Supply squeeze prompts record gas prices

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

Average gasoline prices in Los Angeles have risen 63.4 cents per gallon in the last week, according to GasBuddy's survey of 2,135 stations in Los Angeles. Prices in Los Angeles are $1.08 cents per gallon higher than a month ago and stand $1.93 per gallon higher than a year ago.

The national average price of diesel has declined 2.9 cents in the last week and stands at $4.86 per gallon. According to AAA, the national average pump price for a gallon of gas maintained its recent surge, rising seven cents over the past week to hit $3.79. AAA put the Los Angeles Average at $6.47 on Monday.

"With gas prices continuing to surge on the West Coast and Great Lakes, the national average saw its second straight weekly rise. But at the same time, areas of the Northeast and Gulf Coast have continued to see declines as the nation experiences sharp differences in trends between regions," said Patrick De Haan, head of petroleum analysis at GasBuddy. "Some West Coast states saw prices rise 35 to 55 cents per gallon in the last week as refinery issues continued to impact gasoline supply, which fell to its lowest level in a decade in the region, causing prices to skyrocket. While I'm hopeful there will eventually be relief, prices could go a bit higher before cooling off. In addition, OPEC could decide to cut oil production by a million barrels as the global economy slows down, potentially creating a catalyst that could push gas prices up further."

AAA also cited local supply issues as one factor in the disparity.

Grace Inez Adams

PRICE: Local prices are even higher than regional and state averages.

"The regional differences in gas prices are stark at the moment, with prices on the West Coast hitting $6 a gallon and higher, while Texas and Gulf Coast states have prices dipping below $3 in some areas." said Andrew Gross, AAA spokesperson. "At least six California refineries are undergoing maintenance, and there is limited pipeline supply to the West Coast from locations east of the Rockies."

However, there are questions over just how much of the increase is driven by costs.

Consumer Watchdog has asked California Governor Gavin Newsom to call a special session of the California legislature to address the unprecedented price of gas in the state.

The group said local regulations only add about 60 cents at the pump and said a new law sponsored by Senator Ben Allen (D - Santa Monica), SB1322, will help address questions over gas prices by requiring oil refiners to post monthly profits per gallon starting in January.

Allen said refiners are not currently required to report their profits monthly, but many do report their regional profits to investors on a quarterly basis. According to Allen's office, in just the second quarter of 2022, California's five big oil refiners reported unprecedented windfall profits that topped $26 billion—making from three to ten

Madame Wu, restaurateur to Hollywood's elite, dies at 106

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sylvia Wu, whose famed Santa Monica restaurant drew Hollywood's biggest stars for four decades, has died at age 106, according to a news report.

Madame Wu's Garden on Wilshire Boulevard became a dining destination shortly after it opened in 1959, popular for its cuisine and pagoda-style decor featuring jade statues, a stone waterfall and a koi-filled fountain.

Madame Wu herself was known for wearing a floor-length silk gown while alternately greeting Tinseltown's elite and picking up the phone to take to-go orders.

She died Sept. 19, the Los Angeles Times reported Saturday.

Madame Wu said she was inspired to open the restaurant after arriving from China and finding only heavy faux-Cantonese dishes.

"Chop suey everywhere," she complained to USA Today. "All you see are chop suey houses."

At Madame Wu's Garden, Mae West favored the cold melon soup, Gregory Peck and Paul Newman enjoyed the shrimp toast and crab puffs, while Princess Grace of Monaco preferred the Peking roast duck, according to the Los Angeles Times.

"Everybody in this town knows Madame Wu," the late television host Merv Griffin once told the newspaper. "One of the dearest, sweetest, most elegant women I've ever known."

After she closed the restaurant in 1998, she immediately regretted the decision and opened Madame Wu's Asian Bistro & Sushi. That restaurant didn't last, but affection for Madame Wu persisted. When she turned 100 in 2014, her old customers filled up a hotel ballroom for her birthday party.

Born Sylvia Cheng on Oct. 24, 1915, she grew up in Jiujiang, a city southwest of Shanghai where she learned to cook while watching the maid prepare meals for her well-to-do family.

The family moved to Shanghai and then Hong Kong. During World War II, she took an ocean liner to New York City.

"I don't know how I had the courage," she later recalled. "I had no family in America. The trip took 40 days, and because of the war there was a blackout all the way."

While pursuing an education degree at Columbia University, she met King Yan Wu, a successful chemist. They married, had three children and moved to LA, where he took an engineering job at Hughes Aircraft Co. and she became a restaurateur.

She also wrote cookbooks, appeared regularly on television and became active with charity work, particularly at City of Hope cancer center after her daughter, Loretta, died of breast cancer at 34.

Wu is survived by sons George and Patrick and numerous grandchildren, according to the Los Angeles Times. Her husband died in 2011. The two had been married 67 years.

Domestic Violence Awareness Month is Here Again

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AWARENESS MONTH

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month, and sadly this month is still required to raise awareness. This is the first of my annually updated columns on the topic. As much as we'd all love to see it end, the reality is that so long as there are humans, there will be domestic abuse and violence. No one is safe from it. Whether as a victim or a perpetrator. The one thing that I've noticed over the past 20 years of practicing family law is that the definition of what is abuse has expanded as the awareness has increased. It has also become a more powerful tool in the arsenal of family law litigants – so long as you put in the "magic words" and preferably are female. The truth is that abuse of men happens, but is rarely acknowledged by the courts.

Since domestic violence affected me as a child, and is a major factor in my professional career I am dedicating all four columns this month to the topic. There are many misconceptions about what constitutes domestic violence, who perpetrates it, who is victimized by it, and what the long term effects are for those caught in its clutches.

Growing up in a violent alcoholic household, the Friday Night Fights weren't on TV, they were in our living room. These alcohol fueled battles led to broken bones, shattered furniture and one terrified baby boy – me. I can recall with bone chilling clarity the time my older brother took me out of the firing line, and as we walked to the car, he said, "I'm just waiting for them to kill each other." I was about 5, he was about 21 – that's the toxic environment we were living in.

It probably wasn't much afterwards that my mother taught me how to knife fight. She called me in to the kitchen, I was 5 or 6 and she said, "Davey, when you're using a knife to protect yourself, you always put it blade side up. That way when the other guy goes to knock it down, they cut themselves." I know she was doing it to give me a life skill. I'm sure she loved me and wanted the best for me. I'm not so sure that teaching a child this, at that age, was the best parenting move.

Parenting and domestic violence have become inextricably linked these days. The family courts are on the front lines of trying to reduce domestic violence in a society that idolizes, cherishes and honors violence in most forms. We hold up as heroes the most powerful football players, but make them wear pink for breast cancer awareness and do public service announcements on TV to "stop the violence." We want to protect our children at all costs, and in the process have created a culture around the topic of domestic violence that is easily abused itself, and can become the tool of oppression.

Domestic violence is a multi-dimensional dynamic that affects an entire family. When one partner is dominating the relationship, and the family, that is a form of domestic abuse in today's parlance. When one partner is "disturbing the peace" of the other partner, that is grounds for a restraining order and to kick someone out of their home.

The courts have allowed the creation of a system of protection that is based on little to no evidence, but that will strip someone of their Constitutional rights, their home, their children, their careers – all on the basis of a declaration that the alleged perpetrator is violent, or more tellingly, that the victim "is afraid that the perpetrator may become violent."

This is a far cry from my childhood when the police would be called and tell one parent, usually the male, to go away for the night. Today there are laws across the country that mandate an arrest. But there's a catch, most of those laws do not dictate that the First Aggressor should be arrested, but that the Primary Aggressor, should be arrested. What's the difference you ask? Size and power. The problem with this is that the smaller person can provoke the larger, and know that the police will reward their bad behavior by arresting the larger.

What about those situations where someone needs to escape the violence? What types of resources are available? Where do terrified and terrorized individuals go for help? There are many shelters in Los Angeles county and I have visited or spoken to shelter directors and they have informed my views of what is needed and what can be done to protect the vulnerable. They have also shown me how great the need is in underserved populations, and we have a large underserved population in Los Angeles county for shelters services.

What is needed, who will provide it, how will it be paid for, these are all questions I have asked and will be sharing with you in the next few columns. I have reached out to the Los Angeles Domestic Violence Council with mixed results, I've heard from the Supervising Judge of the Family Law Department of the Superior Courts and I've interviewed experts from across the political spectrum and across the country. There is much work to be done in this area to bring down the levels of domestic violence and people vehemently disagree over tactics.

But the one thing the one thing we can all agree on, is that the effects on children are not good – ever.

times more in profits per gallon off their West Coast operations from April through June than they did in the same period last year.

"For far too long, refiners in our state have been able to keep their profit margins under wraps," said Allen, who chairs the Senate Environmental Quality Committee and the Legislative Environmental Caucus. "I am very pleased by Governor Newsom's signing of SB 1322, finally giving California drivers more information about why they are paying so much at the pump amidst record gains by oil companies."

Consumer Watchdog said record profits recently reported to investors shows the industry is reaping the benefits of high prices.

"The oil industry has declared war on the state of California and is raising prices unreasonably to punish the public and lawmakers for enacting tough new laws," said Jamie Court, president of Consumer Watchdog. "The state must fight back with a new law to take back windfall profits that the companies are almost certainly making from their $2 per gallon surcharge on California drivers. The oil refiners don't have added production costs. They are simply charging more because they can and want to. That's gouging."

Kevin Slagle, vice president of strategic communications for the Western States Petroleum Association, described the allegations as "ridiculous" to CalMatters.

"Despite bans, mandates and other policies that can increase energy costs, our members are doing all they can to produce and refine more energy and fuels to keep up with demand," he said. "Keep in mind, the first $1.28 per gallon we all pay at the pump today goes to taxes, fees and regulatory programs imposed by the state. Our policy environment matters when it comes to energy costs. And our policy environment is getting more restrictive and costly every year."

National demand for gas has increased in recent weeks and the impact of Hurricane Ian is still unknown on future supplies meaning drivers could see prices edge even higher.

The state has said it will allow the sale of less expensive winter blend gasoline a month ahead of schedule to try to decrease prices but AAA said they were unsure how much impact the switch would have.

in his vehicle on the Santa Monica College campus around 9 a.m. Monday, Sept. 26, four days after the college announced it was on the lookout for a suspect thought to be luring female students off campus and assaulting them.

LASD deputies based out of the Malibu/Lost Hills Sheriff's Station documented two separate sexual assaults between Sept. 18 and Sept. 21, each involving female adult students.

Detectives from the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department's Special Victims Bureau are investigating the sexual assaults of two female adult students enrolled at Santa Monica College.

"Based on the nature of the offenses, detectives believe there may be additional unidentified victims," said the Sheriff's Department in a statement Monday. "Detectives are working with the Santa Monica College Police Department and are seeking the public's help in identifying any more victims."

Anyone with information about this incident is encouraged to contact the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, Special Victims Bureau toll free tip line at (877) 710-5273 or by email at specialvictimsbureau@lasd.org.

If you prefer to provide information anonymously, you may call "Crime Stoppers" by dialing (800) 222-TIPS (8477), or use your smartphone by downloading the "P3 Tips" Mobile APP or "P3 Mobile" for the hearing impaired on Google play or the App Store, or by using the website http://lacrimestoppers.org.

After his arrest at the college, Griddine was booked at the South Los Angeles Sheriff's Station where he remains in custody in lieu of $3.2 million bail. Griddine's next court hearing is on Oct. 11.

LASD data show deputies for the Malibu/Lost Hills Station in Calabasas arrested Griddine earlier this year on March 8 for an unspecified citation; he was held on $35,000 bail before being released the following morning.

CANDIDATE QUESTIONS

Council Candidate: Lana Negrete

All candidates were given an opportunity to provide written answers to a set of questions provided by SMDP and two sets of answers will be printed each day. Answers are also available online alongside additional information from each candidate.

WHAT IS YOUR JUSTIFICATION FOR USING GOVERNMENT AUTHORITY TO REQUIRE PRIVATE PROPERTY OWNERS TO SUBSIDIZE INFLATION, FEES, UTILITIES AND OTHER COSTS FOR RENT CONTROLLED TENANTS?

Rent control is critical pillar of the Santa Monica Community and one that I support. I also believe there must be a balance between renters' needs and the needs of landlords. While ideally, the government should not be needed to create this balance, in Santa Monica we risk losing working families due to extremely high rent prices if city leadership does not take steps to protect renters. My goal as a council member is to advocate for renters like myself, while working together with property owners to make sure they feel heard and represented.

DO GOVERNMENT SUBSIDIES OF HOMELESS SERVICES DO MORE TO GET PEOPLE OFF THE STREETS OR ATTRACT MORE INDIVIDUALS TO THE CITY? DEPENDING ON YOUR ANSWER, WHY SHOULD THAT MONEY CONTINUE TO FLOW TO SERVICE PROVIDERS OR BE REASSIGNED TO OTHER NEEDS?

Santa Monica deploys a broad array of homeless services. Our challenge is to quantify how many individuals, experiencing homelessness, we are able to effectively help. We must do a better job at identifying which homeless services meet our objectives to mitigate homelessness in Santa Monica. And, subsequently we need to aggressively fund those efforts which create the change that Santa Monica residents and visitors want and deserve to see. This is one of our greatest challenges for which we must succeed.

WHY HAS SANTA MONICA BECOME A HUB OF TRANSIT INNOVATION INCLUDING SCOOTERS, SELF DRIVING CARS, DELIVERY DRONES AND ZERO-EMISSION VEHICLES AND IS THIS INDUSTRY ONE THAT SHOULD BE ENCOURAGED TO GROW HERE?

Santa Monica is robust with a lot to do and see for residents and tourists. It makes sense that we would be a hub of transit innovation. With public safety in mind, I am committed to supporting ways to decrease traffic and congestion in our city. I support the growth of zero emission vehicles, however we must always strive to consider the safety of our residents and tourists. This means implementing these innovative breakthroughs in an organized and strategic Manner.

WHAT SPECIFIC TECHNOLOGICAL, POLICY OR REGULATORY IDEAS DO YOU HAVE TO ADDRESS RESIDENT CONCERNS ABOUT A DECLINING QUALITY OF LIFE IN SANTA MONICA?

When I speak to our residents their biggest concern regarding their quality of life is the overall perception of a declining public safety. In order to restore the public's confidence we must apply very effective and precise policy that has the ability to reverse this perception and restore our public spaces. People don't want to see public urine and dedication anymore. They don't want to see people doing drugs in our parks. They don't want to read about stabbings, assaults and violent crimes. We HAVE to make these things the rare exception not the norm.

WHAT ROLE DOES TOURISM PLAY IN SANTA MONICA'S CULTURE, ECONOMY AND GOVERNMENT?

Tourism is woven into the fabric of our beautiful city. Santa Monica has been a coveted and highly visited place for a very long time. As a council, we must continue to balance the needs of our residents and businesses with a vibrant tourist population. At this time, the residents, businesses and tourists are aligned in a shared request: to restore the perception of public safety in our shared public spaces.

LANA NEGRETE: Negrete is a small business owner and the lone incumbent.

Our Santa Monica Police Officers have been amazing public servants for our city. Along with our Firefighters, these men and women not only put their lives on the line for us every day, but they support and embrace the values and mission of our city. Of course we must always evaluate our approach to law enforcement, and our Police Officers have always been collaborative in embracing that continuous evaluation.

HOW DO STREET VENDORS IMPACT THE EXPERIENCE OF USING SANTA MONICA'S PUBLIC SPACES?

Permitted street vendors can provide an enjoyable and safe experience for residents and visitors in our public spaces. However, non-permitted vendors only worsen the perception of a declining public safety. Our public spaces are for everyone to enjoy safely. Anything jeopardizing safety in our public spaces should be mitigated and stopped immediately, even if the intent of the activity isn't meant to jeopardize safety.

DO YOU THINK RESIDENTS FUNDAMENTALLY TRUST LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND WHAT CAN BE DONE TO ADDRESS THE FEELINGS MANY RESIDENTS HAVE REGARDING LOCAL POLITICS?

Sadly, I believe the majority of the population does not trust local government. As local leaders we can't look to blame others. We need to strive to regain that trust. I believe if we can effectively address the publics' top priorities we can work towards regaining that trust. This means making significant strides in reducing individuals experiencing homelessness on our streets, reducing crime, and restoring the perception of public safety at our most frequented city spaces and throughout our entire city.

CANDIDATE QUESTIONS

Council Candidate: Jesse Zwick

All candidates were given an opportunity to provide written answers to a set of questions provided by SMDP and two sets of answers will be printed each day. Answers are also available online alongside additional information from each candidate.

WHAT IS YOUR JUSTIFICATION FOR USING GOVERNMENT AUTHORITY TO REQUIRE PRIVATE PROPERTY OWNERS TO SUBSIDIZE INFLATION, FEES, UTILITIES AND OTHER COSTS FOR RENT CONTROLLED TENANTS?

Renters in our community are due the same housing stability and security afforded to those lucky enough to qualify for a 30-year mortgage. Rent control balances this imperative against the need for landlords to make a fair return on their investment.

DO GOVERNMENT SUBSIDIES OF HOMELESS SERVICES DO MORE TO GET PEOPLE OFF THE STREETS OR ATTRACT MORE INDIVIDUALS TO THE CITY? DEPENDING ON YOUR ANSWER, WHY SHOULD THAT MONEY CONTINUE TO FLOW TO SERVICE PROVIDERS OR BE REASSIGNED TO OTHER NEEDS?

The internationally recognized best practice for addressing homelessness is called "Housing First." It says that whether a homeless individual is suffering from a job loss, mental illness, or addiction, getting a roof over their head is essential to their recovery, and is in fact cheaper than the emergency room, police, and criminal justice expenses incurred by that person remaining on the street.

Unfortunately, soaring housing costs in our region ensure that even when our government is able to house thousands of people each year, an even greater number are falling into homelessness. Until we address the underlying dysfunction of our housing market, no amount of spending on homeless services will be sufficient to solve our crisis.

WHAT SPECIFIC TECHNOLOGICAL, POLICY OR REGULATORY IDEAS DO YOU HAVE TO ADDRESS RESIDENT CONCERNS ABOUT A DECLINING QUALITY OF LIFE IN SANTA MONICA?

First, residents and business owners in our city do not have a dedicated number they can call to elicit prompt assistance for an unhoused individual. Our police department is not designed for or capable of responding quickly to every non-emergency situation, and therefore should be aided by a robust system of social workers and mental health clinicians that is responsive to the needs and concerns of Santa Monicans.

Second, our city government has fostered over-investment in commercial real estate and underinvestment in homes for the past four decades. As a result, Santa Monica suffers from an extreme jobs/ homes imbalance, which has caused soaring rents and gentrification, fueled homelessness, and currently forces over 80,000 people employed in Santa Monica to commute into our city each day.

Only by repurposing our commercial corridors for greater residential use and creating "15-minute cities" where people can meet their daily needs without getting in their car can we hope to combat ever growing vehicular traffic and air pollution in our city.

WHAT ROLE DOES TOURISM PLAY IN SANTA MONICA'S CULTURE, ECONOMY AND GOVERNMENT?

Ensuring Santa Monica remains a popular tourist destination pays substantial dividends for its permanent residents. By sharing our community with travelers, we are able to use the revenue generated by our transient occupancy tax and sales tax to fund responsive city services and infrastructural improvements that increase the quality of life for those who live here.

DOES SANTA MONICA'S APPROACH TO LAW ENFORCEMENT NEED TO CHANGE AND IF SO, WHAT WOULD YOU DO TO ALTER THE DEPARTMENT TO MEET THE NEEDS OF THE CITY?

All cities must contend with the fact that a decades-long disinvestment in housing and mental health care has led to police departments being tasked with responding to every social ill imaginable, many of which they cannot be expected to solve. We must invest in alternative systems of care, thereby freeing up precious resources for our police department to be able to respond quickly to emergencies, prevent violence, and solve crimes in our community.

JESSE ZWICK: Zwick is a Public Policy Advisor.

HOW DO STREET VENDORS IMPACT THE EXPERIENCE OF USING SANTA MONICA'S PUBLIC SPACES?

Street vending adds to the life and vibrancy of our city and its public spaces, so long as it is properly regulated to ensure the safety of residents and a level playing field with our brick-and-mortar small businesses. Santa Monica is haltingly returning to this balance after a period of instability resulting from state-level changes to the legal landscape.

DO YOU THINK RESIDENTS FUNDAMENTALLY TRUST LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND WHAT CAN BE DONE TO ADDRESS THE FEELINGS MANY RESIDENTS HAVE REGARDING LOCAL POLITICS?

Residents of Santa Monica are rightly angry and frustrated by the inability of our municipal, county, and state government to solve its homelessness crisis. The natural instinct of many is to interpret this as a personal failing of either our elected leaders (feckless, corrupt) and/or those who find themselves without a home (lazy, criminal, etc.)

The true causes are both more mundane and more difficult to unwind: deinstitutionalization and disinvestment in mental health care and treatment, the decline of American manufacturing and the ever-widening income gap between our bifurcated tech/ knowledge and service economy, and decades of job and population growth in coastal cities without a commensurate increase in housing supply – these are systems-level failures that won't be solved overnight.

The first step in the right direction, however, lies in electing leaders who see the problem clearly, tell the truth instead of pandering, and engage in the difficult work of bringing about true systems change within our public sector to improve its ability to respond to our most difficult collective problems.

LANA NEGRETE
for City Council

"For the past year, it has been my honor to serve you on the Santa Monica City Council. I'm running for a full term to continue our work of making Santa Monica a safer, more affordable place to live, work, and raise a family."

- Councilmember Lana Negrete

FROM SANTA MONICA

Lana was born and raised in Santa Monica. Today, she runs her family's music store, the Santa Monica Music Center, which has provided instruments and lessons to SMMUSD schools for more than 50 years. A mom of two girls, Lana has spent the past decade giving back as a volunteer for the PTA Council, Legislative rep and an advocate for public school funding for the arts.

FOR SANTA MONICA

Lana is not a career politician. She is a mom, renter, and small business owner who is urgently concerned about public safety, homelessness, and our economic recovery. That's why she's fighting to defend rent control and public safety funding, expand mental health services for the homeless, and invest in our local business community.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 4)

With the sun revitalizing your life force, this year shows you living with intention. You do not exist to fulfill requirements or take on the role you're given; rather, you decide what to strive for and define the part you'll play. You'll show up to events, make trusted connections and develop a new network to help you flesh out the dream. Taurus and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 40, 33, 12 and 17.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Make lists. It will force your thoughts into neat lines and make your work much easier. Plus, seeing items on paper will help you order them into the two main categories: things you can control and things you can't.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You're talking to yourself in a certain manner. Sometimes you're aware of it and sometimes you're not. There's one message that isn't helping at all. With awareness, you'll change it, thus altering your destiny.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Truth and facts are not the same thing. Facts can be checked. Truth, being highly personal and philosophical, is challenging to verify. Be careful not to get too hung up on facts today because truth will matter more.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You accept that challenge is a part of life and when the time comes, you welcome and engage with it. But today you won't have to. What you thought would be a challenge will instead come unexpectedly easily to you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Your brain tries to save you time and energy by summing things up so you can make a fast decision. But today, a snap judgment won't help. Everything important is in the nuances. Slow down and you'll catch something important.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You may not realize it, but those on the outside see you as a member of the clique. You'll be inclined toward graciousness, which, in this case, means making a conscious effort to reach out and include others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). People who have made mistakes and been forgiven have a bigger love to give than those with a more direct path to success. Having required and received compassion, they can now do the same for others. Who does this describe?

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The difference between dishing the dirt and mudslinging is only a few drops of water. It's a good time to avoid the seduction of gossip entirely and stay away from the forums where it proliferates.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Some metals become magnetic just by hanging out long enough with other magnets. Similarly, people who are together a lot will pick up one another's qualities. Magical and attractive energy zings around your group now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Though you thought you wanted something, in a moment of honesty you may realize that down deep you are for some reason resistant to having it. Consider this a breakthrough. It will help you home in on the right desire for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It would be an understatement to say you've changed. At this point you wouldn't be surprised if your DNA reflected the change too. You believe in magical transformation, but most of yours has come about from daily work.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Nobody will charge your battery for you; you have to do it yourself. It's time for a different charging station because the old one is drained. Finding your best fuel will be a little challenging, but it's a fun thing to figure out.

SURF REPORT

WATER TEMP: 69.4

TUESDAY FAIR	SURF: 3-4ft Waist to chest	New, long period SSW swell gradually builds -- as we've seen recently, forecast model output is likely showing a little too much size too soon. Should be a few waves but expect to wait on the better sets. NW windswell picks up a notch.
WEDNESDAY FAIR	SURF: 3-4ft+ Waist to shoulder	Longer period SSW swell tops out -- lully at times but a few decent waves when the sets show. Best overall for the summer exposures. There is some small scale new NW swell but it may not be enough for peaky beachbreak surf.

WEATHER

Tuesday: Sunny, with a high near 77. East wind 5 to 15 mph.
Tuesday Night: Mostly clear, with a low around 63. West southwest wind 5 to 10 mph.
Wednesday: Sunny, with a high near 75. East wind 5 to 15 mph becoming southwest in the afternoon.
Wednesday Night: Patchy fog after 11pm. Otherwise, mostly cloudy, with a low around 64.
