Activists protest Santa Monica Airport

BY ASHLEY ARCHIBALD
Daily Press Staff Writer

SMO Residents of three communities reiterated their concerns about Santa Monica Airport Sunday with a midday protest focused on noise, pollution and, above all, safety.

Protesters from Santa Monica, West Los Angeles and Venice lined the sidewalks at the intersection of National Boulevard and Bundy Drive, hoisting signs that read "Fly Clean or Don't Fly" and "Santa Monica: No on cigarettes, soft on jet pollution" as motorists buzzed by, many signaling their support with rhythmic honking.

Extra signs lay waiting for willing hands, like one man who set down his groceries and joined the protest.

Los Angeles City Councilmember Bill Rosendahl also attended to show his support for closing SMO, which the councilmember has said negatively impacts his

Samohi opens league with win against Inglewood

CORSAIR FIELD In a span of just seconds, Samohi was able to put away Inglewood during a game that, through three quarters, could have gone either way.

Holding on to a 14-7 lead during the Ocean League opener, Santa Monica High School's football team struck for a 51-yard scoring pass from quarterback Christian Salem to wide receiver Michael Jordan to put the Vikings up 21-7.

Just 46 seconds later, during the subsequent Inglewood possession, Samohi defensive back Sebastian LaRue intercepted a pass from Derrick Woods, returning it 30 yards for a score that buried last season's league champion. Inglewood would add a late touchdown, but it wasn't enough as Samohi improved to 5-1 with the 28-15 win.

Arrests made in brutal beating on SM Boulevard

BY KEVIN HERRERA
Editor in Chief

PUBLIC SAFETY FACILITY Two Arizona men are under arrest and face attempted murder charges for the brutal beating of a Santa Monica resident while he was working out on Santa Monica Boulevard last month, authorities said Saturday.

Bryan Hale, 24, of Tempe, Ariz. and Brett Davis, 25, of Fountain Hills, Ariz. are being held on a $1,030,000 bonds and are expected to be extradited to Los Angeles within the next few days, according to a press release issued by the Maricopa County Sheriff's Office.

Sheriff's deputies conducted a surveillance operation using information provided by the Santa Monica Police Department and took the suspects into custody Friday.

"I am proud of the hard work by my deputies," said Maricopa County Sheriff Joe Arpaio. "These arrests came to a successful conclusion with the interstate coordination of the Maricopa County Sheriff's Office and the Santa Monica Police Department."

The assault took place in the early morning hours of Sept. 22 on the 3100 block of Santa Monica Boulevard near Busby's bar. The victim, a 45-year-old movie producer, was working out around 2:20 a.m. with hand weights and sparring gloves when the two suspects allegedly approached him from behind and beat him with his weights.

The victim suffered a collapsed skull, several brain bleeds and a broken jaw and neck and back fractures, according to the press release.

While the victim is expected to survive, doctors said long-term effects from the beating are very possible, sheriff's deputies added.

Santa Monica police released surveillance video footage which showed two men running southbound on Berkeley Street shortly after the beating occurred.

Police said the suspects were working in Los Angeles for an unidentified moving company.

Doctors' group joins push for legal marijuana

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANAHEIM California's largest industry group for doctors is calling for the legalization of marijuana even as it maintains that the drug has few proven health benefits.

Trustees of the California Medical Association adopted the new stance at its annual meeting Friday in Anaheim, according to a Los Angeles Times report.

Dr. Donald Lyman, the Sacramento physician who wrote the group's new policy, said doctors are increasingly frustrated by the state's medical marijuana law, which allows use with a doctor's recommendation. Physicians are put in the uncomfortable position of having to decide whether to recommend a drug that's illegal under federal law, Lyman said.

"It is an open question whether cannabis is useful or not," he told the newspaper. "That question can only be answered once it is legalized and more research is done. Then, and only then, can we know what it is useful for."

The CMA acknowledges health risks associated with marijuana use and proposes regulation similar to alcohol and tobacco, but the group says the consequences of criminalization outweigh the dangers.

The federal government considers cannabis a drug with no medical use. The CMA wants the White House to reclassify it to help promote further research on its medical potential. Earlier this year, the Obama administration turned down a request to reclassify marijuana. That decision is being appealed in federal court by legalization advocates.

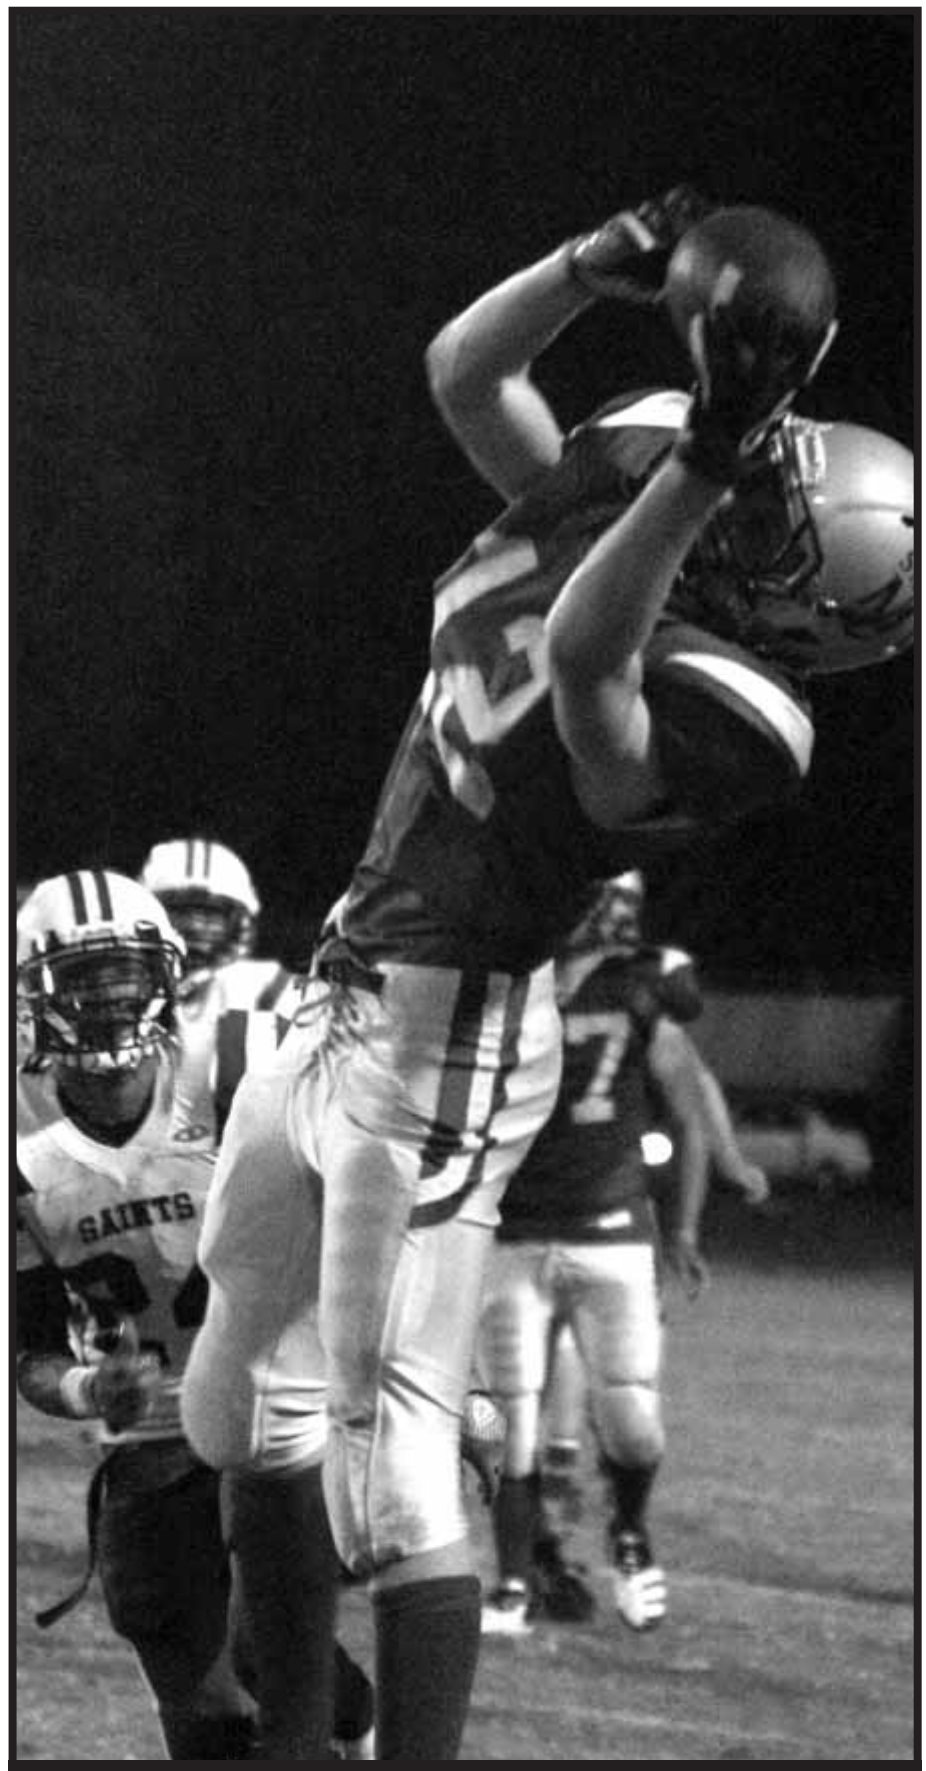

Lyman called current laws a "failed public health policy."

But critics within the medical community said association leaders did not consider the broader implications of legalizing marijuana.

"I think it's going to lead to more use, and that, to me, is a public health concern," Dr. Robert DuPont, an M.D. and professor of psychiatry at Georgetown Medical School, told the Times.

Members of the CMA, which represents more than 35,000 California physicians, were informed of the trustees' vote Saturday. It is the first major medical association in the nation to urge legalization of cannabis,

Sheriff Baca takes blame for violence at L.A. jails

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES Los Angeles County Sheriff Lee Baca said he is to blame for deputy misconduct and brutality against inmates in the nation's largest jail network.

He acknowledged to the Los Angeles Times that he was out of touch about problems in the jails and failed to put into place important reforms that could have minimized violence against inmates.

"The truth is, I should've known," Baca said. "So now I do know."

Baca, who is in his third term, said that his subordinates often insulated him from "bad news."

The sheriff's department and its top official have come under intense criticism since the American Civil Liberties Union released a report last month alleging abuse and other misconduct by deputies. The FBI has demanded internal department documents detailing the use of force on inmates over several years, as well as other records.

The probe includes allegations that deputies carved racist initials into one inmate's head and broke the jaw of another inmate.

Federal officials declined to discuss details of the investigation.

Baca said he only recently noticed that 69 video cameras purchased more than a year ago to monitor deputies and inmates at Men's Central Jail had not been installed.

"There's no excuse for such a major project as this going undone," he said, promising to install the cameras by the end of the year.

Baca also expressed regret that he hadn't implement routine floor assignment rotations at the Central Jail earlier, a reform that watchdogs say would reduce the possibility of deputies forming gang-like groups in the jail.

County Supervisor Gloria Molina criticized the department's failure to carry out numerous reforms suggested by watchdogs over the years.

"I think he needs to be much more aggressive," Molina said about Baca, describ-

Problem with parking tickets

Editor:

No one in Santa Monica will dispute there is not an issue with parking, but most recently the conduct by which parking tickets are being given out boggles the mind.

I have lived in the Sunset Park area for 25 years. When I came to Santa Monica, it was a wonderful place that displayed not only the very rich but the very poor as well that brought together an amazing collage of people and experiences.

Today, the landscape of it has changed, and so has the city that runs it. Rarely do you find any more a person who lives and works for the city of Santa Monica, so the problems are not lived by those who are residents of the community.

The major issue for our neighborhood is the amount of meter officers that now comb through several times during the day hoping as they say "to meet their quota."

Since June, 2011, I have gotten two tickets for legally parking my car near my home. Why do I get the tickets? Because as a resident that does not have my car registered to Santa Monica I am forced to have a visitors pass with my address on it. I am not allowed to hold a resident permit. I am often told that the city will listen to new ideas, but in 2008 when I came up with an idea, the city parking manager told me that she "did not want to hear any of my ideas, nothing was going to change."

For starters, anyone can see where you live with either the bumper or hanging tag ... it is a complete violation of our privacy which has been set forth by the state and federal governments.

It makes me feel very violated as a person, and open to crimes I might not otherwise be subject to.

(Example: I go to McDonald's each morning for coffee to chat with neighbors as I live alone. Unknown to me, the homeless learn which cars belong to which customers, and soon I am learning that the homeless are at my door because they know I might be able to help them out. These are people with mental and emotional issues, and while the police tell you to keep them at a distance because they lose control, the city endorses the threat.)

I am going to argue my first ticket that I already had to pay. I am going to appeal the second ticket as well. Others are getting the same types of tickets and it is not right. As a city employee, if they would drive around with their home address on their bumper or dash, "oh no" is the response. Would you mind calling your insurance company and letting them know where you spend your nights? Again, no is the response.

Why is the city demanding that residents do what they themselves would not do?

I have taken this matter to the ACLU as I feel it affects many people here in Santa Monica.

Closing the achievement gap or bringing everything down?

THE LATEST SCHOOL FUNDRAISING controversy centers around new mechanisms the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District is considering to insure that lower achieving schools obtain a more equal share of the fundraising pie.

The movement stems from a report from Education Trust-West, an Oakland-based educational policy, research and advocacy organization that revealed a 124 point disparity between white and Asian students in the district compared with lower scoring Latino students on a statewide performance test. African American students fared even worse.

Some claim the performance gap is attributable to schools in better neighborhoods with better educational resources because they have more money to spend than schools in lower income neighborhoods. Social justice activists claim wealthy parents and PTAs involved with higher ranked schools are much more effective in fundraising than their counterparts at lower-achieving schools.

Seven years ago, former SMMUSD Superintendent John Deasy (now superintendent of the sprawling Los Angeles Unified School District) proposed a 15 percent "tax" on all donations to schools, clubs or school activities. To help balance budget disparities and close the gap, tax monies would be placed in an Equity Fund and disbursed among low-achieving schools by the school board using a need based formula.

In past years, these monies have been used to hire teachers and staff, purchase instructional materials and provide extra support to low-achieving students in almost all SMMUSD schools including wealthier schools such as Santa Monica's Franklin and Roosevelt elementary schools and Malibu's Point Dume Elementary according to SMMUSD documents.

"Taxing" gifts and donations even at 15 percent doesn't sit well with many donors. I wonder if placing all or a large percentage of school donations into a common pot to be doled out by a politically-influenced school board is going to far.

According to news repots, PTAs and other successful fundraising entities are worried that their efforts to improve their children's schools will be compromised and their own kids will suffer. They point out that Title 1 funds and other federal and state aid programs are already directed to minority neighborhood and low-achieving schools to help close the funding/achievement gap.

The achievement gap between wealthier and low income/minority school students is troubling and needs to be dealt with. But, just throwing more money at these schools may not solve the problems because the many reasons for the disparity are complicated. Multiple solutions are needed.

Even more worrisome is that Education Trust-West's study results seem to indicate annual Equity Fund money ($300,000 last year, alone) distributed to lower achieving /poorer schools has yet to produce any real benefit. Expanding the tax or going to a "all in one pot" fundraising model is taking a big gamble with no guarantee of a payoff.

Finding ways to help close the achievement gap and financially support lower achieving schools is vital. But robbing Peter to pay Paul runs the risk of alienating donors and reducing donations, creating ill will and diminishing the quality of education at our best schools.

LESS TREES

Speaking of money, the remodeling of the Town Square in front of City Hall is stuck in limbo-land. After City Hall unveiled an extensive revisioning of its front lawn, the Landmarks Commission announced a list of features they considered historic and wanted retained. It's all turned into a veritable cat fight.

Landmarks cited the flagpole, north City Hall parking lot design, landscape and garden configurations, numerous trees and plantings, the rose garden in front of City Hall's entrance, brick retaining steps and walls near the front entrance and more.

City staff and its design team had their own ideas. They wanted a water feature, to rebuild the main entrance steps and retaining walls, redesign walkways, do extensive landscaping including installing new rose trellises and seating and planting two double rows of trees on the present lawn area and more.

Personally speaking, I'd move the central "memorial" rose garden to a less conspicuous location. Aside from the couple of weeks annually when the roses bloom, the garden looks like a weed patch. In its place, build a full-on, rectangular reflecting pool — perfect for City Hall's 1930's PWA Moderne architectural style.

When one looks at the renderings for the renovation, one thing jumps out. Where's the public assembly area? The north and south lawns in front of City Hall now provide plenty of open space for public gatherings but the new design includes double rows of trees on the outer edges of these lawns, shrinking the current open lawns considerably.

In a Democratic society, it's important there be a spacious area for the public to gather in, rally, protest or, yes, Virginia, even praise the actions of its political leaders. I'm thinking we need to move the trees and accommodate a thousand citizens or more, not just a few hundred.

Landmark supporters will plead their case at the Oct. 25 City Council meeting.

Colleges expand offerings amid natural gas boom

JULIE CARR SMYTH
Associated Press

ZANESVILLE, Ohio Shuttered businesses and boarded-up houses dot the streets of historic Zanesville, the struggling river city where Cory May is starting a life with his young wife.

Until recently, job prospects in his native eastern Ohio were grim — even for a hard-working Marine reservist willing to work hard or relocate. May's mother works as a school janitor in Cambridge, his nearby hometown. His machinist dad is among the county's 11 percent unemployed. Most of his better situated friends are in the military or work at one of the area's remaining factories.

"It's either that or working minimum wage for the rest of your life, and let's be honest, who really wants to do that?" said May, a sturdy 23-year-old who's done a tour each in Iraq and Afghanistan since he turned 18.

The natural gas industry has changed his prospects.

Vast stores of natural gas in the Marcellus and Utica shales running under Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and West Virginia have set off a rush to grab leases and secure permits to drill using the extraction technique called hydraulic fracturing, or fracking.

May snapped up the opportunity through his local community college, Zane State, to take a two-week, 80-hour shale exploration certification course developed by the private company Retrain America. When he graduated, he'd interviewed for three jobs and taken a position cementing wells for Halliburton that will pay $60,000 to $70,000 a year.

Zane State is among dozens of public colleges and universities across the northeastern shale states that are moving to add new staff, academic majors or job-training courses in fields related to natural gas.

Through a 3-year, $4.9 million grant from the U.S. Department of Labor, for example, five communities colleges in Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and New York formed a coalition called ShaleNET. It's focused on recruiting, training and placing people in high-priority natural gas occupations.

"There's really been a sea change in these opportunities, a cornucopia of community colleges and local workforce training programs across the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, even the southern tier of New York," said Travis Windle, a spokesman for the Marcellus Shale Coalition, representing energy and exploration companies. "As natural gas continues to expand, so do the needs for a local workforce with these skills that are going to be in need for the next 50 years, or even more."

Training shale workers is not only on the minds of energy interests in the Northeast; newly available resources in Colorado, Oklahoma, Wyoming and Texas have also been met with new educational offerings. Those include the Colorado Energy Research Institute's outreach efforts with a dozen community and technical colleges, and the professional land management certificate program started just last month by the University of Texas at Austin. The field's promised job growth is being documented.

New federal data released in September showed Washington County, Pa. — one of the nation's most active shale gas-producing areas and home to the first Marcellus well — saw the third-highest percent increase in employment in the nation. A July study conducted by Penn State University estimated that the industry supported 44,000 jobs statewide last year. Industry estimates show the Marcellus boom could continue robust employment for as long as 50 years.

A recent study by the Ohio Oil and Gas Association predicted that extracting natural gas from the Utica Shale, which deeply underlies the Marcellus, would create or support more than 200,000 Ohio jobs over the next four years.

Penn College of Technology, a member of ShaleNET, is offering classes in hot new areas of electronics, diesel technology or state-of-the-art welding, said Jeff Lorson, director of the college's shale-related jobs center.

"We're fortunate that in a lot of these cases these programs are full and with waiting lists," Lorson said. "For the most part, we've got really good opportunities for people in the credit programs. We've got good enrollment, I'll say that."

The opportunities range from two-week training courses like the one May took — emphasizing rig operations, gas detection and site safety — to master's and doctoral programs for scientists and engineers.

Professor Samuel Ameri, who chairs West Virginia University's historic Petroleum and Natural Gas Engineering Department, said enrollments there have surged amid the rush, more than tripling from 74 students in 2004-05 to 242 students this year. Salaries are among the highest among engineering disciplines, he said — where medians range from $70,000 in the northern mountain states of Idaho, Montana and Wyoming to $106,000 in parts of Texas.

"The growth has been such that we are actively in search of two professors," Ameri said recently. "We are drawing students from every corner of the world."

IN THE WORKS: Politics still stand in the way of efforts to limit United States greenhouse gas emissions. Two efforts, the American Clean Energy and Security Act (ACES) of 2009 and the American Power Act of 2010, got tabled or failed to make it to the Senate floor for a vote. ACES was, however, passed by a narrow margin in the House of Representatives, the first time the legislative branch has called for sweeping climate legislation.

Clearing the air

Dear EarthTalk

What's the latest in regard to putting limits on greenhouse gas emissions in the U.S.? Is there any hope that Obama can get something done?

Bradley Johnson
Helena, Mont.

OUR BEST HOPE TO DATE WAS 2009'S American Clean Energy and Security Act (ACES), a bill that called for the implementation of a "cap-and-trade" system to limit carbon dioxide emissions by capping overall emissions and allowing polluters to buy or sell greenhouse gas pollution credits-similar to what the European Union has been doing since 2005 to successfully reduce its own emissions-depending upon whether they were exceeding established limits or had succeeded in coming in below them.

According to the bill, U.S. businesses needing to pollute more could buy emissions credits on the open market; those able to reduce emissions could sell their pollution credits on the same trading floor. Thus there is a built-in incentive to reduce emissions: If you exceed pollution limits you have to keep buying costly credits; and if you can get below limits you can profit from the sale of credits for the difference.

Among the bill's key provisions was a 17 percent reduction in greenhouse gas emissions below 2005 levels by 2020, with a mid-century goal of an 80 percent reduction. Also, billions of dollars would have gone to initiatives bolstering green transportation, energy efficiency and related research and development. The bill was approved by the House in June 2009 by a narrow 219-212 vote. But Senate Democrats decided they didn't have enough votes to get a version of the bill passed, and tabled the discussion.

While ACES may not have made it into the law books, its passage by the House was significant as it represented the first time the legislative branch called for sweeping climate legislation. Also, the bill's provisions served as a guideline for U.S. negotiators heading to Denmark later in 2009 for the COP15 international climate talks (although in the end nothing binding was agreed upon there).

Then, in May 2010 Senators John Kerry and Joe Lieberman unveiled their own cap-and-trade climate bill for the Senate. Dubbed the American Power Act, it aimed to reduce overall U.S. greenhouse gas emissions by similar amounts as ACES. But with the nation still reeling from the effects of BP's Gulf oil spill-the American Power Act include provisions for offshore drilling-and Senate Republicans leery of any climate legislation, the bill failed to make it to a floor vote. Some point the finger at a handful of Democratic Senators from coal-producing states for not supporting their party colleagues. Others say Obama wasn't advocating strongly enough despite his campaign rhetoric on the topic.

"The best one could plausibly hope for in the next Congress, assuming only modest Republican gains, is some sort of weak cap on utility emissions, possibly with some weak oil saving measures, though that would still require Obama to do what he refused to do under more favorable political circumstances-push hard for a bill," writes commentator Joe Romm of Think Progress, a liberal political blog. Romm adds that it's inconceivable to think the next Congress would even contemplate strong climate or clean energy legislation "without Obama undergoing a major strategy change and taking a very strong leadership role in crafting the bill and lobbying for the bill and selling it to the public."

constituents without any of the economic gains that Santa Monica enjoys.

"We're trying to let the public and the airport know that we're concerned about safety issues," said Roger Allen, of Sunset Park.

Allen moved into his home near Penmar Golf Course 15 years ago. Despite an overall drop in operations, Allen said, the noise and pollution emitted in large part by jets flying into SMO has impacted his quality of life.

"We want to be able to sit outside and relax, or sleep in on the weekends," Allen said.

Pollution also remains a major concern for protesters, who find the exhaust emitted by the jets and the leaded fuel used by the small propeller planes at odds with Santa Monica's reputation as a "green" city.

The protest capped a weekend of events for activists, several of whom had attended the West Los Angeles stop of the Aviation Justice Express the night before hosted by the Concerned Residents Against Airport Pollution, led by West Los Angeles resident Martin Rubin.

Aviation Justice Express was originally envisioned as a speaking tour for United Kingdom activists John Stewart and Dan Glass.

Stewart headed up a group that successfully scuttled plans for a third runway at London's Heathrow Airport after almost a decade of pressure, while Glass is an environmental activist best known for his creative ways of drawing attention to his cause, like super-gluing himself to then Prime Minister Gordon Brown.

Neither man made it into the United States for their anticipated speaking tour. According to British media outlets, Glass was never given a visa, and Stewart actually landed in New York before being turned around and flown back to London.

The FBI, who allegedly questioned Stewart in New York, did not return a call for comment.

They did manage to teleconference in, said Stephanie Body, a 20-year resident of Venice who attended the event, and impart some of their experience on the crowd.

The talk covered five main points, Body said.

Glass and Stewart encouraged the group to make their coalition as broad as possible, engage politicians in the cause, back their positions up with hard facts like economic analyses, keep up a constant presence and present a "positive alternative" to the problem.

Local activists have been working regularly for the last 10 years to close the airport or minimally change some of the aviation operations located there, like the presence of large jets, so the methods, at least, were nothing new, said Santa Monica resident Virginia Ernst.

The results of those efforts, however, were inspiring.

"They were able to accomplish a great deal," Ernst said.

Although residents have been raising hue and cry against SMO for several years now, they now feel there's reason to believe they might be successful, Body said.

An increasing number of politicians like Rosendahl, Rep. Janice Hahn (D-Torrance.) and State Sen. Ted Lieu (D-Torrance) have voiced either opposition to the airport, some airport activities or its environmental impacts.

And, as politicians begin lining up behind anti-SMO activists, the year 2015 inches closer.

That date has a great deal of significance to Santa Monica officials, who believe that both an agreement with the Federal Aviation Administration and a grant obligation to the federal government expire in 2015, giving them more latitude over operations at the airport and the use of SMO land.

The FAA holds that the actual expiration of the grant obligations is 2023, and that the airport must be operated "in perpetuity," no matter what.

Either way, the date has prompted Santa Monica officials to begin a visioning process for the airport, and galvanized those that oppose it, even if it means simply a reduction in the air traffic that many believe put their lives and peace of mind in danger.

"A lot of people have a lot of hope that the airport will close at that point," Allen said.

SAMOHI

Travis Clark said. "I'm proud of everybody."

The outcome may have ended in Samohi's favor, but the game was anything but a breeze.

The Vikings received the opening kickoff, which was fumbled by sophomore returner Will Taylor.

Pinned deep in its own territory, Samohi was able to force Inglewood to turn the ball over on downs when defensive back Kori Garcia tackled the heralded Woods for no gain.

For good measure, the Vikings marched down field after the turnover, capped by a 4-yard score by Garcia who ran it in for an early 7-0 lead.

The Vikings soon tacked on another score when running back London Lewis crossed the goal line from 1 yard out to put Samohi up, 14-0.

The game looked well in hand for Samohi, but Inglewood wasn't going for it. Running back Jaylenn Hart scampered in for a second-quarter score that brought Inglewood back to life.

The score held until the fourth quarter with both teams unable to find the end zone. That's when Jordan came through with a leaping grab over a shorter Inglewood defender and ran it to pay dirt.

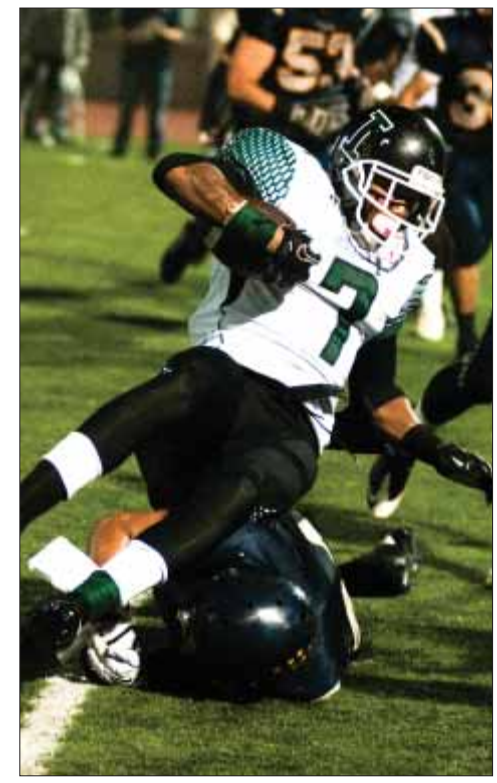

"I knew I had to make that play," Jordan said. "Once the [defensive back] jumped into the air too early I knew it was mine."

Soon after LaRue was able to snag Woods' pass giving the Vikings all the points they would need to avenge last season's loss to Inglewood and put them at 1-0 in league play.

The loss wasn't easy to take for Inglewood head coach Stephen Thomas, who said that the moral victory of hanging with Samohi for three quarters wasn't enough.

"Winning sucks, man," Thomas said. "We just had too many turnovers at the wrong times."

He did note that Samohi is much improved over last season's team that missed the playoffs. He was impressed by the play of seniors Garcia and Salem, adding that the Vikings could have what it takes to win a league title.

Morgan Genser news@smdp.com

BIG STOP: Santa Monica High School's Kori Garcia tackles Inglewood's Deandre Johnson on Friday during a 28-15 win at Santa Monica College's Corsair Field. The Vikings improved to 5-1 with the win over its Ocean League rival.

A pair of those turnovers that Thomas wasn't pleased with were made by safety Matthew Rusk-Kosa. It was the second straight week that the senior was able to pick off two passes.

Rusk-Kosa's accomplishment wasn't lost on Clark who called him "a natural ball-hawk."

"We spent all week watching film on Woods," Rusk-Kosa said. "We knew what he wanted to do."

Next for Samohi is a road league game against rival Beverly Hills on Friday.

Clark wasted little time declaring that the win was already history and the only thing on the Vikings' minds is game two of the league season.

"We can't look past anybody," Clark said. "We have to keep doing what's been working."

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

Alley Resurfacing Project

The alleys in the 900 block of Sixth Court and 12th Court will be resurfaced through Oct. 24 – daily work start time is 7 a.m. and end time is 4:30 p.m. Please be advised that resurfacing operations will generate noise and dust. There will be certain times when the alley will not be accessible during construction, but we will minimize these times of closure during the day. Questions should be directed to the Public Works Street Maintenance Division at (310) 458-4991. For more info on Alley Renewal Program, go to: www.smgov.net/streets/alleyprogram.

Transit Priority Systems Project

Installation of the Transit Priority System (TPS) at 80 traffic signals along major corridors within the City of Santa Monica. Partial roadway closures or detours are expected at various locations on Pico Boulevard between 11th and 23rd streets, but impact to traffic should be minimal.

Water Main Replacement

The water main at Third Court between Arizona Avenue and Wilshire Boulevard is undergoing removal and replacement. Please be advised that two-way traffic will be allowed on each side of the construction work zone for local access only. Alley will be closed to through traffic and lane closure will be in place for night time work on Wilshire.

Pier Parking Lot Storm Drain Improvement Project

Drainage improvements will take place to the 1550 parking lot just north of the Santa Monica Pier. A gravity storm drainage system will be installed to replace the existing pump system. The bike path underneath the pier will be closed; however a bike path detour to Appian Way will be available.

Southern California Edison Installation

Installation of electrical conduit and vaults on 20th Street from Olympic Boulevard to Wilshire Place North. Estimated project completion is November 2011. Lane closures will occur on the east side of 20th Street between Colorado and Arizona avenues. Expect traffic delays. Use alternate routes whenever possible.

Expo Light Rail Line Project

Follow daily construction updates on Twitter at twitter.com/EXPOinSM. Construction activity will take place at Colorado Avenue and Fifth Street. Temporary lane closures may be necessary, but one lane in each direction will remain open at all times. For questions regarding this project contact Expo Light Rail Line Community Relations at (213) 922-EXPO or www.BuildExpo.org.

Annual Tree Trimming

City Hall's annual tree trimming schedule is underway at the following locations: on Euclid Street from San Vicente to Wilshire boulevards; Virginia Avenue from Stewart Street to Centinela Avenue; Highland Avenue from Ocean Park Boulevard to Dewey; Marine Street from 18th to 23rd streets; Colorado Avenue from 26th Street to Centinela Avenue; Pearl Street from 20th to 26th streets; Ninth Street from the I-10 Freeway to Pico Boulevard; Urban Avenue from Yorkshire to Pico; and on Pacific Street from 14th to 16th streets. according to a group spokeswoman.

The group's decision provoked an angry response from some in law enforcement.

"Given everything that we know about the physiological impacts of marijuana — how it affects young brains, the number of accidents associated with driving under the influence — it's just an unbelievably irresponsible position," said John Lovell, spokesman for the California Police Chiefs Association.

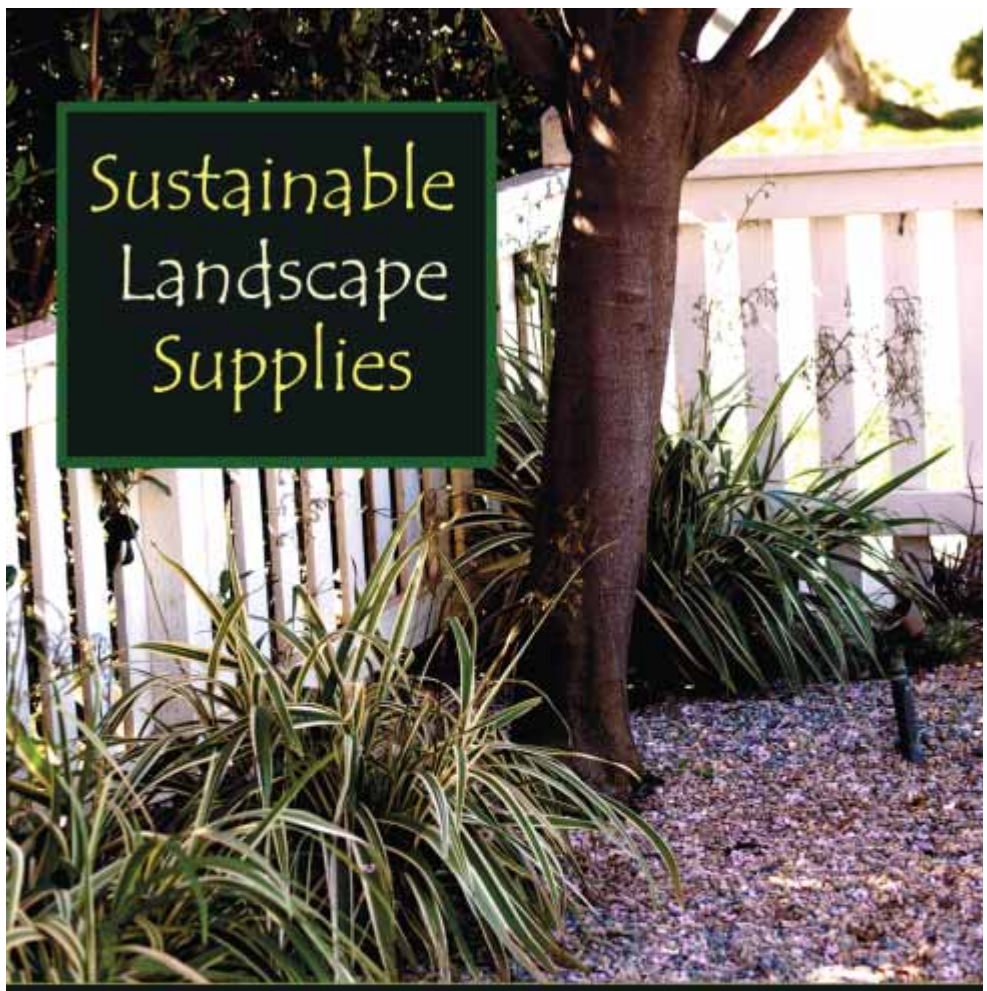

The CMA's parent organization, the American Medical Association, has said the federal government should consider easing research restrictions, according to the Times.

ing the sheriff as a "sweetheart."

Molina told the Times that Baca needed to make a series of sweeping reforms, including putting new limits on when deputies can use head strikes against inmates, intensifying supervision by having sergeants regularly patrol the jail floors and requiring nurses and other medical staff to report suspicious inmate injuries.

The sheriff's department operates the largest jail system in the United States, and provides police patrols for communities across Los Angeles County and security for the city's mass transit system.

A BLANKIE.

But this isn't your average baby blanket. This one saves lives. At the Cedars-Sinai Neonatal Intensive Care Unit, our physicians were one of the first to use special cooling blankets for newborns whom are oxygen-deprived. This innovative blanket design lowers their temperature and decreases the risk of long-term brain damage. Because we believe the most vulnerable babies need the most advanced care.

Indy 500 winner Wheldon dies in massive car wreck

JOHN MARSHALL
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS Indianapolis 500 winner Dan Wheldon died Sunday at Las Vegas Motor Speedway after his car became ensnarled in a fiery 15-car pileup on Lap 13, flew over another vehicle and landed in a catch fence just outside turn 2.

The 33-year-old racer was a two-time Indianapolis 500 winner, including this year's race.

Three other drivers, including championship contender Will Power, were hurt in the pileup.

Weldon was airlifted from the track to University Medical Center; about two hours later, his colleagues were told of his death.

"IndyCar is very sad to announce that Dan Wheldon has passed away from unsurvivable injuries," IndyCar CEO Randy Bernard said. "Our thoughts and prayers are with his family today. IndyCar, its drivers and owners, have decided to end the race."

In his honor, drivers took part in a five-lap salute around the oval.

IndyCar has not had a fatality since Paul Dana was killed at Homestead in 2006. He died after a crash in a morning warmup.

Sunday's wreck left Townsend Bell upside down while smoldering cars and debris littered the track nearly halfway up the straightaway of the 1.5-mile oval.

The track was red-flagged following the accidents while crews worked on fences and removed smashed cars.

Wheldon started in the back of the pack but quickly worked his way through the 34-car field before the wreck.

Heal the Bay is a non-profit environmental organization dedicated to making Santa Monica Bay and Southern California coastal waters safe and healthy for people and marine life.

Heal the Bay

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card® is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A–F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

© 2012 Copyright Heal the Bay. All rights reserved. Printed on recycled paper (unless fused).

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Play it low-key tonight, Leo

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Think before you make a quick retort. A partner or associate could be overly serious and somewhat closed down. You wonder if others listen to themselves. Be smart -- say little. Tonight: Chat up a storm at home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Be aware of how much you give. Money isn't the only form of exchange. You offer a lot. Others appreciate what you give. Extremes punctuate different areas of your life. Listen to someone you look up to who is very imaginative. Tonight: Only what you want.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Never underestimate your brightness and willingness to find new ideas and solutions. Extremes don't serve you well when dealing with others. Yet you can help them through an intellectual process. Reveal more. Tonight: As you like it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Take your time with problems. Do all the brainstorming and thinking you need to, but make your decision this evening or afterward. Use the daylight hours for processing and research. Listen to all suggestions. Tonight: You're coming into your own.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Use the daylight hours for what is close to your heart. Curb a tendency to scatter yourself. Wherever you apply your focus is more than likely to be a sure-bet winner. Tap into an inspirational idea. Tonight: Play it low-key.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Others listen to your suggestions; although the concepts more than the details ring true for them. Your ability to translate your ideas into a practical plan comes forward. Schedule a doctor's or dentist's appointment. Take care of yourself, too. Tonight: Whatever makes you happy, as long as you aren't alone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Keep reaching out for others and more information -- hop on the Internet. The more research you do and the more knowledge you gain, the better off you will be. An associate or loved one always has your concerns in mind. Tonight: Until the wee hours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Remain receptive to a partner or friend. This person can come up with one idea after the other. In a discussion, you often tighten up a project or discover another way of handling an issue. Others are more than willing to help or support you. Tonight: Imagine staying close to home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Understand your liability when dealing with a neighbor who often confuses your meaning. You might need to clarify. Return calls and schedule meetings. Let your people skills come out. Zero in on what you want. Tonight: Share with a friend or loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ Pace yourself during the day. Your attention often goes to a loved one or child who keeps popping into your day. If possible, sit on it for a day or so. Tonight: Return a call. Call a friend. Then decide.

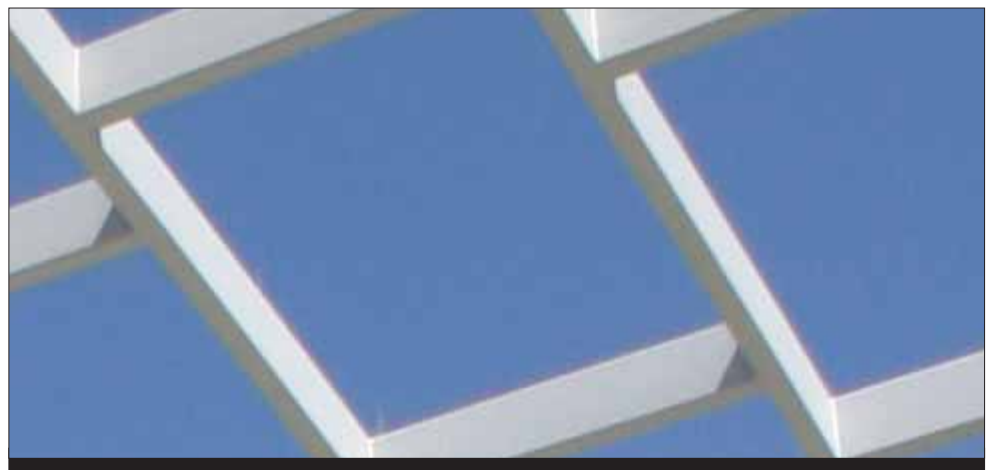

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Your mind defines your existence, but today your imagination designs quite a set of possibilities. You have such a unique thought process that even when you clearly explain an idea to others, they still have difficulty understanding. Tonight: Work out stress through a favorite pastime.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You might feel that you cannot make headway where it counts. You could let frustration build or simply diversify, going where you can be effective right now. Your communication skills excel. Tonight: Let your imagination choose!

Happy birthday

This year you visualize idea after idea. You also will want to share many of them. You are serious-minded and direct. Someone adds to your bounce and strength. You seem to gain from his or her optimism. If you are attached, this person could be your sweetie. You will have one of those warm, loving years with each other. If you are single, many potential mates appear. Take your time making the right choice.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ A small number of environmental and animal rights activists employ violence and physical threats in attempts to achieve their goals, and similar tactics have recently been used by another group bent on intimidating scientists: sufferers of "chronic fatigue syndrome." London's Observer reported in August that medical researchers who even suggest that the illness might have a "psychological" component have been subject to vitriolic abuse, stalking, disruptions to the scientists' workplaces, and even death threats. In at least one case, the activists succeeded: A psychiatry professor said he had moved his area of research from chronic fatigue to Gulf War syndrome. "That has taken me to Iraq and Afghanistan where ... I feel a lot safer."

■ Political Correctness Lives: British authorities threatened Iain Turnbull, 63, with a fine (equivalent of $1,530) in August because he refused to complete the mandatory census earlier this year. Turnbull, from Wales, was protesting that the government, intending to be progressively "inclusive," made available census questionnaires and instructions in such languages as Urdu, Punjabi and Tagalog -- but not Welsh (one of Britain's native languages, spoken by a half-million citizens).
