MOVING IT: (Left) St. Monica junior Nick Pagnato runs for a long gain against Blair on Friday at SMC. St. Monica won the game, 33-7.

St. Monica rolls over Blair, 33-7

BY DANIEL ARCHULETA
Managing Editor

CORSAIR FIELD Even without primary ball carrier Sean Martinez for much of the game, St. Monica's offensive backfield was able to put in work during a 33-7 win over Pasadena Blair on Friday night at Santa Monica College.

Fullback Kevin Holubowski carried much of the load with two runs for touchdowns and another score off a bad center exchange that opened the scoring for St. Monica.

St. Monica's football team basically routed Blair, but it wasn't without a few shortcomings.

The Mariners dropped a number of passes from new starting quarterback Luke Cain and were saddled with a number of penalties, which drove first-year head coach Adam Guerra crazy. He kept it in check, but he was obviously perturbed by his team's uneven play.

"We like to make it interesting," Guerra said of the win. "We had a few breakdowns, we need to be on the same page."

The lone glaring St. Monica misstep took place when Blair quarterback Octavio Montoya scampered for a 63-yard keeper that made the score 12-7 in favor of St. Monica in the second quarter.

It was the lone Blair highlight of the game, but it got under Guerra's skin as the Airport analysis shows rosy economics

Residents allege bias to keep the facility open

BY ASHLEY ARCHIBALD
Daily Press Staff Writer

CITY HALL Officials will get the opportunity to look at Santa Monica Airport in a whole new light Tuesday when staff presents the findings of seven months of analysis examining the economic impact and potential of the 227-acre space.

Tuesday's presentation represents the culmination of the first phase in a three-part process that the City Council launched in late February with the purpose of taking a hard look at airport operations in order to make educated decisions about the fate of the space in 2015, when officials believe they will have more control over what occurs on aviation land at the airport.

The City Council gave the green light for three companies — HR&A Advisors, Inc., the RAND Corporation and Point C Partners — to move ahead with work looking at the economic impact of the airport in terms of job and revenue generation, land use and the opinions of community members regarding the future of SMO.

The charge comes against the backdrop of decades of controversy revolving around the airport, its neighbors, and ultimately a struggle between the Federal Aviation Administration and City Hall for control of the property.

City officials hope to use the information as part of a visioning process for the property, which will determine how the uses of non-aviation property will evolve and, potentially, how activities of the airport itself can be changed.

At present, City Hall has total authority

L.A.'s latest art project is 340 tons and rock solid

JOHN ROGERS
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES King Sisyphus, it turns out, had little on the folks at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

In Greek mythology, Sisyphus was condemned by the gods to push a giant rock up a hill for eternity. In modern-day LA, the city's largest museum has spent months — and $5 million to $10 million — trying to get a 340-ton boulder from a dusty quarry in Riverside onto its campus west of downtown.

When the teardrop-shaped chunk of granite finally arrives it will become the focal point of acclaimed earth artist Michael Heizer's latest creation, "Levitated Mass." Museum visitors by the thousands are expected to walk under what will be one of the largest environmental art creations ever placed in an urban setting.

Heizer "came up in a generation that wasn't just about what you could create or sculpt in the studio," said Rochelle Steiner, dean of the University of Southern California's Roski School of Fine Arts. "It was about how you could intervene in the elements, in your own environment, in the landscape, and how the environment became not just your subject matter but your situation as well."

The reclusive Heizer is perhaps best known for "Double Negative," the 1,500-foot-long land sculpture he cut into a desert mesa in a remote section of southern Nevada.

"Levitated Mass" will be a major coup for the museum, Steiner said, and will provide the general public a rare opportunity to see Heizer's work up close.

But before that can happen, the museum has to get the rock here, and that's proving a Sisyphean task.

At the Stone Valley quarry, on the outskirts of Riverside, a 196-wheel, 44-axle transport vehicle strong enough to hold more than a million pounds is being constructed. With drivers, steerers and police escorts, as many as 60 people could be involved in the move.

"It will be an entourage," laughed Rick Albrecht, who is supervising the rock's move for Emmert International, an outfit that specializes in moving really big stuff.

Although Emmert has never hauled a rock the size of a two-story house before, Albrecht appears undaunted by the challenge.

"This might be the first time for a rock but our company moved a building in Salt Lake City that was equivalent to a five-story," he said during a recent day at the quarry, as workers with welding torches worked on the transport vehicle. "It was almost 60 foot wide, it was a little over a hundred feet long, and we had to jack it up 14 feet, spin it 180 degrees, move it across the street and jack it back down."

Santa Monica Mountains' lions face extinction

NOAKI SCHWARTZ
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES Morning commuters in Los Angeles were likely startled, if not downright terrified, when a young mountain lion recently strode onto Interstate 405 and was killed by oncoming traffic.

But biologists who have spent a decade studying the lions living in the nearby Santa Monica Mountains say the cat was simply searching for a home. While mountain lion populations are healthy across California, the situation is becoming increasingly desperate for the isolated population in the Santa Monica Mountains.

Lions need as many as 100 square mile each as territories, but the estimated 10 cats in this 275-square mile mountain range are hemmed in by network of freeways, suburbs and the Pacific Ocean.

Without an easier way to connect to the state's larger mountain lion population, biologists say those that live amid the urban sprawl of the nation's second largest city will go extinct from inbreeding.

"It's a very unique situation," said Tim Dunbar, the executive director for the Mountain Lion Foundation. "Usually our urban centers radiate out so there are mountain lions along the edges. What happened in this case is they've sort of been ringed in."

In 2002, the National Park Service decided to study this rare group of urban lions to get a better understanding of how the cougars navigate living in such a setting. Since then scientists have trapped and radio collared 21 lions, allowing biologists to monitor their movements, their feeding, even their attempts to breed.

Mountain lions are one of the most widespread carnivores in the world with a historical range from Alaska to Tierra del Fuego, Chile. They are still found widely across the West and Southwest and even in south Florida

The straw-colored cats are solitary and elusive animals. And despite living against an urban setting, biologists say they were surprised to discover the LA lions still behave as if in the wild, feeding largely on mule deer. Male lions can be as long as 9 feet from head to tail and weigh 220 pounds and both sexes need a lot of territory. Male lions spend their days roaming for food, for females with which to mate and for trespasser lions to kill.

Give the community a shot

Editor:

Just recently, there was a story about some online "gamers" that solved a decade-long AIDS virus conundrum that scientists and computers couldn't figure out. And they did it in 10 days, too. Wow ... gamers? Who would of thought some "dorks" playing video games could figure out a very important piece of AIDS research?

However, after reading this article, it reminded me of the $75,000 that the city of Santa Monica paid some marketing firm two or three years ago to come up with a marketing plan to educate (nice euphemism for stop being idiots) people on why it was bad to give money to the homeless. I remember that their slogan was a "ball and chain" – horrible. It was so bad that people that didn't even care about the homeless thought it was a bad slogan.

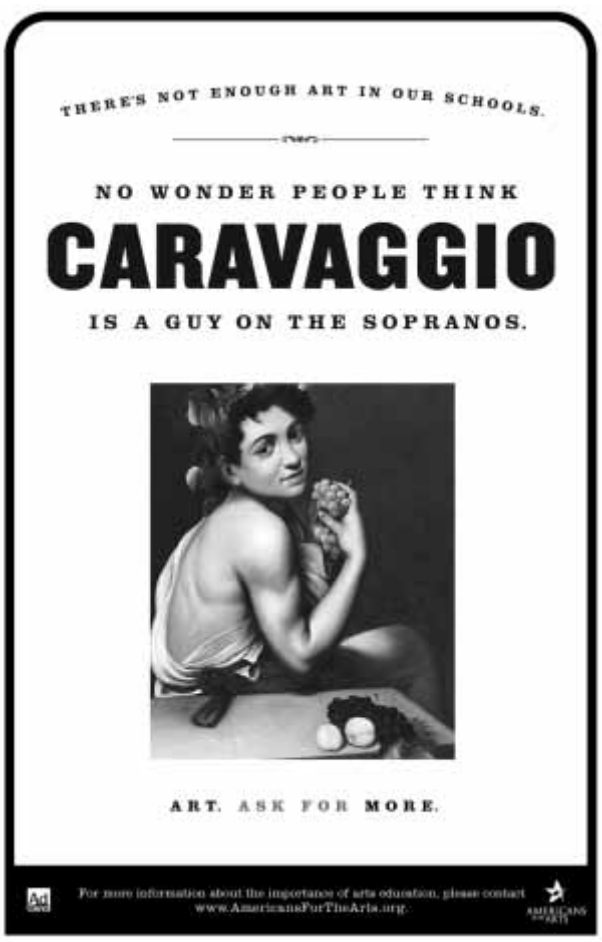

So what did the city do next after they got bamboozled? They gave, I believe, that same marketing firm another $125,000 to do more research so they could come up with another marketing idea. This seems worse than watching a fixed boxing match. But, even with a fixed boxing match, there is an actual fight. So, where is this new homeless marketing campaign? To my knowledge, I haven't seen or even heard about it? How much longer with bated breath do people have to wait? Where is everybody?

It's my opinion that the city has lost this money needlessly. But, if the people in charge would of thought like the AIDS researchers and let the "community" participate, I believe that there would've already been a new marketing campaign, or some new solutions to the homeless situation here in Santa Monica.

Maybe they can still do it? I would suggest that the city put on a contest with the community as the participants and give out cash prizes for those that come up with the best idea.

This type of contest would generate so much more than just a "marketing slogan" or "homeless solution" for the community. First, it would cost less. Second, you would get people in the community talking and comparing ideals, which is the start of all great things. Third, and most importantly, the youth and children of this community would also be able to talk and share their ideas, which, I believe, like the "gamers," would come up with the best ideas.

Putting the horse before the cart

ITEM 3R ON THE CONSENT CALENDAR for last Tuesday's City Council meeting was one of those small expenditures (if you can call spending over a half million dollars "small") that's easily overlooked.

The item was a contract to spend $546,485 for urban design, planning, traffic/parking strategies and economic analysis for the Bergamot Area Plan. The HUD-funded plan will address the cumulative impacts of foreseeable possible developments in the 140-acre, eastern Mid-City study area and make recommendations to reduce negatives associated with extensive development.

According to the Santa Monica Coalition for a Livable City (SMCLC), "The study plan includes the 35 acres of the Bergamot Transit Village District and 7-acre Bergamot Transit Village Center within, 19 acres of the Bergamot Station Arts Center across Olympic Boulevard and another 86 acres of the Mixed Use Creative District. Together this encompasses a huge area from Cloverfield Boulevard on the west to Centinela Avenue on the east and Colorado Avenue on the north and Exposition Boulevard on the south."

Council unanimously approved funding the study without any discussion about putting a number of proposed developments on hold pending its completion.

So far, over a half-dozen new office, commercial and mixed-use developments are being proposed for this Bergamot neighborhood. One corporate headquarters is already under construction. The problem is that piecemeal planning is already threatening to compromise any recommendations derived from the study.

Recognizing that there's pressure from developers to expedite their projects — coupled with the reality that five out of seven council members have already accepted tens of thousands of campaign dollars from developers — SMCLC, neighborhood groups and a cross section of residents want to freeze all commercial neighborhood development activity pending adoption of a final Bergamot Area Plan.

SMCLC recently wrote a letter to the City Council stating that moving ahead and approving projects on an individual basis, "would constitute poor planning policy and piecemeal planning in violation of the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) and our local Land Use and Circulation Element known as LUCE."

SMCLC pointed out that in 2010, City Hall was awarded a HUD Community Challenge Grant aimed at "promoting sustainable and integrated land use, transportation and cultural planning." The $652,500 grant was awarded to develop an area plan in order "to transform the mostly industrial lands into a transit-oriented, mixed-use neighborhood." That grant is funding the Bergamot Area Plan.

Developments floated so far are primarily creative office/work/commercial projects with little or no housing. Critics say these kinds of developments will exacerbate the existing imbalance in office and housing space.

For example, Hines, the developer of the Bergamot Transit Village Center, plans a massive, 766,000-square-foot project with less than 30 percent housing. City Hall planners are on record as advocating for between a 40/60 commercial/residential ratio in one sub-area to a 50/50 ratio in another.

The first projects already on the boards with City Hall's blessings don't even come close to those ratios.

Even though office/commercial space is more profitable to developers and property owners, "It's still not acceptable under the HUD grant, or under LUCE," advises SMCLC.

The proposed Bergamot Transit Village Center for the Papermate site at Olympic Boulevard and 26th Street and two other smaller mixed use/creative office projects — Roberts Business Center and the Village Trailer Park (both on Colorado Avenue) — have already begun the development agreement process.

Senior planner Peter James e-mailed that staff is aggressively "jumping into the next phase … with the expectation to deliver a draft Bergamot Area Plan by late spring." He also noted that community input is ongoing.

Being that the sheer number and size of the developments will affect the city for decades to come, there's absolutely no reason to approve or even provide input for any project until the Bergamot Area Plan is finalized — in a year and some months at the most. If we're going to get this right, things must wait.

WALGREENS IN LIMBO

Speaking of projects, Walgreens' proposed new drug store for the corner of Pico and Lincoln boulevards was recently put on indefinite hold by the Planning Commission pending the appointment of a new commissioner to fill a vacancy (which was just filled).

Even though Walgreens withdrew its intention to sell alcohol and promised reduced hours of operation, there was still a lot not to like about the project. Increased traffic and a parking lot driveway and loading zone in an adjacent alley just feet from nearby homes were two major objections.

Although the property is zoned C4 Highway Commercial, some commissioners advocated for housing on the property to fulfill a LUCE goal of building housing on or near major transit corridors. As if people might want to live at one of the busiest and noisiest intersections in Santa Monica.

Walgreens will most likely be reviewed by the commission again and then referred to City Council for final disposition.

Filipinos still trapped on roofs as typhoons kill 59

JIM GOMEZ
Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines Rescuers scrambled Sunday to deliver food and water to hundreds of villagers stuck on rooftops for days because of flooding in the northern Philippines, where back-to-back typhoons have left at least 59 people dead.

Typhoon Nalgae slammed ashore in northeastern Isabela province Saturday, then barreled across the main island of Luzon's mountainous north and agricultural plains, which were still sodden from fierce rain and winds unleashed by a howler just days earlier. Nalgae left at least three people dead Saturday. Typhoon Nesat killed 56 others and left 28 missing in the same region before blowing out Friday.

Nalgae was whirling over the South China Sea and heading toward southern China late Sunday afternoon, 230 miles (370 kilometers) from the Philippines' northeast coast, with sustained winds of 75 miles (120 kilometers) per hour and gusts of 93 mph (150 kph), according to the Philippine government weather agency.

China's National Meteorological Center urged people in areas expected to be lashed by rainstorms in the next three days, including on southernmost Hainan island and in eastern Taiwan, to stay indoors and cancel large assemblies, China's official Xinhua News Agency reported Sunday.

Nalgae's ferocious winds set off a rock slide in the northern mountain province of Bontoc in the Philippines on Saturday, causing boulders to roll down a mountainside and smash a passing van, where a passenger was pinned to death and another was injured, police said.

In northern Tarlac province's Camiling town, a man sought safety with his two young nephews as flooding rose in their village Saturday. But one of the children was swept away by rampaging waters and drowned, while his uncle and his brother remained missing. A drunken man drowned in flooding in a nearby village, provincial disaster officer Marvin Guiang said.

Nalgae roared through parts of Luzon that had been saturated by Typhoon Nesat, which trapped thousands on rooftops and sent huge waves that breached a seawall in Manila Bay. Nesat then pummeled southern China and was downgraded to a tropical storm just before churning into northern Vietnam on Friday, where 20,000 people were evacuated.

Seven towns north of Manila were still flooded Sunday, including Calumpit in rice-growing Bulacan province, where hundreds of residents remained trapped on rooftops in four villages for the fourth day, many desperately waving for help. Rescuers aboard rubber boats could not reach them because of narrow alleys. Two air force helicopters were ordered deployed to drop water and food packs to the marooned villagers, officials said.

Calumpit Mayor James de Jesus said floodwaters were receding later Sunday, sparking hope the crisis would end sooner. Local leaders have been asked to help distribute relief supplies to residents in areas in the four villages that could now be accessed, he said.

"It's still critical. There are still houses which could not be reached," de Jesus told DZBB radio.

Benito Ramos, who heads the Office of Civil Defense, said he was concerned that freshly dumped rains by Nalgae may flow down from the mountainous north to the central Luzon provinces of Bulacan and Pampanga, which act like a catch basin, especially during high tide in nearby Manila Bay. Some officials said water released from nearby dams had exacerbated the floods.

Ramos criticized those villagers who refused to leave their flooded homes despite orders to evacuate.

During a nationally televised meeting with disaster response agencies, President Benigno Aquino III ordered authorities to study how villagers and fishermen can be forced to follow storm warnings to prevent casualties in the future.

In the last four months, prolonged monsoon flooding, typhoons and storms across Southeast Asia, China, Japan and South Asia have left more than 600 people dead or missing. In India alone, the damage is estimated to be worth $1 billion.

Several studies point to an intensification of the Asian summer monsoon rainfall with increased atmospheric carbon dioxide concentrations, according to the state-run Indian Institute of Tropical Meteorology. Still, it is not clear that the damaging weather is entirely due to climate change, it said.

The damage on agriculture and infrastructure from the earlier typhoon in the Philippines was estimated at $200 million. Rice and vegetables could be obtained from the country's south in case of supply shortfalls due to damaged farms and blocked roads in the north, officials said.

Nalgae was the 17th weather disturbance this year to batter the disaster-prone Philippines, which is lashed by about 20 storms and typhoons annually. A low pressure area has been monitored 435 miles (700 kilometers) off the archipelago and could either dissipate or strengthen into another storm in the next few days, forecaster Gener Quitlong said.

FULL DISCLOSURE: As a result of a 2007 lawsuit brought by the American Environmental Safety Institute, two leading tattoo ink makers must now place warnings on their product containers, catalogs and websites to say that the 'inks contain many heavy metals, including lead, arsenic and others' and that the ingredients have been linked to cancer and birth defects.

Truth about tattoos

Dear EarthTalk

I'm interested in getting a new tattoo, but recently found out that red tattoo ink contains mercury. Is this true of other tattoo inks as well? Are there any eco-friendly alternatives?

John P.,
Racine, Wash.

IT IS TRUE THAT SOME RED INKS USED for permanent tattoos contain mercury, while other reds may contain different heavy metals like cadmium or iron oxide. These metals-which give the tattoo its "permanence" in skin-have been known to cause allergic reactions, eczema and scarring and can also cause sensitivity to mercury from other sources like dental fillings or consuming some fish. While red causes the most problems, most other colors of standard tattoo ink are also derived from heavy metals (including lead, antimony, beryllium, chromium, cobalt nickel and arsenic) and can cause skin reactions in some people.

Helen Suh MacIntosh, a professor in environmental health at Harvard University and a columnist for the website, Treehugger, reports that as a result of a 2007 lawsuit brought by the American Environmental Safety Institute (AESI), two of the leading tattoo ink manufacturers must now place warning labels on their product containers, catalogs and websites explaining that "inks contain many heavy metals, including lead, arsenic and others" and that the ingredients have been linked to cancer and birth defects.

Of course, exposure to mercury and other heavy metals is hardly the only risk involved with getting a tattoo. The term tattoo itself means to puncture the skin. Tattoo ink is placed via needles into the dermis layer of the skin, where it remains permanently (although some colors will fade over time). Some people have reported sensitivity springing up even years after they first got their tattoo; also, medical MRIs can cause tattoos to burn or sting as the heavy metals in the ink are affected by the test's magnetism.

Beyond the long term risks of walking around with heavy metals injected into your body's largest organ (the skin), getting a tattoo in and of itself can be risky business. If the tattoo parlor's needles and equipment aren't properly sterilized in an autoclave between customers, you could be exposing yourself to hepatitis B or C, tuberculosis, mycobacterium, syphilis, malaria, HIV or even leprosy.

"The potential risk of infectious spread from tattooing (particularly due to Hepatitis B) is high enough that it is a practice that should be avoided by pregnant women to safeguard the health of the baby [and that of the pregnant woman herself] whose immune system is down regulated and is much more vulnerable to these types of infection," reports dermatologist Audrey Kunin, who runs the popular Dermadoctor website. Dr. Kunin advises to be careful about choosing a tattoo parlor: "Make sure the place is reputable, perhaps check with the health department to see if there have been past claims against the parlor in question if you still have doubts." She adds that since tattoos are essentially open wounds, they must be cared for properly, especially in the first few weeks, to stave off infection.

Those who want go ahead with getting a tattoo anyway despite the risks should consider steering clear of colors derived from heavy metals. Dr. Kunin reports that black might be the safest permanent tattoo ink; it is often derived from a substance called carbon black and rarely causes any kind of sensitivity issues. If your heart is set on red in your tattoo, ask around to see if any tattoo parlors in your area are willing to work with non-metallic organic pigments that lend a red color such as carmine, scarlet lake, sandalwood or brazilwood. There are non-metallic alternatives available for many other popular tattoo ink shades, too.

Los Alamos under renewed environmental scrutiny

JERI CLAUSING
Associated Press

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. Pickup trucks believed present at the world's first nuclear bomb test, coke and whiskey bottles, a calendar and a toothbrush are just a few of the items unearthed by a cleanup of one of Los Alamos National Laboratory's original toxic dump sites, where the detritus of the 1940s Manhattan Project was strewn through some of northern New Mexico's most scenic mesas and canyons.

More important, workers also extracted 43,000 cubic yards of radioactive debris and toxic soil — all beneath highly specialized containment domes — from what is known as Area B, just across the street from a strip of local businesses, and just more than a mile from downtown Los Alamos.

The three-year, $212 million excavation project on the six-acre site was completed last month, and lab officials boast that environmental conditions there will soon be suitable for residential development.

That's the good news.

But cleaning up the greater 40-square mile lab complex, situated 25 miles northwest of Santa Fe at the top of a series of canyons whose storm waters run into the Rio Grande, is far from complete. And this summer's massive Las Conchas fire that singed lab property heightened environmental and safety fears associated with more than 70 years of nuclear production and experiments.

"I think every time that there is some natural event that has ... the potential for disturbing radioactive sources, everybody becomes very interested in what is going on," said Ralph Phelps, chairman of the Northern New Mexico Citizens Advisory Board.

Although lab officials downplayed the fire danger at the time, Phelps said the waste and contaminated buildings at the 63-acre site known as Area G definitely pose a safety threat to northern New Mexico.

As a result, Gov. Susana Martinez and the Citizens Advisory Board have increased pressure on the National Nuclear Safety Administration, which runs the lab for the Department of Energy, to accelerate removal of thousands of barrels of plutonium-tainted waste stored in Area G, the lab's last active dump site. Those barrels gained national focus when the state's largest ever wildfire forced a nearly weeklong evacuation of both the lab and the entire town of Los Alamos.

"Fire up here is something that the folks have been through," Phelps said. "... If a fire were to reach that that area and heat that stuff up and rupture the drums, there is the potential that some of that could go airborne."

Martinez sent lab officials a letter asking that they reprioritize their cleanup plans, which are laid out in a consent order with the state requiring remediation of 90 percent of toxic waste on lab property by 2015 at a cost of some $2 billion.

That consent order covers 33 underground canals of radioactive waste below the barrels, but not the barrels, which are awaiting transfer to the Waste Isolation Pilot Project in southern New Mexico. A record 170 shipments of the legacy waste from the nation's premier nuclear weapons facility were taken to WIPP in the fiscal year that just ended, but the equivalent of some 40,000 barrels remain.

"The governor wants to get the (barrels) off the hill and protect the groundwater and wastewater," said Ed Worth, who oversees waste cleanup at the lab.

The same top priority was approved last week by the Citizens Board, volunteers comprised of former lab workers, retirees, public employees and others, chartered by DOE to make recommendations on establishing the order of cleanup initiatives.

"All we do is tell them they should," said Lawrence Longacre, a board member expressing frustration that the priority recommendations had no teeth. "Is there any way we can hold their feet to the fire and say do A, B and C?"

Worth told the board their recommendations are being heard and taken seriously, noting that President Obama's budget request this year for lab cleanup "was more than we ever expected."

Congress, however, has cut the Los Alamos cleanup request for $358 million to $185 million, raising the question of the lab's ability to meet the consent decree

When cleanup first came into focus, some 2,160 separate areas at the vast complex were identified as having the potential to release radioactive or other hazardous contamination. That includes everything from diesel spills to plutonium contamination to explosives. Some 800 contaminated areas remain untouched, including nine of 26 dump sites. Like Area B, lab officials have no idea what some of those sites contain.

Down the hill from Area B for example, is another site that officials say could be even worse.

Not all the waste will be removed. Much of it — like the 33 underground shafts at Area G — will just be capped or buried deeper, with special monitors for lab officials to check for toxic leakage.

The canyons that unfurl beneath the lab complex are also a concern. During the early years, liquid waste was simply drained from buildings out over the cliffs.

Although the lab has cleaned up many of the canyons, storm runoff after major fires like Cerro Grande in 2000 and Las Conchas, the state's largest ever, disrupt the soil, sending new toxins downhill. Since this summer's massive fire, lab officials said they did not yet have new readings or reports on whether any toxins have made their way into the Rio Grande, which supplies water to downstream cities including Santa Fe and Albuquerque.

But Worth told the Citizens Board last week that storm runoff has moved some sediment which could require more remediation in the canyons.

The lab does have readings from runoff coming down from above the lab. Officials say they show an increase in dioxins and some other toxins consistent with a forest fire. They also insist the levels of toxins in those readings are routinely higher than those from runoff below the lab, that those levels of radiation are associated with nuclear testing from around the world, and are no different from readings in other mountainous regions.

Alley Resurfacing Project
The alley in the 900 block of 12th Court will be resurfaced starting on Oct. 3-17 – daily work start time is 7 a.m. and end time is 4:30 p.m. Please be advised that resurfacing operations will generate noise and dust. There will be certain times when the alley will not be accessible during construction, but the city will minimize these times of closure during the day. Questions should be directed to the Public Works Street Maintenance Division at (310) 458-4991. For more info on Alley Renewal Program, go to: www.smgov.net/streets/alleyprogram.

Expo Light Rail Line Project
Follow daily construction updates on Twitter at twitter.com/EXPOinSM. Construction activity will take place on Colorado Avenue between Fourth and 17th streets. Temporary lane closures may be necessary, but one lane in each direction will remain open at all times. For questions regarding this project, contact Expo Light Rail Line Community Relations at (213) 922-EXPO or www.BuildExpo.org.

Transit Priority Systems Project
Installation of the Transit Priority System (TPS) at 80 traffic signals along major corridors within the City of Santa Monica. Partial roadway closures or detours are expected at various locations on Pico Boulevard between 11th and 23rd streets, but impact to traffic should be minimal.

Water Main Replacement
The water main at Third Court between Arizona Avenue and Wilshire Boulevard is undergoing removal and replacement. Please be advised that two-way traffic will be allowed on each side of the construction work zone for local access only. Alley will be closed to through traffic and lane closure will be in place for night time work on Wilshire.

Pier Parking Lot Storm Drain Improvement Project
Drainage improvements will take place to the 1550 parking lot just north of the Santa Monica Pier. A gravity storm drainage system will be installed to replace the existing pump system. The bike path underneath the pier will be closed; however a bike path detour to Appian Way will be available.

Southern California Edison Installation
Installation of electrical conduit and vaults on 20th Street from Olympic Boulevard to Wilshire Place North. Estimated project completion is November 2011. Lane closures will occur on the east side of 20th Street between Colorado and Arizona avenues. Expect traffic delays. Use alternate routes whenever possible.

For more information on projects, please visit the Know Before You Go Web site at www.knowB4ugo.smgov.net.

ST. MONICA

Mariners improved to 3-2 on the season. Blair fell to 1-3 with the loss.

"There are still things that we need to work on," Guerra said. "But, I think we're getting there."

For Holubowski, he was just happy to contribute.

Having scored the first three scores for St. Monica, it was the junior fullback that paced the offense. But, to hear him tell it, it was just chance.

"I guess I was in the right place at the right time," he said. "This win gives us a lot of confidence."

Aiding Holubowski was fellow running backs Nick Pagnato and Major Laurance. The juniors were pivotal for St. Monica in Martinez' absence. Pagnato scored on an 8-yard run, and Laurance added a 5-yard score of his own.

The contributions from St. Monica's back-up ball carriers suited Guerra just fine. He's been building St. Monica into a running team during his short time on campus and Friday's performance by his stable of running backs was in line with his approach to the game.

"People stepped in," he said. "Sean is quite a player, but our other guys came up big with him not in there."

Blair head coach Gary Parks was impressed with St. Monica's ability to run the rock as well.

"They are a good physical team," Parks said. "They are a very disciplined group."

Parks said that St. Monica has the goods to compete in a Santa Fe League that the Mariners won last season en route to a playoff berth.

"They have the potential to make some noise this season," he added.

Next for St. Monica is a road game against Santa Clarita Christian on Saturday. The game is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

over 40 acres of non-aviation land, which houses restaurants, an antique market and a large concentration of art galleries and work spaces.

The remaining 187 acres has nearly 400 aircraft and aviation service providers, and is largely under the control of the FAA per the terms of an operations agreement signed by city officials in 1984.

That agreement, and the leases to aviation-related businesses on airport property, expires in 2015, which opens up a three distinct possibilities, said Martin Pastucha, director of Public Works, the department that recently took over responsibility for airport operations.

"Then the question is what happens after that," he said. "If you continue on the road that the 1984 agreement laid out, or operate with no restrictions. "

A third option would be the closure of the airport itself.

According to HR&A, the airport campus has 177 aviation and non-aviation businesses spread across 42 different industry sectors that support 1,487 full- and part-time jobs. For every direct job, an additional 1.66 jobs are created within the economy in terms of support services, according to the analysis.

The annual operation of the airport generates a total economic output of $275.2 million in the local economy, including $187.5 million in annual tenant sales, government expenditures and visitor spending at city businesses.

"Stated another way, the sale of direct economic activity at the airport [$187.5 million] is equivalent to the direct economic output generated by 1,855 average-price hotel rooms, or 1.2 million square feet of general retail or 350,000 square feet of commercial office space," the report reads.

In the 2010-11 fiscal year, the airport managed that with no general fund subsidy, said Susan Cline, assistant director of Public Works.

The RAND Corporation looked forward from what is present to what could be at the campus, focusing primarily on non-aviation land.

Its recommendations looked at modernizing facilities, improving road access, increasing the number of "neighbor-friendly" uses like restaurants and making the airport campus the home of sustainability measures and business development.

Only one of the suggestions reflects on the airport itself — hosting an Emergency Communications and Control Center that would act as a regional hub for emergency services in West Los Angeles.

The analysis didn't satisfy Cathy Larson, the co-chair of the Friends of Sunset Park Airport Committee.

Resident objections to the airport are based largely on health and safety concerns, which got a boost from an August accident where a student pilot crashed into a home in the Sunset Park neighborhood.

"We were hoping that they would have come up with alternatives to address the main concerns of the community regarding the airport, meaning the noise impacts, emissions impacts and safety impacts," she said. "When you look at the points under the RAND study, none of them address that."

The report also doesn't look at airport closure in any detailed way, instead focusing on the difficult legal battle that would inevitably await if City Hall decided to curtail or cease aviation-related activities on the site.

According to the staff report, the FAA holds that City Hall has an obligation to operate the airport in perpetuity, or at least until 2023.

That date marks 20 years from the last time City Hall accepted money from the federal government for the airport, FAA officials hold. Under federal law, airports must stay open for 20 years after the last time a municipality accepts money from the federal government for airport improvements.

City Hall, on the other hand, maintains that the 2023 date refers to a payment received for projects begun in 1994, and that the drop-dead date should reference when the projects got underway.

The power struggle between City Hall and the FAA has led to clashes over the decades, most recently an unsuccessful eight-year court battle over a jet ban which cost over $1.5 million in attorneys' fees alone.

"It is crystal clear that, if the city attempts to close the airport, the FAA will not hesitate to aggressively fight against the closure in the courts," reads the staff report. "Such a fight would go on for years; and, at best for the city, the outcome would be highly uncertain."

With that laid out, it appeared to some community members that the remainder of the report, and even how some of the research was conducted, was slanted in favor of keeping the airport open and even convincing people that SMO was an asset rather than a liability, Larson said.

Point C Partners conducted approximately 130 interviews either in person or over the phone with community members and stakeholders, but closure of the airport wasn't on the table. Several residents have reported that they felt that the questions were biased.

"That's the most disappointing thing that I see in the staff report at this time," Larson said. "They're just trying to spin the airport as great for the community, and I don't see it that way."

At Tuesday's meeting, the City Council will have the opportunity to review the information and either approve staff to move forward with the second phase of the process — extensive focus groups with community stakeholders — or go back to the drawing board to get additional information.

Larson hopes it's the latter.

"There's a high probability that at the end of the discussion period, the council will address staff either to go on to the next phase or realize that there's something lacking in this study phase," Larson said. "They might ask staff to do additional work to look at options and do some of the things that were not addressed in the preliminary phase."

LEGEND

DRY -- each location is graded on an A – F scale based on bacterial pollution levels present in the surf zone
WET -- grades for days of recorded rainfall and the following 3 days
ns -- no sample taken

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card® is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A–F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Heal the Bay is a non-profit environmental organization dedicated to making Santa Monica Bay and Southern California coastal waters safe and healthy for people and marine life.

Dinner for two tonight, Gem

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ If you don't take the lead, no one else will. You might have little choice. As you can be determined and fiery, it might be best if you lead the charge anyway. Opportunities head in where you least expect them. Tonight: A must appearance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ If you have an unexpected but unwanted insight, you need to detach and probably head down a new path. This new road could involve being less reactive or actually experiencing something totally new. Though you are a conservative sign, you will be able to let go. Tonight: Follow the music.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Relate directly to others with a willingness to part from the past. An opportunity will present itself if you follow your intuition. Honor a need for more space and centering. Then you will blossom and reveal your complete self. Tonight: Dinner for two.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ You can flow naturally if you go with your moods. Focus on the long-term implications of a situation. You want your relationships -- both professional and personal -- to succeed. Don't lose sight of this goal. Tonight: Where the action is.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Before you know it, you could be entrenched in a project. News that heads in your direction could be a shock, but somehow it doesn't distract you. Revise your plans and don't worry about others' judgments. Tonight: Clear your desk, then choose something relaxing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ No matter what situation you find yourself in, your creativity flourishes. Your imagination seems relentless. Touch base with a child or loved one. Through detachment, you'll find a solution. Tonight: Keep it light.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ If you can make your work environment more agreeable, then do. Allow greater give-and-take within your immediate surroundings. You cannot control anyone anyway. If you feel more productive at home, work from there. Tonight: Make a clear separation between work and your personal life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Reach out to others. The only mistake you can make is to stand on ceremony. Establish boundaries in a caring manner. Others express a lot of concern about what is happening around you. Tonight: Let the good times in.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Take a hard look at your budget. This accounting might not involve your personal funds, but someone else's or perhaps at work. You might be surprised by what you see and a decision you make. You are on the right track. Tonight: Squeeze in some exercise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Your strength and endurance might be needed to carry a job or project to the finish line. Your ability to tap into your creativity encourages others to do the same. Welcome a brainstorming session. Tonight: Don't push beyond a certain level.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ If you look around, you might decide to maintain a low profile. Whatever the reason, you sense that something is off. You are changing profoundly within. A domestic matter or real estate investment needs checking out. Tonight: Stay anchored.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Schedule meetings and return calls. Your people skills make all the difference in what occurs. A discussion fills in a lot of the gaps. New ideas abound. What might have held some promise now becomes unusually dynamic. Tonight: Only what you want.

Happy birthday

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS
The stars show the kind of day you'll have:
★★★★★Dynamic ★★ So-So
★★★★ Positive ★ Difficult
★★★ Average

You swing back and forth from extrovert to introvert this year. You enjoy carousing and being social, but you also honor your priorities. For the first time in many years, you tackle a personal or domestic matter head-on. This attitude can and will make all the difference in your life. Others will understand how very determined you are. If you are single, you cannot deny your love of romance. Honor that passion and watch everything else tumble into place. Take your time before committing.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Risky Business Models: (1) Orlando-area cosmetic surgeon Jeffrey Hartog inaugurated Liquid Gold, a storehouse for patients' frozen liposuctioned fat, charging $900 to safekeep a coffee-cup-sized portion and $200 per year storage (in case the fat is needed later, as for smoothing facial wrinkles). A Massachusetts General Hospital physician shook his head, telling the Orlando Sentinel, "(F)rozen fat doesn't hold up as well as fresh fat." (2) German biochemist Peer Bork told the journal Nature in September that he and his partners built the not-for-profit MyMicrobes.com social network so that people with similar stomach bacteria can commiserate over diet and gastrointestinal woes. The $2,100 signup fee includes a full gut-bacteria sequencing.

■ Wild Things: Motorist Clyde White of Corbin, Ky., was charged with attempted murder in August after police finally collared him following a road-rage chase that reached speeds of over 100 mph. White, who had repeatedly rammed his two siblings in their vehicle, is 78 years old, and in that other vehicle were his brother, 82, and his sister, 83.
