The next stage: Will anti-Trump marches become a movement?

BY JESSICA GRESKO
Associated Press

Demonstrators upset over the election of Donald Trump have marched in cities around the country over the past week, and some are making plans to be in Washington for his inauguration Jan. 20. But whether marches will become a movement is an open question.

At this early stage, the protesters who have taken to the streets to brand Trump a bigot and a sexist and chant "Not my president!" appear to be mostly venting their frustrations and do not seem to have coalesced behind overall leaders or a common set of demands.

Columbia University professor Todd Gitlin, who as an early leader of Students for a Democratic Society helped organize an anti-Vietnam War demonstration that brought thousands to Washington in 1965, said the anti-Trump protests by themselves "are not the makings of a movement."

"A movement requires that clusters of people take responsibility for creating vehicles that can carry through, focus energy, devel-

County report highlights easy access to alcohol

BY MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

Santa Monica has one of the highest concentrations of alcohol sale locations in the county according to a new report released by the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health.

According to the county's data, Santa Monica has 27.6 on-premises alcohol outlets (such as bars or restaurants) per 10,000 residents and 7.4 off-premises (retail stores) locations per 10,000 residents.

The City By The Sea ranks fifth in the county for density behind West Hollywood (51.1/10), El Segundo (39.7/10.7), Beverly Hills (38.1/7.5) and Hermosa Beach (36/11.7). The nearby communities of Malibu (27.3/11.7) and Culver City (26.6/11.7) are just behind Santa Monica.

Los Angeles Council Districts 11 and 5 cover the areas near Santa Monica, including Venice (11), Westwood (5) and UCLA (5). District 11 had densities of 16/5.7 while District 5 has 16.7/5.1.

The County looked at 88 cities and 59 unincorporated communities in Los Angeles County. Density figures were calculated using the most recently available information (2013) from the California Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control and the U.S. Census.

According to the report, there are 15,253 alcohol outlets county wide and study areas had an average of 8.9 on-premises outlets and 6.2 off-premises outlets per 10,000 population. The report said there was a correlation between richer areas and on-site consumption outlets and

Crossroads Girls Varsity Volleyball Team Wins Division 6 CIF

The Crossroads Roadrunners started their week off on the road with a CIF semi-final match against Santa Ynez. "The girls are doing a great job of staying focused on each point and playing hard," said Coach Aaron Wexler of his team's 3-0 win. Rosie Hudson sparked a fire for her teammates with intense hits and blocks. Crossroads' setter Grace Rose had another incredible match, distributing the ball well, serving tough and catching the opponent off-guard. Olympia Nagel-Caland, Harper Graves and Tyler Fields delivered ferocious, well-placed hits throughout the evening while libero, Kate Whitney-Schubb made huge plays on serve-receive and defense. Lena Tatum created great opportunities for her team with digs in the back row. The final score (25-9, 25-14, 25-17) propelled the team into CIF Finals.

The Roadrunner's shut-out against Santa Ynez maintained the team's perfect record since starting on their playoff journey November 1st where they have not given up a single set. Today, they faced Woodcrest Christian for the CIF Division 6 Championships at Cerritos College. Both teams were accompanied by large cheering sections and the Crossroads fans were given plenty of reasons to celebrate. In the first set, Crossroads led by no less than seven points and finished 25-15 to put themselves in the lead early. The second set was more of the same as the Roadrunners maintained momentum and rolled right in to the third up 2-0. The final set actually started with Woodcrest up by as many as four points; however, the Roadrunners quickly came back and with two final crushing serves from Madison Quan backed by the overpowering talents of her teammates, the Roadrunners earned the CIF Division 6 Championship Title.

Crossroads put up some impressive statistics throughout the afternoon. Sophomore Soah Franklin had eight kills and three blocks while seniors Olympia and Harper delivered twelve kills. Seniors Grace and Tyler contributed hugely with 34 assists and 20 digs respectively. Sophomore Lena Tatum had 11 digs and two aces while senior Kate had 12 digs and 5 assists and sophomore Lilet Brooks stepped in with a kill. It was truly a team win!

The Roadrunners will be taking part in the state competition next week with the location and opponent to be determined by Sunday afternoon.

History Has Its Eyes On Trump Now

IT HAS BEEN A WEEK SINCE DONALD TRUMP won the election to President of the United States which continues to send shock waves through the American republic. On Tuesday of last week I was driving around Florida listening to the soundtrack for Hamilton – it seemed fitting at the time, and even more so in retrospect. As a history lesson delivered by way of catchy tunes and rapid fire lyrics, it is a work of art.

Alexander Hamilton was a dynamo of a man. Author, patriot, and visionary, his tremendous contribution to the founding of the country and setting of the course we have been on, was little noticed until a Broadway stage play became the hottest ticket in town. Hamilton was quick with the wit, and a prodigious writer and reader. His devotion to the country he helped start was recorded in The Federalist Papers, a collection of 85 essays about the Constitution of which he wrote 51.

The play chronicles the crossing paths of Hamilton and Aaron Burr, the man who would kill Hamilton in a famous duel and thus tarnish his own name for all history. Burr and Hamilton were the best of frenemies – that weird cross breed of friend and enemy that lawyers are so adept at creating.

At first blush, when I was told that this is a rap based play, I was skeptical, but I put aside my preconceptions and began listening to the history of early America in a modern voice and found myself enthralled. My first thoughts and perceptions are so often wrong, as this election has so clearly proven to me.

I thought it inconceivable that a man who had held no political office or military experience would be elected by the American public – let alone as a Republican. Among the chattering classes at my gym, we had a young buck who was certain that Trump would win. As we would sit in the hot tub at the Loews and blithely indulge him feeling self assured that Secretary Clinton would win.

Again, my thoughts and perceptions were so very wrong. I was completely out of touch with a giant swath of the country. I recall the pain of the 2008 financial crisis, and have somewhat healed from it, but evidently many haven't, or they have but forgot just how bad it was.

It is easy to try and lay blame for what many consider a stunning defeat at the feet of the women who didn't vote for Hillary. I've been told that I'm wrong to think that women would vote for her just because she's a woman; women don't vote in blocks, just like blacks and latinos don't vote in blocks for "their" candidate. Maybe that's true. I could be mistaken in my thinking that since the majority in our country is female, they shouldn't complain about not having women in positions of power, if they don't vote for women when they have the opportunity.

Maybe it's my male privilege that drives me to believe that there are men who voted for Trump just because he was a man, against a woman, even though she was admittedly more qualified. I know many women who hate Hillary, but it seems like this was an opportunity to advance the cause for all women, even if you didn't like her.

All of which is irrelevant now, Donald J. Trump is our incoming President and for better or worse, I will respect the office. I am scared, I wanted a President who has experience on the global stage – I think it is crucial – I may be wrong. My thoughts and perceptions could be wrong again.

Mr. Trump now needs to step up and become the President, for no one enters that office ready, they just dive in and start swimming. I pray for his success as a leader with vision and compassion, with insight and the knowledge that the weight of the republic is on his shoulders now.

I pray that he has seen Hamilton, and realizes how important the job is that he has taken on. The republic will survive him, of that I am sure. The question is really how will he be remembered? Hamilton or Burr. The choice is his.

Social Services are part of planning

Editor's Note: This letter was sent to the City's Planning Department by the Social Services Commission.

DEAR CITY PLANNERS

The Social Services Commission thanks you for your presentation at our April 25, 2016, meeting and appreciates the opportunity to comment on the draft Downtown Community Plan (DCP). We are pleased to share with you the Commission's response to the February 29, 2016, draft of the DCP and hope that our responses below are reflected in future drafts of the plan.

First, we very much appreciate the use of Wellbeing Project data to guide the City's thinking about the DCP. We encourage the continued (and expanded) use of Wellbeing Project data (especially 90401-specific data), not only for neighborhood planning but also for evaluation of proposed projects on a case-by-case basis.

Second, we wish to ensure that the terminology used in the DCP refers to the social services that are and will continue to be provided in Downtown Santa Monica, as well as the full range of permanent, transitional housing, bridge housing, rapid rehousing, and other types of supportive and low-income housing, and is compliant with federal and state housing regulations and grant requirements. We appreciate your commitment to consult with the Human Services Division to ensure alignment in these areas.

Third, we are concerned that the DCP provide for low-income affordability for families, including but not limited to ensuring that the housing mix includes an adequate supply of 2- and 3-bedroom units accessible to and affordable for families earning at or below the average wage for Downtown workers (2015=$48,883 per full-time wage earner). Given the housing insecurity crisis, we believe that these should not only meet, but indeed exceed, citywide Measure R standards, and that planning for affordable units should maximize community connectedness and effective provision of wraparound social services that meet residents where they are.

Fourth, we remain concerned about the availability of parks and open space suitable for active living and wellbeing activities. Commissioners noted with concern that the DCP does not appear to identify any sites for the type of publicly owned ground-level parks or open space that might enable the diverse range of services and programming needed to support the growing diverse, multigenerational downtown population.

Fifth, the Commission notes the community benefits that are derived from Tier 2 and Tier 3 developments as provided for in the Land-Use and Circulation Element of the General Plan (LUCE). Assuming that a similar set of tiers appears in the final version of the DCP, and bearing in mind current statutory and/or regulatory constraints, we recommend that Policy LU3 specify that new Tier 2 and Tier 3 commercial developments should include set-asides for affordable/low-cost office space for community nonprofits, and social enterprises (in addition to set-asides for cultural and educational uses). We recommend that Policy LU7 specific that new Tier 2 and Tier 3 construction should include controlled-rate community rooms for public use (prioritizing Santa Monica residents and Santa Monica-based public benefit organizations).

Finally, the DCP implementation plan at Item AM6.2B calls for investments in water fountains and publicly accessible bathrooms. We hope that the DCP might reference Santa Monica's status as a community friendly to pets and support animals, including provisions for dog parks and pet watering stations.

The Social Services Commission hopes to continue to work productively with the City to see that the DCP is implemented with all residents in mind, across the broad and vibrant diversity of our community. If we can provide any additional information, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Shawn Landres. Chair, Social Services Commission

poorer areas with off-site outlets.

The report ranked cities into low, medium and high categories for a variety of factors.

Santa Monica's density of alcohol outlets and the quantity of alcohol related emergency visits/hospitalizations rank as high while it's violent crime rate, alcohol related deaths and alcohol related vehicle crashes were in the medium tier.

For alcohol related ER visits, Santa Monica has the third highest ranking with more than double the county average.

The report ranked possible consequences of alcohol consumption per 10,000 residents including violent crimes, vehicle accidents, ER visits, hospitalizations and deaths.

Per 10,000 residents, Santa Monica had 35.3 violent crimes, 6 vehicle crashes, 105.5 ER visits, 54.4 hospitalizations, and .07 deaths.

Beverly Hills had 22.2 violent crimes, 0.3 crashes, 60.4 ER visits, 32.6 hospitalizations and 0.6 deaths. Malibu had 21.8 violent crimes, 10.9 crashes, 74.6 ER visits, 44.1 hospitalizations and 1.7 deaths. Culver City had 40.9 violent crimes, 4.1 crashes, 72 ER visits, 53.7 hospitalizations and 0.3 deaths. Los Angeles Council District 11 had 25.1 violent crimes, 3.8 crashes, 32.5 ER visits, 45.8 hospitalizations and 0.8 deaths. Los Angeles Council District 5 had 16.5 violent crimes, 4.5 crashes, 33.5 ER visits, 66.4 hospitalizations and 1.4 deaths.

Of the five consequences related to alcohol outlet density in the report, Santa Monica ranks in the top third in three categories (vehicle crashes, ED visits, hospitalizations). Only nine of the 147 cities and communities in the county fall in the top third in the same three categories.

The report doesn't make city-specific conclusions but it does outline the broad impact of alcohol availability.

"Excessive alcohol consumption continues to be a serious public health concern with substantial implications for disease, violent crimes, traffic collisions, work loss, and social relationships. During 2013 in Los Angeles County, alcohol was involved in an estimated 4,420 motor vehicle crashes, 6,338 motor vehicle injuries, 246 motor vehicle fatalities, 63,424 ED visits, 56,191 hospitalizations, and more than 2,800 alcohol-attributable deaths," said the report.

The authors say alcohol consumption is a result of many factors but limiting outlet density is a viable strategy for reducing alcohol related problems.

The report recommends a list of administrative activities related to issuing alcohol license and Santa Monica does have some of those recommendations in place already.

Several strategies are also recommended to help communities reduce alcohol related problems such as enforcing restrictions on sale and marketing to minors, expanding support services, increase substance abuse treatment options and provide additional education to minors.

"In summary, alcohol outlet densities were significantly associated with a variety of alcohol-related consequences," said the report. "However, by working together, policymakers, health care providers, schools, and community stakeholders can reduce the burden of these human, economic, and societal repercussions by focusing on strategies to limit alcohol outlet densities, reducing access/availability/marketing to minors, ensuring access to educational services and community/social support programs, and increasing access to necessary substance abuse screening and treatment."

op priorities, strategize, recruit, figure out how to govern themselves," Gitlin said.

For that to happen, a critical mass of protesters has to "transform their mindset from protest into successful politics, which is much less exciting," he said. Gitlin said that means "dirtying our hands in winning local and state battles which are instrumental to changing the national balance."

On Monday, hundreds of students decrying Trump's election walked out of schools in Denver, Los Angeles and Silver Spring, Maryland, after a weekend in which thousands of people demonstrated around the country and scores were arrested. Protesters threw rocks at police in Indianapolis and hurled bottles and other objects in Portland, Oregon. Marchers have also converged on Trump Tower in New York, the president-elect's transition headquarters.

Among other things, the demonstrators have condemned Trump's behavior toward women and his stand on immigration and civil liberties.

Ralph Young, a history professor at Temple University in Philadelphia who teaches a course on dissent in America and has written two books on the topic, said it is too early to predict what the marches might become.

Once Trump becomes president and starts making policy decisions, that could crystallize opposition and focus people's attention on certain issues, he said. If the anti-Trump demonstrations are going to become a movement, they also need leaders who can articulate their grievances, he said.

Jamie Henn of the group 350, which organizes protests to fight climate change, said liberal activist groups are still scrambling to figure out how they will push back against a Trump presidency.

"There is definitely stuff coming together and being planned that looks like the messy process of everyone and their mother throwing up something on their Facebook page," Henn said.

Henn said liberals haven't seen the need for this level of mobilization since the run-up to the Iraq War. But activists remember glumly how little a dent their big marches against the invasion made then, and may use different tactics this time.

Some groups are already trying to come together, though there are differences of opinion, said Greg McKelvey, a protest organizer in Portland, Oregon. McKelvey said demonstrators are trying to organize with counterparts in New York; Washington; Austin, Texas; Oakland, California; Boston; and a few other cities.

Some activists want to prevent Trump somehow from becoming president, while others feel that's inevitable and instead want to insulate their communities from his policies, McKelvey said. He said his group, Portland's Resistance, aims to make sure city and state governments are working on issues such as limiting climate change, pushing for better health care and dealing with racial disparities in policing.

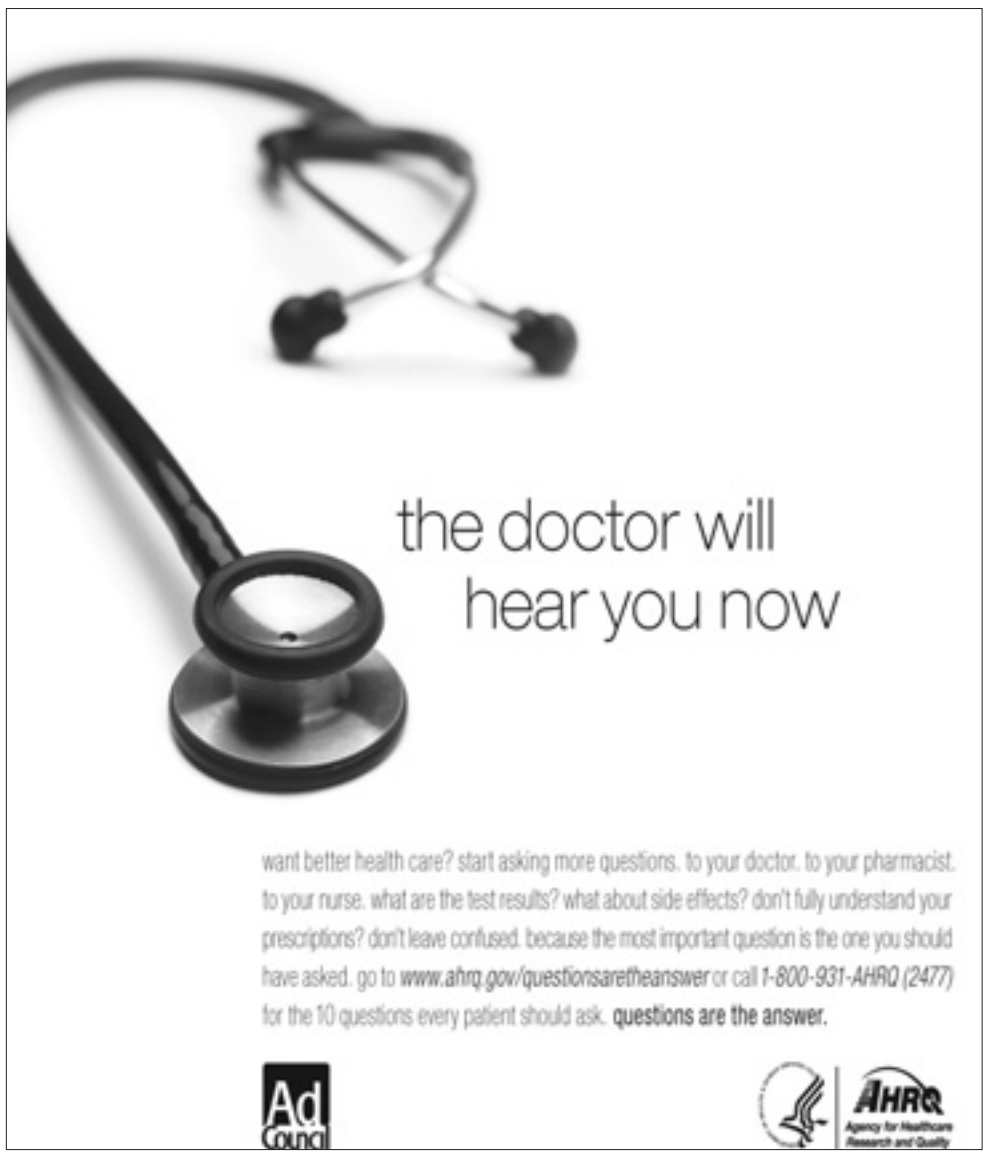

Trump's election has made activists out of people who haven't been part of any organized demonstrations before.

Olivia Antezana, a 19-year-old sophomore at the University of Maryland at College Park, had never been to a demonstration before creating and promoting a "Not My President" event on Facebook. By Monday afternoon, 18,000 people had indicated on Facebook that they would be going to the event in Washington on Inauguration Day.

"I will say I certainly underestimated it," Antezana said.

Still, Antezana said she is not sure what she will do after the demonstration she is planning is over. She doesn't plan to join a political campaign, she said, though she would like to keep up with activism. Right now, she said, she has another priority: school.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON NOVEMBER 3, AT ABOUT 6:10 P.M.

Officers responded to a radio call for service at Vons -710 Broadway regarding a fight in progress involving Vons security. As officers arrived, a store employee pointed out the suspect and he was detained. An investigation revealed, the suspect was observed by a customer concealing merchandise in his suitcase and the customer informed the security guard. The security guard monitored the suspect and also observed the subject place merchandise in his suitcase. The security guard confronted the suspect and the suspect retuned several items but not all of the items taken. The subject then pushed and fought with the security guard before attempting to flee the location. Ronald Anthony Mullen, 56, from Los Angeles, was arrested for robbery and a probation violation. Bail was set at $50,000.

WELL NEWS BY SCOTT LAFEE

Buckle Up and Buckle Down

■ The Obama administration has announced a new public health goal: the elimination of traffic fatalities in the United States in the next 30 years. It's a response to news of an entirely different sort: In 2015, 38,300 people were killed on American roads, a 7 percent increase over the previous year and the largest jump in 50 years.

■ The Transportation Department will, among other things, emphasize increased seatbelt use, expand deployment of rumble strips along roads and elevate awareness about the dangers of drunk and distracted driving. The emergence of self-driving cars might help -- human error plays a role in 94 percent of car crashes -- but drunk driving remains the biggest villain.

TRANSPORTATION TUESDAYS

Have you seen the future of LA transit?

GoSaMo

There are new Bus, Light Rail and Subway Lines coming to serve you! Residents throughout Los Angeles County sent a clear message last Tuesday – they want better options to get around. Nearly 70% of voters supported Measure M, a countywide half-cent sales tax to fund transit operations, transit system expansion, improved streets with more bike lanes and pedestrian features, and pass programs for seniors, youth and students.

Angelenos spend an average of 81 yours a year stuck in traffic. Measure M helps to fund solutions to our mobility needs – locally and regionally. Specific transit projects identified in the ballot measure for the westside include: transit connections to Los Angeles International Airport (LAX) and over the Sepulveda Pass, extension of the Purple Line subway to Westwood, and Lincoln Corridor Rapid Transit between LAX and Santa Monica. Locally, Measure M also creates a funding source to continue investing in new models of mobility.

As a community that is constantly on the move we can take a moment to recognize this major investment in our future mobility options and say THANKS!

Brought to you by the City of Santa Monica Mobility Division

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 15)

You're only greedy for the best things in life: love, beauty and truth. Because you seek them, this year will be unprecedented in its good fortune. The next 10 weeks will bring the presents straight to you, but after that you'll have to knock around to find opportunity. The initiative you show will bring you gold! Sagittarius and Virgo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 3, 1, 44, 19 and 29.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
If you choose to speak up on matters (and there's much worth considering that will pull you in the opposite direction) then speak clearly and from a place of total knowledge.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Even those who don't believe in intuition have experienced it. They chalk it up to their brain working all-of-a-sudden faster. Maybe so. Or maybe it's just working deeper and wider. Whatever it is, you'll get it today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
Strategy is not needed in all relationships. Those open, comfortable relationships are so precious because you don't need to overthink anything. Still, those relationships require care, too: Think of it as maintenance.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
You've developed quite a few ways of working around the people who stand in your way. When these are the same people you love with all your heart, it's harder — but still possible, if that's what's necessary.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
This is your life. You're sharing it so nicely, but still... it's yours. What about an adventure you go on by yourself? That hasn't happened recently, if only because you haven't made it happen. Now is as good a time as any!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
The "What if?" game is a good way to break out of the confines holding you today. Get thinking about those "ifs," because some of them may actually be true.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Impulsiveness can be a good quality or a bad one. You're not usually given to act on impulse, though you'll definitely feel them tapping your psyche today. To feel it is one thing. To make your move is quite another.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)
Whomever it is you're mad at, make up. Don't do it for them; do it for you. Your energy flying in that direction could be better spent. There are opportunities coming your way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
It's the simple things. Love people who love you back. Eat foods that agree with you. Move your body and you'll move your life. You'll think better when you drink more water.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Not everyone is going to be happy; that's a given. And yet, if you're doing your best, isn't it really their fault for setting an unrealistic expectation?

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
First, just know that you don't have to have all of the answers. You don't even have to have one of them. Secondly, before you answer, think about how your answer is likely to change things.

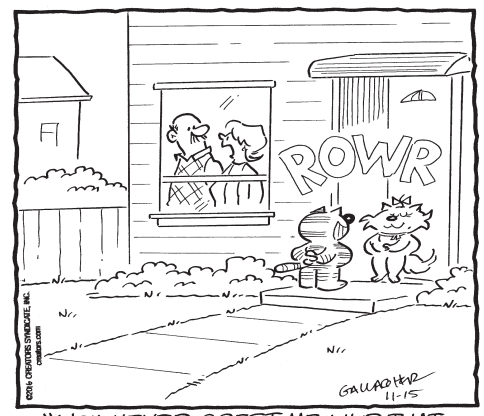

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Here's some great news: Your best is totally good enough! You have moxie. You have style. You have guts. And you're in the perfect place to use all of that for good.

Gemini Lunar Advice

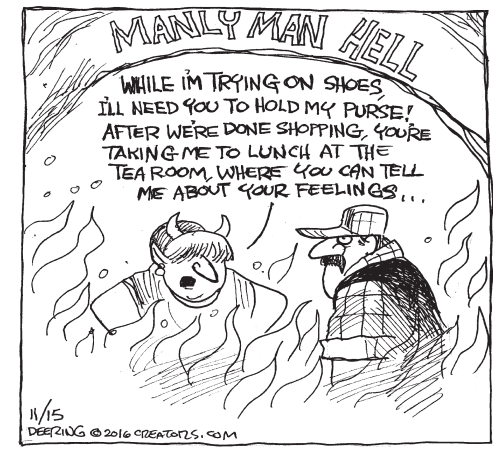

Gemini lunar advice: There are people in our lives that we don't enjoy much, and yet they still serve an important role. Maybe they keep us in check. Or maybe they push us out of our comfort zones. Either way, we don't have to like them in order for them to be useful. Maybe they even enhance our lives more because of the wrong way they rub us.
