Local surfers unite to keep Inkwell Beach name

PADDLE-OUT: Local surfers will gather at Inkwell Beach for a paddle-out that begins at 10 a.m. this Saturday. The ceremony was planned after a few surfers were told about possibly changing the name of the historic beach.

Surfers will gather this weekend to paddle out in support of Santa Monica's historically black beach.

The Bay Street Beach Historic District became Santa Monica's first district in the National Register of Historic Places last year and Black Girls Surf founder Rhonda Harper is organizaing the event in support of the area's historic name, Inkwell Beach, after rumors reached some surfers that some people thought the name wasn't appropriate.

Local historian Allison Rose Jefferson, Sea of Clouds' Michael Blum, and Harper were a few of the driving forces who pushed city officials back in 2019 to honor the 55-acre site near the end of Pico

There's a new restaurant on the block in Abbot Kinney, going by the name of Post Script. This brightly colored parking lot pop up, which was launched last month by Paul Pruitt and Dave and Patti Reiss, serves wood-fired meats alongside fresh greens doused in creative spices and sauces.

Guide to Local Childcare, Mental Health and Tutoring

As we enter the seventh month of the COVID-19 pandemic, we understand that this is a stressful time for families everywhere and Santa Monica households are no exception. Some families are supervising their children's virtual learning while working from home or job hunting. Without the resources to hire or access one-on-one tutors, many parents are worried about their children falling behind in school. Others have enrolled their children in day care or in-person remote learning programs, despite personal reservations. And we cannot overlook

It's a Bird, It's a Plane, It's a Madman

Reportedly, when Donald Trump was 5 he violently abused his toddler neighbor who was in a playpen outside and trapped for little Donnie's rock throwing enjoyment. (When Donnie was caught he probably protested "the kid started it.")

In the 2nd grade Donnie gave his music teacher a black eye and was proud of it, "He didn't know anything about music." The final straw for Fred Sr. however was when he discovered a shoe box of switch blade knives hidden under Donnie's bed. He. immediately shipped Donald to Military School, which was essentially reform school for rich, anti-social delinquents.

Unfortunately for us (and the world) Trump's sadistic aggression and bullying were rewarded in military school. Actually, they're still hallmarks of his personality. Question: What do you call a person so profoundly cruel he mocks disabled people; insults Gold Star families; accuses a Republican primary adversary's father of helping kill JFK and wants Hillary, Obama and Biden indicted? Answer: "Unfit for office."

For all his macho bravado, Trump is a coward and a pathetically insecure person who needs to be constantly praised and desperately wants to be loved. At a rally in Pennsylvania on Monday he begged suburban women, "Won't you please like me? I saved your damn neighborhoods!" Talk about weak. First, he didn't save any neighborhoods and to angrily call them "damn" is not exactly the way to win women over. (Then again, neither was grabbing women by the...)

Trump Cadet Bone Spur also desperately wants to be seen as a national hero. "I alone can fix the problems." He's like an arsonist who puts out the fire he started and wants a medal. (Like a child, he still whines about deserving a Nobel Peace Prize, a place on Mt. Rushmore and a retroactive Emmy for "The Apprentice." Poor unloved Donnie, still throwing rocks at anybody who doesn't love him.)

Right about now you're wondering how does Superman figure into all of this? Apparently, as Trump was checking himself out of Walter Reed he came up with a brilliant stunt, that is for an 8-year old.

Trump was going to exit the hospital looking so frail, well, just picture his feebly going down the ramp at West Point, only twice as slow. Then, with music suddenly rising in the background, he was going to rip off his white shirt and reveal a Superman tee shirt, shocking the crowd that he had beaten Covid-19 and feared nothing. (Except perhaps Kryptonite.)

Trump was ecstatic he would soon be viewed as a Superman on every TV in the world. Apparently his aides explained it was more likely he would soon be viewed in Bellevue so the plan was scrapped. (I'd love to have been a fly on Mike Pence's head to have heard that back and forth.)

So instead, Trump staged the "dramatic" landing in the Marine 1 helicopter and his Mussolini moments on the balcony saluting the exiting Marines. (For a real laugh, PLEASE go to YouTube and type "Covita.")

Eight months and there's still no national plan from Trump while currently Covid deaths are up to 218,000 and not a single state is trending in the right direction. We're averaging 50,000 new infections and 1,000 more deaths daily. How can Trump protect America when the White House is a petri dish for the virus? And yet, Trump actually said, "Covid virtually affects no one." Yes, if you happen to live in Antarctica.

Meanwhile Trump has returned to his super spreader rallies as though the coronavirus, as he long ago predicted like a childish fantasy, has magically disappeared. On stage and to the roar of crowd, he danced (if you call it dancing) to the Village People's "YMCA" and "Macho Man." His aides say his "act" has never been better and he's killing his followers with it. Literally. Just ask Herman Cain.

Unfortunately, armed Trump supporters like the Proud Boys, perhaps sensing defeat, seem even more violent than the KKK at Charlottesvile and "Jews will not replace us." As a result I've been thinking of a writing a column, "Red Hats, Brown Shirts."

Meanwhile, Trump's big "Obamagate" he labeled "the worst political crime in American history," was so bogus that after a full investigation the DOJ deemed it not even worthy of a report. So now Trump's floating the conspiracy that Obama's military ordered operation that killed Osama Bin Laden on May 2, 2011, was...you guessed it... a hoax.

I'll close with some amazing "Trump trivia." The word "Trumpery" actually appeared in English in the 15th century, meaning "deceit or fraud" and "worthless nonsense." Some current dictionaries define it as "political smears, demagoguery, blame shifting, liar, fool and madman." Trump supporters, please, instead of sending me irate emails, send them to Merriam Webster.

Boulevard, which was once derogatorily known as "The Inkwell."

During the Jim Crow era, Inkwell Beach was self-selected by African Americans as a place of recreation and leisure since they felt safe from racit, anti-black harassment. So, from the 1910s to the early 1960s, African-Americans were able to enjoy the beach relatively free from bigotry and take pleasure in the picturesque outdoor offerings of the state, Jefferson said as she detailed how discrimination and restrictive real estate covenants also prevented the Black community from buying property in certain areas.

Today, thousands of people will walk by the pier, which is only a short distance from Inkwell's commemorative plaque, knowing very little about the impact that Nicolas Gabaldon and the other forgotten beachgoers had on the local area.

The Inkwell is certainly a place of celebration and pain, and that's why the plaque plainly states that, Jefferson said. But it's important for the community to recognize Inkwell because an understanding of the past is necessary to understand the events of today. "We look to the past to figure out how to make life better for us in the future, and understanding this history gives us a broader look at our society. We can ask why things are the way they are now — and at the same time celebrate how far we've come."

This is especially true with all that's going on in terms of contemporary times, Jefferson added. There has been a reinvigoration of the struggle for Black dignity and, so with that, this site is a place where people can come show solidarity with all the things that are going on.

After the death of George Floyd in late May, Harper organized a Black Girls Surf's first international paddle-out at Inkwell Beach. Paddle-outs are a timeless tradition that are held to honor a fallen member of the community, Harper said in an interview this week. The George Floyd paddle-out was significant because it continued the fight for equality decades after African-Americans had first struggled to find a home on the Westside. It also drew hundreds of attendees and allowed everybody an opportunity to reflect on what they wanted to see changed in society.

Harper said she had a conversation with a woman in the community who said she was uncomfortable with the "pain" aspect of the Inkwell name and asked about changing the name to Nicholas Gabaldon Beach. Harper said, sharing she immediately took issue with the proposal because Gabaldon wasn't the only person who sat and patronized the beach within the confines of Jim Crow.

So even though Inkwell Beach isn't a person, Harper said she expects hundreds of local residents to attend this weekend's paddle-out on Saturday at 10 a.m. because its historical significance is too important to Santa Monica's Black and Brown communities.

"In a million years, I never once thought that I'd have to protest against the erasure of our history but here we are in 2020," Harper said. "The erasure of black history, and the gentrification of black and brown communities have always been something that's very important to me. It's why we worked so hard to get the plaque. Yes, there was pain," but joy and growth also came from that beach.

"That's our history, whether it's painful for you or not," Harper added. So let's let the people decide what should happen. And I think that's what this paddle-out is really going to show — we all support this and you shouldn't mess with history."

families that are advocating for children with unique emotional or special education learning needs. Providing families with the resources they need to survive the pandemic, including safe childcare, mental health care, and academic assessment, is critical to wellbeing, stemming learning loss, and driving economic recovery by allowing parents to work.

Childcare is Open (Ages 0-5)

For families with children under age 5, Connections for Children reports that there are over 120 openings at licensed childcare programs across Santa Monica, including infant spaces. As an essential service, childcare providers were never mandated to close. Some have been open for the duration of the pandemic, while others re-opened in recent months after retooling their spaces and operating protocols.

"Many parents are unaware of the strict safety guidelines under which all licensed childcare providers are operating, as mandated by the LA County Department of Public Health. These protocols include daily health screenings, mask wearing for everyone age 2 and older, and small, stable groups," reports Ivy Chang, a Senior Administrative Analyst for the City of Santa Monica and the lead for the Economic Recovery Working Group on Childcare. "Providers have adapted to stricter regulations for cleaning and infection control, and found creative solutions to help children keep their distance from one another. I encourage parents to look up these guidelines on the County website and ask providers if they have any questions about how they are being implemented."

The early childhood field has been a model for other sectors that are re-opening, and LA County has noted that there have only been ten reported COVID-19 outbreaks across LA County in licensed childcare facilities since the start of the pandemic (defined as three or more positive cases in one location within two weeks).

In-Person Remote Learning Programs

For families whose kids need all-day supervision while parents work, or simply a quiet place with reliable wi-fi, over 10 local childcare providers and tutoring services have launched in-person programs to support distance learning across Santa Monica. For a comprehensive roundup, refer to the listings. These facilities, along with many others are still accepting applications and provide your child with academic support.

Enhanced Childcare Referrals

Since the start of the pandemic, Connections for Children (CFC)--a non-profit childcare resource and referral agency--has been busy providing low income and essential worker families with "Enhanced Referrals." This means that Connections is in regular communication with all licensed childcare providers in their area and only refer families when providers have personally verified that they are accepting new children. This saves time and the usual hassle of contacting providers, only to be told they are full or, worse yet, not receive a call-back at all. So far, 93 Santa Monica families have participated.

Shirley Perez, Community Partnerships Coordinator at Connections for Children, is the best person to contact about licensed childcare in Santa Monica -- (310) 452-3325, ext. 260, or email shirleyp@cfc-ca.org.

Financial Aid for Childcare

This fall, financial aid for childcare is available through the LA CARES Voucher Program for low income households and families with essential workers that must report to work in person. The exact value of the voucher depends on your household income, the age of your child, and whether you choose a center or a family childcare. Parents self-certify their need for care, and, once approved, select a care provider to contract with CFC for subsidized childcare through December 30.

Free and Sliding Scale Mental Health Resources

Finally, children and youth of all ages are not immune from the stressors of our brave new world. As children are interacting with fewer adults, there are fewer opportunities to make referrals for needed supports. Families with children who are struggling emotionally in any way are strongly encouraged to seek mental health support, now most commonly offered via telehealth. Locally, Family Service of Santa Monica (FSSM) and Providence Saint John's-Child and Family Development Center (PSJ) are contracted with the LA County Department of Mental Health to offer counseling to children, teens, and families. Both offer individual counseling and psychotherapy services, parenting support, school-based mental health services, and specialized programs for families with children aged 0-5.

Typically an intake coordinator will field your call and ask you a series of questions to assess your child's situation. Mental health services at FSSM and PSJ are covered by Medi-Cal. FSSM also offers a "sliding scale fee" based on monthly income.

Free Virtual Tutoring

The Santa Monica Public Library is currently offering free, virtual tutoring through a program called Brainfuse. Brainfuse provides elementary through high school students with a virtual one-on-one tutoring platform that assists students with math, science, reading and writing, and social studies from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. daily in both English and Spanish.

9 Things to Look For in Childcare during COVID-19

1. Small, stable group sizes. The County limits group sizes to 12 kids with two educators.
2. Quick drop-offs/pick-ups. Expect staggered pickups/drop offs at centers.
3. Daily Health Screenings at Drop-Off.
4. Heightened Cleaning Procedures.
5. Mask Wearing. Mandatory for educators and kids 2 and up.
6. Physical Distancing. Ask how your provider has adapted daily activities such as eating and circle time - you may be delighted by the ingenuity of their ideas. That said, due to their age, it might not always be possible to keep kids separated.
7. Frequent Hand Washing. Visible signage throughout the facility, including posted at eye level for young children in the restrooms.
8. Isolation plans. Ask what a provider would do if a child (or staff member) begins to feel sick.
9. Knowledgeable about how to limit the spread of COVID-19 in an early care setting via guidance from LA County Department of Public Health and Community Care Licensing.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (OCTOBER 16)

You're finishing old things and onto the new with a truer kind of support. You'll bring more of yourself to work and play because of the people who get you, have similar journeys and can appreciate the quirks and the genius that comes with your package. You'll apply yourself and level up time and again. Leo and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 5, 35, 4, 33 and 34.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). While you'd be uncomfortable if you had to boast of your success, you do realize that people need to know what you're good at, otherwise they will try to utilize you in all the wrong ways.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Start something new and you'll find that there's plenty of fun to be had in the world of amateurs and novices. In fact, the phase where you know you're not good at it but you love it anyway is most wonderful in so many ways.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). It's counterintuitive but sometimes niceties are a turn-off because they set unspoken standards. The nicer a thing (or person) is, the more work it is to keep up. You may opt for the low-fi, no-frills comfortable route because of this.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You're comfortable with a certain amount of attention on the things you want observed. Too much attention, or attention on the wrong things, will have you changing how you show up, or whom you're showing up to.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). In this introverted mood, the slightest social gestures can feel like a real chore. It's a big effort just to get up to say hi, or send the email, or make the call. Do it anyway though. You'll be happier for it

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Like most people, you have been known to fantasize about being the winner overall. And yet, you're really out to better your last outcome, as being the winner over yourself is the most satisfying victory.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The people who are blocked off from their creativity may hit you up for inspiration, perhaps not directly, though you can feel that you're being watched and emulated -- flattering, also it keeps you on your toes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). If you want to improve, make it a point to fail a few more times. If you want to be a champion, go harder. Double up on those failures (also known as your best teachers).

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You shouldn't have to set every expectation yourself. Work in a team. Send someone before you to smooth the way and get the others ready to trust you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You're feeling free and a little rebellious. You inspire people to try and encourage them to make mistakes. Eventually, they'll come up with something good. You will be a channel of creative energy for those who are blocked.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). How do you know if you've made a difference? It should not even be a matter of debate. Things are different because you're here. Now, is this the difference you want to make? You'll get clearer about that part today.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You've made too many appointments. It wasn't supposed to be torturous. Reschedule to lift some of the stress off. People will be willing to work with you on timing.

The 100 seat tent is licensed to serve guests through the end of the year, and gives those upset by the temporary closure of nearby restaurant Yours Truly, a new opportunity to savor Chef Vartan Abgaryan's flavorful fare. Post Script is open at 1525 Abbot Kinney Blvd from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Wednesday, Thursday, and Sunday, and until 10 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

"We saw this outdoor restaurant (Post Script) as a continuation of the work we had done across the street at Yours Truly. And with Yours Truly being a salutation in a letter, P.S. (Post Script) was a continuation of our love letter to Venice," said Paul Pruitt, partner at Post Script and Yours Truly.

So far customer favorites have included pork ribs with pomegranate harissa and walnut dukkah, grilled portabella steak with salsa macha and onion rings, and broccolini 'caesar' with parmesan and pickled fresno. To end their meal on a sweet note customers can dig into a strawberry pretzel pie, banana split or order build your own s'mores.

Chef Vartan Abgaryan is a native Angelo and was classically trained at Le Cordon Bleu. His dishes celebrate his combined American-Armenian heritage and mix the freshest ingredients with unexpected spices from the Middle East, Asia, and Europe.

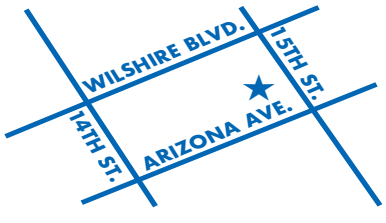

As Yours Truly has no outdoor seating, the Post Script team have used their creative juices to adapt to COVID restrictions, including figuring out how to run a restaurant without a kitchen. At Post Script, Chef Abgaryan cooks the meat over an open flame and other dishes are prepared in a food truck parked out back. Beer and wine is brought over from Yours Truly while customers dine in the parking lot of the Brig Bar, which is owned by Dave Reiss.

"The idea was born from the pandemic and the need to pivot, which was encouraged by LA City's Al Fresco program," said Pruitt. "We wanted a menu that celebrated outdoor dining. While we had some unique challenges in serving chef-quality food outside, we decided to lean into our options (use of an outdoor grill and food truck) to put together a menu that we're super proud of."

At a time when the restaurant industry is flailing, the creative use of outdoor spaces has propelled the partners' businesses. Chef Abgaryan alongside partners Dave and Patti Reiss used a large patio and parking lot to launch a Mexican Cantina called Nueva in August. The Post Script team is also looking for a way to reopen Yours Truly soon.
