'Near drowning' cases increase

BY JENNIFER MAAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

This year the Santa Monica Fire Department reported its highest number of "near drownings" since 2012. And with a total of four reported this year, including two over Labor Day weekend, the number of incidents has doubled since 2014.

According to the Santa Monica Fire Department's deputy chief of operations, Jeff Furrows, a near drowning "could be a person who has a little bit of water in their lungs and they are gonna get checked on and released, all the way to a person in critical condition, where perhaps CPR was performed and that person could have expired in the hospital at a later time, but they were delivered to the hospital … But in our interaction with them they were still in the category of a near drowning."

Furrows said a drowning on the other hand implies a fatality.

The fire department records only "near drownings," and Furrows said it isn't always easy for the department to get information about what happens to the victims after they leave the paramedics' care.

"It's sometimes very difficult for us even to get the final disposition of the patients," he said.

There were no "near drownings" reported in Santa Monica in 2009. In 2010 there were four incidents recorded: two women and one man in the ocean, and one female in a pool. In 2011 four incidents were again reported, all from the ocean, with two men and two women involved. In 2012 the number spiked to five, all in the ocean and all male victims. In 2013 there were two "near drownings" report-

St. Monica renovating athletic facilities

Library also being modernized as part of upgrades at Catholic school

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

Things have changed since Frank Cruz was an athlete at St. Monica Catholic High School.

The current athletic director remembers a time before so much emphasis was placed on diet, exercise and health, a time when food was taboo in baseball dugouts.

"Back in the day, it was, 'Suck on an orange,'" he said. "There's so much going on with physical fitness and nutrition and refueling."

Developments in science and technology have significantly altered the way athletes, coaches and administrators approach, prepare for and participate in sports.

And St. Monica is making upgrades of its own, as evidenced by forthcoming renovations to its athletic facilities that are part of long-term infrastructure improvements at the Santa Monica private school.

A major piece of the project will be the reconfiguration of the lower level of St. Monica's gymnasium to include new boys and girls locker rooms and updated athletic training space.

The school's sports programming for girls has grown dramatically since the locker rooms were built some 70 years ago, school president Thom Gasper said.

"It's taking one of our oldest facilities and really trying to make it appropriate for today's student-athlete," he said. "We're trying to make sure things are laid out in a way that supports male and female students."

Plans include revamped weightlifting areas with space for stretching and high-intensity training. St. Monica officials are working with consultants and strength-training experts who have

Local cafe hosts President of Ghana for chocolate tasting

SAMPLE: The President of Ghana, John Dramani Mahama, visited Espresso Cielo last week.

BY JENNIFER MAAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

"Best chocolate in the world!" the president of Ghana, John Dramani Mahama, announced to onlookers in Main Street's Espresso Cielo, as he took a bite out of a piece of Omanhene chocolate.

Mahama visited the café Thursday night specifically to try products made with Omanhene cocoa, a brand of chocolate manufactured locally in Ghana using only Ghana-grown cocoa beans.

Espresso Cielo is one of the only cafés on the West Coast that exclusively uses the Milwaukee-based company's cocoa. And though Espresso Cielo's owner, Diane Maler, was out of town, her staff was prepared to make Mahama feel at home.

"It's really cool to have him here and to be

"Read to the Rhythm" summer reading program rocks

In Santa Monica, kids and teens read. At the Santa Monica Public Library, the "Read to the Rhythm" (for kids) and "Play, Dance, Read!" (for teens) summer reading themes kept the reading stats rocking.

Despite the temporary closure of the Fairview Branch, participation continued to be strong. The library's 2015 summer reading program for babies through teenagers saw an increase in participation at the Main and Pico Branch libraries, with 4,601 children and teens participating system wide, and just over 2 million minutes read.

The Friends of the Santa Monica Public Library sponsored printed materials, programs and prizes for the 10-week program, which is designed to help children and teens maintain and increase literacy skills during the summer months while on their school break.

The library offered 352 story times and reading-related programs during the summer, with 13,178 in attendance. Kids and teens also wrote even more book reviews than last summer (644) which were posted for other students to read and get recommendations on what to read next.

This summer's reading program once again included the "Baby & Me" club, which engages parents and their babies by providing them with a free board book to add to their baby's library and get a head start on literacy.

Teen participation was strong, and those who completed the program (reading 30 hours or more) attended an end-of-the-summer pizza party to celebrate their achievements. Other teen programs included a Teen Writers' Workshop, in which teen writers - one workshop for middle school students and one for high school students - met for three sessions with local YA authors. In addition, 354 free copies of Ernest Cline's "Ready Player One," the SAMOHI summer reading book selection, were given out to SAMOHI students. This book giveaway was sponsored by the Santa Monica Kiwanis Club.

According to the American Library Association, numerous studies show that summer reading programs help ensure that children retain reading and learning skills over the summer. Most of all, however, summer reading programs are geared for reading for the fun of it. Study after study has shown that reading for pleasure (not assigned reading) is the best incentive to encourage lifelong learning. Literacy increases when kids and teens read whatever they choose. After 10 weeks, with 4,601 kids and teens participating, it's safe to say the Santa Monica Public Library is helping increase the literacy of our community's kids and teens!

For more information about free library programs, visit smpl.org or call the Youth Services Department at (310) 458-8621.

The Santa Monica Public Library is wheelchair-accessible. For special disabled services, call Library Administration at (310) 458-8606. The Main Library is served by Big Blue Bus routes 1, 2, 3, 7, 8, 9 and 10. Bicycle parking racks are available.

Lawn

Tribute lawn bowl tournament to be held in Douglas Park

Jack Beckley, an avid and enthusiastic lawn bowler, passed away in 2002, but his legacy lives on in the Jack Beckley Friendship Tournament that was started that same year by his family and friends.

The Santa Monica Bowls Club in Douglas Park at the corner of Wilshire Boulevard and 25th Street in Santa Monica will be hosting the 13th iteration of this event on Sunday, Oct. 11 from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. Lawn bowlers from all over Southern California will be participating.

If you have ever seen their members on the green and wondered what they were doing, then this is the perfect time to find out and see some great, competitive bowling. The public is invited to come and watch, and there will be members of the club there to explain the rules and finer points of the game.

Their members run the gamut from social bowlers to members of the US Team. Bowls is played by men & women, ages 14 to whatever, and our membership consists of bowlers from over a dozen different countries. Lawn bowls is a game, a recreation and a sport - it's whatever you want it to be. New members are always welcome. Come and see for yourself.

Ineffective labels

Editor:

As someone who cares about the environment but also needs to drive I feel like the labeling will be ineffective. I know that gasoline causes climate change and being reminded about it won't help, especially when I'm already at the pump and in need of gas. But even if I were reminded about the bad effects of gas more often, I wouldn't even consider not getting gas since cars have become such an important way of transportation. Maybe I would try and drive more efficiently, or think about getting a more efficient car later on, or maybe even try and carpool when it's convenient. But when someone's at the pump they most likely are just trying to get in and out, going through the routine of getting their gas and going on to their next obligation.

A better way to help climate change would be reminding people more often before they get in their car in hopes that they find another way to get around or to do something more environmentally friendly. Making labels that would have to be placed in multiple places at every gas station would cost money and time but wouldn't necessarily help anything since it's pretty common knowledge that cars are bad for the environment. Maybe the city council could make the stoplights or stop signs more efficient so cars don't have to accelerate and decelerate so much. If time and energy is going to be put into helping the environment it should be used at something that will do more to help.

ed, one male from the ocean and one female in a pool. Last year there were two "near drownings" in total, one male in a pool and one male in the ocean.

"What's interesting is the ocean patients that we're interacting with are typically adults. About the youngest in these numbers is a 14-year-old female, but with the exception of that all of them are over the age 18. But on the pool side, our data is consistent. In 2010 the female was a 3-year-old. 2013 the female in the pool was 9-years-old. In 2014 one was a 2-year-old male," Furrows said.

According to a press release put out by the Los Angeles County Fire Department in early August, almost 70 percent of all drowning accidents occur in backyard swimming pools. "It only takes a few seconds for a person to drown, and drowning accidents are the leading cause of death for children one to four years of age," the press release reads.

The LAFD has also seen an increase in the number of emergency responses related to drownings and near deaths this year. In 2014, 14 drowning deaths were reported in Los Angeles County, and since January of this year 13 drowning deaths have been reported, the release states.

Furrows said the reason for the spike in both the SMFD and LAFD numbers could be attributed to the weather.

"Sometimes when the weather gets hot there are more people coming to the beach and a higher number of possible incidents," he said. "People using their pools more."

THE LAFD HAS OFFERED THESE SAFETY TIPS TO PREVENT POOL-RELATED DROWNINGS:

- Never allow children to be alone when near water; make sure an adult is always present.
- Make sure that the pool is secure at all times.
- Keep toys out of the pool area when not in use.
- Mount approved floatation devices near the pool. Many toy floatation devices are thought to be lifesaving devices; they are not. They are toys!
- Never dive into an aboveground pool. Know the depth of the water before you attempt to dive.
- Keep a telephone outside near the pool. DO NOT leave children unattended to talk on the telephone.
- Post the 911 emergency number on the telephone.

The LAFD created a new Public Service Announcement to highlight the importance of pool and water safety. The video can be viewed here: https://vimeo.com/134228293.

assisted USC and the Los Angeles Lakers, Gasper said.

To maximize space on the lower level, St. Monica will move athletic administration offices to another classroom building. Also to be relocated is a multipurpose room with audio and video technology that will be used by teams for reviewing game film, students for tutoring sessions and church members for evening meetings.

"Taking that out of our locker room facility will give us space to do it better," Gasper said.

St. Monica has been fundraising for about 15 months and has pooled well over half of the $4.5 million needed for the assorted projects, Gasper said. The new lower level will complement the upper gym, which was rededicated three years ago after a $1.2-million renovation.

St. Monica was still fundraising as of last month, and officials are hoping to have approval to begin the project as early as January. The renovations would be complete by the start of the 2016-17 school year "in a perfect world," Gasper said.

Officials said the improvements will benefit all students at the Lincoln Boulevard campus.

"We're trying to raise the level of play," said Cruz, who started as the school's athletic director this year, "not only for the athletes but for the general student body, and develop fitness and lifelong habits."

LIBRARY FOR THE FUTURE

For decades, St. Monica's library has functioned as a classic information center with stacks of books and reference materials.

But the arrival of new technology is influencing how the school envisions its library of the future.

The space to the north of the gymnasium will be converted into a modern learning center with wireless Internet access and more digital resources, including access to Santa Monica Public Library archives.

There's no longer a need for desktop computers, Gasper said, because all students have MacBook Air laptops.

The new library will also feature comfortable furniture and areas for study groups.

Students will still have access to physical books, which Gasper said are particularly important for literacy-oriented learning at the elementary school level.

"But it's going to look more like students learn today," he said.

Carbon tax vs. "cap-and-trade"

Dear EarthTalk:

What's the difference between a carbon tax and "cap-and-trade" system for reducing greenhouse gas emissions?

Marina Brown
New York, NY

MOST OF US CAN AGREE THAT REDUCING greenhouse gas emissions is a must given the rapid warming of the planet; just how to do it best is another question entirely. The two leading market strategies are a carbon tax, whereby polluters are simply taxed for the carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases they spew, and "cap-and-trade," whereby government sets an overall cap on the amount of greenhouse gases that each industry or sector can emit without penalty and issues permits or allowances accordingly that companies can buy and sell to each other based on their own business and sustainability priorities. Each approach been shown to effectively cut down emissions, but many nations are now weighing which way to go as they prepare to make new commitments as part of the potentially decisive international climate talks (COP21) coming up in Paris in December 2015.

Cap-and-trade allows affected businesses to choose how much pollution reduction they can tolerate and then leverage market forces to buy or sell allowances accordingly. Such systems effectively penalize polluters who exceed allowable limits (those who therefore must "buy" credits) while rewarding those who not just meet emissions target levels but get down below them (the difference being what they can then "sell"). Cap-and-trade markets are designed to encourage flexibility in allowing companies to decide how they want to meet emissions reduction targets.

Of course, cap-and-trade isn't a new concept. The first national cap-and-trade market limited emissions of sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide that were causing acid rain in 1990s. The European Union later launched the first major market in greenhouse gas emissions trading in 2005 in order to meet commitments made under the Kyoto Protocol, the first international treaty to limit carbon emissions. In North America, three regional carbon cap-and-trade plans have been in place since the mid-2000s (the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative, Midwest Greenhouse Gas Reduction Accord, and Western Climate Initiative), but there hasn't been enough political will at the federal level yet to support a nationwide carbon emissions market.

Not everyone thinks cap-and-trade is the way to go to reduce emissions. Carbon tax proponents argue that cap-and-trade scenarios can cause unnecessary price volatility to energy prices, are overly complicated, and are easily manipulated by those that learn to game such systems to their advantage without reducing greenhouse gas output. "Carbon taxes will lend predictability to energy prices, whereas cap-and-trade systems will aggravate the price volatility that historically has discouraged investments in less carbon-intensive electricity generation, carbon-reducing energy efficiency and carbon-replacing renewable energy," reports the Carbon Tax Center.

Critics counter, however, that it's easier for companies to pass the costs of a carbon tax onto consumers by raising prices-and that lower income households bear a disproportionate amount of those economic costs. Perhaps the world's biggest experiment in carbon taxation ended last year when Australians voted to repeal their carbon tax due to rising costs of living, saving the average household more than $500 a year. Meanwhile, a recent analysis of Norway's carbon tax-the highest in the world on a percentage basis-found that emissions reductions there were negligible over the first decade of implementation.

While both systems have their pros and cons, either can be effective in reducing emissions if there is enough political will behind it. A key component to the upcoming COP21 Paris climate talks is flexibility in allowing participating nations to choose how they want to reduce emissions. Environmental leaders are keeping their fingers crossed that whether through cap-and-trade or taxation, the nations of the world will finally agree on enough greenhouse gas cuts to finally stem the still surging tide of global warming.

EXPO LIGHT RAIL LINE:

The Expo Light Rail Line extension from Culver City to Santa Monica is scheduled for train testing activities in Santa Monica this week and will continue for several months. The trains are now operated on their own power. Testing will be ongoing along the entire alignment in Los Angeles and Santa Monica. The testing activity will test train clearances, the Overhead Catenary System which powers the trains, the crossing gates and traffic signals, and all related systems before the project is turned over to Metro for pre-revenue operations.

A more detailed notice is online at http://goo.gl/AMLPxq making drinks for him," said barista Tom Kim, who mixed up some mochas for Mahama.

PRESIDENTIAL VISIT: The chocolate tasting was held to promote products from Ghana.

Mahama's primary focus while in Los Angeles was to promote the new "Made in Ghana" initiative by showing the global impact of Ghanaian products, people and services. So in addition to visiting USC, UC Riverside and attending a dinner hosted by the World Affairs Council, Mahama stopped into Espresso Cielo.

President and founder of Omanhene, Steve Wallace, was in attendance for Mahama's visit to the shop and was very honored to be part of the trip. "I am thrilled to have him here," Wallace said.

Wallace explained his love for Ghana began when he was a teenager on an exchange program. His host father had three wives and 21 children and he "stepped right in as number 22." He thought a lot about Ghana after that trip and knew he wanted a career that would allow him to stay close to the country.

"I knew food, loved the food business and I knew [Ghana] grew the finest cocoa beans … When you ask people where the best chocolate comes from they will say Switzerland, Belgium, France. But how many cocoa trees have you seen in Zurich? None. So I thought we should have a competitive advantage by producing in the country of origin. It prevents those beans from being fumigated. And those beans from other countries lose a lot of their magic in the trip to their manufacturing destination."

Wallace stands firmly behind the reputation of Ghana's chocolate. "It's the finest chocolate in the world. It has a very good flavor. It is very disease-resistant naturally. It's the secret sauce that makes our hot cocoa and other cocoa items so great."

Wallace was especially pleased to be at Espresso Cielo, as he believes it to be the company's "archetypal perfect customer."

"It's just as exciting as it could be. It's right here by the beach. And Diane is a wonderful entrepreneur. Couldn't be more pleased to have her be our introduction to the coffee world here in Santa Monica."

Wallace said that places like Espresso Cielo care a lot about the quality of their coffee, "so when drinks like mochas, that are basically hot chocolate with a shot of espresso, are made, you should care as much about that hot chocolate as the espresso."

Omanhene is a small company that does not do a lot of advertising, so they really depend on word of mouth to get their name out.

"And in this case one of the baristas [at Espresso Cielo] worked in New York at a café that used our hot cocoa mix and brought it out here … It's usually the baristas who are the ones that pour the shots, make the drinks, who know our product."

Wallace said those baristas can be some of the most demanding customers in the world.

"They have very high standards and I love them for that. If they do a good job then a customer who comes in and buys a cup will be happy at that point. And that makes me happy."

Espresso Cielo is located at 3101 Main St.

LEGEND
DRY -- each location is graded on an A - F scale based on bacterial pollution levels present in the surf zone
WET -- grades for days of recorded rainfall and the following 3 days ns -- no sample taken

Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON SEPTEMBER 23, AT APPROXIMATELY 11:50 P.M.

An officer responded to OPCC on the 500 block of Olympic Boulevard regarding a disturbance of the peace radio call. Upon arrival, staff from the community center stated that a female, later identified as Alejandra Everett, 52, of Santa Monica, was threatening another client, and he wanted her removed. According to staff, Everett had been constantly harassing and threatening several of their staff and clients. On this particular night, Everett came up to the victim and threatened to beat him up; this made him fear for his safety and life. The victim told the officer that he believed that she would follow through with her threats and get someone to hurt him. Everett was arrested for disturbance of the peace. Bail was set at $500.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

TODAY IN HISTORY

1813 – Battle of the Thames in Canada; Americans defeat British and kill Shawnee leader Tecumseh.

1857 – The City of Anaheim, California is founded.

1864 – The Indian city of Calcutta is almost totally destroyed by a cyclone; 60,000 die.

1869 – The Saxby Gale devastates the Bay of Fundy region of Maritime Canada. The storm had been predicted over a year before by a British naval officer.

1877 – Chief Joseph surrenders his Nez Perce band to General Nelson A. Miles.

1895 – The first individual time trial for racing cyclists is held on a 50-mile course north of London.

1903 – Sir Samuel Griffith is appointed the first Chief Justice of Australia and Sir Edmund Barton and Richard O'Connor are appointed as foundation justices.

1905 – Wilbur Wright pilots Wright Flyer III in a flight of 24 miles in 39 minutes, a world record that stood until 1908.

1910 – In a revolution in Portugal the monarchy is overthrown and a republic is declared.

1911 – The Kowloon–Canton Railway (split into MTR East Rail Line and Guangshen Railway now) commences service between Kowloon and Canton.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ PlayStations and Xboxes, However, State-of-the-Art: A New York University Center for Justice study released in September warned that, unless major upgrades are made quickly, 43 states will conduct 2016 elections on electronic voting machines at least 10 years old and woefully suspect. Those states use machines no longer made or poorly supported, and those in 14 states are more than 15 years old. There are apprehensions over antiquated security (risking miscounts, potential for hacking), but also fear of election-day breakdowns causing long lines at the polls, depressing turnout and dampening confidence in the overall fairness of the process. The NYU center estimated the costs of upgrading at greater than $1 billion.

■ In a "manifesto" to celebrate "personal choice and expression" in the standard of beauty "in a society that already places too many harmful standards on women," according to a July New York Times report, some now are dyeing their armpit hair. At the Free Your Pits website, and events like "pit-ins" in Seattle and Pensacola, Florida, envelope-pushing women offer justifications ranging from political resistance to, according to one, "want(ing) to freak out (her) in-laws." Preferred colors are turquoise, hot pink, purple and neon yellow.

People who need #Peeple

By Mikey Tittinger

Welcome to your paranoid nightmare.

The Internet blew up this week following a Washington Post article about Peeple, an app under development that will allow you to rate anyone you know, "whether you want them to or not." It's like Yelp for people. All you need is someone's mobile phone number and voila – you can sign them up, deem their worthiness to live and tell everyone you possibly can.

Rank people personally, professionally or romantically on a one- to five-star scale (and, oh yeah, you can't remove your own profile from the app!). How ya feel about giving out your number now, ladies?

"It's going to change the way people learn about each other online," said Peeple co-founder Nicole McCullough. Not to mention how they'll rip each other a new one.

The best way to ignore this nonsense is to actually be a good person. In real life! Helping others builds self-confidence better than five-star reviews. Maybe the word volunteering sounds like eating your vegetables. Think of it as helping people and causes that need your help.

You know who aren't getting ranked? People like the homeless in your community, the kids going to bed hungry and the patients waiting for an organ transplant.

Search the Causes directory at giive.org for nonprofits to help effect real change. That's worth five stars every time.

Head home tonight, Aries

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ If you tap into your intuition and consider the best-case scenario, you will be left with a big smile. Understand where someone else is coming from, and make a point of expressing greater empathy. You could see a tense situation mellow out. Tonight: Head home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ You tend to stabilize others. An interaction with a water sign will pave the path to greater caring and sensitivity. Understand the role and meaning of this person in your life. The insights you gain into his or her personality could surprise you! Tonight: Where the action is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ You'll recognize that you need more stability; however, your finances seem to be perpetually changing. Your ability to talk to an authority figure can be healing right now. The unexpected brightens up your day. Tonight: You can afford to go with the flow.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Tension surrounds your domestic life, especially in a real-estate matter. For now, keep your thoughts to yourself. You will learn more at a later point. News from a distance will be important. Listen to the other party carefully. Tonight: Do some research on the Web.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ Step back from a negotiation, at least for the moment. You might not have all the facts, or perhaps you have misread the situation. Be ready to make an adjustment to your approach and/or thinking. Try to keep an opinion to yourself. Tonight: Get as much sleep as possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You are likely to take charge and do whatever you need to do without others reacting. Your fast entry displays determination that can't be held back. Understand the liabilities involved if you don't take action. Listen to feedback first. Tonight: Where your friends are.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You could be in a situation where a decision is needed. Others who can't or don't want to make the call will look to you. If you make a choice, whatever the issue is will become your responsibility on some level. Be aware of the long-term implications. Tonight: As you like it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You could be quite tired of what is happening around you until someone grabs your creative interest in a project. You might need to make some big adjustments. Get past an immediate obstacle; it could vanish as quickly as it appeared. Tonight: Return calls.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Defer to others who might be more organized and/or enthusiastic than you. That type of energy and precision could make all the difference in the outcome. Know when to delegate. A loved one could surprise you in an effort to get your attention. Tonight: Go for the moment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Defer to someone else who seems to be more upbeat than you are. Ask others what they need from you. Follow through, then free yourself up. A family or domestic matter takes priority, as you see an unexpected matter develop. Tonight: Maintain a sense of humor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Keep conversations moving. You might be uncomfortable with what you are hearing from an acquaintance. On the other hand, you also could be pleasantly surprised. Be careful when dealing with mechanical equipment, as you seem to be distracted. Tonight: All smiles.

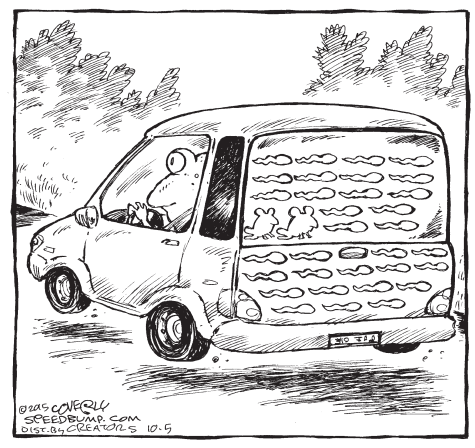

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You have a way about you that allows greater give-and-take with others. You are able to see many different facets of an issue. Sometimes this ability can add an element of confusion. An assumption you have made could be off. Rethink this matter. Tonight: Time with a close friend.

Monday, October 5, 2015

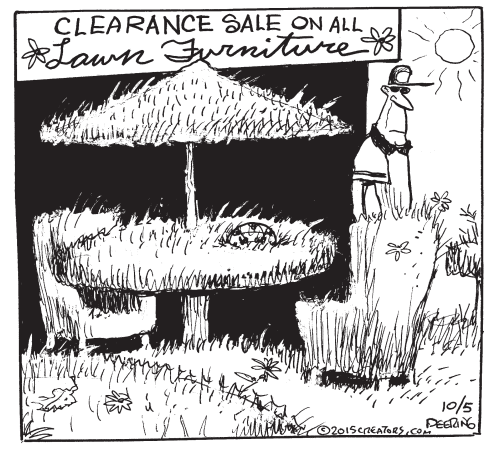

This year you see a matter differently from how you have in the past. You demonstrate unusual sensitivity and empathy, and many people recognize these new qualities of yours. Your image might become more important to you as well, as you are likely to become more dominant in the community and the business world. If you are single, you will meet many new people. Don't just assume that the first person you meet will be The One. If you are attached, the two of you will decide to move forward and enhance your commitment. Schedule plenty of downtime together. CANCER can be annoying at times.

Discover Your Child's Path to Success

ENROLL THEM AT THE LEARNING PATH

The Learning Path transforms good public schooling into a world-class education.

We offer Kindergarten prep, Elementary & Middle school catch-up/advancement, and 1-1 ACT/SAT/ College Prep for High school students. Students who are behind gain the opportunity to catch up in the best way for them. Students who are under-challenged will be accelerated. We are the best place in Santa Monica and Malibu to transform your child's education.

The Learning Path realizes your child's full potential through highly individualized tutoring in Math, Reading, and Writing. If you can read, write, and calculate well, the world is your oyster. Our services are not only highly individualized and effective, they are also affordable.
