DermCheck app fills in for skin docs

BY JENNIFER MAAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

Don't have time to go to the dermatologist? No worries, there's an app for that.

To allow people easier access to dermatologists, Dr. Ben Behnam of Santa Monica created DermCheck, an app that makes virtual diagnoses of skin conditions a reality without patients ever having to step into a doctor's office.

Behnam believed this app was necessary as not everyone takes the time to go to the dermatologist because they may not think

ICE is coming

The 9th annual ICE at Santa Monica heats up this month

Matthew Hall editor@smdp.com

POPULAR: Skating opens Nov.1 and the Grand Opening celebration is Nov. 5.

BY JENNIFER MAAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

For the ninth year in a row sunny Santa Monica will be getting icy. Or at least one corner of the city will when ICE at Santa Monica returns to 5th Street and Arizona Avenue on Nov. 1.

ICE, a skating rink operated by Downtown Santa Monica, is an 8,000 sq. ft. Santa Monica tradition.

"The ice skating rink is a magical place," said Mackenzie Carter of Downtown Santa Monica, Inc. "It brings together the best of what Santa Monica has, which is the sunshine and the beautiful weather and the merriment of Downtown Santa Monica and when your there its just fun. And when you're there you can talk and enjoy this beloved winter activity at the beach, an experience that not many other cities can offer."

The grand opening of the rink will occur on Nov. 5 from 6 - 10 p.m. and is completely free to the public. Skaters of all ages and skill sets are welcome to enjoy complimentary treats from Holy Cow BBQ, P.F. Chang's, See's Candy, PlanetSmoothie and Yogurtland. There will also be a performance choreographed by world figure skating champion Randy Gardner who will "break the ice" before the rink is opened up for a free skate session, complete with faux snow.

There will also be a cookie decorating station, an interactive wintry-themed photo booth and mobile

Court of Appeals Schedules Special Sitting at UCLA Law School

The United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit will hold a special sitting November 4, at the University of California, Los Angeles, School of Law, 385 Charles E. Young Drive East. A panel will hear oral arguments at 1 p.m. in the school's Cappello Courtroom. A picture ID is required to enter the courtroom.

The appellate panel will consist of Circuit Judge Michelle T. Friedland of San Francisco, Senior Circuit Judge Mary M. Schroeder of Phoenix and District Judge Vince Chhabria of the Northern District of California, who is sitting by designation. They will consider appeals of five cases decided by the Board of Immigration Appeals and two federal trial courts in California. Cases on the docket are:

Yesayi Indikushayan v. Loretta E. Lynch, in which citizens of Armenia petition for review of the BIA's denial of their applications for asylum, withholding of removal, and protection under the Convention Against Torture. Case 11-73336

Shouchen Yang v. Loretta E. Lynch, in which Schouchen Yang, a citizen of China, petitions for review of the BIA's denial of his motion to reopen removal proceedings. Case 12- 71773

USA v. Emilio Reyes-Bosque, in which federal prisoner Emilio Reyes-Bosque appeals a decision of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California in San Diego denying his motion challenging his conviction and sentence for multiple offenses including aiding aggravated felons to enter the U.S. Case 14-55445

ALDF v. USDA, in which the Animal Legal Defense Fund appeals the summary judgment of the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California in Los Angeles in favor of the U.S. Department of Agriculture in an action seeking to have foie gras declared an adulterated food under the Poultry Product Inspection Act of 1957. Case 13-55868

Trustees of the O.E.P. Trust v. Smith-Emery Company, in which Trustees of the Operating Engineers Pension Trust and others appeal the Central District court's judgment after bench trial in an ERISA action for delinquent contributions; defendant

Smith-Emery Co. cross appeals the district court's attorney fees orders. Cases 13-56708,

13-56830

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals hears appeals of cases decided by executive branch agencies and federal trial courts in nine western states and two Pacific Island jurisdictions. The court normally meets monthly in Seattle, San Francisco, and Pasadena; every other month in Portland, Oregon; three times per year in Honolulu, Hawaii; and twice a year in Anchorage, Alaska. A complete schedule of cases is available online at www.ca9.uscourts.gov.

Bike Share launches Nov. 12

The City of Santa Monica has announced the full system launch of Breeze Bike Share sponsored by Hulu. The big day is Thursday, November 12 and the festivities will kick off with a ribbon cutting ceremony and press conference in front of City Hall. Mayor Kevin McKeown, the Santa Monica City Council, Assemblymember Richard Bloom and other regional leaders will take part in the ceremony, along with some surprise friends of bike share and Hulu who will help make the occasion a memorable one. Music and refreshments will be available at 8:15 a.m., with the press conference beginning at 9 a.m.

Immediately following the ceremony, hundreds of excited cyclists will grab a green Breeze bike and take over Main Street for a massive community bike ride. As part of the day-long celebration, anyone who wants to can try out a Breeze bike for free from 6 a.m.-10 p.m. To ride free for the day, the community is invited to register online at www.breezebikeshare.com or on the Social Bicycles apps for android and IOS.

In preparation for the launch, the City has released the final map showing all 79 hub locations, four of which are located in Venice. The map is posted at www.smgov.net/bikeshare and at www.breezebikeshare.com. In addition, the maps are conveniently located on all hub signs, which also include the City's growing network of bike lanes and designated bikeway streets to help the community make the most of their bike share experience.

Breeze Bike Share, owned by the City of Santa Monica and operated by CycleHop, LLC, will provide 500 public bicycles at 75 stations throughout the city and select locations in nearby Venice. Breeze bicycles offer flexibility for one-way bike rides to get around town in a fun, healthy and environmentally-friendly way and achieve the Santa Monica community's goals to reduce car trips and GHG emissions. Payment options include "pay-as-you-go" at $1/10 minutes, and monthly or annual membership rates that offer huge savings. Register at www.breezebikeshare.com or through the Social Bicycles app for IOS and android.

COOKIES: Quinn and Bridget Bryne are fans of their parents new restaurant.

All-Thyme Favorite Opens 2nd Café

THERE'S AN OLD ADAGE, "DON'T GO grocery shopping on an empty stomach." Actually, I'm not sure if it's an old adage or I made it up night shopping hungry at Albertson's. (Which became Haggen's and now will become Gelsons) But here's another adage, "Don't visit Thyme Café & Market's website after business hours." That is, unless you have some of their delicious take-out waiting in the fridge.

Thyme Café is the highly popular gourmet eatery on Ocean Park Boulevard in Sunset Park. Their food is so mouth-watering, the website photos alone could keep you up at night. (One night, I dreamed about Thyme's gorgeous entrees for so many hours I woke up thinking it's a good thing their food is so healthy or I might have gained weight.)

Maire Byrne is Thyme's owner, operator and driving force. Thyme Café offers fresh gourmet foods, delicious baked goods, and fine food to-go in a warm, charming and communal environment. And this past Tuesday, Maire opened a second culinary establishment.

"Local Kitchen & Wine Bar," also on Ocean Park Boulevard, offers a casual dining experience that pairs small plates (including wood-fired pizzas!) with exceptional wines and beverages. Given Maire's unique family legacy, nobody's more "local" than she is.

You see, Maire's great-grandfather, Herman Michel, emigrated to Santa Monica from Switzerland in the 1880's. He even became our city's first mayor! A dairyman by trade, he purchased Santa Monica Dairy, which was later known as Edgemar Farms. Located along Rose Avenue and Main Street, his dairy delivered milk and dairy products to all of Santa Monica, Venice and Marina Del Rey for the next 100 years.

In a world of texts and drones, I'm particularly fond of Santa Monica history. But Edgemar Farms is of special interest to me for other reasons. As a teenager, my father worked there as an egg-candler. (Holding eggs to a candle to make sure they weren't fertilized.)

The late and legendary UCLA basketball coach, John Wooden, also worked at Edgemar during a few off seasons. (Despite 10 national championships, Wooden's highest UCLA salary was $35,000!)

If Herman Michel was an example of achieving success through hard work, then the DNA passed down to his great-grand daughter, Maire. She's a wife, mother of two young daughters and now she'll be running two restaurants. Just typing all this makes me want to take a nap. I don't know how Maire finds the energy and talent, but my palate is glad that she does.

Maire was born in Los Angeles into a family of five brothers and sisters, where great food and family gatherings were dynamic and frequent. A graduate of the Culinary Institute of America in New York, Maire went on to work with culinary luminaries at various acclaimed restaurants, including Chez Panisse in Berkeley, The Ajax Tavern in Aspen, and Aqua in San Francisco.

But it was cooking alongside her mother in their family kitchen where Maire grew to understand and appreciate home-cooked food that inspires delicious memories. In 2004 she boldly launched Thyme Catering where she quickly found success in creating New American food to enhance unforgettable moments. The popularity of Thyme Catering led her to expand the company as she launched Thyme Café . And now there's Local Kitchen.

Maire, her husband Tim, and their two adorable daughters (who are as pretty as their names, Bridget, age 4, and Quinn age 2) all live in a house in Los Angeles. (Along with 500 cookbooks and an endless supply of chocolate chip cookies. How do I get adopted?)

About her legendary family, Maire says, "I feel grateful to follow in my ancestors' dreams, working in the food business in Santa Monica." (Many of her hungry customers are also grateful!)

Even though Local Kitchen has only been open a few days, there's already a buzz in town. Both Thyme Café and Local Kitchen offer casual dining in a charming, cozy environment; and both have take-out. As for home delivery, Thyme has it, while Local Kitchen is working on it.

As I mentioned drones earlier, instead of "Home Delivery" maybe one day there will be "Drone Delivery" Of course, that raises the eternal question, "How much do you tip a drone?"

Local Kitchen & Wine Bar is at 1736 Ocean Park Blvd,(310) 396-9007 or go to:: www.localkitchenandwinebar.com. JACK is at jnsmdp@aol.com.

City is not the victim

Editor:

Once again, the city council plays the victim card because it doesn't get its way coming off more like two pounds in a one pound bag.

According to a May 27, 2008 FAA director's determination, the city of Santa Monica was informed of three things:

1. The airport is obligated until 2023 through Federal Airport Improvement grants.

2. The Surplus Property Act obligates the airport in perpetuity. People forget or don't know that we had an Army reserve base with vehicles at the airport where the Santa Monica College satellite art campus and parking is now.

3. The FAA will act through the Department of Transportation to withhold all City of Santa Monica federal funding.

The city council is guilty of endangering its own anti-airport supporters by neglecting to let the FAA install an EMAS (engineered material arrestor system) that would stop aircraft overrun. The FAA was willing to pay for this safety measure, but the city council turned it down.

The city council, their greedy developers and their doting toady, anti-airport stooges are using the "Chicken Little" syndrome by creating fear and panic in the public.

A proposed, mile long park where the airport stands now, will not generate money. Condos, a shopping mall, retail outlets and chain restaurants will.

Anyone with an iota of a brain cell can see this for what it is; a land grab.

Police on high alert after women's bodies found in LA park

AMANDA LEE MYERS
Associated Press

Police were on high alert after the bodies of two young women were found in a popular Los Angeles park with sweeping views of the city.

The Los Angeles Police Department has added officers on foot inside Ernest E. Debs Regional Park and in patrol cars in the area following the discovery of the bodies Wednesday afternoon, said Capt. Patricia Sandoval of the department's Hollenbeck's station.

"We're on high alert. We're worried," Sandoval said Thursday. "It's very alarming, especially for anybody that's a runner, a hiker or a walker who uses that park regularly and thinks, 'Am I in harm's way now?' "

A woman walking her dog in the park found the bodies after the pet walked deeper inside and wouldn't come out. When the woman went to investigate, she spotted the lifeless women, Sandoval said.

The Los Angeles County coroner's office identified one woman on Thursday as 19-year-old Gabriela Calzada. There was no information about where she lived.

The women were fully clothed, showed no signs of being sexually assaulted, and could have been in the park for days or weeks, Sandoval said.

Police declined to discuss how the women were killed, citing the integrity of the investigation. But Sandoval said investigators haven't ruled anything out.

"Everything is so early, and there's so much to do on this case," she said. "We don't have much yet."

Police haven't received any recent complaints of anything unusual in the park, Sandoval said.

Last year, police asked for the public's help to identify a man in connection with attacks on three women at the park in a six-month period. One of the women reported being groped as she walked alone, another reported that a man exposed himself, while a third said a man armed with a knife punched her and stood over her for several seconds before fleeing.

Residents in the area expressed deep concern over this week's discovery.

The Myth of a Housing Crisis

SANTA MONICA DOES NOT HAVE A housing crisis. The Southern Counties Association of Governments (SCAG) target for our City is 239 new units per year. This is a fair number that reflects our percentage of growth for the Southern California region. In the last three years we have approved an average of 253 new units per year. In addition we have another 1929 units (not counting 679 units in withdrawn projects) in the pipeline at various stages of approval processing. If only half of those projects go to term over the next three years we would have approved an average of another 321 units in the next three years or 1/3 more than our SCAG requirement. Simply stated we are already meeting more than our fair share of the region's housing demand in addition to all the other benefits our small city provides to the region. In fact, Santa Monica's population increase (2000-2010), which we can see everyday in our traffic overload, was over twice that of Los Angeles County (6.7% vs 3.1%).

While housing is very expensive in Santa Monica, as it is in all beach communities, our median incomes are 20-25% higher than LA County's. Because of that, our city is actually more affordable to its residents than to the average citizen in LA County. For example, 56% of our property owners (1/4 of our population) pay more than 30% of their income for their housing, while 67% of the average Angelo homeowners pay that burden. Likewise 67% of our renters (3/4 of our population) pay that unreasonable burden, while 85% of Los Angeles County renters are similarly encumbered. Even though rent control is slowly being weakened, thanks primarily to our robust affordable housing program, which maintains 10-20% of the new units as deed restricted affordable units, affordability is still substantially protected in the future.

In a relatively wealthy city, we have made Santa Monica comparatively more affordable than Los Angeles County. And remember, this was done in the depths of a recession on some of the most expensive land on the Westside. The ability to maintain affordability of our housing stock through the combined efforts of the City Council and staff, of the Rent Control Board and of affordable housing providers like Community Corp and of affordability advocates like SMRR to name just a few, is an incredible achievement. We can all be proud of this achievement.

In short we can stop beating ourselves up about needing more and more housing and focus instead on the consequences of this abundant housing production, particularly as its burden escalates in the future. It is already colliding with our sustainability goals. We simply do not have the water for the 8,000 new residents who are to join us in the next 20 years. In fact we do not have enough water for our current homes and businesses since we import about a third of our water from collapsing sources such as the Sierra snow pack (the expected El Nino this year will not undo four years of drought). Most of the new housing is headed toward Downtown, which does not even have an elementary school, so those students will need to go across half the town to possibly McKinley. Only one in nine of our workers live and work in the City so we cannot substantially reduce our job/housing imbalance by building more housing, since 9 of the 10 new workers will still work outside of the City adding to our peak hour traffic crushes. And there is no certainty this ratio will likely improve with the advent of the light rail next year. It may actually get worse.

This housing production is not free. New residents require more schools, water, power, traffic upgrades, fire and police services. In countless ways this growth burdens our infrastructure which is already compromised and has limited expansion capability in a built out city. For example, where would you amass enough land for the next elementary school? Where would you build the desalinization plant when desalinization becomes a cost competitive (and ecologically sound) water source? Where would you move the City yards to when Memorial Park is expanded? These are not trivial problems when you consider, for example, that we have the least amount of open park space and are the second densest city in California for coastal cities of our comparable size. The limitations of space in our impacted City means that infrastructure upgrades become much more expensive and increase faster than the tax base to support them. Whenever our growth expands beyond our infrastructure's capacity, in all senses of the word, all the residents end up paying a horrible civic price in cost (have you looked at your water bill lately), in time and in quality of life.

Unfortunately the trumped-up housing supply crisis in our City has become a Trojan horse to try to drive more unsustainable development into our City. The poster boy for this is the recently approved Santa Monica Plaza project which the City Council green lighted to the next approval level with an astonishing 12 stories and a pitiful fig leaf of only 48 affordable units. The evolving Downtown Specific Plan is also freighted with an unsustainable amount of development.

Cities cannot and should not expand infinitely. Only so much land, sunlight and water is available to our City. For example cities actually do run out of water: even big ones like Sao Paolo, Brazil. So in our built-out beachside City we cannot sustainably produce all the housing there is demand for in our region, nor should we try, since we are already providing more than our fair share of housing AND other vital regional services: recreation (beaches), job creation (silicone beach), transportation (airport and light rail), entertainment (3rd Street Promenade, the pier), health (two regional hospitals), education (Santa Monica College) and tourism (hotel industry). Those other regional services are as equally regionally important as the housing we provide. However our most significant regional contribution is to be a low rise city where residents, visitors and tourists can relax and get relief from the urban pandemonium all around us. Relaxed living that's our real mission statement in this region and this aligns with the interests of our residents.

When we compare ourselves to other beachside Cities we do more than our share in many categories. How many regional hospitals does does Malibu have? Does Redondo Beach have a 30,000 student junior college? Does Manhattan Beach have an airport? We do housing very well, but it is just a small part of our metropolitan role. Sustainability of all our regional contributions without burdening our residents should be our major focus, not any one at the expense of the others.

Educator Spotlight

BY BARBARA RANSOM

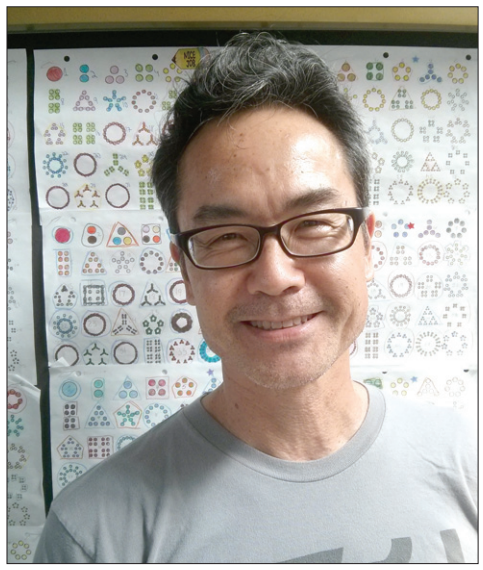

The Educator Spotlight is a new feature in the Daily Press recognizing those who contribute to the education of local students. Educators were chosen by consulting with site PTSA (Parent Teacher and Student Association) and ASB (Associated Student Body) as well as staff recommendations. They were chosen for their reputations with students, staff, parents and the community.

Glenn Sato, teacher, John Adams Middle School

With Santa Monica Malibu Unified School District's STEM focus (Science Technology Engineering and Math), Santa Monica native, Glenn Sato is a key player. The Will Rogers, John Adams (JAMS) and Santa Monica High School (SAMOHI) alum has been teaching at JAMS since 2002. After high school, Sato attended Santa Monica College and then transferred to Loyola Marymount University, where he earned a B.S. in Electrical Engineering. At JAMS he's taught 6th and 7th grade math, as well as Introduction to Engineering courses, using Project Lead the Way curriculum (PLTW). "PLTW is all about teaching students the process of Design and Engineering: problem solving, brainstorming, analysis, construction," says Sato. "I've always loved brainstorming ideas, making and creating things, troubleshooting and fixing things."

Sato became a teacher for many reasons. Primarily, it was his passion for helping students believe that they can succeed when they are self-motivated, persistent, and have set goals for themselves.

Sato is an asset outside of the classroom as well. After Assistant Coaching for University of Southern California's Men's volleyball team (1990 N.C.A.A. Final Four Champions), he's been an Assistant coach at SAMOHI for the Girls' and Boys' Volleyball teams since 2006.

First and foremost, my parents and family inspire me… My parents are my first role models and I am still learning from both of them.

Throughout my life, I've been able to surround myself with positive people… and organizations. John Adams is a great school full of inspirational staff members that motivate and inspire each other on a daily basis, and I get to be a part of it. I get to come to work each day knowing that every staff member supports me. Being a JAMS teacher is a great challenge, and it is a lot of fun being a JAMS teacher.

FILM REVIEW

JEM AND THE HOLOGRAMS

Rated PG
118 Minutes
Released October 23rd

Even if you are not familiar with the 1980's cartoon of the same name created by Christy Marx, Jem and the Holograms is a fun, creative, upbeat teen musical with a message. It's genuine, the characters are believable and relatable and it's uplifting. Jem is a teen trying to find herself in the jungle of social media. She and her sister lost their Mom and Dad at an early age and moved from Los Angeles to a small Northern California town to live with their Aunt Bailey, played by Molly Ringwald (Sixteen Candles, The Breakfast Club, Pretty in Pink). There is some cute irony, as Molly Ringwald was the "Jem" of her day. Aunt Bailey happens to have two foster daughters who provide the edgy balance to the two almost too adorable sisters. Strangely enough, all four of them are super talented musicians. They are "discovered" by sleazy, superficial music producer played to the hilt by another '80's star, Juliette Lewis. Aubrey Peeples (Nashville) is well cast as the innocent, reluctant star Jem. It's a great story with a big range of emotions, fun to watch, with life lessons. Jem and the Holograms shows us once again that different generations aren't polarized - we just speak different languages.

FILM REVIEW

SUFFRAGETTE

Released October 23rd

Witness women succeeding in the entertainment business! See Suffragette - it was written by Abi Morgan, directed by Sarah Gavron and produced by Alison Owen and Faye Ward. This is only Gavron's third full-length feature. Morgan, who wrote Steve McQueen's Shame and The Iron Lady, and had worked with Gavron on her first feature, rejoins her for Suffragette. Although the budget is that of an independent film at $14 million, this project is rich in texture and story, with extraordinary performances from Cary Mulligan, Brendan Gleeson, and Ben Whishaw. It is based on the chronicles of the suffragette movement in England in 1912-13, a time when women were considered by law as inferior to men.

Mulligan's character is a composite of the histories of several of the real participants in the movement. Mulligan's art is such that she creates a very real persona. Writer Morgan did not set out to write a feminist film. She simply wanted to tell a story that needed to be told. In fact, the most of the men in the film are not villains. They are in touch with their consciences and genuinely troubled about the cultural/sociological clash that has arisen between men and women.

The film is set in working class London. Its heroine is a laundress. The environment is "Dickensian" bleak, yet Gavron and production designer Alice Normington have managed to endow it with a human warmth. Mulligan as the laundress, Maud, begins as a downtrodden and obedient product of the patriarchal society of the time, and transforms a step at a time into a passionate fighter. Her first encounter with the suffragettes is an accident. The memory of the incident begins to eat away at her concept of right and wrong. At a Q&A after the screening, Mulligan explained that she prepares for a role with extensive research, and then before she goes on set, she clears her mind by listening to music so that she does not overthink. She appears to simply become the character, an amazingly intuitive actress.

Whishaw creates an incredibly layered character as Maud's long-suffering young husband, innately kind, caught up in social laws he feels he must uphold yet doesn't entirely understand. Gleeson, as Inspector Steed, who is charged with finding and arresting the most incendiary of the suffragettes, builds a character who develops emotional conflict as he witnesses the heroic stoicism of his prisoners. Gleeson plays Steed with great nuance and magnetism as the battleground of social change intensifies. Director Gavron shrewdly hid information from the actors portraying a crowd of suffragettes about who would be playing the role of Emmeline Pankhurst, the charismatic leader of their group. When Meryl Streep stepped onto the balcony in her cameo role as Pankhurst to give a rousing rallying speech, there was an authentic gasp from the throng waiting below.

Suffragette is definitely not a "women's film". It is a movie with a gripping story that brings to life a piece of history that is unfamiliar to many in our country.

KATHRYN WHITNEY BOOLE was drawn into the entertainment industry as a kid and never left. It has been the backdrop for many awesome adventures with crazy creative people. She now works as a Talent Manager with Studio Talent Group in Santa Monica. kwboole@gmail.com. For previously published reviews see https://kwboole.wordpress.com/screen-printing activations.

During the 2014-2014 season ICE brought over 58,000 skaters to the rink and held 150 birthday celebrations in its cabanas that line the perimeter of the rink. Skating lessons are also offered at the rink by Randy Gardner's School of Skating and this year will be the first time you can select which coach you'd like to have a session with.

All of the water that is used to create the rink is reclaimed.

"All activities and programs in Downtown Santa Monica are created for the good of the entire community, and we are committed to insuring that all of our events have low environmental impact," Carter said.

"Recognizing we are in the midst of a drought, we have worked with our vendor to confirm that the ice-rink will have as minimal an impact on water consumption as possible, that includes using urban runoff that is captured before reaching our local beaches

Carter said that ICE is one of Downtown Santa Monica's most popular programs and a tradition for many residents and visitors alike.

"We are looking forward to once again welcoming locals and tourists to our winter oasis."

Those on their way to ICE are encouraged to bring a new, unwrapped gift, gift card or make a cash donation to support the Police Activities League's Annual Best Gift Ever Drive! The gifts will be collected all throughout the month of November.

The rink will be open from Nov. 1, 2015 to Jan. 18, 2016 operating Monday - Thursday 2 - 10 p.m., Friday 2:00 p.m. - 12 a.m., Saturday 10 a.m. - 12 a.m. and Sunday 10 .m. - 10 p.m. Admission costs $15 which includes skate rental and unlimited skating for the day of purchase.

it's worth the hassle.

"If you're having chest pains you're going to go to the doctor," Behnam said. "But if you have acne or a cold sore, although people might comment about your skin, you're not gonna die the next day. So instead of driving to the doctor's office, filling out paperwork, going into the patient room, waiting for the doctor, only for them to see you for three minutes, you don't make an appointment. And your condition goes untreated."

Behnam said getting in to see a dermatologist could also take between 15 and 25 days and the appointments are expensive.

Enter DermCheck, Behnam's app created to help patients save time and money while still getting the skin care they need.

Through the app users can upload photographs of problem areas; photos that are then evaluated by one of DermCheck's board-certified dermatologists.

Within 24 hours the patient is counseled, a treatment plan is formulated and prescriptions are written and sent to their local pharmacy. The app is free and the cost for each evaluation and one month of follow-up and doctor consultation is $39.95, a price tag Behnam said is comparable to a dermatologist's co-pay.

The app was launched on July 14 and has since received over 10,000 downloads, with the main user demographic being those between the ages of 18 and 35. Behnam said the number one diagnosis that people receive on the app is acne.

Behnam thinks DermCheck also allows for him and his team to serve small pockets in the community that are underserved by dermatologists.

"There are 38 million people in California. And there are not enough dermatologists to take care of the needs of that many people. There just aren't. This app basically makes it very accessible to people who have never been to a dermatologist or may only go to their regular physician for their dermatology needs."

In light of November being National Healthy Skin Month, Behnam is offering a free first time evaluation to every California resident who downloads DermCheck this month. But the board-certified dermatologist wants people to keep in mind what they can do to keep their skin healthy year round.

"You should use a gentle cleanser on your skin on a daily basis. People think harsher cleansers are better, but you need to use something very gentle and use it regularly. You need to make sure to wash your face twice a day, and women get all your makeup off. You've got to let the skin breathe over night."

Behnam also said that since he began practicing in Santa Monica in 2009 he's seen a significant increase in the number of skin cancer diagnoses, so sunscreen is a must.

"We're in Santa Monica, practically everybody lives at the beach and we do not necessarily take the time to put on sunscreen during the day. This has a detrimental effect because constant sun exposure can lead to skin cancer. Most of the damage and brown spots I see are happening because people don't put on sunscreen every day."

Behnam also recommends moisturizing your face as often as possible.

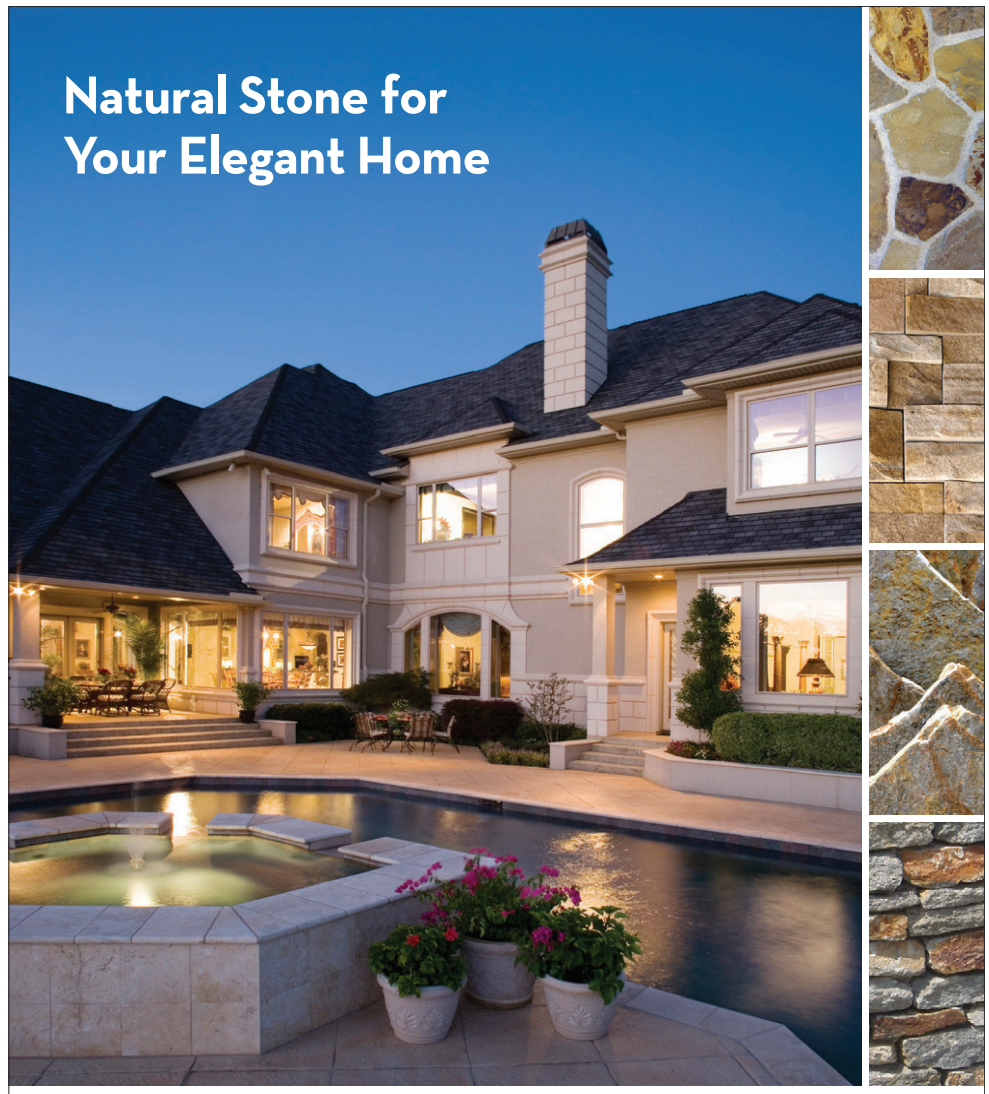

"Let's say you take two grapes and put one in water and you let one sit out in the sun. Well after a couple days the one in the sun is gonna become all wrinkly, while the one in the water is going to be plump and juicy. That's how your skin works too. So the more you moisturize the less wrinkly your skin will be. You will replenish the moisture you lose."

Among the dermatological conditions that may be treated with the app are acne, cold sores, rosacea, moles, male hair loss, dandruff, dry skin, eczema and psoriasis. Behnam hopes to take the app live in other states in the near future.

"We're trying to do something good for people and I think a lot of people recognize that," Behnam said.

LOS ANGELES

Gusty Santa Ana winds blow in Southern California

The first Santa Ana winds of the season are blowing across much of Southern California.

The National Weather Service reports winds have ranged as high as 63 mph in the mountains of Los Angeles County early Friday.

Red flag warnings for fire danger are in effect for the mountains and adjacent foothills of Los Angeles and Ventura counties because of the gusts and very low humidity levels.

A wind advisory also covers a wider area, including the passes and canyons of Riverside and San Bernardino counties as well as Orange County.

The Santa Ana is expected to slowly weaken in the afternoon and into Saturday, but conditions will remain warm and dry.

Driver thrown from car lands on freeway sign 20 feet up

A driver whose car rolled over several times on a Los Angeles freeway was thrown so far that his body landed on a road sign at least 20 feet above the ground.

California Highway Patrol Officer Chad Guin says the crash occurred on Interstate 5 north of downtown at about 7 a.m.

CHP officers got a ladder and climbed to the body, covered it and waited for a coroner's representative. The victim was described as a 20-year-old male.

The wreckage of the car came to rest under the sign. No one else was in the car and no other cars were involved in the crash.

LEGEND

DRY -- each location is graded on an A – F scale based on bacterial pollution levels present in the surf zone
WET -- grades for days of recorded rainfall and the following 3 days
ns -- no sample taken

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card℠ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A–F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON OCTOBER 23 AT APPROXIMATELY 11 P.M.

An officer was dispatched to the 2300 block of 2nd Street for a suspicious person call. Upon arriving on the scene the victims told the officer that they were sitting in their living room when they heard their home alarm system go off. The motion sensor in the garage set off the alarm and when the victim went out to investigate, he found that the garage window screen was hanging off the window seal.

While the victim was assessing the damage, he heard his son yell out that he saw a subject, later identified as Darrin Baxter, 47 of Venice, climbing over a fence. When the victim confronted Baxter, he denied that it was he whom had tried entering the garage. Baxter then proceeded to ride away on a bike that was leaning up against a fence on the property. Responding officers stopped Baxter down the street and he was positively identified. Baxter was arrested for burglary. Bail was set at $50,000.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★★★★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

TODAY IN HISTORY

1926 - Magician Harry Houdini dies of gangrene and peritonitis that develops after his appendix ruptures.

1938 - Great Depression: In an effort to restore investor confidence, the New York Stock Exchange unveils a fifteen-point program aimed to upgrade protection for the investing public.

1940 - World War II: The Battle of Britain ends: The United Kingdom prevents a possible German invasion.

1941 - After 14 years of work, Mount Rushmore is completed.

1941 - World War II: The destroyer USS Reuben James is torpedoed by a German U-boat near Iceland, killing more than 100 U.S. Navy sailors. It is the first U.S. Navy vessel sunk by enemy action in WWII.

1943 - World War II: An F4U Corsair accomplishes the first successful radar-guided interception by a USN or USMC aircraft.

1944 - Erich Göstl, a member of the Waffen-SS, is awarded the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross, to recognise extreme battlefield bravery, after losing his face and eyes during the Battle of Normandy.

1956 - Suez Crisis: The United Kingdom and France begin bombing Egypt to force the reopening of the Suez Canal.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Not Ready for Prime Time: It was at 7:30 a.m. on Oct. 8 that, according to Dallas police, Kristopher Jones, 18, and a buddy decided it would be Joy's Donut shop they should rob. As they exited the store (one carrying the shop's cash register), a uniformed, off-duty officer (who apparently had pulled up to the store -- for doughnuts) saw the whole thing and arrested Jones (though his partner was able to flee).

■ The Power of Love: Before Arthur Horn met his future bride Lynette (a "metaphysical healer") in 1988, he was a tenured professor at Colorado State, with a Ph.D. in anthropology from Yale, teaching a mainstream course in human evolution. With Lynette's "guidance" (after a revelatory week with her in California, searching for Bigfoot), Horn resigned from Colorado State and began seeking to remedy his inadequate Ivy League education. Lecturing at a conference in Denver in September (2009), Horn said he now realizes that humans evolved from an alien race of shape-shifting reptilians that continue to control civilization through secretive leaders.

That celebrity crush is good for you

By Colin Newton

A little celebrity worship is OK, it's even good for you! People scored higher on a self-esteem questionnaire after writing a five-minute essay on their celebrity crush. But be careful where you cast your pop star gaze; too much crushing and you might just crush your self-esteem instead.

Some people get so wrapped up in vicarious relationships that their self image suffers as they spend more time wanting what famous people have and less time working on themselves.

When you consider how much social media has evolved, how much "closer" we are to Taylor Swift and Jennifer Lawrence than we would have been a decade ago, that slippery slope is more easily accessible than ever before.

Think of it like your diet: crush on celebs in moderation and watch what you eat. Along with connectivity, we now have so many celebs in front of us to crush. But that also means we've got a lot of good choices.

Emulate positive actions. It doesn't have to be as globe-trotting as Angelina Jolie sojourning to Africa or Matt Damon bringing clean water to India's poor; it could be as simple as Lady Gaga standing up for people and speaking her mind — and steering clear of the latest Justin Beiber or Shia LaBeouf' rants.

Honor your favorite celebrities by getting involved in your community. Search the Causes directory at giive.org to find local nonprofits that champion your favorite causes.

Be with a favorite person tonight, Aries

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Stay centered and remain confident. Don't play into someone else's control games. Respond without getting involved in a power play. Your intuition will guide you with others. You might be happiest staying close to home. Tonight: Be with a favorite person.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ You have a lot to share, so touch base with loved ones. Communicate what is on your mind, but know that others might be opinionated. Friends are likely to send you invitations to parties. You'll get into the holiday spirit when you get dressed. Tonight: Catch up on news.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ A change of plans could be costly. You might feel more in tune with an authority figure and his or her priorities. However, you also get where a friend is coming from. You'll feel the need to touch base with different people in your life and please them. Tonight: All smiles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Your versatility comes across right now, as you have the ability to change moods quickly. You might decide to change costumes or help a child handle a last-minute Halloween problem. Use your imagination with a loved one. Tonight: Tricking or treating?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You might decide to retreat into your cave. It's a good idea, but today is the wrong day! A loved one is likely to knock on your door with an idea that energizes you. The phone will ring, and a dear friend will invite you over! Tonight: Keep the choices you make close to home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You could be in the center of all the holiday commotion. You'll barely have a moment to yourself. Maintain a sense of humor with a partner who seems passionate about Halloween plans. Communication intensifies as the day goes on. Tonight: Wherever you are, you are smiling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Your intentions reveal caring, but demands from a commitment could cause you to head in a different direction. Communication scores as high as actions do right now. Respond to a boss's or other authority figure's request, even if you feel it is out of place. Tonight: Out and about.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Look beyond the obvious when dealing with a loved one at a distance. What this person shares might be a ploy to hide what is really bothering him or her. Tonight: Put yourself 100 percent into your Halloween persona.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ A loved one delights you with his or her ideas. You'll have little to say or do but nod. Whether you are the host of a party or off crashing Halloween parties, fun will be had by all. A family member could get confused with all the goings-on. Tonight: Go for matching costumes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ You might think you know what your plans are until a key person enters the mix and announces a whole new agenda. Be willing to break new ground. Catch up on news with a pal, whether by phone or in person. Tonight: Get into the festive nature of the night.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Perhaps you did all your haunting prior to today, so you might feel like staying close to home and making it an early night. Be ready for events to contradict this plan. Do what you want, but you still might have to jump through some hoops. Tonight: Get into the moment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Your sense of humor kicks in and adds to the fun nature of the moment. Listen to a child's request, and if possible, follow through. A last-minute Halloween shindig could be perfect, and you won't need to stress out. Tonight: Let everyone reveal his or her true self!

Weekend Edition, Oct. 31 - Nov. 1, 2015

This year you open up to many new adventures. You'll have to keep a close eye on your finances, as you might feel as if you don't have the stability you desire. Your imagination easily fires up when meeting interesting people. If you are single, this is particularly true. You could meet someone who knocks your socks off -- just don't jump into the arms of the first person you meet. If you are attached, it appears as though there is magic between you and your sweetie. If you're at the right place and time in life, you could add to your family, though it might be just a pet! CANCER is drawn to you like a bear to honey.

COLDWELL BANKER PREVIEWS INTERNATIONAL

Remember to set your clocks BACK one hour when you go to bed Saturday night, October 31st!

Now that Daylight Savings Time is ending
Sunday Open House
times are changed to:
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm

As promised, I will remind you, twice a year, to take care of these important safety issues:

Interior:

- Change the batteries in all of your smoke detectors & carbon monoxide detectors.
- Clean and/or change the filters in your furnace.
- Clean out any lint and/or fabric from the vents of your clothes dryer.
- Check electrical outlets for potential fire hazards such as frayed wires or loose fitting plugs.
- Check for overloading of electrical outlets, fuse boxes, extension cords etc.
- Keep a filled and ready-to-use, multi-purpose fire extinguisher accessible.
- Check water heater for leaks and corrosion.
- Sump system should be checked several times during the rainy season (if applicable).
- Vacuum refrigerator condensing coils.
- Inspect shower, tub & sink caulking for deterioration.
- Inspect all plumbing fixtures and supply lines for leaks.
- Pour bleach down every drain in your home.
- Upgrade washing machine hoses to stainless steel jacketed hoses to help prevent failure.
- Lubricate and service the garage door hardware and openers.
- The fire sprinkler system needs to be inspected periodically (if applicable).
- Termite inspections should be performed every 3 years.

Exterior:

- Survey all vent openings for compromised screening or other deterioration.
- Remove all dead trees & keep healthy trees & shrubs trimmed & away from utility wires.
- Remove dead leaves and all debris from your gutters and downspouts.
- Repair driveway & walkways that are cracked, broken or uneven to provide a level surface.
