City Council to consider Labor Peace Agreements Tuesday

KATE CAGLE
Daily Press Staff Writer

On Tuesday, the City Council will debate adding a controversial requirement for restaurants and other food vendors who lease City-owned property to enter into a labor peace agreement (LPA) with a local union.

The requirement could impact everyone who sells food on The Santa Monica Pier from the Churroman cart vendor to Bubba Gump Shrimp Co. The idea faces strong opposition from the Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce, arguing it threatens the livelihood of small business owners who cannot afford to go head to head with unions such as Unite Here Local 11 to secure a lease.

Tuesday's discussion is agendized as a "study session" meaning the Council will hear from staff and the public and then give direction.

The proposed language, similar to a provision that regulates restaurants and other venders at LAX, would require business owners or managers to negotiate and then submit a LPA with a worker's union as a condition of operating on the Pier, Downtown or the

High revenues and low costs boost city budget

The General Fund ended the fiscal year with an extra $10.9 million more than budgeted, thanks to both extra revenue ($4.5 million) and lower expenses ($6.4 million) than initially expected, according to a new report from the City's director of finance.

"The context for this good news is crucial," Gigi Decavalles-Hughes wrote in the report. "Despite concerns about a slowing in the growth of key economic drivers (particularly retail and tourism), the prior fiscal year continued to reflect the underlying strength of Santa Monica's diversified economic base."

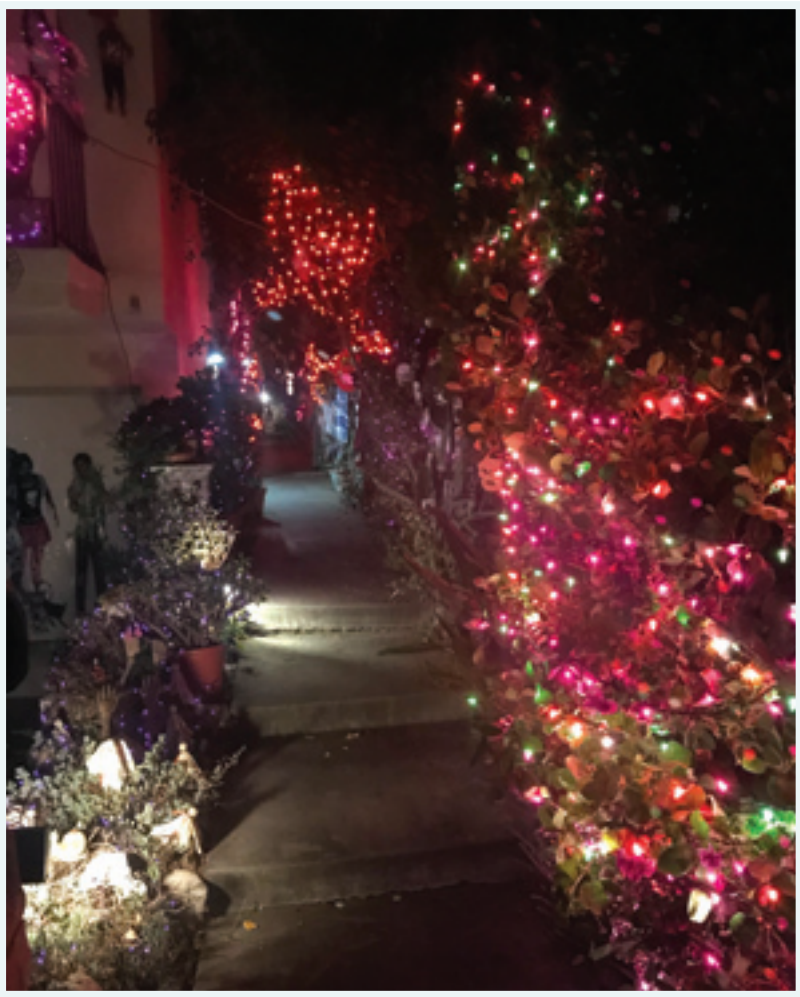

Some of the extra funds will go toward the homeless crisis, new technology at City Hall like Total Workplace and $200,000 will go toward developing a long-term strategy for economic sustainability. Decavalles-Hughes says $3.7 million will be set aside toward the construction of the Civic Center Multi-Use Sports Field.

About $1 million of the increased revenue came from hotel and parking facility taxes, although some gains were offset by lower than anticipated parking revenue and sales tax. The remaining $3.5 million of the unexpected increase came from development-related fees, property sales, and a return of unspent contributions from EXPO.

Nearly 90 percent of department savings in the General Fund came from 121 vacant positions.

LA County Public Defender Soars with Silver Eagle Award

The LA County Public Defender has won the Silver Eagle Award for its Public Defender Jail Liaison Program – the second-highest award in the Top 10 category – during the 31st Annual Productivity and Quality Awards Ceremony on Oct. 18, 2017 at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion.

"You have demonstrated what effective collaboration among departments looks like," Los Angeles Board of Supervisors Chair Mark Ridley-Thomas told winners during the ceremony. "You've set an example of what a public sector should strive to achieve."

The new LA County Public Defender program assists incarcerated, mentally ill and developmentally disabled clients. The award honors LA County departmental improvement efforts deserving recognition by the Board of Supervisors, Chief Executive Office, Quality and Productivity Commission and the public.

Called the Jail Mental Health Liaison Program, the effort for the first time allows Public Defender licensed clinical social workers direct access to detained mentally ill and developmentally disabled inmates. These efforts help ensure the inmate receive the correct medication, proper interventions, more humane treatment and alternatives to remaining in custody. The approach also improves their legal outcomes in court.

The Public Defender program was developed in collaboration with the Department of Mental Health (Health Services) and the enthusiastic support of the Sheriff and the District Attorney.

Since its inception in January 2016, more than 400 mentally ill and developmentally disabled inmates have benefited from this crucial service, significantly reducing the need for these vulnerable clients to endure forced, often-violent physical extraction from cells. To date, the program has prevented 62 jail extractions.

Often, mentally ill clients in custody are incapable of meaningful communication with their attorneys either in person, or through video conferencing and telephone calls. Many are not taking proper medication, suffer from depression or become suicidal. They may refuse to exit their cell to appear in court. This may result in disciplinary issues. The attorney-client relationship may suffer.

The social worker liaison streamlines each client's case and improves the way the Public Defender functions in general. Before the program, if a mentally ill client had an issue in jail – not taking their medication, refusing to go to court or eat, becoming despondent – sheriff's deputies would contact the client's attorney, who would try to schedule a meeting usually at a later date.

Now, deputies email the liaison team and within 24 hours, typically much sooner, a Public Defender social worker at the Twin Towers Correctional Facility where most mentally ill inmates are housed, meets with the client face-to-face.

With the inmates' mental health issues analyzed, assessed and resolved by the liaison, Public Defender attorneys can focus their attention on the legal aspects of the case. These coordinated efforts expedite case processing, and result in better case outcomes and quicker mental health services for the client.

Often, after the social worker speaks with a client refusing to leave his cell, the issue is resolved, eliminating the need for forced removal. Addressing the client's underlying psychological and medical needs reduces court delays and ultimately helps the client move out of the criminal justice system.

Surprise—Delicious Winter Squash in the Summer Heat!

KEEPING UP WITH THE SEASONS IN THE Santa Monica Community Gardens means growing year-round and being open to the surprises that abound. In our local Mediterranean climate, active gardening can be lively every day of the year. Yet, even with endless possibilities, planting a winter squash in spring for summer dining appeared crazy. Such is life in a community garden, particularly when we are willing to take a chance and receive gifts from the community that are available. After all, sharing underlies the relationships that help create a productive culture based on good practices and traditions. In fact, Santa Monica's newest community garden is the Ishihara Learning Garden modeled on communal plantings and harvests. It was not unusual then, following an Ishihara celebration, that Teague, the City's gardening specialist, offered leftover Waltham Butternut squash (Cucurbita moschata) seedlings to residents and gardeners. It was time to experiment and learn to appreciate a new opportunity.

I had doubts. Randy, my partner-in-life and gardening, and I had never planted butternuts. Butternut planting definitely appeared off-season, and summer squash, typically the prolific zucchini, is my favorite seasonal ingredient to a scrumptious ratatouille. Randy questioned whether butternut's sprawling growth would overtake our plot. We would need to cultivate with attention to restrain the crop. He believed the effort to be worthwhile so I grudgingly agreed to the attempt. Randy transplanted two Waltham Butternuts. We watered and tended and watched. It was hot. They rooted and grew.

Emerald leaves opened. Butterscotch-colored squash flowers blossomed. Local wild bees and honeybees pollinated, and the "vine" snaked across the beds, with small mint-green dumbbell-shaped protrusions emerging and, after weeks, bulging into beige then amber hard-shell gourds. The butternuts grew. And grew. And grew. At first five, then ten, fruit came forth. By the end of July, we stopped watering. Ten gourds became twenty and more and more gourds that soon would lay upon the soil.

Fellow gardeners and visitors marveled. Many remarked that butternuts are their favorite. Seeing the plentiful harvest, we promised to share what I am used to thinking is a Thanksgiving food. By late August, a few were ready to test for dinner.

Randy sliced the gourd in half, spooned out the seeds and soft mesh, filled the hollow with a mixture of balsamic vinegar, olive oil and light seasoning and roasted the gourd at high heat for 60 – 90 minutes. The Waltham Butternut tasted like dessert. No wonder that the name is said to have come from the "smooth as butter, sweet as nut" flavor.

Today, six months later, a half-dozen remain, and little ones keeping popping forth. We have given away many. We have dined on a delicious winter squash in the summer heat.

What is seasonal, after all, might only be a human determination as much as Nature's favor. The best community gardeners observe carefully what is going on within the soil interacting with air, water and light, amidst the plants, pollinators, bugs and insects—to be wise in attending to nurture productive dynamic relationships among and within natural and human communities.

Downtown

October Democratic Club Membership Meeting: Housing and Homelessness

For years, the region has been gripped by a full-fledged housing crisis with a severe lack of affordable housing for middle- and working-class families. The median cost of a house in Los Angeles County is $500,000, twice the national average, and in Santa Monica it is even worse at $1.4 million. As more residents are unable to afford to continue to live in their home communities, we have seen a severe uptick in Ellis Act evictions. This, in turn, has lead to a large increase in the homeless population (a 23% increase in LA County since last year).

Because this issue affects us in so many different ways, organizers have convened a group of local officials to discuss the impact of the housing crisis at the city, county, and statewide levels:

- Richard Bloom, Member of the California Assembly, 50th District
- Sheila Kuehl, Los Angeles County Supervisor, 3rd District
- Rick Cole, City Manager of Santa Monica
- Kenneth Semko, Interim Chief, Santa Monica Police Department

Assemblymember Bloom and Supervisor Kuehl will join them first, from 6:30 – 8 p.m., to discuss these issues from a statewide and countywide perspective.

City Manager Cole and Chief Semko will take the stage from 8 – 9 p.m. to discuss these issues as they pertain specifically to Santa Monica.

An opportunity for Q&A will follow each pair of speakers.

For first time and new members, the Executive Board of the club will be available from 6 - 6:30 p.m. for an informal meet and greet. The main program will start at 6:30 p.m. The event is free and open to the public. Light refreshments will be provided. Parking available. Handicap accessible.

Please note the early start time in order to accommodate our speakers' schedules.

Ice at Santa Monica Grooves into Action on November 1

Winter is coming as the old adage goes, and that really only means one thing in Downtown Santa Monica – the seasonal return of Ice at Santa Monica. Beginning Nov. 1, 2017 and continuing through Jan. 15, 2018, the Westside's premier skate rink and holiday gathering spot will once again freeze over with 8,000 square feet of real ice. Produced by DTSM, Inc., Ice at Santa Monica is located at the corner of 5th Street and Arizona Avenue and brings swirling feax-snowfall and wintry vibes to the district every day of the week, holidays included.

To spark its 11th season with festive spirit, Ice at Santa Monica will throw a Grand Opening Celebration on Nov. 8 with free skating and eats from local restaurant partners. From 6pm to 10pm, skaters of all sizes and skillsets can enjoy a performance by some of California's most elite skaters and a free skate session to the beat of DJ jams. Guests, family and friends will enjoy food from local restaurants and an wintry-themed photobooth. The event is completely open and free to the public, and guests are invited to bring a new unwrapped gift or gift card to support the PAL Best Gift Ever Toy Drive, which provides presents to children in Santa Monica who are less fortunate than most.

The 2016-17 season drew nearly 55,000 skaters to the rink and 104 birthday celebrations and events to the cabanas that line the perimeter. For those looking to up their technique, lessons are available through the Randy Gardner's School of Skating, which provided 436 lessons this past season.

Santa Monica Airport. The new LPA would go a step further than current lease requirements, which say tenants will not impede workers' efforts to organize.

The new language was introduced by now-Mayor Ted Winterer and Councilmember Tony Vazquez and unanimously supported by the City Council during a meeting in Aug. 2016. At the time, Mayor Winterer said an LPA would prevent a work stoppage caused by a strike or other labor action that could hurt City revenues. Every year the City makes about $4.5 million from leases to restaurants and other food vendors.

During the brief discussion, Councilmember Pam O'Conner directed staff to analyze the LPA's potential effect on "mom and pop" businesses. More than a year later, the City report found the new language would impact 27 out of 101 properties managed by the City. The vast majority of those tenants are small businesses with fewer than 25 employees (19 versus 8).

The Chamber sent a letter to the Council in advance of the discussion saying those small businesses would be under threat if the LPA was to be instituted.

"One of our primary concerns with the proposal is the competitive disadvantage that it would place on businesses on city property, relative to those on private land not subject to the new rule," says the letter from Chamber president and CEO Laurel Rosen. "Requiring an LPA would lead to longer periods of vacancy and a greater likelihood of corporate/chain occupants on important city locations that are not only significant to city revenue, but also to the fundamental character of Santa Monica."

Business owners have also expressed concern labor organizations would have unilateral leverage in negotiating the LPA if it were required, and would burden the owners with the cost of hiring specialized legal assistance.

The new regulation could also impact hundreds of hosts, waiters, waitresses and cooks who work on the Pier and downtown. The City has not experienced any work stoppages at City-owned properties and the impact of a required LPA on rental income and small businesses is "unknown and unpredictable," according to a staff report by the City's director of housing and economic development.

"As a group, the City Tenants employ a range of full- and part-time positions totaling approximately 600 employees annually," the report by Andy Agle states.

The Airline Service Providers Association took the City of Los Angeles to court over the LPA requirements at LAX. This past summer, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the City's right as landlord to set requirements for tenants on City-owned space.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON OCTOBER 14, AT ABOUT 10:37 P.M.

Officers responded to Nordstroms – 220 Broadway regarding a theft suspect in custody. Officers arrived and spoke with Loss Prevention Staff. Officers determined the subject entered the store and selected various items from the sales floor. The subject proceeded to the register and purchased approximately $2,000 worth of merchandise using a Nordstrom card belonging to another person. The clerk notified Loss Prevention Staff. The subject was detained. The store was desirous of prosecution and there was no loss. The subject was placed under arrest and transported to SMPD Jail for booking. Terrence Darnell Matthews, 22, from Detroit, was arrested for larceny. Bail was set at $20,000.

results are better than projected, they are primarily one-time in nature and therefore would not impact those future year projections in a significant way," Decavalles-Hughes said.

The City's reserves will be bolstered by non-general funds, which ended the year $54.6 million over budget, according to the report.

"These funds will be used to build reserves, fund ongoing operations, and support future capital projects," the report said.

As part of the effort to address economic changes and homelessness, the City is expected contribute about $200,000 to Santa Monica Travel and Tourism for a "destination and perception study." The study will survey residents, business owners and visitors on homelessness, quality of life and tourism. The city hopes to establish benchmark data to monitor ongoing sentiment and perception of life in Santa Monica.

On Tuesday, the City Council will weigh in on how to best use $1.4 million set-aside to address homelessness, whether by pursuing regional partnerships, street outreach teams or expanding or refocusing existing resources.

"Historically, the City has made investments of land, capital funding, operational support, and significant political will to address homelessness," the report says. "One-time City and County funds are being used to pilot new intensive street-based services to high users of local emergency services and develop mobile technology to transform the way that City first responders and front-line staff interact with people experiencing homelessness."

Staff also recommends appropriating $700,000 to renovate the dinosaur fountains at the Third Street Promenade and to replace equipment for Breeze Bikeshare.

After City staff reviews the end of the year budget performance, they will present their findings to the Council in January 2018.

NOURMAND & ASSOCIATES

WELL NEWS BY SCOTT LAFEE

Self Exam

■ Q: Which human organ(s) can regenerate?

a) Liver
b) Stomach and liver
c) Fingernails
d) Pancreas

■A: a) The liver is the only human organ capable of truly regenerating itself, though many other organs and tissues have notable self-repair abilities. In live liver donations, 40 to 60 percent of a donor's liver may be transplanted into a recipient, with both livers eventually re-growing to normal size.

Never Say Diet

■ The Major League Eating record for crawfish is 6.5 pounds in 10 minutes, held by Sonya Thomas.

Observation

■ "I believe humans get a lot done, not because we're smart, but because we have thumbs so we can make coffee."

--AMERICAN WRITER AND HUMORIST FLASH ROSENBERG

Medical History

■ This week in 1997, American biology professor Stanley B. Prusiner won the Nobel Prize for medicine for discovering "prions," described as "an entirely new genre of disease-causing agents." The name refers to "proteinaceous infectious particles," linked to neurological diseases in both humans and animals, such as Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy or "mad cow disease" and its human variant: Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease.

Medical Myths

■ Drinking warm milk before bed may make you sleepy, but there's no evidence that it's the milk itself. The drowsiness some people experience is more likely due to the warmth of the milk or a full stomach. Milk does contain trace amounts of tryptophan, but not enough to produce a physiological effect.

Med School

■ Q: What do you call the ridge of tissue caused when you bite the inside of your cheek over and over again?

■ A: Morsicatio buccarum. Repeated biting of the lips is called morsicatio labiorum and chronic chewing of the tongue is called morsicatio linguarum. Morsus is Latin for bite. Buccal refers to the mouth.

Observation

■ "We never repent of having eaten too little."

--THOMAS JEFFERSON (1743-1826)

Final Words

■ "I feel here that this time they have succeeded."

--RUSSIAN REVOLUTIONARY AND MULTIPLE ASSASSINATION TARGET LEON TROTSKY (1879-1940), KILLED WHILE IN EXILE IN MEXICO CITY

Foaming at the Eye

■ Emergency room doctors see a lot of things. Lately, they report seeing injuries from Nerf guns, a children's toy that propels flying darts of foam. A newly published case report describes three patients showing up at one hospital on separate occasions with internal bleeding in the eye caused by being hit by a foam dart.

■ The report recommends that kids use protective glasses when playing with their Nerf guns. Adults too. Only one of the three patients described was an actual kid.

Body of Knowledge

■ It's estimated a person inhales approximately 40 pounds of dust over an average lifetime.

Get Me That, Stat!

■ According to the UK's Office of National Statistics, one in three babies born this year will live to see their 100th birthday. That's the good news-at least for the UK. The bad news is that, currently, a slew of negative health impacts, such as the opioid crisis, are reducing and even reversing projected life expectancies in the U.S. The average projected life expectancy for an American woman in 2030 is 83.3 years; for men, 79.5. That's a significant slowing and puts the U.S. on par with predictions for countries like Mexico.

Life in Big Macs

■ One hour of sitting and talking on the phone burns 102 calories (based on a 150-pound person) or the equivalent of 0.1 Big Macs. Of course, most people these days seem to walk around talking on their cell phone, which poses a different set of health hazards.

Counts

■ 1: Number of abortion clinics in Kentucky

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 23)

You'll exercise your wit, hone your intellect and contribute to a project that involves many other sharp minds like yours. The next seven weeks will inject your world with more fun. The end of the year is a financial lift, and in 2018, business starts to take off in an interesting new direction. You'll travel with friends. Libra and Aquarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 6, 32, 12, 29 and 5.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

There will be no shortage of wisdom in your realm. Quotations and sayings abound! The current zeitgeist involves much pretty advice. Applying a frame is a popular option; applying the actual advice, far less so.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

You know where you want to go, and you thought you knew how to get there, too. But something about the route has changed. As much as you hate to stop and ask for directions, it will be the smart thing to do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)

You're feeling rather driven. There is much work to be done, and that includes forging relationships, both professional and personal. To play this right, stay open and helpful without offering up so much as to seem overeager.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)

In the current cosmic shift, you're like a hermit crab outgrowing its shell. You know you're changing, yet in a strange way, you also know you're becoming more like who you really are.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

It will be easier to influence the group when the members of the group trust you. They'll trust you when you seem to be more or less like them -- at least in a few ways that matter. Show them why you're a good fit and then you can lead them in new directions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

You'll be dealing with people who are more fragile than they seem. So be sure not to overestimate their confidence or the thickness of their skin. You'll definitely be doing some coaxing and encouraging today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

You offer a combination of traits that can't be found in any other person. So though many could fill the role you fill, do the job you do and so forth, you are still, in many other ways, completely irreplaceable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)

You'll find other people's routines very interesting. In the study of this, there's something in it for you -- a life hack or practical tip that will make an area of your life run much more smoothly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

When you encounter something beautiful, you'll want to protect it with all your might and light. Just make sure it really needs your help. Do your homework, because some causes are not what they seem.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

You're trying to learn the social lay of the land. It starts with figuring out each person's motive. Seeing as no one will tell you what his or her real purpose is, you'll have to figure it out from clues.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

This day comes with a built-in assignment for you -- and the added bonus of all the motivation, inspiration and resources you need to do a fantastic job.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

You either are not in the mood to go by the book or simply see a better way. In your defense, "the book" was written a very, very long time ago; things have really changed since then.

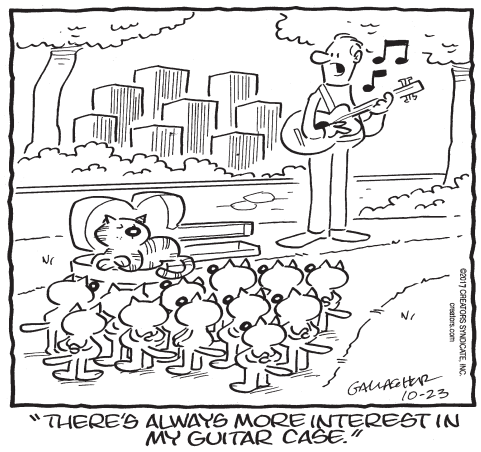

Cosmic Light Change

The first full day of the Scorpio sun will be marked by a green light on a relationship idea. This could be as narrow as making a plan to get together with someone or as broad as making up a new set of rules for your personal life in general. Just remember that you're in charge, that you have choices and that decisions become destiny.
