Solar-powered trash device to be placed in Ballona Creek

Brennon Dixson

MARINA DEL REY: County officials gathered in Marina Del Rey this week to announce an experimental machine would be deployed in Ballona Creek to help clean up debris washed downstream.

BRENNON DIXSON

As it weaves and winds through the concrete jungle of western Los Angeles County, the Ballona Creek flood channel collects many types of pollutants, including trash, oil, pesticides and industrial chemicals.

It's not unheard of for one to find a shopping cart dumped in the creek, according to the Ballona Creek Renaissance — an organization of volunteers who have hand-collected more than 1.3 tons of trash in the river since its founding.

Ideally, there would be no garbage finding its way into Ballona Creek, "but too often we do have trash," Los Angeles County Supervisor Janice Hahn said Friday, mentioning Ballona Creek used to be one of 1,000 waterways worldwide that were responsible for 80 percent of the plastic pollution in the world's oceans.

Trader Joe's and CVS now open on Wilshire

BRENNON DIXSON
SMDP Staff Writer

Two large retailers opened new locations on Wilshire Blvd. this week with CVS and Trader Joe's welcoming customers looking for somewhere to grab their pharmaceuticals, snacks and cosmetic items.

The recently opened CVS replaces a Whole Foods that left the corner of 5th and Wilshire in August 2017 when the company opened its 365 store on Pico. Construction crews have been working in the months since to get the space ready for the customers who will be able to shop seven days a week from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.

"We are a fully functional CVS offering all of the goods that are available at other CVS locations," said Pharmacy Manager Stacey Stepniak. "We also have a SmileDirect hub so you can make an appointment and utilize that service, which is a new thing for CVS so there's not another one in the area that has it."

Stepniak added the store looks brand new and has an amazing view of the sunset at its entryway.

"I used to work at the one on Lincoln so to be back in this neighborhood is exciting," Stepniak said. "We've already met quite a few neighbors who have come in and welcomed us, which makes us feel like we're right at home. There's nothing but excitement and you can't ask for

Biden Addresses Gun Violence, Vows to Defeat Trump During Rally

MARTHA RAMIREZ
SMC Corsair / SMDP Staff Writer

Former Vice President and current presidential candidate Joe Biden visited Los Angeles Trade Technical College on Thursday, Nov. 14. Biden, whose name has come up frequently during the impeachment inquiry into President Trump, delivered a speech to a crowd of students and supporters.

Though he was smiling when he walked through the cheering crowd, the tone of the event quickly shifted. After thanking his supporters, Biden began his speech by addressing the Santa Clarita school shooting, which took place earlier that day.

"I have to start on a bit of a somber note," Biden said. "Today is a stark reminder — two wounded, three dead, a young man being carried out in a stretcher and a press person hears him say, 'what kind of world is this?'"

"This has become intolerable for a long time," Biden added, "and the fact that our Republican friends led by this president is so desperately afraid of the NRA, afraid of the gun manufacturers and yields in a way that is, quite frankly, sickening."

According to the Center for Homeland Defense and Security, there have been 44 school shootings in 2019 alone, the most recent of which took place in Saugus High School in Santa Clarita, Calif. There have been almost 400 mass shootings in the year overall.

"It's not just here. It's all across America. And it's sickening," Biden added, his once-cheerful tone gone stern. "Ladies and gentlemen, when I talk about the soul of America and how it's at stake right now, look at all the children we sent off to school ...We send off children — six, seven, eight, nine, ten years old — and the first thing they learn is how to duck and cover ... What does that say about our soul? What does that say about who we are?"

In a recently released public service announcement, Sandy Hook Promise — a non-profit organization dedicated to "providing programs and practices that protect children from gun violence," according to their official website — showcased back-to-school essentials, which include bulletproof backpacks.

"I'm so tired of people talking about your prayers," Biden said. "Dammit, we have to protect these kids, and we have to do it now."

Biden vowed to take on the National Rifle Association (NRA) and gun manufacturers should he win the presidency. He argued that he, as former-President Obama's running-mate, had defeated the NRA twice before in 2010 and 2012, and we would do so again in 2020.

Biden switched gears and shifted the topic to President Trump. He argued as to the urgency of Trump losing his bid for re-election. "Eight years of Donald Trump will change the very character of who we are as a nation," Biden warned, "and we cannot let that happen."

The crowd, which had fallen silent and serious in the early part of Biden's speech, grew animated.

"It's not enough to defeat him, we have to beat him badly. No, the reason we do is not vindictiveness. It's to make clear to future presidents that you cannot behave by spewing hate, dividing people," Biden said.

"Hate only hides. It never goes away. It only hides," Biden said. "And when the President of the United States says the things he said about people of color, about hispanics, about across the board ... it breathes oxygen into air of those hate groups."

Biden added, "We have a gigantic opportunity to turn this around."

Following the rally, Biden attend two private fundraisers, one in West Los Angeles and another in Pacific Palisades. He is scheduled to make another campaign stop in Seattle next Friday.

Motive a mystery in fatal California school shooting

BY STEFANIE DAZIO AND JOHN ANTCZAK
Associated Press

A 16-year-old boy planned the attack that killed two students and wounded three others at a Southern California high school, but investigators were so far unable to find out why he brought a gun to campus and opened fire, authorities said Friday.

After more than 40 interviews and evaluation of evidence, no motive had been established, said Capt. Kent Wegener, of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department's homicide unit. He said no manifesto, diary or suicide note had been found.

"It still remains a mystery why," Sheriff Alex Villanueva told a press conference.

The teenager opened fire on his birthday Thursday morning after being dropped off by his mother at Saugus High School in the Los Angeles suburb of Santa Clarita. The shooter, who hasn't been identified, fired his last bullet into his own head and remained in critical condition Friday.

The shooting in an outdoor plaza took just 16 seconds and was recorded on security video, authorities said.

The teen stood by himself, did not appear to interact with anyone and then walked to the center of the quad, Villanueva said.

"As far as we know the actual targets were at random," the sheriff said.

The sheriff said the conclusion that the attack was planned was based on the shooter bringing the weapon, handling it with enough expertise and counting the rounds fired.

"It wasn't a spur-of-the-moment act," Villanueva said.

The origin of the gun was being investigated.

Three off-duty law enforcement officers were first on the scene and treated some of the wounded until paramedics arrived.

One of the dead was identified as 15-year-old Gracie Anne Muehlberger.

The other student who died was 14. His name and those of the other wounded were not released.

Doctors said Friday morning that two girls, ages 14 and 15, who were both shot in the torso, were doing well and should be released from the hospital over the weekend. A 14-year-old boy was treated and released from another hospital, authorities said.

The suspect was described as a quiet and smart kid who was a Boy Scout and had previously run track for his school.

"You have the image of a loner, someone who is socially awkward, doesn't get along, some violent tendencies, dark brooding and online strange postings — stuff like that," Villanueva said. With this boy, investigators have found "nothing out of the ordinary. He's a cookie cutter kid that you could find anywhere."

In fact, the stereotype of the loser sociopath is often inaccurate, according to the psychologist who wrote federal guidelines for assessing school shooting threats and has interviewed 10 shooters.

What pushes most shooters is some kind of loss or disappointment, often recent, followed by the inability to cope with a feeling of being overwhelmed, according to Marisa Randazzo, a former chief research psychologist at the U.S. Secret Service.

"These are acts of suicide as much as homicide," said Randazzo, who is now CEO of a firm that does threat assessments.

Most shooters she studied were academically successful and weren't social outcasts.

Friends said while the boy could be introverted, he had a girlfriend and good social network focused on his cross-country teammates.

Randazzo said she expects investigators will learn that someone had an inkling of trouble.

Malibu

City of Malibu Earns Environmental Award

The City of Malibu received a 2019 Beacon Spotlight Award from the Institute for Local Government (ILG) for outstanding achievements to address climate change, promote energy innovation and create more sustainable communities.

"Protecting Malibu's beautiful natural environment is at the heart of our community," said Mayor Karen Farrer. "We should all be proud of this recognition of Malibu's environmental leadership."

ILG recognized the City of Malibu with a Gold Level Award for Sustainability Best Practices. The award was presented to Mayor Farrer at an event hosted in collaboration with the League of California Cities, the California State Association of Counties and the Statewide Energy Efficiency Collaborative.

To reduce its energy use, the City moved operations into a new City Hall building in 2011 that is more energy efficient. The building's energy-saving design features include Solatube skylights, more ambient light, energy-saving window coatings, and motion-activated and timed lighting systems.

The City's general sustainability practices include environmentally friendly purchasing, a green vehicle fleet, electric vehicle charging stations, PCH bike route and bike path improvements, and PCH bus stop improvements.

The City has also protected public open space, implemented stormwater capture systems through-out the City to protect water quality, banned single-use plastic straws and cutlery, plastic bags and polystyrene foam, installed reusable water bottle filling stations to eliminate the use of plastic water bottles, and switched to re-usable cups and cutlery in City Hall.

The City has increased the number of recycling containers in City Hall and in the community, in-stalled battery recycling containers for the public in City Hall, switched to rechargeable batteries in City Hall, and regularly holds public recycling events for electronic waste, Household Hazardous Waste (HHW), and polystyrene foam.

For more than 10 years, the Beacon Program has encouraged, supported and recognized voluntary environmental sustainability policies and programs by local governments throughout California.

This year, ILG not only honored the individual achievements of local governments to save energy, reduce greenhouse gas emissions and adopt sustainability practices, but we will also be highlighting how our cities have contributed to aggressive statewide goals to address climate change in California in a way that helps residents from all walks of life prosper and thrive.

School District Wins Scholarship to Year-Long Environmental Training Program

The Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District is one of only five districts in the nation to receive a School District Scholarship from the Center for Green Schools and the U.S. Green Building Council. The scholarship is a yearlong opportunity for district sustainability staff to receive advanced sustainability education and improve the health and performance of district schools for all students and staff.

The other four winning districts were in Davenport, Iowa, Milwaukee, Wis., Boston and Seattle. District representatives, including Sustainability Coordinator Caroline Coster, will begin the year by attending the Greenbuild International Conference & Expo in Atlanta for focused learning. As the scholarship year goes forward, the SMMUSD will have access to the nation's leading green-schools experts. Previous winners have said the scholarship's biggest benefits are the ability to share best practices with other districts and learn how they are solving common issues. Sustainability is a major long-term goal of the Board of Education, which adopted a 20-year sustainability plan earlier this year. The plan outlines targets and paths to reaching them across all district operations. The Center for Green Schools, which has awarded 26 scholarships since 2014, cites multiple studies that have shown that improving specific aspects of the student environment such as daylight, air quality and noise levels, can lead to better information retention, concentration, task speed and more.

How Medicare can help you manage pain

If you have Medicare, there are covered options to help you manage pain safely and effectively.

Medicare covers prescription pain medications under Part D. In addition, Medicare Part B (medical insurance) helps pay for services that may help you manage your pain with less reliance on drugs, such as:

- Physical therapy;
- Occupational therapy;
- Manual manipulation of the spine (when medically necessary);
- Behavioral health services.

Part B helps pay for medically necessary outpatient physical therapy and outpatient occupational therapy. And Medicare no longer limits how much it pays for medically necessary outpatient therapy services in one calendar year, so beneficiaries can get the number of visits they need.

Medicare doesn't cover other services or tests ordered by a chiropractor, including X-rays, massage therapy, and acupuncture.

(If you think your chiropractor is billing Medicare for chiropractic services that aren't covered, you can report suspected Medicare fraud at https://www.medicare.gov/forms-help-resources/help-fight-medicare-fraud/how-report-medicare-fraud.)

Besides a yearly depression screen, Medicare can also cover behavioral health integration services like psychiatric collaborative care, and chronic and complex care management. Inpatient treatment and professional services can be provided by physicians, clinical psychologists, clinical social workers, nurse practitioners/specialists, and physician assistants.

Prescription opioids like hydrocodone and oxycodone can be used effectively to help relieve moderate-to-severe pain. Your doctor may prescribe opioids following surgery or an injury, or for certain chronic health conditions.

These medications are an important part of treatment but they carry serious risks. If you're using opioids for chronic pain, ask your doctor if you might also need a prescription for naloxone, an overdose-reversing drug that is covered by Medicare. Before starting or while taking opioids, talk with your doctor about all of your pain treatment options. Your doctor should tailor treatment according to your personal needs.

Some Medicare Part D drug plans have certain rules to help you use opioids safely. You can get more information on drug plan coverage rules at https://www.medicare.gov/drug-coverage-part-d/what-medicare-part-d-drug-plans-cover/drug-plan-coverage-rules.

If you're in a Part D drug plan and take medications for different medical conditions, you may be eligible for a free Medication Therapy Management program. This program helps you and your doctor make sure that your medications are working to improve your health.

For most Medicare-covered pain management services, you pay 20 percent of the Medicare-approved amount for visits to your doctor or other healthcare provider to diagnose or treat your condition. The Part B deductible ($185 in 2019) applies.

If you get your services in a hospital outpatient clinic or hospital outpatient department, you may have to pay an additional copayment or coinsurance amount to the hospital.

For more information on safe and effective pain management, visit:

NEW TRADER JOE'S

Social media has been littered with the comments of residents who are eager to know when the Trader Joe's that was proposed for the area of 23rd street and Wilshire would open.

Company officials announced Friday that the wait is over as the popular grocery store is expected to open Saturday at 9 a.m., according to Trader Joe's website.

"At Trader Joe's Wilshire, we see ourselves as your local neighborhood grocery store," the website states. "Step inside and you'll find unconventional and organic products in the Trader Joe's label like Mandarin Orange Chicken, Cauliflower Gnocchi, and Cold Brew Coffee Concentrate, as well as everyday basics like organic milk, eggs, meat, and organic produce."

Officials added, "We are a good source for great cheese, beer, wine, and liquor, and we offer a vibrant selection of fresh flowers daily. This has become a major challenge for local county officials, but Hahn believes a new trash harvesting device created by international nonprofit The Ocean Cleanup may be the answer to the problem.

The device is called the InterceptorTM, and Joost Dubois, The Ocean Cleanup's head of communications, said during Friday's press conference that the solar-powered trash removal system will use a conveyor belt to extract harmful debris from waterways and complement the trash collecting mechanisms that are already in place throughout the county.

"Rivers are one of the biggest contributors to ocean plastics. They are the arteries that carry the plastic to the sea," Dubois said. But after years of research, The Ocean Cleanup has developed the world's first fully autonomous scalable solution for tackling river pollution, "and like our ocean cleanup technology, it utilizes natural forces like solar power and river currents to operate."

Ballona Creek's system will be the first deployed in the Americas or Canada and the sixth one worldwide if the targeted fall 2020 deployment date is met. Officials said they will design it to specifically meet the unique conditions of Ballona Creek.

An unnamed beneficiary contributed the funds to make the project possible, according to Dubois, but The Ocean Cleanup will be responsible for manufacturing, assembling and installing the system while LA County's Public Works department will be responsible for operations, including the collection and recycling of waste.

"This interceptor is part of a pilot program," Dubois said, which will cover two storm seasons and allow both the county and nonprofit the opportunity to test the InterceptorTM's technology and its capacity for the environmental conditions that are present in the local river.

"What we hope to have happen is that we look at it and see that it works here," said Mark Pestrella, director of Los Angeles County Public Works. Depending on the results, the county could receive the device for free and also may consider installing a similar system in the Los Angeles River.

While seals below the beach house barked and "cheered them on", Hahn, Dubois, Pestrella and Roald Lapperre, the Netherlands' vice-minister for the Environment, posed for pictures while they signed the documents necessary to put their plan in action.

"The buildup of plastics in our oceans is one of the biggest environmental challenges of our time," Hahn said, adding she hopes the new partnership will not only stop trash flowing from Ballona Creek into the Santa Monica Bay, "but will be part of a global project to prevent the flow of plastic pollution into our world's oceans."

Nine SMMUSD Schools Win Energy Star Certification award from the Environmental Protection Agency

Nine schools in the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District have been granted Energy Star certification for 2018 by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), underlining the district's efforts on energy efficiency and sustainability. The following schools have been certified: John Adams Middle School, Lincoln Middle School, Franklin Elementary School, Grant Elementary School, McKinley Elementary School, Muir Elementary School, Rogers Learning Community and Roosevelt Elementary School in Santa Monica, and Webster Elementary School in Malibu

"We are proud of the efforts of staff at all of our schools and offices regarding energy reduction and efficiency," Superintendent Dr. Ben Drati said. "We congratulate our nine sites that achieved this important certification. Our school board and site leadership are committed to continuing improvement."

Energy Star-certified buildings are verified to perform in the top 25 percent of buildings nationwide, based on an energy use analysis that takes into account occupancy, hours of operation and other key factors.

The EPA says that on average, Energy Star-certified buildings use 35 percent less energy, produce 35 percent fewer greenhouse gas emissions, and are less expensive to operate than similar buildings. Earlier this year, the Board of Education adopted the Districtwide Plan for Sustainability, which states goals for the next 20 years and charts a path to meet them.

Part of that path includes installing solar panels at school sites to reduce energy use from the public grid. Currently, nine of 16 school sites have at least some solar production. To see solar production and energy use across all district sites, people can check out the district's energy use dashboard, launched in 2018.

For more information, contact Sustainability Coordinator Caroline Coster at ccoster@smmusd.org. For more information on the Energy Star program, visit www.energystar.gov/buildings.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (NOVEMBER 16)

You're so close to a goal you can almost touch the glimmering prize. Quick, make a new aim beyond it. You'll claim your win and have more to look forward to. Your capabilities will continue to expand along with your capacity to receive the best life has to offer. Young people will thrive under your tutelage. Leo and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 19, 37, 48 and 10.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Of all things you could cash out on, you didn't think that your patience would be the one to bring big dividends. Yet it certainly will today, and you'll love how it pays.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). It's easy to see the world as you experience it, and it's hard to see the world as it is. Your brilliant idea to run your plan by a few friends before you act will counteract this truth.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll live it, and then you'll tell the story that spreads. It will feel wonderful to be a part of something that benefits so many. It all happens one smile at a time.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). It seems like love should come naturally, but it's actually more complicated and conscious than that. Luckily, you love to learn, and you learn to love.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). People you've known a long time have experienced you in many incarnations. That's because you adjust like a champ. You'll continue to change your offering to fit the situation at hand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The truth is that even the most gracious people feel socially awkward from time to time. If you could hear everyone's internal dialogue, it would probably shock you and comfort you at the same time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Just when you think a situation has run its course, a new cycle will kick in. There are many games to play, and they will all be played within the rules and reality of the same game.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Figure out who is already predisposed to do what you have in mind, and then rally those people to get it done. This is the easy way. The hard way is to waste time trying to convince and motivate the wrong crowd.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You want a relationship to be wonderful. So everything you do that requires more of you and goes above and beyond the expectation is, to you, just part of the package.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You've a single focus. When you hold that beautiful idea in your mind, everyone and everything else goes soft and fuzzy, fading into the background. This is what it means to be driven.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). How many difficult things should you require of yourself in a day? One to five works for most days. Then there are some days, like today, when the proper answer would be none.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You might find yourself in a position to apologize for someone else or take offence on their behalf, either of which might be crossing the lines of social responsibility. Though, in a way, that feels right to you.

Cosmic Call for Originality

The lunar position to Mercury and Neptune favors a fresh take. How do you know originality when you see it? Originality is always a risk because it encompasses the unknown. Maybe it's an unknown ingredient, a secret ratio of known elements or a wildly different presentation. If you know what you're getting, then it's not a risk and it's not original.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTION

"My parents prefer my older sister and have for our entire lives. Even though I'm 35 now, this still bothers me. My parents always make more of an effort to spend time with her. They talk about her with pride, and they give her more responsibility than me. She is the executer of their will. She takes care of their house when they are on vacation and also their dogs. I would gladly help them, but all I seem to do is disappoint them. I'm divorced with two kids and my sister is a successful lawyer who has never been married. Why can't I let this go? I'm a Libra, and my sister is a Pisces." Each relationship within a family is different and unique. Relationship-oriented Libras are sensitive to the subtle and not-so subtle attributes of the family dynamic. Out of your strong desire for fairness and balance in all things, you assume you and your sister should share the same relationship with your parents even though you're two completely different people. But balance can be achieved in a variety of ways. Think of the scales that are the symbol of your sign. Your sister gives house-sitting and bragging rights to her career etc., you give grandchildren and XYZ... in some way it all balances out.

CELEBRITY PROFILES

The decisions made by comedy king Lorne Michaels has had a profound impact on the world of entertainment and shaped the careers of comedians like Steve Martin, Adam Sandler, Tina Fey, Will Ferrell, Amy Poehler and too many more to mention. And though experience has taught Michaels well, his Scorpio instincts are undoubtedly equally to credit for his remarkable success. Write Holiday Mathis at HolidayMathis.com.

SAVE THE KITTENS

Los Angeles, this is big: We're on the verge of becoming a no-kill city this year.
But to get there, the animals need you to raise your hand and step up now!

#SAVETHEKITTENS

THE CHALLENGE

Saving the lives of 165 additional kittens each month for the rest of the year
TOGETHER, WE CAN DO THIS.

BY THE NUMBERS January through August 2019:

9,698 KITTENS ENTERED L.A. CITY SHELTERS.
That's a 22% increase compared to last year.

22%

AN AVERAGE OF 1,212 KITTENS ENTERED THE SHELTER SYSTEM PER MONTH.
That's about 40 kittens each and every day.

40 /DAY

YOU CAN HELP.

With so many more kittens entering the shelter system this year, these L.A. pets need you more than ever.

FOSTER OR ADOPT A KITTEN.

In a city of four million, thousands of people have already raised their hands to help. We need just a few more. BE ONE OF THEM.
