THE FINGERS CROSSED ISSUE

Homeless population shrinks

Count determines that fewer are calling streets their home

BY KEVIN HERRERA | Daily Press Staff Writer

CITYWIDE The number of people living on Santa Monica's streets fell by nearly a third over the past two years, much of which had to do with more accurate counts of the homeless population, an increase in shelter beds and City Hall's focus on reaching those who have been living on the streets the longest.

City officials said the results of the 2007 Greater Los Angeles Homeless count, which was released last week by the Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority (LAHSA), show that efforts made to address homelessness in the community are working.

"I think it provides an indication that we are going in the right direction and, frankly, that's really good news and we've got to continue to build on it," said Julie Rusk, the director of City Hall's homeless effort. "I think what is difficult is the need for partners in other parts of the county to step up and do a better job. From just listening to other models being used around the country ... it's just clear that these other (places) are far ahead of where we need to be."

The federally-required, bi-annual count, which was conducted from Jan. 23 to 25, found that 1,506 homeless people on any given night were living on the streets, a 24 percent drop compared to 2005 when there was an estimated 1,991 homeless people in Santa Monica. This year's count also found a 30 percent decrease in the number of people actually counted on the streets, from 949 in 2005 to 661.

That is important, Rusk said, because volunteers this year physically counted more people in the city, relying on more accurate numbers than on estimates. The methodology was essentially the same as in 2005, except this year LAHSA focused more resources on so-called "hot spots," and Santa Monica was one of them. In the end, 64 percent of the city's census tracts were directly counted. In the county, only 41 percent of the census tracts were counted overall.

Rusk said that a more accurate count doesn't necessarily translate into numbers going down. In an area just east of downtown Los Angeles known as "Skid Row," the number of homeless people living there increased from roughly

League of Women Voters' Rose Kaufman receives honor for a lifetime of work

BY MELODY HANATANI | Daily Press Staff Writer

NORTH OF MONTANA Rose Kaufman filed into a room where a Parent Teacher Association meeting was being held, the mother of three children was interested in learning more about the school district in which her children had just started attending.

The 37-year-old Philadelphia native was shocked at the manner in which the meeting in Toledo, Ohio was being conducted — at the helm was a school principal, controlling the flow and pace of discussions, parents unable to get a word in edgewise.

"I learned the principal had been at the school since the days before electricity," Kaufman said last month. "She was a strong principal and probably very good at what she was doing, but nobody had a chance to make a suggestion."

Eager to learn more about school and local policies in her new city, Kaufman picked up the phone and signed up for the League of Women Voters in Toledo.

That one call in 1951 spawned more than 56 dedicated years with the League of Women Voters. At 93 years old, Kaufman is still going strong with the non-partisan polit-

JUST CHILLING: A homeless person makes himself comfortable at a building located on Arizona Avenue near Seventh Street last month.

Hiding in plain sight

Homeless play hide and seek at a local business building

BY MELODY HANATANI
Daily Press Staff Writer

DOWNTOWN There is someone lurking from behind the bushes.

In the middle of the tech companies, doctor's offices and post-production houses on the border of the downtown area stands a curious two-story red brick building, surrounded by overgrown hedges — an inviting haven for the homeless.

Located at the northeast corner of Seventh Street and Arizona Avenue, the building has long been a popular hangout spot for Santa Monica's homeless population, a place to congregate outside of the shelters, the Third Street Promenade and Palisades Park. The entryway is often occupied by a homeless person, taking a nap and blocking the graffiti-covered double glass doors. Hidden behind the nearly 9-foot tall bushes that line the building's facade are sleeping bags, magazines, shoe boxes and other miscellaneous items — all signs of habitation.

A sign is affixed to the front door at 707 Arizona Ave., reading "sitting or lying in this entrance between the hours of 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. is prohibited."

Danielle Orange works at a therapist's office in an adjacent building on Arizona Avenue and Lincoln Boulevard. Orange, who has been working on Arizona Avenue for four months, said she was first surprised to see homeless men lounging around in front of the building.

Authorities raid Smith's physicians

Justice agents want answers about drugs

BY ROBERT JABLON AND PAUL ELIAS
Associated Press Writers

LOS ANGELES Eight months and 2,300 miles away from where Anna Nicole Smith died of an overdose, California authorities on Friday raided homes and offices of the doctors who prescribed drugs to the former Playboy Playmate.

California Department of Justice agents raided the office of Smith's psychiatrist, Dr. Khristine Eroshevich and the home and office of Dr. Sandeep Kapoor, who prescribed the painkiller methadone to Smith shortly before her death.

Authorities did not name the doctors but their attorneys confirmed the searches.

Smith died of an accidental drug overdose in February at a Florida hotel. She was 39.

The department began investigating in March because "dangerous drugs ... were part of the death of Anna Nicole Smith, and I learned that these were California doctors and California prescriptions," Attorney General Jerry Brown said at a news conference.

"We do know from the public record that there's someone who's dead and her body, upon investigation, is full of controlled substances and combinations of drugs that turned out to be illegal," he said.

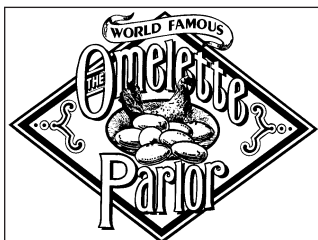

Searches were carried out in Los Angeles and Orange counties "related to doctors who provided medical treatment or prescribed drugs for Anna Nicole Smith or her associates," he said.

Six locations were raided in Los Angeles County, said Sandi Gibbons, spokeswoman for the Los Angeles County district attorney's office.

Agents have so far reviewed over 100,000 computer images and files, analyzed patient profiles and pharmacy logs and interviewed witnesses throughout the country and abroad, he said.

A call to Eroshevich's attorney, Gary Lincenberg, was not immediately returned.

Writer needs to get it right

Editor:

Miriam Jaffe writes on Oct. 4 that cameras at intersections with a high rate of crashes are an “enormous threat to our liberty.” I completely disagree. I welcome such cameras and the consequent saving of lives. Perhaps even Ms Jaffe’s!

She says that “in London public cameras have proliferated out of control.” This is demonstrably false. Cameras are not capable of self reproduction so I can put Ms Jaffe’s mind at rest on that score. The cameras are not “out of control.” How could they be? They are inanimate objects. Every single camera is 100 percent controlled by software and the system as a whole is controlled by highly qualified intelligent people and they in turn are controlled by the voters of a highly intelligent democracy.

The people of London have been bombed throughout the 20th century by the IRA, the Luftwaffe and religious extremists.

They take the view, as any intelligent non-suicidal person will, that being blown up is a more severe curtailment of their liberty than being photographed.

She claims that cameras are “spying on citizens.” They are not spying. There is no secrecy. They are completely visible and in public places only. They record the public acts of anyone in their range. This generates huge amounts of images of a huge number of people. Most of it will never be looked at. Why would it? It is extremely boring and it would be massively time consuming to do so. It is only when a crime is committed that the images will be looked at by a human being.

Precisely which specific liberty does she consider she will lose? She does not say and I suspect she does not know. If she is a law abiding citizen she has nothing to fear. Is there some activity which she indulges in, in public, and doesn’t want anyone to know about? Even without cameras, all her public acts are visible to whoever may be around. The public parts of most people’s lives are largely routine, boring and of little interest to anyone.

Ms. Jaffe asks, “Why not cameras along all the streets to catch jaywalkers?” I support her here with-in reason. Let’s have cameras on any street on which crime is a problem. Especially on Pico Boulevard where people are shot in broad daylight. Then the police can rapidly see what happened and who did it and prosecute them expediently and avoid huge expensive trials with questionable witnesses. If Ms. Jaffe reads the Crime Watch column (in the DP) she will see that most of the crimes reported there are committed by “transients” (who unfortunately are not transient but resident). So we have criminals sleeping in the streets of Santa Monica.

Ms. Jaffe suggest we accept an occasional accident as an unfortunate part of life. What nonsense! Driving through a red light and killing someone is not “accidental.” It is a conscious decision freely made by a borderline suicidal/homicidal person. Ms. Jaffe would rather be killed at an intersection than photographed at one. Again why? What is she doing at intersections which she wants no-one to see? Absolutely nothing. Sitting in her car looking very bored waiting for the light to change.

We live in an age of religious fanaticism and of constant crime. Most crimes are committed repeatedly by the same tiny minority of society. Bombers can choose to bomb Santa Monica just as they have London. The most recent London bombers were caught in 24 hours at minimal cost. They were tried expeditiously and found guilty. If Santa Monica were bombed we’d probably never find the bombers and so then we’d have to install cameras but then they’d have been paid for in blood. I’d rather pay for my freedom in dollars than in blood. The price of freedom is eternal intelligence.

I think there is something strange about people, in an English speaking democracy, fearing their own democratically elected government.

City’s priorities are backwards

OVER THE LAST FEW WEEKS, THE hysteria about the fate of 23 “structurally compromised” ficus trees on Second and Fourth streets has consumed an inordinate amount of attention in the local press. The real issue is not the trees, it’s the city’s misguided priorities that created this tempest in a teapot in the first place.

The makeover of Second and Fourth streets between Wilshire Boulevard and Broadway was a priority, so the city found $8.2-million, most of it in grants, for the redo. Never mind that the real need for a makeover are the filthy and uninviting Second Street and Third Court alleys adjacent to the “world famous” Third Street Promenade. I guess there was no grant money available to clean them up and relocate reeking garbage bins. When it comes to real priorities, "dappled sunlight" and "attractive night lighting" holds sway over stink, human waste, garbage and filth.

After the disastrous Pico Streetscape, stupefying “transit mall” or the appalling “Civic Center Master Plan,” no wonder the Second and Fourth streets redo is now a rallying cry for “enough, already.” Keep in mind those overseeing the downtown urban redesign plan were the usual City Hall insiders including Planning Commissioners, City Council persons and members of the Bayside District Corporation. We got what we usually get — and that’s screwed, again.

The City loves grants. It is constantly applying for funding for everything from Big Blue Bus subsidies to purchasing real estate. If the City can find someone to give it millions of dollars to pay for homeless services and road improvements, why not? In the case of the Second and Fourth streets urban redesign, millions of dollars from a variety of sources was available for the project just for the asking.

There are approximately 2,200 city employees or 1 employee for every 40 residents. This year, the City budget is close to half a billion dollars — and then there’s the grants worth millions more. You’d think we’d be swimming in city services, have low taxes, the greatest parks, streets free of congestion and be reaping the benefits of a city awash in greenbacks.

City Hall seems to find plenty of simoleons for things that don’t really benefit the 86,000 citizens who call Santa Monica home. Millions in tax and grant monies are spent annually on social engineering schemes at the detriment of residents. Federal, State and local grants goes for hundreds of units of low income housing here primarily for residents of Los Angeles. Typical is the 3.3 acre, 365 unit housing project in the Civic Center on land that was supposed to be a public park.

Millions are spent for homeless services that exclusively benefit those drawn here from far and wide who can’t take care of themselves. Millions more are spent to jam and gridlock traffic in a failed effort to get us on busses, bikes or our own two feet. How does any of this benefit residents?

When it comes to funding our needs, fuggetaboutit. For years, the City cut back on tree maintenance, especially in residential neighborhoods (where the tourists don’t often visit). The condition of the tree canopy, a lack of city support for our public schools which results in residents paying parcel taxes and our youth groups paying to use public athletic fields are all a result of an “agenda before residents” mindset in City Hall.

AFTER THE DISASTROUS PICO STREETSCAPE, STUPEFYING ‘TRANSIT MALL’ OR THE APPALLING ‘CIVIC CENTER MASTER PLAN,’ NO WONDER THE SECOND AND FOURTH STREETS REDO IS NOW A RALLYING CRY FOR ‘ENOUGH, ALREADY.’

Our politicians won’t even cough up for its Police Department’s equestrian unit. Not one council person has stepped to the plate to appropriate a paltry 30 grand from council’s discretionary funds to support this important public safety component. It’s shameful. This is the same City Council that OK’d parking meters under the new library so that those using the facility don’t even get the same once-promised “two hour free” break as shoppers in Second and Fourth streets’ parking garages.

Instead, we get a bottomless pit social agenda, wacky priorities, tremendous waste and laws like the one that says 55-bed homeless shelters and mental health facilities can be built virtually anywhere in the city except for single-family neighborhoods.

So, while a few activists rant about “Saving the Trees,” major problems continue and worsen. Most depressing is the likelihood that next year, those responsible for the ficus fiasco and other misplaced priorities will be voted back into office. Nothing changes. Complaints will continue and continue to be ignored.

When not prioritizing his own priorities, BILL BAUER can be reached at mr.bilbau@gmail.com

No butts about it, smoking issue bites

ACROSS THE COUNTRY, STATE AND local governments are banning smoking on private property, including bars, restaurants, and office buildings. This is just the latest step in the government's war on smoking — a coercive campaign that includes massive taxes on cigarettes, advertising bans, and endless multi-billion dollar lawsuits against tobacco companies.

This war is infecting America with a political disease far worse than any health risk caused by smoking; it is destroying our freedom to make our own judgments and choices.

According to the anti-smoking movement, restricting people's freedom to smoke is justified by the necessity of combating the "epidemic" of smoking-related disease and death. Cigarettes, we are told, kill hundreds of thousands of helplessly addicted victims a year, and expose countless millions to unwanted and unhealthy secondhand smoke. Smoking, the anti-smoking movement says, in effect, is a plague, whose ravages can only be combated through drastic government action.

But smoking is not some infectious disease that must be quarantined and destroyed by the government. Smoking is a voluntary activity that every individual is free to choose to abstain from (including by avoiding restaurants and other private establishments that permit smoking). And, contrary to those who regard any smoking as irrational on its face, cigarettes are a potential value that each individual must assess for himself.

Are they right? Can it be a value to smoke cigarettes — and if so, in what quantity? This is the sort of judgment that properly belongs to every individual, based on his assessment of the evidence concerning smoking's benefits and risks, and taking into account his particular circumstances (age, family history, profession, tastes, etc.). If others believe the smoker is making a mistake, they are free to try to persuade him of their viewpoint. But they should not be free to dictate his decision on whether and to what extent to smoke, any more than they should be able to dictate his decision on whether and to what extent to drink alcohol or play poker. The fact that some individuals will smoke themselves into an early grave is no more justification for banning smoking than that the existence of alcoholics is grounds for prohibiting you from enjoying a drink at dinner.

Implicit in the war on smoking, however, is the view that the government must dictate the individual's decisions with regard to smoking, because he is incapable of making them rationally. To the extent the anti-smoking movement succeeds in wielding the power of government coercion to impose on Americans its blanket opposition to smoking, it is entrenching paternalism: the view that individuals are incompetent to run their own lives, and thus require a nanny-state to control every aspect of those lives.

This state is well on its way: from trans-fat bans to bicycle helmet laws to prohibitions on gambling, the government is increasingly abridging our freedom on the grounds that we are not competent to make rational decisions in these areas — just as it has long done by paternalistically dictating how we plan for retirement (Social Security) or what medicines we may take (the FDA).

Indeed, one of the main arguments used to bolster the anti-smoking agenda is the claim that smokers impose "social costs" on non-smokers, such as smoking-related medical expenses — an argument that perversely uses an injustice created by paternalism to support its expansion.

But contrary to paternalism, we are not congenitally irrational misfits. We are thinking beings for whom it is both possible and necessary to rationally judge which courses of action will serve our interests. The consequences of ignoring this fact range from denying us legitimate pleasures to literally killing us: from the healthy 26-year-old unable to enjoy a trans-fatty food, to the 75-year-old man unable to take an unapproved, experimental drug without which he will certainly die.

By employing government coercion to deprive us of the freedom to judge for ourselves what we inhale or consume, the anti-smoking movement has become an enemy, not an ally, in the quest for health and happiness.

Peace activist returns home

BY GILLIAN FLACCUS
Associated Press Writer

SANTA ANA An Iranian-American peace activist who spent four months in a Tehran prison has returned home after posting bond with Iranian authorities, his son said Friday.

Ali Shakeri, 59, arrived Tuesday at Los Angeles International Airport and has spent the past two days recuperating at his home in suburban Orange County, his son, Kaveh Shakeri, said in a telephone interview.

Shakeri, a real estate broker and founding member of a democracy group, was not speaking with reporters Friday, his son said.

"He's in good health," Kaveh Shakeri said. "He's here, we're happy to have him and we're spending time together."

Shakeri was arrested in May and charged with endangering national security, along with three other Iranian-Americans. He was released in late September, at the same time that Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad was in New York to attend the U.N. General Assembly.

The charges against Shakeri and the other Iranian-Americans elevated tensions between the U.S. and Iran, countries already at odds over U.S. accusations that Iran is seeking to develop nuclear weapons and is fueling violence in Iraq. Iran denies both claims.

Kaveh Shakeri said his father was released on bond after posting a property deed for about $110,000, but may have to return to Iran to answer the charges against him. He said the family has scant information about the legal process — and even the exact charges — that his father faces there.

In the meantime, Shakeri is catching up with family and friends and attending to his real estate business in Lake Forest, his son said. He was not mistreated in prison, he said.

Shakeri is a founding board member of the University of California, Irvine's, Center for Citizen Peacebuilding. He was detained after traveling to Iran to visit his ailing mother, who has since died.

Shakeri has given speeches and radio interviews advocating democracy in Iran and has written occasionally for Payam-E-Ashena, a pro-democracy Persian magazine based in Laguna Hills. His biography on the UCI center's Web site describes him as "an Iranian-American activist who advocates democracy in Iran and peace in the world."

Javad Mostafazi, Shakeri's friend and the publisher of Payam-E-Ashena, said many Iranian immigrants who are politically active are afraid to go back to their native country now because of Shakeri's experience.

I'M VERY SORRY FOR WHAT HAPPENED TO ALI AND OTHERS BUT IT IS THE PRICE WE PAY FOR FREEDOM."

Javad Mostafazi, Shakeri's friend and the publisher of Payam-E-Ashen

"I'm very sorry for what happened to Ali and others but it is the price we pay for freedom," said Mostafazi, who has not yet visited Shakeri. "I hope he gets some rest and then gets back to his activism here."

The Iranian government recently released other Iranian-Americans who were held in Evin prison, including an urban planning consultant with the New York-based Soros Foundation's Open Society Institute and the director of the Washington-based Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars.

A fourth Iranian-American, a journalist, was allowed to leave the country last month after being stuck there since January because authorities had confiscated her passport.

Snoop to pick up trash

By the Associated Press

SANTA ANA Snoop Dogg will pick up trash and perform other park maintenance as part of his sentence for carrying an illegal weapon in an airport last year, authorities said last week.

The rapper, whose real name is Cordozar Calvin Broadus Jr., will do "everything from raking leaves to painting benches" in order to meet the 160 hours of community service he was ordered to perform, said his attorney, Donald Etra.

"He's glad to make a contribution to Orange County," the attorney said.

Dogg chose the Orange County park site from a list of probation-approved community service sites and will be supervised by a park ranger, county prosecutor Andre Manssourian said.

A judge approved the park service Wednesday. County officials declined to release the name of the park, citing concerns that media and fans might interfere.

No date was given for him to start or complete the service, his attorney said.

The 35-year-old rapper pleaded guilty last month to felony possession of a dangerous weapon. He was arrested Sept. 27, 2006, after the discovery of a collapsible baton in his computer bag at John Wayne Airport in Orange County.

Snoop Dogg said the baton was a prop for a video he was filming in New York.

The felony conviction will be reduced to a misdemeanor if the rapper does not break the law for a year.

His sentence included community service, three years' probation, $1,000 in fines and court costs.

IN TROUBLE: The state's delta system is in need of some work if it is to recover anytime soon.

Delta in worse shape than ever

Despite major spending, conditions of the water resource worries some

BY SAMANTHA YOUNG AND ERICA WERNER

Associated Press Writers

SACRAMENTO The mighty river delta that supplies water to two-thirds of California's population and is one of the most important wildlife habitats on the West Coast is in worse shape than ever despite $4.7 billion in government spending.

The ambitious venture launched seven years ago to restore and protect the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta has spent most of its budget on projects hundreds of miles away, according to an Associated Press review.

While many of those projects are regarded by environmentalists and policy-makers as worthwhile in their own right, they have done almost nothing to achieve the main goals state and federal lawmakers laid out when they created the California Federal Bay-Delta Program, or CalFed.

Now California's endless water wars are flaring anew, with experts declaring the state's key water source — and the delta's wildlife — to be in crisis once again.

"In many respects, we're right back where we were," said Tina Swanson, a fish biologist with the San Francisco-based Bay Institute.

CalFed, as the program is known, has four objectives: increase the reliability of water deliveries; improve water quality; reduce the risks of a catastrophic breach in the delta's extensive system of earthen levees; and restore the delta's ecosystem for plants, animals and fish.

With those goals largely unrealized, a federal judge stepped in this summer to limit the state's water pumping operations to protect a native fish, prompting fears of a statewide water shortage next year. Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger and state lawmakers, meanwhile, are considering plans to spend billions more on California's water systems, with much of that money targeted again for the delta.

The AP's review of CalFed spending reveals how the agency has been unable to deal with the delta's most basic problems, even as it slides further toward collapse.

For example, CalFed agencies initially proposed spending $950 million to eliminate mercury, organic carbons and other contaminants from the water that flows to some 25 million Californians out of the delta. In reality, the agency has spent just 13 percent of that — about $125 million — and produced little if any improvement in water quality.

Joe Grindstaff, CalFed's director for the past two years, acknowledged the program's many shortcomings.

"Fundamentally, the system we devised didn't work," he said.

Instead of attacking the problems CalFed was intended to solve, the $4.7 billion allotted to the program acted like a grab-bag for the 14 state and federal agencies that have access to the money.

The vast majority has been spent on hundreds of relatively non-controversial projects outside the delta, due to a combination of political disputes, diffuse leadership and parochial money-grabs.

Meanwhile, native fish species have plummeted, pesticides, fertilizers and other pollutants are worsening water quality, invasive species are crowding the West Coast's largest estuary and inland delta, and scientists agree the delta's antiquated levees would not withstand a major earthquake that could cut off water supplies to millions.

CalFed was supposed to address all those issues.

Among the other projects:

— $40.2 million to tear down five dams along Battle Creek in rural Shasta County — about 160 miles from the northern point of the delta — to restore 42 miles of habitat for salmon and steelhead trout.

— $483,669 to three educational programs, including $169,032 to a Los Angeles area group called Amigos De Los Rios. That money was to design a 17-mile loop of parks and greenways through 10 cities in the San Gabriel Valley, east of Los Angeles.

Gore wins Nobel Peace Prize

Former Vice President honored for his environmental work

BY SETH BORENSTEIN AND LISA LEFF
Associated Press Writers

PALO ALTO For years, former Vice President Al Gore and a host of climate scientists were belittled and, worst of all, ignored for their message about how dire global warming is.

On Friday, they were awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for their warnings about what Gore calls "a planetary emergency."

Gore shared the prize with the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, a United Nations network of scientists. This scientific panel has explained the dry details of global warming in thousands of pages of footnoted reports every six years or so since 1990.

Gore, fresh from a near miss at winning the U.S. presidency in 2000, translated the numbers and jargon-laden reports into something people could understand. He made a slide show and went Hollywood.

His documentary "An Inconvenient Truth" won two Academy Awards and has been credited with changing the debate in America about global warming.

For Gore it was all about the message.

"This is a chance to elevate global consciousness about the challenges that we face now," he said Friday at the offices of the Alliance For Climate Protection, a nonprofit he founded. "The alarm bells are going off in the scientific community."

Despite a live global stage, Gore did not take questions from reporters, avoiding the issue of a potential 2008 presidential run. His aides repeatedly say he won't enter the race. Gore donated his share of the $1.5 million prize to the nonprofit.

"For my part, I will be doing everything I can to try to understand how to best use the honor and the recognition from this award as a way of speeding up the change in awareness and the change in urgency," Gore said in brief remarks.

"It is a planetary emergency and we have to act quickly."

In announcing the award earlier in the day in Oslo, Norway, Nobel committee chairman Ole Danbolt Mjoes said the prize was not a slap at the Bush administration's current policies. Instead, he said it was about encouraging all countries "to think again and to say what can they do to conquer global warming."

Gore is the first former vice president to win the Peace Prize since 1906 when Theodore Roosevelt, who by that time had become president, was awarded. Sitting Vice President Charles Gates Dawes won the prize in 1925. Former Presidents Jimmy Carter won it in 2002 and Woodrow Wilson in 1919.

Gore, who learned of his award from watching the live TV announcement — hearing his name amid the Norwegian — was not celebratory Friday. His tone was somber. He spoke beside his wife, Tipper, and four Stanford University climate scientists who were co-authors of the international climate report. Outside the building, schoolchildren held a sign saying, "Thank you Al."

For years, there was little thanks.

Judge holds jail threat over administration's top forest official

BY JEFF BARNARD
AP Environmental Writer

A federal judge on Friday warned the Bush administration's top forestry official he could go to jail for contempt of court in a case challenging the use of fire retardant by the U.S. Forest Service to fight wildfires.

U.S. District Judge Donald W. Molloy in Missoula, Mont., issued the warning in a written order canceling a contempt hearing for Agriculture Undersecretary Mark Rey that had been scheduled for Monday. The judge said he needed time to read 200 pages of material filed at the last minute by the Forest Service.

"If on review I find there is noncompliance, I will reschedule the contempt hearing and Secretary Rey will be required to appear and show cause why he should not be held in contempt — and jailed — until the law and the court's orders have been complied with," Molloy wrote.

The judge gave the Forest Service 10 days to produce the environmental analysis the agency did on fire retardant six years ago, to evaluate the "legitimacy" of the analysis.

Rey said the Forest Service was committed to complying with the judge's orders and he stood ready to appear at any future contempt hearing set by the judge.

"If he wants us to be there we will be there," Rey said.

In 2005, Molloy ruled that the Forest Service violated the Endangered Species Act and the National Environmental Policy Act when it failed to go through a public process to analyze the potential environmental harm from using ammonium phosphate, a fertilizer that kills fish, as the primary ingredient for retardant dropped on wildfires.

The ruling stemmed from a lawsuit brought by Forest Service Employees for Environmental Ethics after fire retardant dropped in Fall Creek in Central Oregon in 2002 killed 20,000 fish.

Ever since Molloy's ruling, the Forest Service has been dragging its feet on producing a new environmental review.

Forest Service Employees for Environmental Ethics pressed to have Rey found in contempt, arguing the environmental assessment filed on the deadline Wednesday lacked a formal declaration of no significant impact.

Garbage disposals do little to assist the environment

Dear EarthTalk

I was surprised to learn recently that some cities, including New York, have outlawed kitchen-sink garbage disposals, at least in homes. I would have thought these machines were Earth-friendly. What's the deal?

Maggie Mangan

St. Louis, MO

KITCHEN SINK GARBAGE DISPOSALS

are not necessarily Earth-friendly in and of themselves, but they do play a valuable role in grinding up food scraps into small enough bits for local sewer or on-site septic systems to handle. In the U.S. overall, about half of all homes have a garbage disposal in the kitchen. New York did outlaw the devices for many years, thinking a ban would alleviate the strain on the city's aging sewer system. But a study later conducted in the mid-1990s found benefits to lifting the ban, including a likely reduction in rat and cockroach problems and a reduced flow of solid waste to landfills already bursting at the seams. So in 1997 the Big Apple began allowing the devices again.

But garbage disposals are not the greenest way to dispose of food waste.

According to Mark Jeantheau of the popular eco-website Grinning Planet, conscientious consumers interested in returning food-based nutrients back to the Earth should bypass the garbage disposal in favor of composting.

"The ground-up waste [in a garbage disposal] does not go back to nature's water supply to be gobbled up by fish and other life forms," he says. Sewage-treatment and septic systems remove "any food value the waste might have had." Indeed, most modern-day sewer filtration systems utilize chemicals to rid the outflow of any life forms, beneficial or otherwise. Plus, grinding food in a garbage disposal uses a lot of freshwater, which is becoming a more and more precious commodity.

Those on their own septic systems also might want to minimize their use of the garbage disposal. According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), regular use of garbage disposals leads to a "more rapid buildup of scum and sludge layers in the septic tank and increased risk of clogging in the soil adsorption field due to higher concentrations of suspended solids in the effluent." Jeantheau adds that even if a given septic system is designed to handle heavier, food-based loads, it still might not be worth the risk: "There are few homeowner nightmares worse than having your septic system go belly up."

While composting may sound like a messy proposition, it doesn't have to be. For starters, those doing the dishes should make sure to dump any and all food waste items into a kitchen-based composting bin with a lid that seals tight. Many municipalities now make such bins available to interested residents. A mesh strainer in the hole in the sink can catch smaller food scraps and be dumped into the composting bin when the dishes are done.

When the kitchen-based compost bin fills up, it can be dumped into a larger composting bin outside. After four to six months, you should have some nice compost to add to your garden and jumpstart the health of your soil. Companies such as The Compost Bin and Clean Air Gardening offer online sales of a wide variety of quality compost bins of different shapes and sizes, and provide a wealth of comparative information for the interested consumer.

GO NATURAL: Kitchen garbage disposals use a lot of water and the waste has little value to other life forms after sewage-treatment systems are done with it. If you want to return food-based nutrients to the Earth, opt for composting, the spoils of which can be added to your garden to jump start the health of your soil.

Less people call streets home

3,000 to 5,000.

"Other hot spots around the county did go up, while ours went down, and that's part of why I feel some level of confidence in our strategy, which has been to focus on the chronically homeless and get those people off the streets," Rusk said.

In 2004, City Hall established the Chronic Homeless Program, which focuses an intense level of resources on those people who have been living on Santa Monica's streets for at least two years or more, are the most visible in the community, have a high instance of contact with local police, paramedics and local hospital resources and are least successful in accessing services designed to assist their recovery.

So far 144 people have been enrolled in the program, with 78 finding housing. Of those, 90 percent have a source of income. The average age is 55 years old and most have been homeless for an average of 18 years, Rusk said.

The goal is to identify those who need help, get them stabilized with treatment programs and counseling, and then get them housing with case workers following up to make sure those in the program continue to stay on track.

In addition to that program, City Hall in February established a Homeless Community Court, where those charged with quality of life crimes and other minor offenses are given choices like drug or alcohol treatment instead of jail time, which can be an ineffective deterrent because of prison overcrowding that forces most offenders to be released early.

ices and a lack of available housing.

Another program that has had some success, Rusk said, is Project Homecoming, where homeless individuals are given a bus ticket home to their friends or family. In the first year of the program, 59 people have been relocated at an average cost of $145 per person. Most have been homeless less than two years, and most return to sleeping in doorways or on benches and I still see panhandling at the (Third Street) Promenade. I think the numbers sound good and if they're true, great, but I'm not going to give any pats on the back just yet."

In the county, there was a 17 percent decrease in the number of homeless people, dropping from 88,345 in 2005 to 73,702 in 2007.

Rebecca Isaacs, a Santa Monica resident and director of LAHSA, said that the decline in homelessness is not a reason to become complacent.

"While the numbers remain lower, Los Angeles remains the 'homeless capital' of the nation," she said. "The situation is still extremely serious. Clearly, a great deal of work still needs to be done to reduce and end homelessness in our county."

Rusk and her staff will certainly be doing more work. They plan to dig deeper into the count to learn more about the characteristics of the homeless population in Santa Monica.

"Clearly we have to do more to get other people engaged," Rusk said. "The truth of the matter is, we don't have enough room to house all of the people in our community."

kevinh@smdp.com

their families.

While Santa Monica seems to be having success, it doesn't feel like things are changing for many residents. Homelessness continues to be one of the top three concerns shared by residents like Kyle Martin, who encounters transients on his way to work every day in downtown.

"It just doesn't seem like there's been a decrease," Martin said. "I still see people

In the first six months of the court, Rusk said 18 of the 55 participants have received emergency or transitional housing, 16 enrolled in drug or alcohol treatment programs and four have are in mental health treatment.

Of those, eight failed to appear or were discharged unsuccessfully from the project. Rusk said challenges to date have been the lack of rapid access to psychiatric serv-ical organization, now with the Santa Monica branch.

Kaufman was honored last month by the League and the city of Santa Monica for her 56 years of volunteer service, presented with a proclamation that declared Aug. 19 at "Rose Kaufman Day" in Santa Monica.

The 47-year Santa Monica resident has spent the majority of her long and fruitful career with the League in voter services, compiling pro and con information on ballot initiatives. She has served as president twice in the league — from 1964-65 and 1982-83 respectively.

During the 2006 election, the league distributed more than 3,000 copies of a voter education handout listing the pros and cons of every local measure. There were five measures in the most recent local election — measures U, V, W, Y and BB.

The pros and cons are compiled from supporters and opponents of each ballot initiative. Even if the information is inaccurate, Kaufman said she doesn't edit the content provided to her. Most importantly, League opinion is never inputted.

Kaufman was born and raised in Philadelphia and moved to Toledo in 1950 where she attended the University of Toledo. After 10 years in Ohio, Kaufman and her family uprooted to Santa Monica after her husband, Phillip, secured a job as a chemical engineer.

For a politically active woman, moving to a politically active small town was a perfect fit. It also helped that Santa Monica lacked the frigid climate of Toledo.

Santa Monica had the vibe of a small and intimate town in the 1960s, a time when neighbors were close and children could walk or ride a bicycle to school, Kaufman said. The area from Montana to Wilshire had mainly small houses, rather than apartment complexes and condominiums that are interspersed amongst the single-family homes today.

"I liked the small town, but things do not stay the same," said Kaufman, who has lived in the same home north of Montana Avenue since she moved to Santa Monica. "I think as changes come, some things are better, some are worse."

Her children all went through the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District. Kaufman herself also received some education in Santa Monica, attending the local junior college to learn Spanish and psychology.

Much has changed since the Kaufmans' early days in Santa Monica. Traffic has worsened as Santa Monica continues to establish itself as a vacation and entertainment destination. Home prices have skyrocketed as many of Santa Monica neighborhoods have undergone gentrification. Kaufman said that she would not have been able to buy her home with the housing prices of today's market.

Kaufman has stayed active in Santa Monica's civic life, participating in a number of committees including the advisory board to WISE Senior Services and the executive committee for Santa Monica College's Emeritus College, which offers classes for senior citizens.

Perhaps most impressive for Kaufman is her record of speaking at City Council meetings — more than 33 times, one of which came in October 1981 when she spoke on the budget. It's much easier for residents to participate in city government in a small town like Santa Monica, she said.

"My philosophy is we all relate to each other," she said. "We all owe each other consideration and a helping hand if necessary."

Kaufman registered to vote in 1936 at the age of 21. Voter apathy was low and participation was much higher back then, especially during the throes of the Great Depression.

She recalls feeling excited voting in her first election when Franklin D. Roosevelt was running for re-election. It was a feeling of accomplishment, a feeling that she could actually make a difference.

"There was a very strong support for Franklin D. Roosevelt," she said. "He was more or less the savior of society."

She added, "There's more voter apathy in good times than in bad."

Off-the-beaten path hiding spot

"I was definitely surprised to find people there in the bushes," she said.

John Atts, an independent contractor for computer technology, has worked in the building for eight years. He is among more than 15 small businesses that conduct their operations in the tightly secured building.

As a result of the strong homeless presence, all entries to the building are closed to the public. Employees enter through a gated parking garage on Seventh Street, Atts said.

"I've had situations where the garage door will open and they'll walk in," Atts said.

The businesses never have to worry about their clients coming into contact with the homeless people as almost all of their business meetings are conducted outside of Santa Monica, Atts said.

One of the biggest mysteries concerning the building is the identity of the property owner and why that person has not removed the bushes. Atts said that he and many of the employees in the building do not know the identity of the owner. City Hall records also do not list a name for the building owner or names of any businesses conducted in the structure.

The Los Angeles County Assessor's Office identifies the owner of the parcel as Sheila Bittman, who has a P.O. Box address in Santa Monica. Bittman did not return a request for comment.

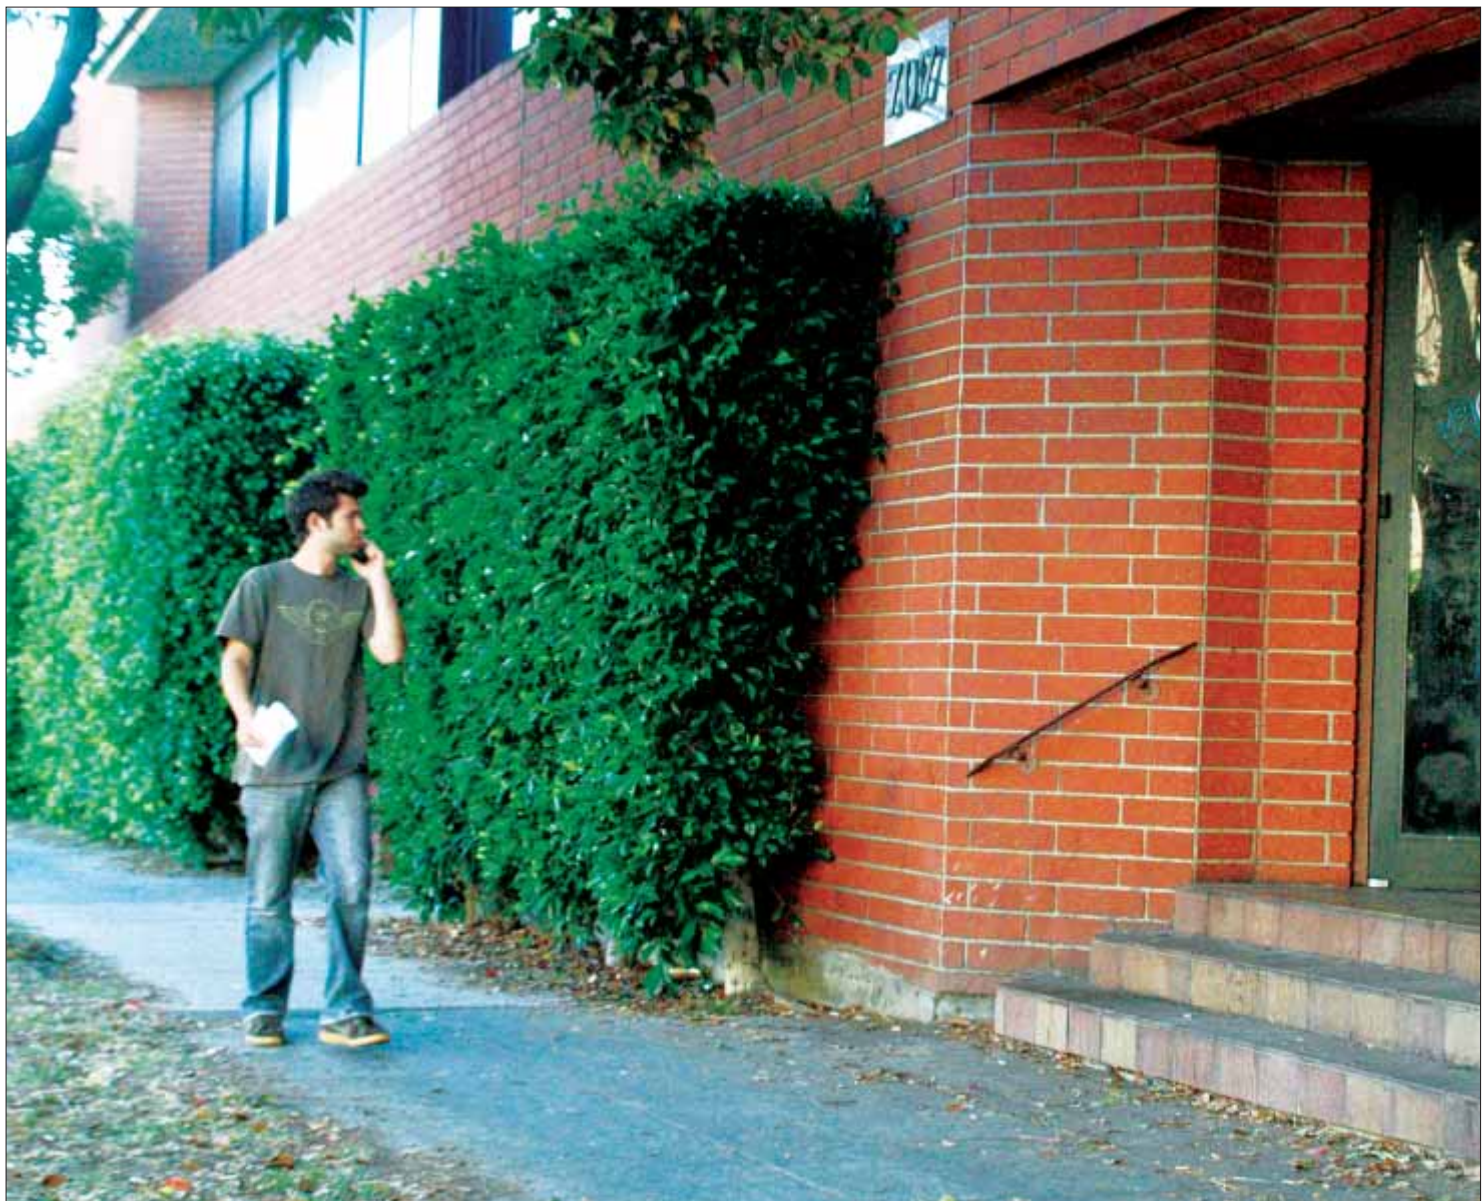

The employees that work in the vicinity of Seventh Street and Arizona Avenue have become desensitized to the homeless presence at the building. After all, there are homeless people every where in Santa Monica, they said.

When Susie Boyajan takes a stroll past the building at 707 Arizona Avenue at night, more often than not, she'll see a homeless person sprawled on the front steps. Occasionally, the executive producer that works at post-production house Pop Sound — located directly across the street — will hear a voice yelling from behind the bushes.

"The police come pretty quickly if there's a disturbance," Boyajan said on Tuesday.

The building is on the Santa Monica Police Department's "periodic check list," meaning an officer will stop in once a day to check if the premises are clear of unlawful activity.

The building is unique in that it is located in an area that doesn't generate

Several residents that live in the area say they intentionally avoid walking past the building at night as a precautionary measure, creeped out by the faceless voices that come from behind the dark hedges.

Department of Justice raids Smith's doctors

However, he told KNBC-TV that the investigation only concerned whether prescriptions to Smith were proper.

"This has nothing to do with whether or not Dr. Eroshevich in any way contributed to Anna Nicole Smith's death," he said.

Ellyn Garafalo, a lawyer for Kapoor, confirmed the doctor's home and offices were searched but declined to comment further.

Howard K. Stern, Smith's attorney and companion, reportedly was at Eroshevich's Studio City home when investigators arrived. The psychiatrist had been watching Stern's dogs while he was away in New York, and he arrived back early Friday, Stern's attorney Lin Wood told CelebTV.com.

"He is not involved in anything that is being investigated and it has nothing to do with him," said James T. Neavitt, another Stern attorney.

The Medical Board of California also is investigating both Kapoor and Eroshevich. According to documents, Eroshevich authorized all 11 prescription medications found in Smith's hotel room the day she died. Eroshevich had traveled with Smith to Florida.

More than 600 pills, including 450 muscle relaxants, were missing from prescriptions that were no more than five weeks old, according to the documents obtained by The Associated Press through a public records request.

"There's a lot of pills" that were prescribed, Brown said, noting that Smith's autopsy concluded she died of "drug intoxication."

Brown said he did not know if the criminal probe could lead to exhumation of Smith's body, which is buried in the Bahamas. He said investigators have learned "quite a lot" from Bahamian authorities but he declined to be specific on grounds that it might jeopardize the investigation.

Asked if the probe would expand to include Smith's son, Daniel, who died of a drug overdose in the Bahamas less than five months before his mother, Brown replied: "We're not setting any limits on this investigation."

Brown declined to speculate on what charges the doctors might face if it was determined they improperly prescribed drugs, but indicated they might be serious.

"You don't go to a judge and get a search warrant for somebody's home unless you think some rather serious crime has been committed," Brown said.

Noting the ongoing Medical Board investigation, Brown said there could be violations of the medical practice code.

University of Southern California law professor Jody Armour said potential charges could include manslaughter if it is determined that a physician "exposed others to harm recklessly," and even murder if the action was so reckless it constituted malice.

A claim of criminal homicide could be brought by arguing a physician generated excessive risks, he said, by "prescribing this substance without proper supervision or without diagnosis or without a proper foundation of some kind."

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.
The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Cal slips to 10th in poll after mistakes cost Bears top spot

BY JOSH DUBOW
AP Sports Writer

BERKELEY The California fans started chanting “We’re No. 1! We’re No. 1!” as soon as word of LSU’s triple-overtime loss at Kentucky reached Memorial Stadium.
The only problem was that the Golden Bears played nothing like a No. 1 team and blew their chance to move into the top spot in the polls for the first time in 56 years.
Turnovers, defensive breakdowns and one memorable mistake on the game’s final play doomed Cal in its 31-28 loss to Oregon State on Saturday.
Poised to move up to No. 1 after top-ranked LSU’s loss earlier in the day, the Bears (5-1, 2-1 Pac-10) were unable to deliver and dropped from second to 10th in the latest poll.
Now hopes turn from an undefeated season and a national championship to ending a Rose Bowl drought that dates back to the 1959 season.
“It hurts,” said backup quarterback Kevin Riley, whose failure to throw the ball away on the last play cost Cal a chance at overtime.
“I’m hurting and the team is hurting right now, but we can still win the rest of our games. In this college football season, you don’t know what the hell is going to happen.”
Cal became the 10th team ranked in the Top 10 this season to lose to an unranked team, joining the likes of Southern California to Stanford and Michigan to Appalachian State.
Coupled with LSU’s 43-37 loss, it marked the first time in 11 years that the top two teams lost on the same day.
“We take this as a lesson,” linebacker Worrell Williams said. “We were saying that teams get knocked off every week. The top two teams got knocked off. We’re going to take this lesson and get back into the film room and get back to work. It was key little plays that we weren’t able to convert.”
The biggest play was the last. After Riley drove Cal from its 5 to the Oregon State 12 in the final 1:27, the Bears looked poised to send the game into overtime or even possibly win it.
With 14 seconds left and no timeouts, coach Jeff Tedford chose to take a shot one at the end zone instead of kicking the potential game-tying field goal.
“Maybe you win the game,” Tedford said. “A lot of times you second guess yourself, but I don’t second guess this one. We just didn’t make the play.”
Riley dropped back, and with no receivers open, he decided to run for it instead of throwing the ball away. He was tackled at the 10 and there was no time to spike the ball or get the field goal unit on the field, providing a crushing ending to his first start.
Riley got the start in place of Nate Longshore, who has a sprained right ankle. Admittedly nervous at the start, Riley played well down the stretch and finished 20-for-34 for 294 yards and two touchdowns.
“I thought Riley played well,” receiver Lavelle Hawkins said. “He made great decisions. He shouldn’t hang his head. There wasn’t anyone open, so he made the decision to make a play with his feet. I’m not disappointed, Riley played well. Of course, you wanted your superstar starter out there, but I wouldn’t take anything back.”

THE TEAM IS HURTING RIGHT NOW, BUT WE CAN STILL WIN THE REST OF OUR GAMES. IN THIS COLLEGE FOOTBALL SEASON, YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT THE HELL IS GOING TO HAPPEN."

Kevin Riley
Cal backup quarterback

The Bears will probably need Longshore the rest of the way if they want to make it to the Rose Bowl because they can ill afford another slip-up like the one against the Beavers (4-3, 2-2).
The schedule gets tough for Cal with road games at UCLA and No. 12 Arizona State — the only undefeated teams in conference play — before home games against Washington State and No. 13 USC.
“We had visions of going undefeated and aspirations and dreams. But this is reality,” linebacker Worrell Williams said. “The season isn’t over. This is just an obstacle that we have to get through.”
The Bears made plenty of mistakes before the final play. They turned the ball over three times, failed to score on four shots from inside the 2, and botched a squib kick at the end of the first half to set up an Oregon State field goal.
They also were unable to get star receiver DeSean Jackson involved at all. He had four catches for five yards and one 8-yard run after having 11 catches for 161 yards and two scores two weeks ago at Oregon.
But it will be the play at the end that will be remembered from this game.
“We didn’t lose the game because of that play,” Tedford said. “There were a lot of plays.”

Ben Affleck says new role as director suits him and is 'so satisfying and exhilarating'

Fresh off his directorial debut, BEN AFFLECK says he's found his calling.

"In the beginning part of wanting to be a director was just a natural extension of acting," said Affleck, whose movie "Gone Baby Gone" opens Friday. "But now this feels like what I am, or what I want to be, it's so satisfying and exhilarating.

"In fact, the central preoccupation of my life right now is trying to find another movie to direct," he told The New York Times for a story in Sunday's editions.

Affleck co-wrote the script and directed "Gone Baby Gone," a crime thriller set and filmed in Boston about the search for an abducted 4-year-old girl.

He told the newspaper he included as many locals as he could in the film, people plucked off the street or discovered in bars, even for speaking roles. One woman was cast as a beer-drinking smart-mouth after approaching him and saying, "I should be in your movie."

"I wanted something raw and authentic and even a little scuffed up," said Affleck, who grew up in the area. "People go to the movies to see something they can't get otherwise, and I thought this was a chance to take you somewhere that you couldn't otherwise get to the Boston you never see in the movies."

VARDALOS GETS OK

NIA VARDALOS, star of "My Big Fat Greek Wedding," stood under a big reflector on Saturday, filming a new romantic comedy among the dramatic ruins on the Acropolis.

The scene will appear in "My Life in Ruins," also starring Richard Dreyfuss, and follows a decision by Greek authorities to relax their ban on any commercial use of ancient sites.

Authorities vetted the script for historical accuracy and convened a panel of senior archaeologists to give final approval.

"My Big Fat Greek Wedding" was a hit.

McKellen's 'King Lear' sends ticket prices soaring in Los Angeles area

IAN MCKELLEN is nearly as hot a ticket as Hannah Montana.

The esteemed English actor is set to play Shakespeare's "King Lear" in six performances with the Royal Shakespeare Company at UCLA starting Friday, and tickets have been resold for more than $1,000.

The entire run of the play was sold out in July on the day it went on sale, with a top price of $90. Single orchestra seats are listing at $936 to $1,706 on online ticket marketplace Stubhub. Bids for a ticket on eBay have topped $800.

Stubhub spokesman Sean Pate says the highest price actually paid for a pair has been $2,106.

Only 14-year-old pop sensation Miley Cyrus, star of the Disney Channel's "Hannah Montana" TV show, has created a bigger recent stir on the local ticket market.

Long one of the most celebrated stars of the British stage, the 68-year-old McKellen has won major American fame in recent years for his portrayals of Gandalf in the "Lord of the Rings" trilogy and "Magneto" in the X-Men films.

McKellen downplayed his own role in sending the Shakespeare ticket prices skyward.

By day McKellen appears on the same stage in Chekov's "The Seagull."

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Some Americans continue to prefer to "do it themselves" to get rid of pests on their property, with tragic results. In June, Mike Harstad of Jamestown, Calif., attempting to eliminate a wasps' nest with a can of Pledge and a cigarette lighter, ultimately burned down his mobile home and contents and destroyed an outbuilding, a truck, a boat and a trailer. In August, a Whitehall, Pa., man, William Sekol, 82, attempting to destroy a yellow jackets' nest beneath a storm sewer grate in his front yard, put a dried tree over the grate, doused it with gasoline, and lit it (supposedly to suffocate the yellow jackets underneath). However, some gasoline ran into the sewer, where its fumes combusted. In the resulting explosion, Sekol's mustache and eyebrows were singed.

■ Surprisingly Complicated: A 24-year-old woman in Lawrenceville, Ga. (in July), and a 59-year-old woman in Lincolnton, N.C. (in August), were killed after failing to negotiate driver's-side devices allowing them entrance to, respectively, a gated parking lot and an automatic car wash. The Georgia woman had leaned out her window to insert a card into the gate-opening machine when her car lurched forward and pinned her head between the car and the door. The North Carolina woman had reached out her open car door to punch in a code for the wash when her car lurched forward, similarly pinning her head. (Police in both cases said that the cars should have been in Park.)

NOTICE INVITING BIDS

Sealed bids will be received by the County of Los Angeles Department of Public Works, Construction Division, for the installation of signs and pavement markings under Project ID No. RDC0014635, Commuter Bikeway Signing Project Phase II, in the vicinity of South Gate, Lynwood, Santa Monica, Long Beach, and Temple City.

The bids must be submitted at the Cashier's Office, located on the Mezzanine level, 900 South Fremont Avenue, Alhambra, California 91803-1331, before 11 a.m. on Tuesday, November 6, 2007. The bids will then be publicly opened and read in Conference Room A or at the location posted in the main lobby.

The work shall be done in accordance with the Plans and Specifications on file and open for inspection at the County Board of Supervisors Executive Office and the Department of Public Works. The work is estimated to cost between $70,000 and $100,000 and shall be completed in 40 working days. The work requires a California Class A or C32 contractor's license. Prebid questions regarding the Plans and Specifications should be directed to Mr. Harry Cong at (626) 458-3111.

The bids must be submitted on the proposal forms included in the bidder's package of the contract documents, which may be purchased for $15, if picked up at the aforementioned Cashier's Office, (626) 458-6959, Monday through Thursday between 7 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., or for $19, if mailed, which includes postage and handling.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check, cashier's check, or surety bond payable to County of Los Angeles in an amount equal to at least 10 percent of the bid to guarantee that the bidder will enter into the contract if it is so awarded.

All persons performing the work shall be paid not less than the General Prevailing Wage Determination made by the Director of Industrial Relations pursuant to the California Labor Code. Copies of these wage rates are available at the Department of Public Works. Furthermore, minimum Davis-Bacon Act Wage Decisions for this Project as predetermined by the Secretary of Labor (Federal) are set forth in the Special Provisions.

If there is a difference between the minimum wage rates predetermined by the Secretary of Labor and the applicable prevailing wage rates per the Director of Industrial Relations for similar classifications of labor, the contractor and its subcontractors shall pay not less than the higher wage rate.

The rate of compensation for any classification not listed in the schedule, but which may be required to execute the contract, shall be commensurate and in accordance with the rates specified for similar or comparable classifications or for those performing similar or comparable duties.

Bidders are advised that, as required by Federal law, the State has established a statewide overall DBE goal. This Agency's Federal-aid contract is considered to be a part of the statewide overall DBE goal. The Agency is required to report to Caltrans on DBE participation for all Federal-aid contracts each year so that attainment efforts may be evaluated.

The County hereby notifies all bidders that it will affirmatively ensure that minority business enterprises will be afforded full opportunity to submit bids in response to this invitation and will not be discriminated against on the grounds of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin in consideration for award of any contract entered into pursuant to this advertisement.

NOTICE OF REQUIREMENT FOR AFFIRMATIVE ACTION TO ENSURE EOE/EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY (EXECUTIVE ORDER 11246)

The goals for minority and female participation, expressed in percentage terms for the contractor's aggregate workforce in each trade on all construction work in the covered area, are as follows:

Goals for Minority Participation in Each Trade
28.3%

Goals for Female Participation in Each Trade
6.9%

These goals are applicable to all the contractor's construction work (whether or not it is Federal or Federally assisted) performed in the covered area.

The contractor's compliance with the Executive Order and the regulations in 41 CFR, Part 60-4, shall be based on its implementation of the Equal Opportunity Clause, specific affirmative action obligations required by the specifications set forth in 41 CFR, Part 60-4.3(a), and its efforts to meet the goals. The hours of minority and female employment and training must be substantially uniform throughout the length of the contract, and in each trade, and the contractor shall make a good faith effort to employ minorities and females evenly on each of its projects. The transfer of minority or female employees or trainees from contractor to contractor or from project to project for the sole purpose of meeting the contractor's goals shall be a violation of the contract, the Executive Order, and the regulations in 41 CFR, Part 60-4. Compliance with the goals will be measured against the total work hours performed.

The contractor shall provide written notification to the Director of the Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs within ten working days of award of any construction subcontract in excess of $10,000 at any tier for construction work under the contract resulting from this solicitation. The notification shall list the name, address, and telephone number of the subcontractor; employer identification number of the subcontractor; estimated dollar amount of the subcontract; estimated starting and completion dates of the subcontract; and the geographical area in which the contract is to be performed. As used in this Notice, and in the Contract resulting from this solicitation, the "covered area" is the County of Los Angeles.

The bid must provide full disclosure of False Claims Act violations, labor law/payroll violations, debarments, and civil/criminal legal actions as provided for on the forms included as part of the proposal. Failure to complete these forms may result in a determination that the bidder is nonresponsive and/or not responsible.

The contract, if awarded, will be awarded to the lowest responsive and responsible bidder; however, the Board of Supervisors reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

A responsible bidder is a bidder who has demonstrated the attribute of trustworthiness, as well as quality, fitness, capacity, and experience to satisfactorily perform the contract. It is the County's policy to conduct business only with responsible contractors.

The successful bidder will be required to fully comply with all applicable State and Federal reporting requirements relating to employment reporting for its employees and comply with all lawfully served Wage and Earnings Assignment Orders and Notice of Assignment and continue to maintain compliance throughout the duration of the contract. Failure to comply may be cause for termination of the contract or initiation of debarment proceedings.

The successful bidder will be required to submit a faithful performance bond, payment bond, worker's compensation insurance, and liability insurance with the contract.

As provided for in Section 22300 of the California Public Contract Code, the contractor may substitute securities for any monies withheld by the Department of Public Works to ensure performance under the Contract or enter into an escrow agreement for payment of such monies to an escrow agent.

Each person by submitting a response to this Notice Inviting Bids certifies that such bidder and each County lobbyist and County lobbying firm, as defined by Los Angeles County Code Section 2.160.010, retained by the bidder, is in full compliance with Chapter 2.160 of the Los Angeles County Code.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF JANETTE MAY MILLER

Case No. SP007286
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of JANETTE MAY MILLER
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Joseph E. Deering in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.
THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Joseph E. Deering be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held on Nov. 9, 2007 at 9:15 AM in Dept. No. R located at 1725 Main St., Santa Monica, CA 90401.
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
