standards. The state Legislature will still be able to legislate where abortion and contraception are concerned.

We want to live in a state where pregnant people can safely access the health care they need, where doctors are able to practice medicine and help their patients without fear, and where individuals and not the government are entitled to make the most basic and fundamental decisions about our reproductive lives. That is what Prop. 1 secures for future generations.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE SANTA MONICA CITY COUNCIL

SUBJECT: 1) Approval of Addendum to the Final Environmental Impact Report (FEIR) (SCH #2020100575) for the 6th Cycle (2021-2029) Housing Element to the City's General Plan; and
2) Adoption of amendments to the 6th Cycle (2021-2029) Housing Element of the City's General Plan previously adopted by the City Council on October 12, 2021.

A public hearing will be held by the City Council to consider approval of an addendum to the Final Environmental Impact Report (FEIR) previously adopted by the City Council on October 12, 2021 for the 6th Cycle (2021-2029) Housing Element of the City's General Plan, and adoption of amendments to the 6th Cycle (2021-2029) Housing Element. The FEIR was certified and the 6th Cycle Housing Element was adopted by the City Council on October 12, 2021.

The proposed addendum to the Final Environmental Impact Report and revisions to the 6th Cycle (2021-2029) Housing Element were prepared in response to a letter from the State Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD) dated February 8, 2022 determining that the adopted 6th Cycle Housing Element required revisions in order to comply with State Housing Element law. On September 6, 2022, the HCD issued a letter determining that the revised draft Element resubmitted by the City meets all statutory requirements described in the February 8, 2022 letter, and that it will comply with State Housing Element law when it is adopted, submitted and approved by HCD.

On September 22, 2022, the Santa Monica Planning Commission adopted Resolution Number 22-018 (PCS), recommending to the City Council that the City Council adopt the proposed Amended 6th Cycle Housing Element.

DATE/TIME: TUESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 2022 AT 6:30 PM

LOCATION: City Council Chamber, Second Floor, Santa Monica City Hall, 1685 Main Street, Santa Monica, California

California State law requires that communities prepare and update the Housing Element of the General Plan every eight years. The Housing Element serves as the City's guide for addressing the housing needs of all segments of Santa Monica's population. Housing needs are determined by the California Housing and Community Department (HCD), which decide the numerical housing targets for each regional council of governments. Each council of government across the State then further allocates the regional housing number (known as the Regional Housing Needs Allocation – or RHNA) to every city and county within its jurisdiction. The RHNA is a targeted housing number - cities and counties must plan for the RHNA and show that under current land use and development standards, there is capacity to accommodate for this number of housing. For the proposed 6th Cycle (2021-2029) Housing Element, the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) determined that the City's draft RHNA allocation is 8,895 units, more than 5 times than the last cycle. The significant increase in the City's RHNA housing number is indicative of the severity of the current housing crisis. As part of the proposed 6th Cycle Housing Element, Santa Monica must demonstrate to the State that there is available capacity within its jurisdictional boundaries to meet its targeted RHNA number.

On October 12, 2021, per State requirements, the City Council adopted its 6th Cycle 2021-2029 Housing Element, which is available online at www.santamonica.gov/housing-element-update. The proposed revisions to the adopted 6th Cycle Housing Element are based on achieving Housing Element compliance as determined by the State Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD). The adopted Housing Element sets forth a series of goals, policies and programs to be implemented over the next 8 years of the 6th Cycle.

The 6th Cycle Housing Element was analyzed in accordance with the California Environmental Quality Act ("CEQA") and this analysis is contained in the Housing Element Update's Final Environmental Impact Report (SCH #2020100575) (FEIR). At its October 12, 2021 meeting, the City Council adopted Resolution Number 11369 (CCS) certifying the FEIR, and Resolution Number 11370 (CCS), making the findings necessary to adopt the Housing Element and adopting a statement of overriding considerations and mitigation monitoring and reporting program.

On February 8, 2022, the State Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD) issued a letter determining that although the Adopted 6th Cycle Housing Element addressed "many statutory requirements," "revisions would be necessary to comply with State Housing Element Law". The proposed revisions were prepared in response to the comments received from HCD and are consistent with the draft revisions the City Council reviewed at its June 21, 2022 meeting and directed staff to submit to HCD for review. Additional environmental analysis was prepared as an addendum to the project's Final Environmental Impact Report.

On June 21, 2022, the City Council reviewed the draft revisions to the 6th Cycle Housing Element, made recommended revisions, and directed staff to transmit to HCD for review and comment.

On September 6, 2022, the HCD issued a letter determining that the revised draft Element meets all statutory requirements described in the February 8, 2022 letter, and that it will comply with State Housing Element law when it is adopted, submitted and approved by HCD.

The proposed revisions are consistent with the draft revisions presented to the City Council on June 21, 2022, except for revisions to implementation deadlines for certain programs to reflect changes in State law and minor typographical errors. On September 22, 2022, the Planning Commission adopted Resolution Number 22-018 (PCS), recommending that City Council adopt the proposed revisions to the 6th Cycle (2021-2029) Housing Element, with recommended revisions to the proposed implementation timelines for certain programs. The proposed September 2022 revisions to the 6th Cycle Housing Element are available online at www.santamonica.gov/housing-element-update.

The City Council will consider approval of the addendum to the Final Environmental Impact Report and consider the adoption of amendments to the 6th Cycle (2021-2029) Housing Element.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE SANTA MONICA CITY COUNCIL

SUBJECT: Consideration of proposed resolution to adjust the Affordable Housing Unit Base Fee and the Affordable Housing Unit Development Cost for new market-rate multifamily development pursuant to Santa Monica Municipal Code Section 9.64.070(B).

WHEN: Tuesday, October 25, 2022
5:30 P.M.

WHERE: Santa Monica City Hall, Council Chambers, Room #213
1685 Main Street
Santa Monica, California

HEARING DESCRIPTION

The City Council will conduct a public hearing regarding the proposed adoption of two resolutions which would adjust the Affordable Housing Unit Base Fee and the Affordable Housing Unit Development Cost that developers of multi-family projects may pay to the City pursuant to Section 9.64.070(b) of the City's Affordable Housing Production Program. The existing Affordable Housing Unit Base fee for new market rate apartments of $35.50 per square foot would be increased by $3.62 per square foot of floor area and the existing Affordable Housing Unit Base fee for new market rate condominiums of $41.47 would be increased by $4.23 per square foot of floor area. Effective on December 1, 2022, the adjusted Affordable Housing Unit Base fee would be $39.12 per square foot of floor area for new market rate apartment buildings and would be $45.70 per square foot of floor area for new market rate condominium buildings. The existing Affordable Housing Unit Development Cost of $372,460 would be increased by $37,991. Effective December 1, 2022, the adjusted Affordable Housing Unit Development Cost would be $410,451.

The adjustments to the Affordable Housing Unit Base Fee and the Affordable Housing Unit Development Cost reflect changes in land and construction costs based on a methodology adopted by the City Council on June 13, 2006. An explanation of this methodology and the resulting adjustment to the fee and unit development costs are set forth in memoranda prepared by the City. Copies of these memoranda are now available at the City Clerk's Office in Room 102 of City Hall, 1685 Main Street, Santa Monica, California. This information is also available on the City's web site (Housing section).

Planning Commissioner Leslie Lambert raised the issue that factors like population growth could affect the stability of the water supply and said it has been something that has come up in planning for new housing developments.

"Water has been an issue for us during the whole production of the Housing Element and how all these units are going to affect our water supply," she said.

> We've sort of decoupled the rate of population growth and water demand - Sunny Wang

Every city in California is mandated to produce an acceptable Housing Element once every ten years that outlines development guidelines to allow for more residential housing units to be built in order to hit state-mandated minimums as well as other state standards (such as low-income housing availability). The 2020 Regional Housing Needs Assessment mandated that Santa Monica be able to add approximately 9,000 housing units by 2030.

Wang said that conservation policy will be a big part of achieving this and that recent trends have shown a decreased correlation between population growth and water use.

"We've sort of decoupled the rate of population growth and water demand," he said. "Before, they kind of moved together in a similar flow but because of conservation efforts, they've decoupled. That doesn't mean water demand isn't increasing, it's just increasing at a lower rate now, or a flatter slope, if you compare the two."

He said it is critical people continue to be aware of water use and recognize the impacts of their personal actions.

"It's how long do we take showers and do we capture water when you start a shower and the water's coming out cold," he said. "Maybe you need to capture that water and re-use that instead of just letting it go. It's going to be behavioral changes that are going to be important for us to conserve more water."

CITY COUNCIL

When city council meets on Tuesday, Sept. 27, it will discuss embarking on a reduced first phase of the Memorial Park redevelopment, which comes with a price tag of $20 million — funds that have already been secured through a previous SMC bond.

This plan is a downsized version of a $30 million phase one project voted on in 2019. New plans involve the demolition of 16 pickleball and four tennis courts, one softball field, one baseball field, a parking lot, a children's playground and a dog park, but leave two original softball fields, restrooms and a concession stand in place. Further, new plans would include construction of a surface parking lot with 16 rooftop pickleball courts and four tennis courts, two combination fields and a dog park. Originally, the first phase plans also included a community hub with restrooms and concessions and a children's playground, which do not appear in the downsized phase one plans.

The first phase is anticipated to be complete by 2026.

At the Tuesday meeting, city council is also set to consider a lease extension for Pacific Park on the Santa Monica Pier, ensuring the park would continue operations through at least 2050. The amusement park, which opened in 1996, features 12 rides including the iconic Pacific Wheel, as well as games, retail and food.

The amusement park's lease would come with two 10-year extension options through 2070.

If approved, this would be the first extension of the initial lease, which expires in 2026 with two 10-year options remaining.

"Percentage rent will continue at ten percent (10%) of gross receipts in excess of $11,000,000 per calendar year. Base Rent (the minimum rent due under a lease) and Common Area Maintenance (CAM) Charges will continue to be adjusted annually by increases in the Consumer Price Index," according to the staff report detailing the proposed updated lease. "Certain provisions in the Current Lease will be amended to eliminate exclusions from the definition of Tenant's Gross Receipts. These modifications will result in the increase in the Tenant's Gross Receipts for the purpose of calculating the amount of Percentage Rent due to the City and represents an effective rent increase."

According to city staff, Pacific Park's rent is "among the highest in the industry."

The amusement park will also be asked to make repairs once its income is corrected to pre-pandemic levels. Pacific Park, as part of its lease terms, will pledge to spend $10 million in capital improvements/repairs within a five-year period after annual revenue returns to pre-COVID levels.

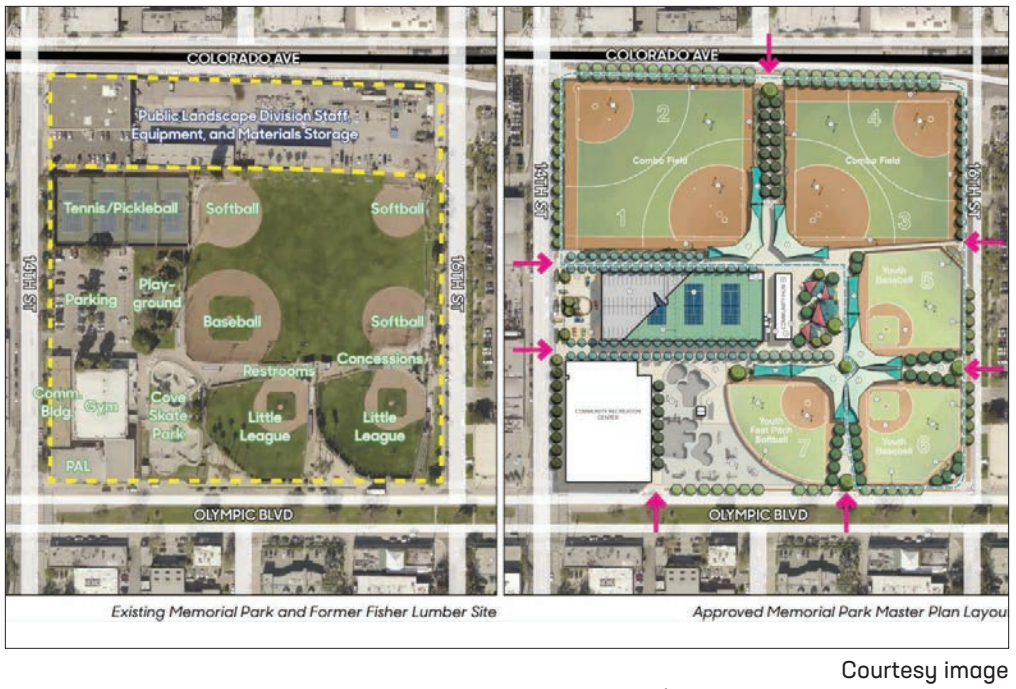

"The Park's total capital improvement commitment would be a minimum of $55 million in today's dollars, comprised of $14 million for long term maintenance of the decking and substructure, and a minimum of $40 million on future capital improvements," according to a staff report prepared for the Tuesday meeting. "Actual capital requirements will be indexed to keep up with construction costs."

The proposed new lease terms would also include "elimination of a requirement on the City to maintain $8 million cash on hand reserve in the event of a Casualty."

A chart attached to the press release also shows the revised lease would result in annual revenues to the city continuing to grow each year, up from about $3 million in the first year of the lease to $13 million in year 23.

There is also an item going before council to approve the establishment of a pedestrian mall on a very limited portion of downtown — a section of First Court between Santa Monica Boulevard and Arizona Avenue. The pedestrian promenade is integral to the recently approved Ocean Avenue Project, the redevelopment of Ocean Avenue between Santa Monica Boulevard and Arizona Avenue designed by architect Frank Gehry set to include a hotel, residential units, shops, restaurants, a museum, a public rooftop deck and a pedestrian "paseo" — up for approval on Tuesday.

PLACE YOUR CLASSIFIED HERE

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 26)

You'll get where you're going in style, whether you're making a smooth landing with your first-class flair for communication or you're rolling up in another iteration of your classic good taste. Treasures await on the outer edges of your comfort zone. A simmering admiration will develop into a deep connection. Leo and Gemini adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 2, 22, 4 and 18.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). As you slip into project management mode, the stars favor you. You'll list, sort and schedule like a boss. The moment right after this planning session brings a surge of accomplishment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your story isn't static. Like all of the stories throughout history, yours is subject to rewrites, especially as new contexts evolve. Keep in mind that the way you frame your past will often be the way others see it, too.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'd like to believe that justice wins in the end, but you're not willing to relax and see what happens. Instead, you'll crusade for what's right and do whatever you can to build the future you believe in.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You've an instinct to protect a thing of beauty. Consider that sometimes you need protection from the thing of beauty instead. The same storm that is scary close up is a wonder to behold from the safety of a distant shelter.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You'll be out in the world with your heart wide-open today, and you don't have to worry too much about losing it either. Like a smartphone, your heart is equipped with a location system. You can always find and retrieve it if necessary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Though you usually strive to be your best, at times it is helpful to tone down your attractive energy in the manner of a spy. Blending in gives you the best vantage point for observing key nuances of your surroundings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). It takes a seasoned eye to spot potential. You will recognize in others the very things you have developed in yourself. You'll give the praise, acknowledgment and help you wish had been afforded to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It's better to get good fortune out of the blue than to expect it, thus having the chance to assess whether it meets the expectation. You're about to give a gift. The most effective way will be to make it a surprise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). People don't appreciate what's readily available to them. You have information, resources, attention and more to give. You're better off making them work for it. They'll like it more, and you'll get the respect you deserve.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You learn fast. You may get it wrong a few times, but what matters is that you don't get it wrong the same way twice. You'll switch tactics until you discover what works, and then you'll apply it again and again for the win.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Do you sense your connection to things outside yourself such as animals or other people's thoughts? It's magical how synchronicity shows up for you, all springing from the peaceful, easy feeling you've been cultivating.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You don't trust those who give too much information, and others won't trust you if you tell stories that aren't yours to tell. The safekeeping of certain secrets will be what's best for all, at least for a time. Loose lips sink ships.
