Rewards available for doing your civic duty

MADELEINE PAUKER
Daily Press Staff Writer

Voters can celebrate the democratic process after casting their ballots by taking advantage of specials Santa Monica businesses are offering to customers wearing an "I Voted" sticker on Election Day.

Restaurants, bars, and shops are looking to honor voters with everything from a free shot to a free yoga class, and many want to make it a tradition in elections to come. Cabeza de Vaca Cultural Dance School is giving voters free admission to its 4:30 p.m. yoga class and its 5:30 p.m. Beginning Folklorico class, said owner Gina DeBaca.

"Who you elect and what laws you vote on impact me personally and our business, which serves the community," DeBaca said. "Voters deserve a treat!"

Bars are providing voters weary from waiting in line at the polls with a way to relax, serving $6 cocktails all day long at The Independence, $9 house wine, $10 snacks, and $12 cheese boards after 3 p.m. at Esters Wine Shop & Bar, 10 percent off bar and lounge bills at Michael's, a free shot at The Craftsman Bar & Kitchen, and happy hour specials throughout the day in the bar and lounge at Red O.

Holly O'Leary of The Craftsman said the bar is rewarding people who exercise their civic duty and trying to incentivize those who wouldn't normally vote.

"Bars and taverns have historically always been the epicenter of news, revolution, social change, and fellowship," O'Leary said. "Why not offer something that really allows voters

ARB to review Mid-City apartments

MADELEINE PAUKER

More than 50 apartment units in two new buildings could be coming to Mid-City Santa Monica.

The Architectural Review Board will review plans for a two-story, four-unit multi-family building and a three-story building containing 50 apartments and retail and restaurant space. The proposed developments would be located just a few blocks from each other, at 3004 Broadway and 2822 Santa Monica Boulevard, respectively.

The board is also considering a major renovation to a vacant commercial building further west. Developers plan to add a story to the one-story building at 1501 Broadway and split it into a 6,029 square foot creative office and a 651 square foot retail and restaurant space.

The upper levels of the 2822 Santa Monica Boulevard building would sit on columns that would surround the structure's ground

TOUR: A pair of local agencies provided tours of their facilities last week and discussed services for homeless residents.

ANGEL CARRERAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

While all Santa Monicans may not agree on how to solve the city's ongoing homeless crisis, a handful of residents — agreeable and not — went to see some of the current programs designed to tackle the problem.

The Santa Monica Homelessness Steering Committee held its first "Coffee, Conversation and Change" event Nov. 2, an initiative meant to spark an open conversation amongst residents and attempt to demystify homelessness and its accompanying challenges and stereotypes.

Upwards of two dozen residents attended the event to learn more about efforts at Community Corporation of Santa Monica and Step Up in increasing affordable housing and assisting the homeless.

Tara Barauskas, Executive Director of CCSM, led the meeting by briefly explaining CCSM's mission and how they work in conjunction with Step Up to help combat homelessness; CCSM provides affordable

Be a Part of National Adoption Month
November is National Adoption Month, a celebration to bring awareness and attention to the need for permanent families for children and youth in the U.S. foster care system. Since 2000, Children's Bureau has finalized more than 2,116 adoptions of vulnerable children in Southern California and continues to promote the need for resource parents through its "Be the Reason" recruitment campaign seen on outdoor ad space and online.

In Los Angeles County, the foster care population exceeds 21,000 children with 500 of those foster children, mainly siblings and older children, waiting for an adoptive family. While Children's Bureau places more than 300 at-risk children in loving foster homes and finalizes 100 adoptions annually, the need continues for more individuals and families to become resource parents. Resource parents (foster and adoptive) are people who are concerned about the well-being of children and their families. Resource parents protect and nurture children, meet children's developmental needs, support children's relationships with their birth families and do all of this as a member of a professional team.

"Children's Bureau turns away at least 50 calls a day because we don't have enough resource families to meet the demanding need," said Amy Heilman, Children's Bureau's Director of Foster Care and Adoption.

Children's Bureau now also offers a fee-for-service Domestic /Independent Adoption Home Study Program for families seeking the adoption of an infant whose birth mother is making an adoption plan for her newborn child. In addition to adoption home studies, Children's Bureau provides approval of Interstate Compact packets, post placement supervision visits and reports, and finalization services when the birth mother delivers her baby in another state and the family / birth mother is working with an adoption agency.

Children's Bureau welcomes every individual regardless of race, age, religion, disability, marital status, ethnic background, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression to become a resource for children. Qualifying families receive training and support throughout their journey. For those interested, an information meeting is being held Saturday, November 17, 2018 from 10 a.m. to Noon at Children's Bureau's Magnolia Place, 1910 Magnolia Avenue, Los Angeles, 90007. St. Matthew's music performance

St. Matthew's Music Guild presents Annelle Kazumi Gregory, First Prize and Audience Choice Award winner of the prestigious National Sphinx Competition, in Erich Wolfgang Korngold's most popular concert work, the Violin Concerto in D major, composed in 1945. Gregory will join The Chamber Orchestra at St. Matthew's under its new Music Director and Conductor, Dwayne S. Milburn, in a commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the end of World War I. The concert, which also features music of Aaron Copland and Maurice Ravel takes place Friday, November 9, at 8pm at St. Matthew's Church in Pacific Palisades.

Korngold was born in Austria but came to Hollywood in the 1930s where he wrote 16 Hollywood film scores, capturing two Oscars. His scores for "Captain Blood," "The Sea Hawk," "The Adventures of Robin Hood," and "The Sea Wolf" established the language of the classic Hollywood film score and were highly influential on later composers including Alfred Newman and John Williams. The Violin Concerto marked Korngold's return to concert music following his long career in Hollywood. Composed for fellow émigré Bronislaw Huberman, it became a showpiece for Jasha Heifetz who premiered it in 1947. The concerto is dedicated to Alma Mahler, Gustav Mahler's widow, an occasional resident of Los Angeles. The concerto, with its lush, romantic style is reminiscent of "Old Vienna" but also of the numerous scores which Korngold wrote for some of Hollywood's finest swashbuckling films.

Maurice Ravel composed "Le tombeau de Couperin" in 1917 in memory of six friends, all of whom died during the Great War. The piece was originally composed for piano and uses the term "tombeau" which was assigned to music written as a memorial by French composers of the Baroque period. Ravel gave each piece the title of a Baroque form but the music is clearly of the early 20th century. Light-hearted and reflective rather than serious and somber, "Le tombeau" evokes the grace of French and Italian Baroque dance music, with charming melodic lines and piquant and quintessentially "Ravelian" harmonies.

"Letter from Home" was composed by Aaron Copland in 1944 on commission from Paul Whiteman, who also commissioned Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." It was conceived as a patriotic work that evokes the feelings of a soldier reading a letter from home. Written around the same time as Copland's most popular works such as "Appalachian Spring" and "Fanfare for the Common Man," it uses Copland's trademark "open" harmonies and American sounding melodies. The work will be heard in conjunction with the reading of several letters by soldiers writing from the front during World War I.

Dwayne S. Milburn is a graduate of UCLA and the Cleveland Institute of Music. During a twenty-year career in the U.S. Army, he was Director of Cadet Music and the Glee Club at West Point, Bandmaster of the Continental Army Band and U.S. Army Band "Pershing's Own, and most recently Commander and Conductor of the U.S. Army Band and Chorus in Europe. He became conductor of The Chamber Orchestra at St. Matthew's following his retirement from the Army in September.

All concerts are on Fridays at 8 p.m. at the architecturally stunning award-winning St. Matthew's Church, 1031 Bienveneda Avenue, Pacific Palisades. All concerts are preceded at 7:10 p.m. by "Liner Notes" - a preview and discussion of the evening's music featuring Music Guild President and former Music Director, Thomas Neenan.

Tickets for the concerts are $35 at the door. Advance tickets, discounted season passes for all concerts, and more information are available through the Music Guild's website, MusicGuildOnline.org or by calling the Music Guild office, (310) 573-7422.

CRIME WATCH

ON OCTOBER 24, AT ABOUT 11:39 P.M.

While patrolling the area of Lincoln Blvd and Navy Street officers saw a bicyclist riding with no lighting equipment at night. Officers conducted an enforcement stop in the 800 block of Ozone Avenue. As officers spoke with the subject, they learned the subject was on probation for grand theft auto. A search of the subject's backpack led to the recovery of a methamphetamine smoking pipe. The subject was taken into custody. Andrew Suglio Vito, 30, from Venice, was arrested for possession of narcotics paraphernalia and no lighting equipment. Bail was set at $250.

floor commercial space and outdoor seating areas. Mockups show the facade of the top two floors would alternate between gray, striated metal and orange and green recessed balconies with perforated fences.

"The project design expresses a clear concept with an innovative design and use of materials resulting in a strong contemporary mixed-use development," the ARB report said.

The apartment building will offer six studios, 24 one bedrooms, 12 two bedrooms, and eight three bedrooms at market rates, as well as two affordable one bedrooms and two affordable two bedrooms.

The exterior of smaller townhouse-style building at 3004 Broadway would alternate between light beige and gray, with plenty of tall windows and metal balconies. Three of its apartments would be two-bedroom units, with the last being four-bedroom, and all would be two stories.

Another proposal up for consideration at the meeting would transform a one-story building at 1501 Broadway with a facade of concrete blocks into a two-story, heavily windowed building with second-floor balconies and ground-level restaurant space. It would increase the building's size by more than 1,000 square feet.

Finally, the ARB will consider an application to update two adjoining apartments at 1433-37 Euclid Street. The buildings contain a total of 11 units and have not been renovated since they were built in 1962.

"Both buildings will be remodeled to achieve an updated appearance, a friendlier street presence and more usable space between the two buildings," the ARB report said. "The site will be enhanced by a new material and color palette, new openings on the street-facing facades, relocation of existing windows (and) doors, incidental site improvements and new landscaping."

The Architectural Review Board will meet Monday, Nov. 5 at Santa Monica City Hall in the City Council Chambers.

to take a load off ... a shot always helps!"

Bars aren't the only option to recover from the strain of filling in ballot bubbles: Organic to Green is giving customers 20 percent off their spa products and services.

If voters prefer something sweet, they can pick up a free churro at Azulé Taqueria or a lemonade at Lemonade. It's also a good time to purchase clothing or pet supplies: Christopher Schafer Clothier is offering 20 percent off their custom suits, jackets, pants, tuxedos, and shirts, and Animal Kingdom of Santa Monica is giving voters 5 percent off non-food and service purchases over $25.

Vintage home furnishings and art store California Rediscovered is offering a 10 percent discount to give back to customers who take time out of their day to vote, said co-owner Allison Whitney. Other artistically-minded voters can paint on a free canvas while taking a class at PAINT:LAB.

"Encouraging people to vote is important to us, period," Whitney said. "Any way we can offer an incentive for people to have their voices heard, to make democracy work, is something that matters to us."

housing in the city while Step Up provides a supportive housing component for clients, giving qualified renters access to case managers and social services.

Additionally, Barauskas attempted to demystify a belief she's seen spread around the community that all homeless or those that have transitioned into housing are criminals, noting that crime in the buildings is low.

She added that most homeless individuals that transition into CCSM units or at Step Up buildings work, some with as many as three jobs.

Aaron Criswell, Step Up's VP of Housing Services, added that stable housing and jobs have statistically kept homeless off the streets and away from bad habits.

For such a hot-button issue, the event remained relatively calm aside from a couple retorts sprinkled into the meeting.

One Santa Monica resident felt that CCSM encouraged transients from out of town to come to Santa Monica and taking advantage of affordable housing, taking precedent over Santa Monica residents that need it.

The same resident added that he felt the housing units built would add to Santa Monica's congestion, noting "everyone wants to live here by the beach."

Barauskas answered that Santa Monica residents are first in a very long line of applicants, noting that CCSM doesn't place priority on certain professions. CCSM and Step Up said they will continue to find areas to provide affordable housing.

Many attendees left the event with no change in their thoughts and perspective on homeless efforts by the City.

"I feel the same," Santa Monica resident Olga Zurawska said. "I'm familiar with how this works from the inside. I've been through the system and have a lot of friends I'm trying to help get housed or stay housed and a lot of what's being said here is just PR effort on the part of the City. It's a lot of fluff with no action."

Jennifer Kaplan, a CCSM resident, said the organization changed her life.

Kaplan said she has a degenerative disease that's "slowly turning me into a vegetable". She said a cushy job in Silver Lake was lost due to her sickness and she was less than a month away from homelessness, what she says would've been a death sentence.

A friend tipped her off to CCSM, whose housing Kaplan says has bought her more time in this life.

"At least if I die, it'll be on my own watch and not because I was homeless," Kaplan said with a smile.

While Barauskas acknowledged she wasn't going to be able to change anyone's perceptions, she said people should get involved in various ways such as volunteering to at least get a ground-level view of the problem at hand.

"I don't know if we'll ever solve homelessness, but we're going to try."

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (NOV. 5)

You'll get caught up in magic circles of reciprocal love expressed through family connections, friendships and romance. Because giving love is such a high energy vibration, running it through you has a way of healing pain and mending sorrow. Also of note are an increase in resources and a more liquid financial status. Cancer and Leo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 3, 6, 20, 18 and 45.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Inner peace will be a matter of putting things into two categories, "mine to solve" and "not mine to solve." Of course, anything you don't have control over goes into the second category.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Witnessing a masterful piece of work will inspire you to create something of your own. Keep your expectations reasonable and your heart light. Then congratulate yourself for putting something in the world that wasn't there before.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
People sometimes say "be honest" when they really mean "validate me." Consider the source and how personally the individual is likely to take your answer. Give a softer, warmer, gentler version of the truth.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
There really is such a thing as being overprepared. It's a point at which you're past being ready and you're cutting into the energy that could be used doing the real thing. Sense when you've come to that point, and stop.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Don't be shy. When you include others in your work and fun, you'll be doing both of you a favor. You can make someone's life more interesting. Believe it!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
It happens. People who are supposed to be supporting you may be the very ones bringing you down. Overfamiliarity can create such dynamics. It's worth a little scrutiny. Your best supporters today may be strangers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Oddly, you will attract more of the good stuff just when you decide to stop striving. The best moment is when you realize that you don't want or need anything more than you already have.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)
Autonomy is your best look, so don't be surprised at the attention you'll get today. People see you making money and/or having fun independently, and they want to get closer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
As a rule, arguments don't change minds. To lead someone to believe differently, it's persuasion you need, not a fight. Persuasion takes time and requires that you get greater insight into the belief you want to change.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Your ideas are mightier than you know, so be careful what you dwell on, as your thoughts have a way of becoming realities rather quickly these days. Fill your head with positive outcomes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
Someone you love is confused and in need of training to navigate a situation. You may not be the expert this person needs, but you can facilitate the help, which will make you feel just as good.

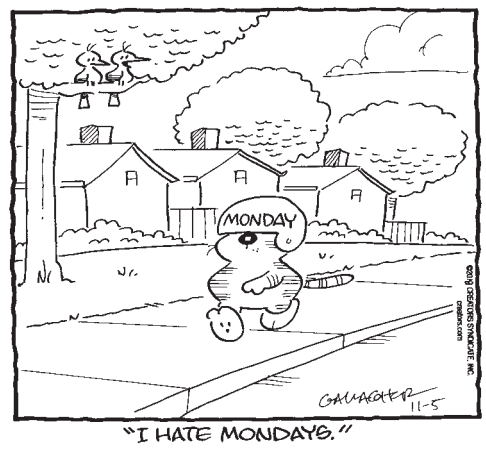

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Matters of scale will have a bearing on your outcome. Playing too small wouldn't net you the big prize, and playing too big might ruin your chance at enjoying the small prize. Match your game to the game you're playing.

MAGICAL SOLAR TRINE

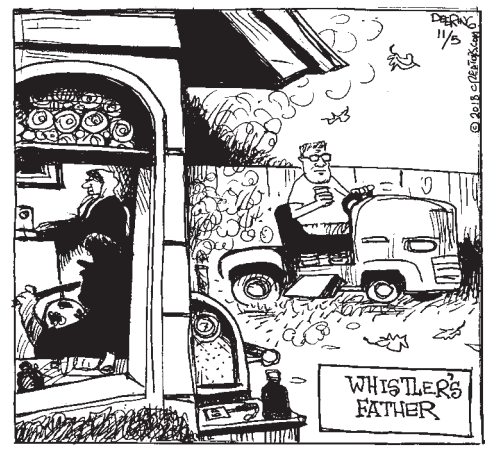

The word "miraculous" only applies when the impossible happens. But if we don't know what's possible, a miracle is indistinguishable from any other event of ordinary life. Maybe there's something you're thinking of as miraculous that is really well within the possibilities of this day. A trine of the sun and Neptune opens our minds to the magical.

WELL NEWS BY SCOTT LAFEE

Doc Talk

■ Obdormition: the numb feeling that you awake to when you've slept on your arm wrong, followed by paresthesia, the prickling, tingling (pins and needles) sensation. The former is caused by sustained pressure on a nerve, inhibiting function; the latter by the nerve's recovery when the pressure is gone.

Stories for the Waiting Room

■ New research suggests more people are going to urgent care centers for minor health problems, rather than heading to hospital emergency rooms. An analysis of people insured by Aetna between 2008 and 2015 indicated that ER visits dropped by 36 percent for less acute conditions like sore throats and cuts, but rose at other care centers by 140 percent.
