Parks to open overnight for electric vehicle charging

MADELEINE PAUKER
Daily Press Staff Writer

Two years after an African American man was brutalized by police while charging his electric vehicle in a city park after hours, Santa Monicans will be able to charge their vehicles overnight at the city's public charging ports.

Though there are currently only four public ports in Santa Monica, all of which are located in Virginia Avenue Park, the City is planning to install at least 10 more in Clover, Gandara,

City employee's molestation crimes spark community meeting

ANGEL CARRERAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

In the wake of City employee Eric Uller's arrest for child molestation, the Pico Neighborhood Association will host a community meeting to ask for transparency from the City in regards to their internal investigation and more.

The meeting was organized to provide a safe space for citizens to express concerns to City and Police Activities League (PAL) officials on what measures are being taken to prevent another such crime from taking place as well as updates on their internal investigation and what will become of PAL. The meeting will take place at the Virginia Avenue Park Thelma Terry building.

Oscar de la Torre, Pico Neighborhood Association co-chair, helped organize the meeting which he

PUMPKIN: For $5 participants can walk away with all the pumpkins they can carry.

MADELEINE PAUKER
Daily Press Staff Writer

Customers at the Oct. 31 Santa Monica Farmers Market will be able to take home as many pumpkins as they can carry for $5.

Participants must pick up the pumpkins without any help and carry them down a 25-foot walkway without dropping them. The market encourages customers to wear costumes and beat the standing record of nine pumpkins.

"It's really fun to watch people's creative spirit in terms of how they structure their balancing act," said market coordinator Jodi Low.

The market buys the pumpkins for the annual event from Murray Family Farms in Bakersfield, Low said. The event typically draws a variety of participants, including companies who use it as a team-building exercise and local schoolchildren.

"What better deal can you get on pumpkins? Grocery store pumpkins are expensive," said Low. "Since it's on Halloween, you can take them home and carve them that night."

The All You Can Carry Pumpkin Patch will start at 8 a.m. on Halloween Day and last until the pumpkins run out. Costumes are encouraged (but not required) and there's a one-entry limit per person.

The market is located at Arizona Avenue and 2nd Street.

Honor the Ocean

The City of Malibu celebrated the Marine Protected Areas that preserve our coastal environment at Honor the Ocean, Saturday, October 20, at Zuma Beach.

The day started off with a traditional blessing ceremony led by Chumash Elder Mati Waiya next to a Tomol, a hand-constructed Chumash canoe. Malibu Mayor Pro Tem Jefferson "Zuma Jay" Wagner was on hand to welcome attendees and talk about the importance of protecting Malibu's coastal environment.

Tongva and Chumash elders, whose ancestors were Malibu's first residents thousands of years ago, led storytelling. Malibu Makos Surf Club offer free surfing lessons to the young students who participated in the event. Los Angeles County Lifeguards taught a sidewalk CPR session. The Bay Foundation hosted a fun, educational scavenger hunt and USC Sea Grant led a guided beach walk. Department of Fish and Wildlife, Wishtoyo Foundation, the City of Malibu Environmental Sustainability Department, Heal the Bay, Bay Foundation and other organizations that are part of the Marine Protected Areas had educational booths.

In northern Los Angeles County, MPAs start at El Matador near Ventura County line and extend southward to Paradise Cove. The area includes the Point Dume State Marine Reserve, and the Point Dume State Marine Conservation Area. In the Point Dume reserve area, from El Matador to Point Dume, all fishing and harvesting is prohibited. In the Point Dume conservation area, limited recreational and commercial fishing are allowed and fishing is regulated by the California Department of Fish and Wildlife. This area ranges from Point Dume to Paradise Cove. Learn more http://www.mpacollaborative.org/la.

November at SMC'S Drescher Planetarium Features Winter's Solstice, Telescope Viewing,

TELESCOPE-BUYING TIPS

The Santa Monica College John Drescher Planetarium will present a variety of special feature shows on Friday evenings in November, including a show offering concrete examples and recommendations for the first-time telescope shopper, and the continuation of the 50-Year Apollo Retrospective with a look at the Ranger, Surveyor, and Lunar Orbiter programs. The feature shows – as well as our popular Night Sky Show – will be held on Friday evenings.

The events are at 8 p.m. and are preceded by "The Night Sky Show" at 7 p.m., offering the latest news in astronomy and space exploration, a family-friendly "tour" of the constellations, and the chance to ask astronomy-related questions.

THE NOVEMBER EVENTS ARE:

• November 2: "Holiday Telescope Buyer Survival Guide" – Anyone considering giving a telescope as a holiday gift will face a bewildering array of choices and a whole new jargon. This program – presented in time to shop before the good suppliers sell out of the best starter instruments – will de-mystify things and provide some concrete examples and recommendations for first-time telescope shoppers.

• November 9: 50-Year Retrospective: The Flights of Apollo: "Ranger, Surveyor, and Lunar Orbiter – Scouting the Moon" – As NASA prepared for the first lunar landings, the Ranger, Surveyor, and Lunar Orbiter programs came and went quickly, but hugely increased our knowledge of the Moon, like whether the lunar dust would be able to support the weight of a crewed spacecraft. [This feature show will also be repeated in spring 2019.]

• November 16: Special Observing Event: "The Straight Wall on the Moon and the Seven Sisters" – A look through various telescopes at a 9-day-old gibbous Moon and its "Straight Wall" (Rupes Recta) and terraced inner walls of Copernicus crater, along with views of the beautiful Pleiades star cluster, the Seven Sisters of Greek lore. If clouds intervene, the program will stay in the planetarium with high-resolution images.

• November 30: "A Winter's Solstice" – As the holiday season approaches, this feature show discusses the history of ancient observances of the Winter Solstice, and takes a look at a re-creation of the remarkable planetary conjunction in 2 BCE – a leading candidate for a scientific explanation of the Star of Bethlehem.

The John Drescher Planetarium, which features a Digistar projection system, is located near the elevators on the second floor of Drescher Hall (1900 Pico Blvd., Santa Monica). Tickets are available at the door and cost $11 ($9 seniors and children) for the evening's scheduled "double bill," or $6 ($5 seniors age 60+ and children age 12 and under) for a single show or telescope-viewing session.

Call (310) 434-3005 or see www.smc.edu/eventsinfo or www.smc.edu/planetarium for information. All shows subject to change or cancellation without notice.

Santa Monica College's Synapse Dance Theater to Showcase New Works November 3-4

Santa Monica College's Synapse Dance Theater – the innovative and widely praised contemporary dance ensemble – will present a program of new repertory by award-winning faculty artists, professional guest artists, and up-and-coming student choreographers on November 3 and 4.

Performances are at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Saturday, November 3, and at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, November 4, in The Broad Stage at the SMC Performing Arts Center, located at 1310 11th Street (at Santa Monica Boulevard), Santa Monica.

The concert features Modern Dance, Contemporary Jazz, Contemporary Ballet, Hip-Hop, and more. The program will present works by Synapse Co-Artistic Directors and SMC Professors Jae Lee and Mark Tomasic; guest artists Mawiyah Dowd and Catherine Meredith; and faculty choreographers Angela Jordan, Cihtli Ocampo, and Sophie Monat. Also creating new dance works for the performance are student choreographers Veniel Español, Julisa Figueroa, Marii Kawabata, and Rupa Kingston.

• SMC dance professor, Synapse Co-Director, and professional choreographer Mark Tomasic, who has worked with a variety of renowned dance companies and choreographers, will premiere "Proof," an intimate look at the effect of dementia on the relationship of his parents and family.

• Guest artist Catherine Meredith will present "Aftermath," a fierce and somber exploration of the aftermath of sexual assault. Originally created for Kent State University, this work was most recently performed as part of the American College Dance Association national festival at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

• SMC Dance major Veniel Español, from Candelaria, Philipines, has created the house piece "Turmoil," in which an infinite and constant ride of happiness, sadness, and confusion is internalized and released through the dancer's bodies.

• SMC Dance major Marii Kawabata, from Amami, Japan, has created the contemporary dance piece "Ito," which uses an ensemble of dancers to examine the use of strings as metaphors that tie us together.

Synapse Dance Theater has a longstanding reputation for artistic excellence and innovation. Since it was founded more than three decades ago, the student troupe has performed throughout the nation, including the Electric Lodge in Venice; the Cast Theater in Hollywood; the Getty Center in Los Angeles; and the American College Dance Association Conference in Arizona, California, Georgia, New Jersey, New Mexico, and Utah.

Tickets range from $20 to $23. Parking is free.

For tickets, go to www.smc.edu/eventsinfo or call (310) 434-3005. For more information, please see www.smc.edu/dance or call (310) 434-3467.

says hits close to home.

De la Torre, who also serves as executive director of the Pico Youth and Family Center, says he feels the city has failed residents by covering up crimes, noting years of rumors about Uller's behavior did not diminish his role in the city and another PAL employee, Don Condon, who was convicted of child molestation and received probation for his crimes.

"When you take both cases together, you see one was swept under the rug and the other, the predator was promoted," De la Torre said. "We want to understand how two generations of child predators can find work in city-run youth programs."

De la Torre said Uller's behavior has been known for years, saying he first reported Uller between 1998-1999 with staff reporting his behavior as early as 1993.

He says in addition to the rumors, Uller would wear police-issued polos with an embroidered badge and had other special privileges including an unmarked police vehicle and a radio connected to police dispatch, providing him an authoritative advantage over the children he preyed on.

After Uller's arrest, De la Torre says he feels no vindication, only outrage.

"The impact is a generational trauma that many members of our community have experienced. There is still sitting employees in the city government who failed in their responsibility to protect our children. Those people in charge need to be held accountable for the healing process to even begin."

The Pico Neighborhood Association's meeting takes place at the Virginia Avenue Park Thelma Terry Building on Tuesday, October 30, 7 p.m. - 9 p.m.

Vote Yes on Proposition 2 to Provide Homes for People Living with Mental Illness

HOME: The St. Joseph Center recently helped a man find stable housing.

Nearly 60,000 people are homeless in Los Angeles County, and mental health issues impact almost 30% of that population. The rate is even higher among those who have been homeless for an extended period of time. St. Joseph Center has been working to help this population for decades. For the last 10 years we have utilized multi-disciplinary teams that include mental health professionals to actively engage and find housing for homeless individuals and families with mental illness.

From our experience, people accept treatment and have more success with treatment after they move into housing. That is why we strongly support a Yes vote for Proposition 2 on the November 6th ballot.

Proposition 2 authorizes usage of funds from the Mental Health Services Act, passed in 2004 to provide up to $2 billion in bonds to build permanent supportive housing, linked to treatment and services, for homeless individuals with serious mental illness. Passing this measure will ratify landmark legislation, known as "No Place Like Home," which was passed with strong bipartisan support and signed into law in 2016. This legislation would scale up a proven model of treatment for this vulnerable population by providing them with stable and secure housing. Since "No Place Like Home" was passed it has been caught up in a court validation action. Proposition 2 would clear the way for its full implementation.

Proposition 2 does not raise taxes — instead it would use 6% of the annually-generated revenue from the Mental Health Services Act, with funding being spread across all California counties, to build permanent supportive housing. This bond will allow Californian communities to infuse significant resources into housing to provide a path of stability for our most vulnerable, homeless population.

In 2017 Governor Brown appointed me to serve on the No Place Like Home Advisory Committee. I can tell you firsthand that once Proposition 2 passes, we will see a positive impact on ending homelessness. Providing housing that is connected to supportive services, will not only help mentally ill individuals get off the street, it will also prevent many from continually falling back into homelessness.

One person St. Joseph Center recently helped who could have benefited from No Place Like Home is a man named Calmeze. He endured great hardships as a child, including abuse and alcoholism in the home. His traumatic upbringing took a toll, and he ended up struggling with depression and homelessness for decades. His daughter spotted him in an encampment just off Lincoln Boulevard last year. After an incredibly difficult talk, he was inspired to start making different life choices. The next time our outreach team came by he said "yes" to help and was referred to our mental health-focused Integrated Mobile Health Team. In May, Calmeze moved into his own apartment for the first time in years, where he continues to receive support from our trained staff. He has struggled since moving inside, as is the case with many who have lived on the streets for long periods of time. The roof over his head and the ongoing treatment from our mental health professionals has given him stability, which has prevented him from falling back into homelessness.

"I never thought I'd have a second chance at 60," Calmeze said the day after he signed his new lease, "But I am truly, truly blessed."

Getting people inside helps save lives. On November 6, please vote Yes on Proposition 2 to provide hope and support to thousands of our most vulnerable neighbors.

Va Lecia Adams Kellum, Ph.D. is President & CEO of St. Joseph Center.

Serve and Return – Building Your Baby's Brain

From the moment a child is born, their brains are growing and developing at fantastic speeds, and your interactions with them at this stage will impact the rest of their lives.

Science has shown that healthy brain development depends upon ongoing conversations and interactions between an adult and a child. This process of "serve and return," where an infant "serves" through gestures, cries or coos, and an adult "returns" by acknowledging and responding in a positive manner, is critical for building neural connections and language development.

A recent study of children between the ages of 4 and 6 by Massachusetts Institute of Technology cognitive scientists found that this volleying back and forth accounted for a significant difference in brain physiology and language skills regardless of economic status.

Fortunately, this activity doesn't require fancy toys or special videos or apps, all it requires is you. Here are some easy steps to follow:

BE ENGAGED

Stay aware to what draws your infant or toddler's attention and their responses. It could be a toy, a pet wandering past, a cloud floating overhead, or even their toes.

RESPOND POSITIVELY

This is the "return" portion, where you provide a response to their expressions and gestures. If an object fascinates them, you can point to it and give it a name, or just smile and make a sign that shows you recognize their interest.

KEEP IT GOING

Just like in tennis, you want to rally and have an ongoing back and forth dialogue – even if they're not using words. Make sure to pause and give them time to respond so they have time to think and formulate their ideas.

Make this an important part of your daily interactions. By doing so, you will help your baby's brain develop and prepare them emotionally and cognitively for the future.

CHARGING

Marine, Memorial, and Airport parks. Drivers would not have been able to charge their vehicles in the parks between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. under current law.

Justin Palmer was charging his vehicle in the evening of April 21 in Virginia Avenue Park when two officers told him the park had closed for the night and asked to see his identification, which he did not provide because the park was not closed and he felt he had done nothing illegal.

The officers then tackled, arrested, and pepper sprayed Palmer, which rendered him unconscious. He filed a federal lawsuit alleging police used excessive force, and he received $1.1 million after a jury found one of the officers did use excessive force during Palmer's arrest.

"I'm glad to see the City has changed the law so electric vehicle drivers won't be put in confusing positions if they interact with police officers," said Justin Sanders, an attorney who represented Palmer during his lawsuit. "It also makes interactions with citizens in those situations less confusing for officers."

Mayor Ted Winterer said he thinks the new law will help prevent another instance of police misconduct in the future, but added the primary goal of the ordinance is to fulfill the Electric Vehicle Action Plan, which council adopted in November 2017 with the goal of installing 300 public chargers by 2020. As part of the plan, council directed City staff to maximize the hours in which public chargers were available.

The new ordinance will allow people to enter closed parks to plug or unplug their electric vehicles. Charging stations notify drivers via text message when their battery is full or when they exceed a three-hour daytime time limit. For example, a driver who parks their car at 9 p.m. would need to leave the park by 8 a.m. City staff will return to council to recommend regulations for vehicles that exceed the time limits.

There are about 2,500 registered electric and plug-in hybrid vehicles in Santa Monica and 100 public chargers to serve them, the majority of which are downtown, City staff said. Because 70 percent of Santa Monicans live in multi-unit dwellings, many residents rely on public chargers as their only means of powering their vehicles.

"We hope public access to charging stations helps make the switch to electric vehicles logistically possible for the majority of Santa Monica residents who rent and live outside the Downtown area," said Dean Kubani, Chief Sustainability Officer and Assistant Director of Public Works.

Winterer said the City aims for 15 percent of its single-occupant vehicles to be electric by 2025, and will continue to build more charging ports after it meets its goal of 300 in 2020.

Malibu

Malibu Celebrates America Recycles Day all Month Long!

The City of Malibu is partnering with Sustainable Surf, Marko Foam, and Access document shredding service to offer public recycling opportunities throughout the month of November to celebrate America Recycles Day, a national call to action to reduce, reuse and recycle waste. The Official America Recycles Day is November 15.

"America Recycles Day is all about reducing our environmental footprint as part of Malibu's core mission to protect our natural environment," Mayor Rick Mullen said. "The City offers residents opportunities all year long to recycle materials that can be particularly harmful to the environment like electronics and household chemicals, or that require special handling, such as personal documents. We invite every business and resident in Malibu to join our community-wide environmental mission."

WASTE TO WAVES POLYSTYRENE FOAM RECYCLING COLLECTION – NOVEMBER 1-30, CITY HALL UPPER PARKING LOT

Malibu residents can drop off polystyrene foam in the upper parking lot of City Hall (23825 Stuart Ranch Road) November 1-30, Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The foam will be collected and recycled by the environmental non-profit organization Sustainable Surf and surfboard foam manufacturer Marko Foam. Some of the material will be "upcycled" into surfboard blanks to create eco-friendly surfboards as part of the Waste to Waves project. Upcycling is using discarded materials to create another higher-quality product. Learn more about Waste to Waves at https://markofoamblanks.com/pages/recycling. Learn more about the City's foam recycling program at www.MalibuCity.org/RecycleFoam.

Since the program was launched in 2011, Sustainable Surf's Waste to Waves program co-founder Kevin Whilden estimates that they have recycled over 50,000 pounds of polystyrene foam. Twenty pounds of foam can be upcycled into 20 Marko Foam surfboard cores, which have 25% recycled content. Sustainable Surf and Marko Foam have enlisted notable board shapers and professional surfers to promote the performance and sustainability of the eco-boards.

Over 13 billion pounds of styrene were produced in the U.S. alone in 2006, most of which was used in manufacturing polystyrene foam. When it is not properly recycled, polystyrene foam ends up in landfills, where it can take hundreds of years to break down, and in the ocean, where it contributes to ocean pollution that damages wildlife and ecosystems. The City of Malibu banned polystyrene foam foodware in 2005, and expanded the ban in 2016 to include all polystyrene foam products.

FREE SECURE DOCUMENT SHREDDING – SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17, CITY HALL UPPER PARKING LOT

Malibu residents can drop off paper documents to be securely shredded and recycled for free by Access on Saturday, November 17 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the upper parking lot of City Hall. Secure paper document shredding by Access is an effective way to prevent identity theft while recycling paper. www.MalibuCity.org/Shredding

DECLARATION OF AMERICA RECYCLES DAY BY MALIBU CITY COUNCIL – TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, CITY HALL

On Tuesday, November 13 at Malibu City Hall, the City Council will proclaim November 15 to be America Recycles Day.

America Recycles Day is one of many ways Malibu has established itself as a leader in environmental stewardship. The City's ongoing public recycling and collection events for batteries, electronic waste, household hazardous waste (HHW), and polystyrene foam have allowed it to deliver on a top environmental goal: properly recycling our community waste. This year, Malibu stood out as one of the first cities in the United States to ban single-use plastic straws and utensils. Other plastic bans in force in Malibu include plastic sandbags (2017) and single-use plastic shopping bags (2008). In 2017, Malibu recycled over 277 tons of bottles, cans, paper, and electronic waste.

In addition to its recycling efforts, the City has policies in place to make its own operations more sustainable and is actively working on ways to expand these efforts. This includes transitioning to digital files, making the city pesticide, rodenticide and herbicide free, and installing water bottle filling stations. The City has an environmentally friendly purchasing policy that requires, among other things, that supplies have recycled content whenever possible. Malibu is also reducing emissions of greenhouse gases by moving toward a hybrid and electric vehicle fleet and installing electric charging stations for City vehicles and public use.

Through its ongoing outreach, workshops, special recycling events, and participation in efforts like America Recycles Day, the City provides tools and information to encourage and enable residents to conserve energy and natural resources, and reduce waste.

After stroke strikes, what comes next?

The American Heart Association/American Stroke Association, the world's leading voluntary health organization devoted to fighting heart disease and stroke, wants stroke survivors to know that while life may be different after a stroke, rehabilitation can help with regaining some independence, decreasing chances of another stroke and providing new goals to work toward.

Laura LaRose was hiking at Rocky Mountain National Park last year when her entire left side went numb. Laura is a nurse and was aware of the warning signs of a stroke, but she was 33 years old and had no other symptoms, so she finished her hike, got dinner, went to bed, flew back to Los Angeles and even went to a job interview. It wasn't until 48 hours later that she went to the ER and learned that she was having a stroke. Laura's message: "Don't do what I did. Learn to recognize the warning signs of a stroke and call 911 immediately. Time lost is brain lost."

While Laura's rehabilitation was short and did not require a regimented therapy, she did a lot of things on her own to regain function and feeling on her left side, like going for regular walks, even though it felt awkward, and doing sensory exercises.

Worldwide, stroke is the No. 2 cause of death and is a leading cause of long-term disability. Stroke is more disabling than it is fatal. However, stroke is largely beatable through high-quality rehabilitation and patient support and implementation of the Association's Rehabilitation Guidelines.

"Rehabilitation is key to recovery after stroke," said Lucas Restrepo, MD, professor and researcher at UCLA's Neurology Department and an American Heart Association volunteer. "But up to a third of people who have a stroke do not participate in a rehab program."

Stroke rehabilitation can help patients build their strength, capabilities and confidence, potentially regaining skills and returning to independent living. Rehab can also help patients better manage other conditions they have, which may affect daily living or their risk for a second stroke.

"Stroke recovery begins the moment you suspect a stroke," said Restrepo. "The sooner a person can be treated for stroke, the more likely they are to have a successful outcome." She advises everyone to be ready to act FAST if they suspect a stroke.

The acronym F.A.S.T. stands for:

Face Drooping - Does one side of the face droop or is it numb? Ask the person to smile. Is the person's smile uneven?

Arm Weakness - Is one arm weak or numb? Ask the person to raise both arms. Does one arm drift downward?

Speech Difficulty - Is speech slurred? Is the person unable to speak or hard to understand? Ask the person to repeat a simple sentence, like "The sky is blue."

Time to Call 9-1-1 - If someone shows any of these symptoms, even if the symptoms go away, call 9-1-1 and get to a hospital immediately. (Tip: Check the time so you'll know when the first symptoms appeared.)

Education about F.A.S.T is a part of the American Stroke Association's Together to End Stroke initiative, nationally sponsored by Medtronic. Together, the two organizations aim to help people to easily recognize the stroke warning signs to improve stroke outcomes.

The American Heart Association/American Stroke Association's Together to End Stroke™ initiative, nationally sponsored by Kindred Rehabilitation Services, raises awareness that stroke is largely beatable through high-quality rehabilitation, patient support and implementation of the AHA/ASA's Stroke Rehabilitation and Recovery Guidelines.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (OCT. 29)

You'll perform good deeds, as always, without hope of reward. But you'll be rewarded anyway, and publicly if you're not careful. Though fame means nothing to you, your stellar reputation will open doors for loved ones. This gets the finances flowing, and life gets easier. June brings a big celebration. Gemini and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 1, 19, 7, 26 and 41.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
The general consensus may be generally wrong. Luckily, you're in no mood to listen to them today. You'll make a decision based on what you feel, and popular opinion will not sway you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Maybe it's not always so important whether a particular belief is totally accurate or not. Is the belief useful? Does is make you better? Is it better for those around you? Helpful beliefs make things flow easily.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
You were taught about the heroes that came before you, and it's now pretty clear that you weren't getting the whole story. The ugly side of history can be hard to reconcile, so hold on to the glimmers of benevolence.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
You're in a private mood. Plus, there's just no benefit to bragging. You'd rather lock your enviable accomplishments and beautiful pictures in a safe than put them on the internet.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
If you've never heard of someone like you pursuing a goal, or you think the feat is just impossible, you'll shut yourself off from the possibilities, thus ensuring that the event will not occur. But all it takes is one example to set you in motion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
In some moments, life will be like watching a classic movie with scenes that don't quite fit the current times. When old-fashioned beliefs are acted out, you'll realize how much things have changed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Those who are happy to help really do seem content in the act and don't appear to need special recognition for what they do. They don't draw attention to their kindness. These are the golden-hearted people to hold dear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)
If you have to ask to be treated well, it will make you wonder if you've chosen badly. But don't let that drag down your thoughts. Some people just need to be taught to get in touch with the spirit of compassion, teamwork and equity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
Your best, most winning move will involve being fully engaged with the events of the day. You won't even have time to stress over what might happen, because you're too busy building on the goodness that is happening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
It's a day to examine, update or acquire anew. Examine what, you ask? Update which? The same process applies to many areas of your life -- habits, thought processes, tools, relationships and more.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
It's one thing to cherish a relationship in your heart and quite another to cherish it through your deeds. While the first is nice for you, the second is nice for both of you, and it starts a ripple in the world at large.

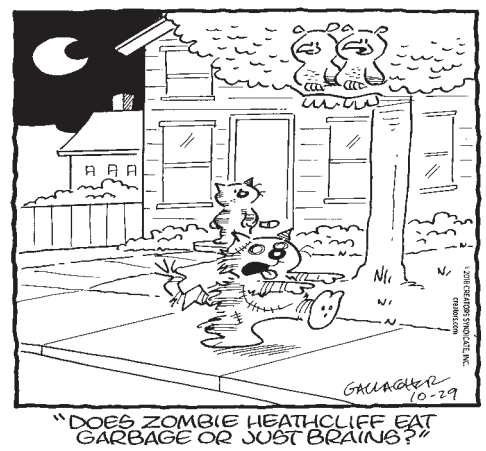

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Most people who don't find good answers weren't looking for them. The opposite example will be you today, as you look for ways to uplift the people around you and find prime opportunities to do so.

MERCURY AND JUPITER CONJUNCTION

The conjunction of Mercury and Jupiter hang the possibility of good fortune on matters of communication. Everyone has different triggers and hot buttons. What offends one person is perfectly acceptable or funny to the next. Polite company may not show disdain. So for honest feedback, test new ways of interacting on impolite company.

WELL NEWS BY SCOTT LAFEE

Body of Knowledge

■ The average number of times to urinate per day is between six and seven in a 24-hour period. But anywhere between four and 10 is considered normal if the person is healthy and happy with the frequency. Normal defecation rates are even more widely variable, with the vast majority of adults defecating between three times per day and three times per week, with bowel patterns usually well established.

Observation

■ "I went on a diet, swore off drinking and heavy eating, and in 14 days, I lost two weeks." -- Comedian Joe E. Lewis (1902-1971)
