City settles lawsuit over ambulance services

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

The City of Santa Monica has agreed to shell out $250,000 to settle a lawsuit stemming from complaints about services provided by its former ambulance contractor.

The lawsuit, filed in 2011 in the U.S. District Court's Central District of California, alleged that the City and Gerber Ambulance Service billed for services beyond what patients actually needed.

Specifically, the suit alleged that the agencies billed Medicare for advanced, life support-level ambulance services for all 911 pre-hospital emergency medical transports "regardless of whether the beneficiary's medical condition required that level of service," according to a settlement agreement signed last month.

More than $144,000 was due to the U.S. government and more than $105,000 was payable to four plaintiffs and their lawyers, according to the agreement. The plaintiffs - Mark Baird, Justin Frith, Rick Jerome Larson and David Moran - were set to receive $10,000 each.

The City and Gerber Ambulance deny the allegations brought forth in the suit and admit no wrongdoing in settling with the plaintiffs and their attorneys at San Francisco firm Hersh and Hersh.

The payments "are not to be construed as an admission of any act, omission, liability or damages," the agreement reads.

Local cooks can benefit from Santa Monica's year-round markets

BY MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

EDITORS NOTE: Leading up to Thanksgiving, The Santa Monica Daily Press has complied as series of seasonal recipes from several local restaurants. The following features Jodi Low from The Santa Monica Farmers Market.

Food is a huge part of the holiday experience and the Santa Monica Farmers Market has earned a reputation among food-savvy shoppers as the best source for whatever your holiday table requires.

Jodi Low, market coordinator for the Sunday Main Street Market said her go-to holiday dish is a broccoli casserole that benefits from the abundance and diversity of goods available at the market.

"It's a hearty recipe which is what I want when the weather turns cold. It has the texture of the broccoli, it's creamy, it has bite from some lemon, you can top it with some crispy bacon, and everything about it is just wonderful."

Low said it's a recipe that has strong memories. She literally can't remember a time when it wasn't on every holiday table and it has been passed down from one generation to the next.

"This is a recipe that's consistent year-to-year with my family," she said. "Thanksgiving and Christmas, it's always a favorite even with people that don't like vegetables."

Almost every ingredient for the dish can be sourced from the Santa Monica markets and Low said Santa Monica's year-round markets provide residents with the special opportunity to select fresh produce from local vendors.

"When you buy from a store, it's not as fresh as it is at the market, hands down," she said. "When you're getting it from the market you're buying from a farmer, or their employee, and it was picked the day before. The taste, look, nutrition are all better."

With seven meat/poultry vendors, Low said it's entirely possible to fill the entire table from local vendors. The market offers staples like chicken, turkey, beef and pork, but there are also specialty meats like duck, goat, lamb, rabbit and bison. She said some of the products need to be ordered in advance so potential customers should think ahead for their holiday needs.

Outside the kitchen, Low said the market is a great source for holiday gifts. She said jam, jellies and preserves all travel well and some farmers offer direct shipping on their prepared foods. Other gifts include pickles, soups, lavender, essential oils or blueberry wine.

Low said the decision to shop at the market, whether it's for food or gifts, is about putting an economic motivation behind big picture issues.

"It's all about choices," she said. "Who do you want to support? Family farmers and their employees? They are all from California and shopping at the market helps keep the agricultural land in agricultural production."

Broccoli casserole

INGREDIENTS:

3 lbs. broccoli florets, cut into bite-size pieces
8 tbsp. unsalted butter, divided
1/2 medium yellow onion, finely chopped
1 lemon (juiced)
8 oz. white button mushrooms, finely chopped
5 tbsp. all-purpose flour
4 cups whole milk
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
8 oz. sharp cheddar cheese, shredded and divided
1 lb. bacon (optional)

DIRECTIONS:

1. Preheat oven to 400 degrees F.
2. Cook bacon on a baking sheet until crispy. Set aside on paper towels to drain the oil.
3. Lightly grease a 9 x 13-inch baking dish; set aside.
4. Bring a large pot of water to boil. Add the broccoli and boil for 3 to 5 minutes, until still firm, but tender enough that a fork can pierce through. Drain the broccoli in a colander and rinse with cold water.
5. In a medium skillet over medium-high heat, melt 3 tbsp. of the butter, then add the onion and mushrooms. Cook, stirring occasionally, until the mushrooms release liquid and it has all evaporated, about 10 minutes. Transfer to a bowl and set aside.
6. In a medium saucepan over medium heat, melt the remaining 5 tbsp. of butter, then add the flour and stir until the mixture is lightly browned and has a nutty aroma, 1 to 2 minutes. Slowly begin to add the milk, whisking constantly until all of the milk has been added. Cook for 2 to 3 minutes, until the mixture begins to thicken. Add 1/3 of the shredded cheese and stir until completely melted. Remove from the heat and stir in the reserved onions and mushrooms, then stir in the salt and pepper. Add the broccoli and another 1/3 of the shredded cheese and the lemon juice. Pour the sauce over the broccoli, then sprinkle with the remaining third of the shredded cheese. Mix until combined.
7. In a small bowl, crumble the bacon then sprinkle evenly over the top of the casserole.
8. Bake in the preheated oven until the top is golden brown and the sauce is bubbling, about 15 to 25 minutes.
9. Remove from the oven and let sit for 10 minutes before serving. Then enjoy!

Santa Monica Police Department Awarded $300,000 in State Grant

The Santa Monica Police Department (SMPD) has been awarded a $300,000 grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety (OTS) for a year-long program of special enforcement and public awareness efforts to prevent traffic related deaths and injuries. SMPD will use the funding as part of the city's ongoing commitment to keep our roadways safe and improve the quality of life through both enforcement and education.

Chief Jacqueline Seabrooks expressed her gratitude to the California Office of Traffic Safety for their continued support and commitment in promoting safe roadways in our community.

After falling dramatically between 2006 and 2010, the number of persons killed and injured in traffic collisions has been slowly rising. Particularly alarming are recent increases in pedestrian and bicycle fatalities, the growing dangers of distracting technologies, and the emergence of drug-impaired driving as a major problem. This grant funding will provide opportunities to combat these and other devastating problems such as drunk driving, speeding and crashes at intersections.

"Overall, California's roadways are among the safest in the nation," said OTS Director Rhonda Craft. "But to meet future mobility, safety, and accessible transportation objectives, we have to reverse this recent trend in order to reach our common goal - zero deaths on our roadways. The Office of Traffic Safety and the Santa Monica Police Department want to work with everyone to create a culture of traffic safety across Santa Monica and the state."

Yu reinvents with fine leather, champagne, caviar

CAROLE, I THOUGHT I KNEW YU.

I have known Carole Yu quite a long time, 11 years, but I learned some fascinating things about her last week that I didn't know.

We chatted, but with a purpose. I was interviewing her about her leather goods and clothing shop m0851, (1426 Montana Avenue), and the cool one-year anniversary party they're throwing tomorrow night, 6-9 p.m.

Champagne and (Canadian) caviar, (You've got my attention.) Crystal Head vodka (Canadian, Dan Akroyd). Gift bags with beauty products (including one random $50 gift certificate), "special surprises," and 15-25 per cent off the entire store. All hosted by (Canadian actor) David Alpay (swoon, swoon) of "The Vampire Diaries." Just your typical Montana Avenue party. But this one is Canadian-themed, since m0851 is a Canadian company.

But how did this come about? I knew Carole as a bright, sophisticated but down-to-earth woman of the world with a ready smile and laugh and a smart sense of style, but also, an unpretentious Culver City mom, and a bit of a stage mother. Her family's world turned upside down with the death of her husband George, an honored architect, in 2007 at the age of 43, leaving her with two young daughters and an uncertain future.

I wondered how she came to open a high-end leather clothing and accessories store on pricey Montana. This was the first LA-area outlet for Montreal-based m0851 (only 22 stores in the world, only one previously in the US), so wasn't this a stretch, a pretty big gamble? Did she know what she was getting into? Would the high rent, stiff competition and fine line between sophistication and snobbery on Montana Avenue torpedo this sincere, capable but novice upscale shopkeeper?

Well, it's been a year now, and she is laying plans to open two more stores, so I think that's settled.

SHE HAD MORE BACKGROUND AND PREPARATION THAN I THOUGHT.

I knew she had an engineering degree and worked in finance and leasing for IBM. I forgot that she taught English and technical writing in Beijing for a year, and business cultural training in Tokyo. They lived in Canada, then briefly in Rome and Venice on two different occasions, as George won international awards, from Canada and the US, to work there. (Turns out, all of the leather and the fabrics of m0851 products are Italian.)

"My previous marketing experience was not really applicable, though," Yu admitted. "It was such a different world in 1987, no FaceBook, no social media. Some m0851 product was sold in Fred Segal stores, but not enough for name recognition here in LA. Most people who come in do not know the brand. So we are building the brand, almost from scratch."

Certainly Yu knew her way around the world, and observed international fashion. But that's not enough. I've been around the global block myself but would never jump into the fashion fire on Montana.

I knew she talked her eldest daughter into booking a mother-daughter commercial in 2009 that paid for a couple of years at UCLA with enough left over for pencils and coffee, but Elena decided that was it, for her acting career, while mom slogged to auditions another eight years, and booked… exactly two more jobs, each paying enough for pencils or coffee, not both. She also guided her youngest, Dara, to take her passion and talent for cooking into America's living rooms, where she came in second on the inaugural season of MasterChef Junior, the kids' (8-13) cutthroat chefs competition TV show. Dara, with her distinctive huge red hair bow, came in second out of 24, pretty good, and is still working that career.

After George became ill with a rare form of lung cancer not caused by smoking, Carole took over managing his substantial architectural office, until his passing. Good business experience all, including show biz, but not exactly relevant to hawking high fashion retail leather clothing.

But she returned to fashion school and

Emissions, noise would be worse if SMO closed

Editor:

We are in total agreement with the letter printed in the Nov. 17 Santa Monica Daily Press. Dr. Robert N. Cleaves makes an extremely compelling argument for retaining the SMO land as an airport. We applaud his humanitarian efforts, which would not have been possible without the Santa Monica airport. Pilots and SMO personnel are doing their best to reduce emissions and noise, and both could be so much worse if SMO closed and LAX airplanes flew above that area.

got her degree at prestigious Otis College of Art and Design (on your right on Lincoln just before you curve into LAX, but you may never have noticed it), and worked as an assistant fashion designer in downtown LA. One year after losing her husband she launched her own business, Bao Style, designing and making purses out of old kimono.

SHE LOVED THE DESIGN AND CREATION ASPECTS, but distribution was a bugger. She often cruised the m0851web site for inspiration, because in the mid-'90s, on a trip to Toronto, she came across their store and was "blown away, I'd never seen such a modern, clean-designed store," she said. "It was gorgeous. I loved the clean, modern, urban design. The architecture and the product were amazing, and so reflective of each other." She bought a small zipper pouch then, which she still has, and the company still makes.

So that was the emotional key. She fell in love with m0851 (ask her tomorrow night where the name comes from) and never stopped thinking about it, and when she saw on the web site that they were going to make a franchise opportunity available south of the border, she was hooked. She asked lots of questions (a list of 50), bugged them by phone for two weeks, then made a five-day pilgrimage to Montreal to meet everyone, including people who had worked there 25 years. Finally each side was pleased with the other and Yu was given the first US franchise opportunity outside New York.

But Carole will tell you straight up there is another essential piece of the puzzle. She met Scott Stewart in 2008 and they married three years later, and she will tell you, even when he's not there to hear it, that she couldn't be doing it without him. Not just the moral support, but he designed and built much of the store interior that is so important to the branding. He demolished dry wall and took out the dressing rooms (they sell only outerwear). He put in the security and sound systems, the lighting, and chose the dominating chandelier. He knowledgeably informs and serves customers. And God bless him, he even manned the pumps when the Starbucks next door sprung a sewage leak, 40-50 buckets worth, on the busiest day they've ever had.

That's love.

Debbie Lee said the original complaint alleged millions of dollars in overbilling and civil penalties of between $5,500 and $11,000 per occurrence, as well as other damages.

"Though the City did not knowingly submitted false claims to Medicare," Lee said, "it elected to resolve this case to avoid the expense of further litigation."

The plaintiffs agreed not to file complaints against the City or Gerber Ambulance over matters covered in the original lawsuit.

Mark Burton, the Hersh & Hersh attorney who represented the plaintiffs, did not immediately respond to a Daily Press request for comment.

The settlement agreement was signed by City Manager Rick Cole, who was hired earlier this year as Santa Monica's top administrator. The allegations described in the lawsuit took place during the tenures of former city managers Rod Gould, P. Lamont Ewell and Susan McCarthy.

"Santa Monica continues to provide the highest level of emergency medical response service to the public," Lee said. "Our new ambulance provider has a strong understanding of the Medicare system and on behalf of the City, complies with billing requirements."

Gerber Ambulance offered services in Santa Monica from 2004 to 2011, when City Council entered a contract with AmeriCare. The switch came as a surprise to founder Robert Gerber, who told the Daily Press at the time that he saw the item on the council agenda before hearing from city staffers.

The loss of the City contract led Gerber Ambulance to lay off 45 employees, according to Daily Press archives.

Gerber Ambulance responded to more than 44,000 calls for service and brought in $6 million to the city's general fund during its time as a contractor, according to Daily Press archives. The company also forgave low-income clients for more than $100,000 in fees they couldn't afford.

"We're walking away with our head up high," Gerber said at the time.

LEGEND

DRY -- each location is graded on an A – F scale based on bacterial pollution levels present in the surf zone
WET -- grades for days of recorded rainfall and the following 3 days
ns -- no sample taken

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card℠ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A–F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON NOVEMBER 3 AT ABOUT 7:30 A.M.

A man entered Rite Aid at 1331 Wilshire Blvd and proceeded to the liquor aisle. A store employee saw the man acting strangely and approached him to see if he needed any help. The man wanted to buy alcohol and the employee explained he would need ID to make the purchase. The man didn't have any ID so he left the store.

A short time later, the man returned to the store and entered through the rear loading dock which is not a public access. The man went directly to the liquor aisle, selected two 3-packs of Tacate beer and tried to leave through the same loading dock. The man was confronted by store employees and detained until police arrived and placed him under arrest for the shoplifting. Gabino Casillas, 25, of Inglewood, had bail set at $5,000.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Recent Architectural Triumphs: (1) A 33-year-old Frenchman erected a stone table with benches over his mother's grave marker, so that he and friends could enjoy munchies and wine as he "talked" to her. (2) For the annual German Ruhrtriennale Festival in September, Atelier Van Lieshout created a temporary hotel structure that appeared from the street (even to the non-aroused) to be a couple having "doggy style" sex (to make a statement, a reviewer said, about "the power of humanity over the natural world"). (3) A homeowners' association in Winter Haven, Florida, petitioned Steven Chayt to remove the 24-by-12-foot chair he had built in his backyard as an art project -- especially because of the hole in the seat -- making it, said one neighbor, "essentially a toilet."

■ Daniel Darrington was spared a murder conviction in October even after admitting intentionally shooting Rocky Matskassy at point-blank range to "relieve his suffering." The Melbourne, Australia, jury decided that Matskassy, in pain from an earlier accidental shooting, was indeed already dead when Darrington shot him. However, under the law of the state of Victoria, it is still "attempted murder" because Darrington believed that Matskassy was still alive when he pulled the trigger.

Go ahead, stand with Paris

By Mikey Tittinger

We see Paris, we see France. The familiar blue-, red-and white flag is everywhere; it's on everybody's minds, every city's skyline lights and everybody's Facebook profile picture. Soon after the terror attacks in Paris on Friday, social media users began to superimpose the French flag over their own photos. It was a show of immediate solidarity, but social shaming soon followed.

What about Beirut, where suicide bombers killed 43 people the day before? Where was the Lebanese flag filter? Where's the horizontal black, red and green for the massacre in Kenya?

Changing your picture does nothing, shamers contend. It's self-gratifying and ego soothing and helps you feel better and nobody else. Well, OK. What's so wrong with symbolically standing with people around the world? Just because one tragedy touches you on a more personal level doesn't mean you're blind to those in the rest of the world.

Stating you care is still worth something, even if to yourself. No one moved to give food or money or their own blood — things that cost them something dear — is going to stop short because they stuck a tricolor flag over their photo. Shaming friends because their understanding of foreign affairs doesn't match your own is the real waste of a statement. Lead by example and let others know how to help.

Search the Causes directory at giive.org to find local nonprofits that foster greater understanding in your own community. Stand with Paris and stand with your own community.

Out late tonight, Aquarius

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You'll have a discussion with a friend and gain insight into a controversial matter. Friendships play a big role in your plans, though you might feel awkward making changes. Honor your commitments. Tonight: Discuss your values with a loved one.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ You come from an anchored position, whereas others seem to be rather flighty. A friend finally will express his or her feelings. You will understand why he or she has been acting so strangely lately. Don't lose sight of your long-term objectives. Tonight: Where the action is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Let your mind wander, especially when looking for a solution. The more detached you become, the better the results will be. A family member or a domestic issue seems to require your attention. Make it OK to step back to take an overview. Tonight: Follow the music.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ One-on-one relating will result in a rewarding experience. Your creativity surges all day long, especially when it comes to a trip or a potential new friend. Your words have impact way beyond what would be considered normal. Tonight: Dinner with a favorite person.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Others surprise you with their understanding, depth and insights. You rarely open up to conversations of this nature, but you will at times. Use care with your finances. Don't forget to check up on an older friend or relative. Tonight: Buy a favorite dessert on the way home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ Your efforts to accomplish what you want could cause a problem. A loved one will share much more than he or she has in a long time. As a result, you might finally be able to resolve an issue. Clear out errands, and do as much as you can. Tonight: Put your feet up and relax.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Your playfulness might not be appreciated as much as you would like. Be careful, as others could be much more serious than you are. Tap into your instincts, and you will be able to avoid a problem. A flirtation marks your day. Tonight: Time for some spontaneity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Tension continues to build, no matter what you do. You'll want to do your thing, but something or someone could be holding you back. On some level, you might feel cornered by the circumstances. Know that you can walk away. Tonight: Follow someone else's lead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Be willing to state your case and get feedback. You will see how creative others become when interacting with you. A neighbor or sibling could be seeking you out. Don't fight an inevitable conversation. You might not want to react to what you hear. Tonight: Hang out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ Watch what goes on with your finances. Be careful with an unusual offer that feels too good to be true, because it probably is. Try to detach when hearing new information. Focus on your goals and on the productivity of a relationship. Tonight: Treat a friend to dinner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Your ideas strike people as being unusual, but they often prove to be more workable than others' suggestions. A friendship continues to rank high in importance; however, you might want this person to change in some way. Accept him or her as he or she is. Tonight: Out late.

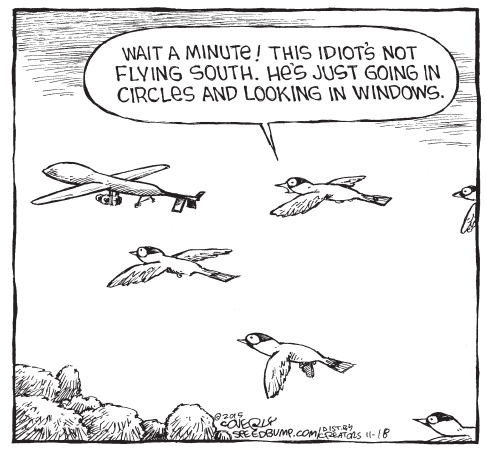

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★ You might not want to share what's really going on in your mind. Others will recognize that something is going on with you, and could pressure you. A boss also is likely to be extremely demanding. Try to understand where everyone is coming from. Tonight: A must appearance.

Wednesday, November 18, 2015

This year you often feel that the demands in your life are confusing and not workable. You also might feel pressured by a judgment you have made about a difficult situation. Rethink your commitments and how you act on them. If you are single, you meet people with ease, as your likable personality draws others toward you. Slow down and get to know someone before committing. If you are attached, you could be projecting part of your personality on to your sweetie and not realize what you are doing. Listen to him or her, and make the necessary adjustments. AQUARIUS adores your home and being there with you.
