VOLUNTEER: On September 19, National Clean Up Day, the Venice Chamber of Commerce (VCC) Chamber in Chamber in Action Committee launched its first Pop-Up Crew to clean up litter on Ocean Front Walk. Organized and coordinated by VCC board member and committee chair Brennan Lindner, the group of eight volunteers worked along Ocean Front Walk from Windward to Dudley and for two hours picked up a total of 10 bags of trash. Passersby thanked the crew for their work as they made their way down the route. Volunteers welcome. Contact info@venicechamber.net for more information.

18th Street Arts Center's annual fundraising gala goes virtual

BRENNON DIXSON
SMDP Staff Writer

COVID-19 has forced the postponement of celebrations across the county but local artists said they won't let the pandemic keep them from reveling in the fun during the 18th Street Arts Center's upcoming gala.

In normal circumstances, the annual benefit event provides local residents and art connoisseurs across the county an opportunity to enjoy film screenings and more all while raising funds that will be used to continue the center's community partnerships and arts education programs, which have remained in operation throughout the pandemic.

And while this year's event will be slightly different from last year's gala hosted at the French Consulate in Los Angles, "we still

Smith and Kean lead school board fundraising by wide margin

CLARA HARTER
SMDP Staff Writer

As eight candidates vie for three School Board seats, Jon Kean and Jen Smith are the clear fundraising front-runners, reporting $23,354 and $18,015 in total contributions respectively. Of the other candidates Steven Johnson reported $4,221, Keith Coleman reported $1,794, Esther Hickman reported $1,540, and Maria Leon Vazquez reported $750.

Fundraising in this election cycle so far follows an unusual pattern between incumbents and challengers. While incumbent Kean raised the most money, fellow incumbent Maria Leon Vazquez, who is running for her 6th term, invested the least effort into fundraising. Vazquez only reported $750, including four donations and a $300 personal loan. Meanwhile, newcomer Jen Smith collected 68 donations for a total of $18,015.

Code Enforcement continues operating despite cuts and COVID

BRENNON DIXSON
SMDP Staff Writer

The novel coronavirus has forced cuts in departments and divisions throughout the city, and Santa Monica's Code Enforcement team is adapting to work during the pandemic.

Code Enforcement Manager Sharon Guidry said officers responded to complaints on a host of issues, which ranged from early morning construction and substandard housing conditions to sidewalk vending and unpermitted occupancies, Code Enforcement employees spent considerable time addressing issues related to electric scooters and home-sharing before COVID-19 changed the lives of everybody back in March.

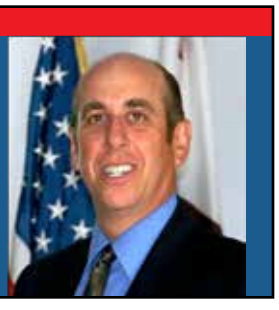

In the months since the outbreak of COVID in America, the city laid off nearly 250 employees citywide. Code enforcement has six less positions after the restructuring even though a need for building inspections and other essential services remained. Since all Code Enforcement Officers are essential

GLENDALE,

Virtual Dia de los Muertos

Forest Lawn will continue its tradition of bringing authentic Día de los Muertos (Day of the Dead) celebrations to the community with this year's virtual event. On Sunday, November 1, from 12 - 2 p.m., Forest Lawn will transform viewers' homes into majestic spaces for remembrance with marigolds, live and larger-than-life sculpture Catrinas, folkloric dance performances, Mariachi music, a Bob Baker Marionette Theater performance, bilingual prayer and spoken word, a brightly colored ofrenda (altar), and more.

- Folkloric dance performances by Ballet Folclorico Internacional
- Mariachi performances by Mariachi Juvenil Herencia Mexicana
- Bob Baker Marionette Theater performance
- Bilingual religious ceremony led by Father Mario Juarez from Christ Cathedral with Mariachi Juvenil Herencia Mexicana
- Live and larger-than-life sculpture Catrinas

Bilingual religious ceremony led by Father Mario Juarez from Christ Cathedral with Mariachi Juvenil Herencia Mexicana Live and larger-than-life sculpture Catrinas

Forest Lawn's virtual Día de los Muertos celebration marks the second appearance of six-foot-tall Catrina sculptures, artisanal creations crafted by Forest Lawn's floral designers and inspired by Mexican Day of the Dead celebrations. The skeletal women symbolize the return of departed loved ones and are a reminder to be true to oneself and enjoy life. Each of Forest Lawn's Catrina sculptures has her own personality, with distinct costumes and accessories inspired by the early twentieth century, the time period when Catrinas were first popularized by Jose Guadalupe Posada and Diego Rivera. In addition to the sculptures, there will be two live Catrinas.

"Forest Lawn will miss welcoming the public to our Día de los Muertos celebration in person, but we look forward to transforming this anticipated annual event into a virtual celebration," says Rodolfo Saenz, Forest Lawn's Senior Vice President, Marketing. "Our virtual event will create authentic, at-home experiences for our community, allowing the public to celebrate and learn about Day of the Dead's distinct traditions."

Forest Lawn's Día de los Muertos celebration will take place virtually on Sunday, November 1, from 12:00-2:00 PM. Streaming is available via Forest Lawn's Facebook page live, and following the event: (https://www.facebook.com/ForestLawn/).

really wanted to make it a compelling evening of performances that you could watch from home," said Sue Bell Yank, the center's Deputy Director who recently discussed the evening's virtual performances and experimental film screening that are set to begin at 7 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 3.

"I think what's really great about this year is we have a super strong group of artists, and great curator that have put together this really beautiful film program that I think speaks to our current times and to the issues of racial injustice and all of the other things that we're struggling with. I think it'll be really, really great for people to see that," Yank said.

The program will kick off with an interactive performance, which was created by Ulysses S. Jenkins specifically for the event, and will end with a live Zoom Q&A featuring curator Jheanelle Brown and several of the filmmakers who are participating in the screening.

"Jheanelle Brown is a really amazing film programmer here in L.A. and she's selected six artists from all over the world who can speak to Black consciousness in some way," Yank said, describing how each individual possesses a different vision of a Black future. "So they have experimental films and videos that we'll be showing during the 45-minute program, then we'll follow up with a Q&A with the curator and some of the artists."

The $100 ticket is pretty cheap for gala standards, Yank said as she detailed the different packages that are available for purchase online at 18thstreet.org/gala2020. "Everything is going to be used to benefit the arts education programs that we've been keeping up during the pandemic," as well as the various community-engagement projects with local artists.

"They're both great causes (because) I think artists are really important these days since the bonds that we can create through art-making and through expression are probably more important now than ever before," Yank said. "So, I think it's really important to support artists and arts organizations right now so they'll be here in the future to help us through times like these. I think it's really going to be a very hopeful and inspiring program of artists," and it's a great thing to do with your Saturday night.

Santa Monica Brew Works Collaborates with German Craft Brewery to Release Oktoberfest Sister City Beer

Santa Monica Brew Works (SMBW) celebrates Oktoberfest by announcing an international collaboration that brings a taste of Germany to the California coast. The brewery teamed up with their craft beer 'siblings', Hammona Bräu of Hamm Germany, to develop the unique brew celebrating their intercontinental connection. Production teams met virtually via video conference to formulate the recipe and discuss the brewing process.

When the team at SMBW was thinking about how to make this year's Oktoberfest release unique, they were delighted to discover that one of Santa Monica's official Sister Cities is Hamm, Germany – home of award-winning craft brewery Hammona Bräu. Since 1969, the cities of Hamm and Santa Monica have shared an appreciation for each other's cultures through the Sister Cities program – and now, the international kinship has inspired its very own beer recipe.

"For centuries, Oktoberfest has brought people together from all over the world to celebrate fantastic beer." Said Scott Francis, SMBW's Co-Founder, President & CEO. "This year is obviously a bit different – but we're thankful for this unique opportunity to connect with our craft beer brethren in Germany."

"We are pleased to be part of this collaboration." Says Mario Gadiel, Owner, Co-Founder & Brewer of Hammona Bräu. "The people of Hamm love old traditions and new friendships."

Oktoberfest Citra Helles (5.0% ABV), is an old-world-style lager brewed with American-grown hops which adds a zesty punch of flavor. Helles, meaning "bright" - is a traditional German-style lager characterized by its pale color, soft malt character, and refreshing finish. For this one-of-a-kind variation, the brewers added Citra hops which provide a vibrant citrus quality. Both breweries will release their own version of the collaboration brew from their respective Tasting Room outlets. SMBW's version is available in 19.2 oz cans on-sale starting Friday, September 25th.

"We chose to brew a Helles lager. A style that's very popular in Bavaria during Oktoberfest." Said Dennis Hecker, Owner, Co-Founder & Brewer of Hammona Bräu. "A nice light beer, that's very drinkable with a great hop aroma."

"We wanted to balance characteristics from traditional German lagers and hop-forward West Coast-style ales." Said Drew Pomatti, SMBW's Head Brewer.

"A little note of fresh lemon gives way to a familiar light, bready malt base. Adds SMBW Brewer Dominic Larubina. "We love the way it turned out, a very sessionable lager."

The limited-edition collaboration brew launches this week to commemorate Oktoberfest – the world's largest celebration of beer. Unfortunately, the traditional festival in Munich is canceled due to the coronavirus pandemic – but the brewers believe this special release will provide a festive feeling for beer lovers while they enjoy at home.

The label design captures the spirit of the collaboration, showcasing Hamm's unique architecture and checkered crest alongside palm trees and ocean waves representing Santa Monica's "Beach Brewed" lifestyle.

Oktoberfest Citra Helles will be available for purchase for a limited time at SMBW's Tasting Room at 1920 Colorado Ave. in Santa Monica beginning Friday, Sept. 25. Visit santamonicabrewworks.com for hours information.

Time for a flu shot

Getting vaccinated for the flu this fall is more important than ever. Not only will a flu shot help keep you and your family healthy, it can help reduce the strain on our healthcare system and keep hospital beds and other medical resources available for people with coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19).

This is no ordinary flu season; it's a flu season amid a pandemic. With two dangerous viruses going around at once, it's time for us to protect our communities by getting the vaccine we already have: the flu vaccine.

A flu shot won't protect you against COVID-19, but it has many other important benefits. Flu vaccines have been shown to reduce the risk of flu illness, hospitalization, and death.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), there's no evidence that a flu vaccination increases your risk of getting sick from a coronavirus, like the one that causes COVID-19.

Those at high risk for flu complications include young children, pregnant women, people 65 years and older, and people with certain chronic health conditions. Anyone who is six months old or older should get a yearly flu vaccine.

The CDC recommends getting vaccinated in September or October, but a flu shot anytime during the flu season can help protect you.

Flu season in North America rarely begins before early October and usually lasts from December to March. In the past two years, the peak activity has occurred around mid-to-late February. Your body needs two weeks after a shot to develop a protective response to the influenza virus, so your best bet is to get vaccinated before the flu rate begins to climb.

Workplaces and other settings that usually provide flu shots may not do so this season because of the challenges of maintaining social distancing. For more information on where you can get a flu vaccine, visit www.vaccinefinder.org.

When going to get a flu shot, please practice everyday preventive actions and follow the CDC's recommendations for running essential errands. Ask your doctor, pharmacist, or health department if they are following CDC's vaccination pandemic guidance. Any vaccination location following CDC's guidance should be a safe place for you to get a flu vaccine.

Medicare Part B covers one flu shot per flu season per beneficiary. You pay nothing for a flu shot if your doctor or other qualified healthcare provider accepts Medicare payment for giving the shot.

If you have a child over six months old who qualifies for Medicaid or the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP), you may also qualify for a flu vaccination at no cost to you.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN FLU AND COVID-19?

Influenza (flu) and COVID-19 are both contagious respiratory illnesses, but they're caused by different viruses. COVID-19 is caused by infection with a new coronavirus (called SARS-CoV-2) and flu is caused by infection with influenza viruses. Because some symptoms of flu and COVID-19 are similar, it may be hard to tell the difference between them based on symptoms alone, and testing may be needed to help confirm a diagnosis.

It is possible to have flu and COVID-19 at the same time. Health experts are still studying how common this can be.

While it's not possible to say with certainty what will happen in the fall and winter, CDC believes it's likely that flu viruses and the virus that causes COVID-19 will both be spreading.

CDC has developed a test that will check for A and B type seasonal flu viruses and SARS CoV-2, the virus that causes COVID-19. This test will be used by U.S. public health laboratories. Testing for these viruses at the same time will give public health officials important information about how flu and COVID-19 are spreading and what preventive steps should be taken.

So please protect yourself, your family, and your community by getting a flu shot this fall.

Pet of the Week

Martin Hernandez

PET: The Adoptable Pet of the Week is available from the Santa Monica Animal Shelter.

Sparkle

Sparkle is my name and free spirit is my game! I'm 3-year-old female Calico who is no delicate flower. I'm not shy about demanding only the highest quality of affection and playtime, and I expect articulate fawning from humans. I'm known to investigate unfamiliar corners to embark on my next big adventure. And, I'm always in hot pursuit of a towering spot to enjoy a good nap. With all my charm, I favor my boundaries, so all of my handling must be on my terms. Come meet me and I just might qualify you to adopt me! Sparkle, ID#A060076, is available for adoption at the Santa Monica Animal Shelter located at 1640 9th Street, Santa Monica CA, 90404. The shelter is closed to the public and adoptions are by appointment only by calling the shelter at (310) 458-8595.

PET TIP OF THE WEEK: BENEFITS OF SPAYING AND NEUTERING DOGS AND CATS

While most pets are spayed or neutered upon adoption, due to private adoption and pets found stray, many dogs and cats remain intact. This contributes to many issues for pets including illness, overpopulation, and overcrowded animal shelters. There are a variety of positive and life-saving reasons to spay and neuter dogs and cats!

Spaying and neutering can prevent major health issues! Spaying reduces uterine issues and cancers in 50% of female dogs, and 90% of female cats. Neutering male dogs and cats reduces testicular cancers and prostate gland issues.

Spaying and neutering promotes better behavior! Spayed female dogs and cats will not go into heat, preventing unplanned litters. This includes spotting, roaming, and howling in female dogs, and excessive urination from female cats. Because neutering stabilizes testosterone in male dogs and cats, it reduces the desire to mark and mount, escape the home in pursuit of females, and aggressions towards other males due to competition for females.

Spaying and neutering saves lives! Unplanned litters contribute to the overpopulation of pets. Female dogs go into heat up to twice a year and may produce up to seven puppies per litter. Female cats go into heat every three to four weeks during mating season and can produce three to four litters a year. The demands of having a litter are costly and overwhelming resulting in many offspring becoming stray and/or being relinquished to animal shelters. Since many shelters are overcrowded, to control the pet population, many dogs of cats of all ages, breeds, and genders are euthanized.

Spaying and neutering increase the chances that dogs and cats stay healthy and well adjusted, ultimately enriching and prolonging their lives. All of which create more opportunity for more homeless pets to find loving homes.

Pet of the Week is provided by Carmen Molinari, a long-time volunteer at the Santa Monica Animal Shelter and founder and CEO of Love At First Sit, a pet care and dog training company in Santa Monica. Learn about her, pet tips, and Love At First Sit services at loveatfirstsit.net

DO YOU HAVE COMMUNITY NEWS?
Santa Monica Daily Press office (310) 458-7737

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (SEPTEMBER 28)

You'll get cosmic gifts you would not have thought to ask for and be delighted by a strange twist in November. You'll provide for your inner circle and be regarded as a leader. You'll sell a high-ticket item in February. In May, promises will be made and deals struck, and there's release from unwanted obligation. Scorpio and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 17, 30, 22 and 48.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Stay with what you're going through. Avoid the mindless activities or busywork that distract you from your thoughts and feelings. There's nothing inside your mind that you need to be afraid of.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). From the ice cream bin to the remote control, there will be a number of readily available, cheap pleasures to choose from. Be advised that what soothes one moment could harm the next.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Novelty is a necessity and can keep creativity alive while staving off depression. However, a little entertainment goes a long way. Too much makes it difficult to focus on what matters.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). The sort of thoughts that travel ever forward are so fun to ride. But when you hit on those thoughts that loop back, or worse, spiral and constrict, it's best to jump off.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The clever one who showed you the ropes, led you down the shortcuts, handed you the recipe has already been repaid with a helping high and the satisfaction of your ease. Now you'll pay it forward.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). When you get stuck, forget about who you are and your role/story/brand... In fact, forget about all relevant nouns and just do the verb. Action is the way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Those constantly signaling their own superiority are actually sending out a clear indicator of insecurity. Instead of criticizing this, you'll embrace it, realizing the extra care that everyone needs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It's easy to discern your preferences and easier still to criticize efforts that don't meet the standard. The hard work is to identify the root cause of one's own insecurity. Why does having superior taste matter so much?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Your storytelling skills can win or lose points today. The way you tell a story will not only make a difference in how you are perceived; it will indicate where you are in your personal evolution.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Inside each problem is an opportunity to learn, grow, innovate or conquer. Now the opportunity will be hard to spot, though, and it will help to have an observant friend around to point it out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Your dream is bigger than the gatekeepers who are keeping you from it. If it's hard to make things happen, consider what you can change. How would this play to a different venue, genre or audience?

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You'll find charm in natural objects, sights and sounds. And if the natural world seems far removed from you now, turn to your nature, which is as beautifully wild as any other alive.

CODE ENFORCEMENT

workers, the remaining 15 employees have been in the community throughout the pandemic working to ensure COVID-19 compliance.

"Our focus has of course shifted as the pandemic has shifted," Guidry said.

He said code enforcement focused on business closures and coronavirus-prevention efforts in construction zones earlier in the safer-at-home orders since so many families were working and learning at home.

"As businesses reopened and adjusted operations, we continued to focus on business compliance for safe reopening," she said. "Face coverings are also a priority."

The division has previously held special enforcement operations with unannounced spot checks to ensure visitors are following the face covering requirement and limiting community spread.

Code Enforcement evaluates its available resources on a weekly basis to make sure enforcement officers are assigned to the highest priority areas, which shift day-to-day.

"And we continue to respond to complaints as quickly as we can with a focus on those that present a life or health safety issue," Guidry said, noting there has been increasing compliance amongst the public since the start of the face covering enforcement operations in early August. "And that's why we're looking to expand enforcement capacity on face coverings and business checks."

Since the division began prioritizing protecting the health of residents, some locals have complained about the lack of enforcement on bans pertaining to smoking in public spaces and noise.

Guidy said Code Enforcement continues to receive a stream of non-COVID-19 citizen complaints.

"Although we have seen a decrease in volume as citizens become more aware of the current enforcement priorities," he said.

Delays in response to requests that are not related to COVID-19, priority areas or other life and health safety concerns should be expected, she added.

"When less focus on COVID-19 compliance is required, we will shift back to addressing the range of complaints we receive in normal times," she said.

If a resident has a code enforcement complaint, they can submit it through Santa Monica Works at smgov.net/santamonicaworks, Guidry said as she commended her team for being adaptable in the wake of unprecedented times.

The sentiment was echoed by Interim City Manager Lane Dilg.

"Our code enforcement officers have been on the front lines of COVID-19 as essential workers supporting County efforts to ensure public health guidelines are followed," said Dilg. "We are grateful to them for their steadfast work throughout the pandemic as well as to residents and business owners for partnering with us to promote public health."

FUNDRAISING

in schools for so long I've met a lot of people and parents in the District and it's been an overwhelming feeling when I call people I've been working with for many years and they say 'oh I'm so excited that you're running' and so they have been willing to give," said Smith.

In addition to donations, several candidates contributed their own money to their campaigns. Kean invested $2,500, Johnson invested $2,200, and Coleman invested $750.

"I've been busy appearing at forums, I hosted two zoom events, and I'm answering questionnaires," said John Kean. "All of this is to get out my message defining my accomplishments over the past four years and sharing my goals for the next four. Fundraising is just one way of providing a medium to communicate your message to the voters of Santa Monica and Malibu."

In this unusual election season where in-person events and canvassing are unsafe, spending on advertisements and communication campaigns is more important than ever. This is especially the case for the newcomers as they must fight to share their name and message with the public for the first time.

"Because of social distancing, some of the traditional campaign tactics (handing out flyers at the grocery store, walking the neighborhoods and knocking on doors, volunteers stuffing envelopes), aren't really available to the grassroots candidate. With a very competitive election locally and nationally, digital and print advertising is going to be more expensive than in past election cycles," said Steven Johnson.

Johnson raised the 3rd most money out all the candidates, but trails fellow newcomer Jen Smith by $13,794. While Smith is a first-time candidate she received several donations from elected officials, including $500 from Board member Laurie Lieberman, $500 from Councilwoman Gleam Davis, $100 from Board member Richard Tahvildaran-Jesswein, and $100 from Councilman Ted Winterer.

Johnson and Smith both received endorsements from the Santa Monica-Malibu Classroom Teachers this week as did incumbents Vazquez and Kean.

"This endorsement is really important to me, not only because the teacher layoffs this past spring were my wake up call, but because I am not an incumbent/insider, and I appreciate the Union looking beyond the status quo for new ideas and new approaches," said Johnson.

This endorsement is particularly important as it represents the opinion of the educators that Board members will spend the duration of their term working with.

"We believe all four candidates possess a strong commitment to public education, to our students, and our educators," said SMMCTA president Sarah Braff. "We believe in their assurance of supporting our teachers in their goals of providing an excellent, equitable education to all of our students."
