Horvath, Park, Negrete victors after close races

EMILY SAWICKI
SMDP Staff Writer

Lindsey Horvath has emerged ahead of Bob Hertzberg in the hotly contested race to replace Sheila Kuehl as Third District Supervisor.

Traci Park bested Erin Darling in the contest to succeed Mike Bonin for the LA City Council 11th District seat, representing Venice and the Palisades.

Lana Negrete held on to retain her council seat, beating out nine competitors.

After more than week of slow vote counting, all local races have now been settled.

"I am humbled and honored that the voters have chosen me to serve as their next Supervisor. Their confidence and support fueled our people-powered campaign across the finish line, and I could not be more grateful for the opportunity to represent the people of District 3," Horvath said in a written statement provided by her campaign. "The significance of this victory is not lost on me. Voters chose a new path forward – a path where we humanely and effectively solve our homelessness crisis, a path where we invest in meaningful public safety solutions, a path where we fight unequivocally for full reproductive freedom, and a path where we urgently protect our environment and create a sustainable future for generations to come."

Horvath, a West Hollywood City Council member, earned 52.57%

John Muir Elementary and SMASH could reopen as one 'unified school'

Grace Inez Adams

CLOSED: The two-school campus could become a merged facility when it reopens in 2024.

GRACE INEZ ADAMS
SMDP Staff Writer

The future of the former John Muir Elementary and Santa Monica Alternative School House (SMASH) campus in Ocean Park seems more uncertain than ever after last week's Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School Board meeting, during which the possibility that the campus could reopen as one "unified" school instead of two was introduced.

The campus has been closed since summer of this year to allow for significant repairs and remodeling to address extensive water intrusion damage and is expected to re-open in August 2024.

Board Members and Superintendent Ben Drati discussed the matter at the Nov. 17 meeting in response to a resolution brought before the Board to affirm that there "will be a neighborhood school" at the location.

"There is a neighborhood school there already but it's shared with another alternative ed school," Drati said. "What we're saying with this resolution is that we're committing that there will always be a neighborhood school there, but the question is whether we're going to continue the same process of having two schools or one school."

While members agreed on the definition of a neighborhood school as one that gives "preference

Lyft withdraws bikes/scooters from Los Angeles

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

Lyft has removed its scooters and shared bicycles from the region citing a lack of longterm commitments from area municipalities.

Lyft said it is disappointed to end bike and scooter service for Lyft customers in Los Angeles.

They company said it remains committed to micromobility as a critical tool to deliver its core mission to help cities establish robust transportation networks that prioritize shared mobility over car ownership.

However, they said experiences in multiple North American markets has reinforced a belief that micromobility (scooters and bikes) should be run through long term public-private partnerships with a limited number of operators.

"We have made the tough decision to exit the Santa Monica and Los Angeles dockless bike and scooter market where we operate under short term permits as of November 14," said Lyft spokesperson Jordan Levine. We look forward to the upcoming opportunities for longer term contracts to restart our bike and scooter services in the region, and in the meantime, we will continue to offer rideshare and car rentals through the Lyft platform in the Los Angeles Metro."

Santa Monica has been regulating bikes/scooters through an extended pilot program. The current iteration includes four approved companies — Lyft, Spin, Veo and Wheels

Adopt or Foster a Pet From LA Animal Services During Adopt a Senior Pet Month

November is Adopt a Senior Pet Month, and what better way to celebrate the holiday season than by bringing home a new love! Adopt a Senior Pet Month was established to help improve the perception of senior pets.

LA Animal Services is waiving adoption fees for dogs and puppies during their month-long Home for the Holidays Adoption event thanks to a grant from Petco Love (not including $20 dog licensing fee for City of Los Angeles residents). The adoption fees for cats and kittens are also waived thanks to a generous grant from the ASPCA.

"Many people automatically think of a puppy or kitten when they think about adopting a pet, but adopting a senior cat or dog is a great way to add a new animal companion to your life," said Annette Ramirez, Interim General Manager for LA Animal Services. "A senior pet usually has already lived in a home, and is often already house trained, they are also calmer, and require less supervision than puppies and kittens."

Dogs and cats adopted from LA Animal Services join their new families already spayed or neutered, vaccinated, licensed, and microchipped, and adopters receive a VCA Healthy Start Certificate, which provides up to $250 of follow up veterinary care within the first 14 days of adoption. In addition, canine companions adopted from LA Animal Services are also eligible for free dog training classes at the Paws for Life K9 Rescue People & Pet Innovation Center in Mission Hills, CA. Contact Info@pawsforlifek9.org for more details. You can view the wonderful dogs, cats, rabbits, and pocket pets who are ready to meet you and who are available for adoption in our Centers by going to laanimalservices.com/adopt.

SENIORS FOR SENIORS PROGRAM

For senior adults (62 years and older) living in the City of Los Angeles, LA Animal Services offers the Seniors for Seniors program, which matches senior companion animals (seven years and older) from the six LA City shelters with senior adults. Senior adopters receive 50 percent off the adoption fee which includes microchipping, vaccinations and the spay/neuter surgery. Some senior adults may also qualify to receive a $10 dog license. Please bring your low income/lifeline Department of Water and Power bill to qualify. For more information about $10 dog licenses for seniors, call the Department of Animal Services Licensing Division at 213-482-9550.

CAN'T ADOPT - YOU CAN STILL HELP

Shelter-at-Home provides temporary shelter for lost pets in your neighborhood while posting flyers or posting the pet's info on social media, e.g. Nextdoor, LA Animal Services Lost and Found Facebook page, Pawboost.

Home-to-Home is a resource to help pet owners find a new home for their furry friend without taking them to a shelter.

Donate and make a difference to help pets in LA.

Be a part of the Share Squad and help get the word out to help LA animals find homes and create more awareness on how to keep animals safe and healthy.

Share posts of pets available for adoption on Facebook, Instagram, Twitter and Nextdoor.

Volunteer and make a difference in the lives of animals in their care.

The six LA Animal Services locations are open on Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturdays and Sundays, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Appointments are required on Wednesdays and Fridays, for pet adoptions, fostering, and owner surrenders, with our Centers closed on Mondays. Sick or injured animals will be admitted without an appointment. Appointments may be scheduled by going online or by calling 1-888-452-7381.

Red Cross: Keep an eye on what you fry this Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving is one of the country's top days for cooking fires, and the American Red Cross Los Angeles Region encourages family chefs to follow simple steps to prepare the holiday feast safely.

"Home fires are a real threat over the holidays and represent most of our disaster responses in Los Angeles," said Guillermo Sanchez, Red Cross LA Regional Preparedness Manager. "Help keep your family safe by always keeping an eye on what you fry, testing your smoke alarms monthly and practicing your two-minute escape plan with everyone in your household."

COOKING SAFETY TIPS Follow these safety tips and visit redcross.org/fire for more information, including an escape plan to practice with your family. You can also download the free Red Cross Emergency and First Aid apps by searching "American Red Cross" in app stores.

Never leave cooking food unattended. If you must leave the kitchen, even for a short period of time, turn off the stove.

Move items that can burn away from the stove. This includes dishtowels, bags, boxes, paper and curtains. Also keep children and pets at least three feet away.

Avoid wearing loose clothing or dangling sleeves while cooking.

When frying food, turn the burner off if you see smoke or if the grease starts to boil. Carefully remove the pan from the burner.

Keep a pan lid or a cookie sheet nearby. Use it to cover the pan if it catches on fire. This will put out the fire. Leave the pan covered until it is completely cooled.

IF YOU NEED HELP If you cannot afford to purchase smoke alarms or are physically unable to install one, the Red Cross may be able to help. Angelenos who need assistance can visit redcross.org/LAHomeFire or call 310-445-9914 to schedule an appointment for a free smoke alarm installation.

HOME FIRE CAMPAIGN SAVES LIVES Since October 2014, the Red Cross Home Fire Campaign with community partners has saved at least 1,414 lives by educating families about fire safety, helping them create escape plans and installing more than 2.4 million free smoke alarms in high-risk neighborhoods across the country. Visit redcross.org/homefires for more information.

We're All in This Together

The biggest problem facing Santa Monica isn't what you think. And you, yes you, have the power to change it. But even with the power to change it, it will never change until you earn it. And there's only one way to earn it: work.

Before I tell you what the problem is, let me tell you how I discovered the solution for myself. I grew up with family issues and like many others in my situation I naturally developed a way to cope which for me being naturally athletic was sports. I was always the fastest kid in my school, but I never worked out so when it came time for State Finals I always lost. I felt that I was entitled to win because it would have been poetic justice to come from hard times and prevail. But what I was missing at 14 that I know now at 38 is that if I didn't do the work to earn my goals that I would never achieve them.

Almost everybody in Santa Monica would say the biggest problem here locally is the combination of crime and homelessness. And while that may be true in some respects, the deeper problem is the lacking spirit of brotherhood. It breaks my heart when I hear people call them scum and call for them to be removed at any cost. These are people. It breaks my heart even further to see the racial background for those involved in crime and homelessness skews so heavily Black. As a Black Leader in Santa Monica, I desperately want to help my people, and all people who turn to crime and homelessness, get the services they need to lead a healthy life. But I fear not everyone sees them as brothers as I do.

You may say that other cities take harder stances against crime and homelessness and while that may be true, Santa Monica isn't other cities…it's better. Not only does it pride itself on increasing community wellbeing, but it also played a part in causing detriment to the Black Community to a further degree than most other cities. True, Santa Monica is not alone in Los Angeles for having a history of redlining, a practice of mapping out zones that Blacks could not own homes…but it is one of the few places that actually uprooted existing Black households through a practice of eminent domain, the government taking land for construction which is how we got the freeway and civic center. Not only that but houses formerly owned by Blacks were also set on fire as part of fire department drills. I could go on but suffice it to say Santa Monica's reputation on social justice is not the richest. And with Santa Monica's Black population having decreased from 25% to 4%…it only makes sense to call it out that something is wrong. But what makes us different is our city isn't afraid to walk alone and lead the way in progressive, radical change…which has been the case for the environment—but what about the people?

And while some might say City Councils in the recent past were so liberal that we attracted crime and homelessness and one response would be to replace them with Councilmembers who are tough on crime and homelessness. Coping mechanisms. I would argue that the problem more so exists due to City Councils from long before who approved exclusionary zoning laws and land theft that began the vicious cycle many of my people are in. When combined with other aspects of institutional racism that aren't related to housing, we get what we have today which is a large population of people who society has given up on. What we need is a City Council that'll address the root cause.

After the events on May 30, 2020, I felt that the city needed Black leaders and two years later I ran for City Council in a race I likely won't win but I find peace in knowing I tried my best. Examining the events of that day, I saw Blacks and Black allies protesting peacefully, perhaps under the name Black Lives Matter—and—many Blacks and non-Blacks looting, as well as people of various backgrounds defending our local business community. During my race people called on me to disavow BLM which I would never do because even though I align more with the Civil Rights Movement which doesn't indicate a race in its title, I feel that hearing the name Black Lives Matter was a cry for the help we so desperately need. And though looters may have ruined the noble cause many had in mind that day…it brings to mind the aspects of selling and negotiation. Similar to business, social justice movements have times of selling, the period of time when you decide if you want a deal, and negotiation, the period of time when you decide how the deal gets done. Seemingly peaceful deals in India and South Africa also had hard moments of selling too, if one were to tell the whole story.

But what about Santa Monica? Will our moment of selling lead to negotiation? Will the negotiation lead to anything real? Appointing the first Black Councilwoman and creating a Police Oversight Committee are steps in the right direction but fall far short of creating the everlasting change needed to stem the tide of institutional racism that is effecting everyone today. The most important steps are to responsibly densify the single-family zone to allow homeownership at a lower entry level, grant land parcels to the victims of eminent domain and buy them back at current market rates, create more treatment centers so people can get the help they need and decide with a clear mind and true access to opportunities to get back on their feet. And just as I lacked one thing to negate my championship…there's only one thing we lack for our peace and that's a spirit of brotherhood because we're all in this together!

Editor:

In a landmark ruling destined to save billions of animal and human lives, the Food and Drug Administration has ruled Wednesday that meat cultivated from animal cells is safe to eat. The ruling was granted to Upside Foods, funded by Bill Gates and Richard Branson, but also by meat industry giants Cargill and Tyson Foods.

In the past decade, the cultivated-meat industry has grown to more than 150 companies on six continents, backed by $2.6 billion in investments. They all grow meat from animal cells in clean manufacturing plants, rather than in cruel filthy factory farms.

An estimated 70 billion animals are macerated or suffocated at birth or raised in tiny cages each year to produce today's animal meat and dairy offerings. Consumption of these products has been linked conclusively with elevated incidence of killer diseases.

Production of animal-based foods pollutes our waterways and groundwater supplies, destroys wildlife habitats, and accounts for 20 percent of greenhouse gas emissions.

The forthcoming massive switch from animal agriculture to plant-based and cultivated meat and dairy products offers a truly monumental change in kindness to animals, human health, environmental pollution, and global warming.

Sincerely,

Shane Undrow, Santa Monica

Sweet potato pie makes an easy, pretty Thanksgiving dessert

KATIE WORKMAN
Associated Press

Editor's Note: SMDP will be providing recipe hints and recommendations in the coming weeks to help you plan your holiday season.

In some areas of the country, especially the South, sweet potatoes make regular appearances at the end of the meal, yet for many of us elsewhere, it's a surprise to encounter them in dessert form.

But they are called sweet potatoes for a reason!

This comforting, pretty and very simple pie makes a nice alternative to the more traditional pumpkin pie for Thanksgiving.

It's made even easier if you take the shortcut of using a refrigerated crust — one of the best inventions ever, in this casual pie maker's opinion. But if you have a pie crust recipe you like, please feel free to use it here.

And while I tout the marvels of refrigerated pie crust, I should also mention that homemade whipped cream is simple to make, and few things delight more than a hefty billow of sweet whipped cream on a pie.

Although their names are sometimes used interchangeably, there are differences between a sweet potato and a yam. Yams are from a different botanical family, and are generally larger, starchier and drier than sweet potatoes. Save yams for the savory dishes.

The best sweet potatoes are the small to medium ones, which are sweet and creamy. Larger ones tend to be starchier. They should be firm and free of bruises or breaks, and their skin should be smooth.

Sweet potatoes are an excellent source of the antioxidant beta carotene (choose ones with darker skins for more of it), and also contain high levels of Vitamin C and potassium.

Making the filling of this pie is simple, once you bake and mash the sweet potatoes.

Oh and if you are lucky to have any leftovers, be sure to tuck a piece in a secret spot in the fridge – I can't think of a better post-Thanksgiving breakfast.

EASY SWEET POTATO PIE

Serves 8

3 medium sweet potatoes, about 1 1/2 pounds
1 refrigerated pie crust for a 9-inch pie
3 large eggs
Grated zest of 1 orange
⅔ cup sugar
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup heavy cream
Sweetened Whipped Cream to serve

Preheat the oven to 350° F. Prick the sweet potatoes in several places with a fork, and bake them right on the rack for 1 1/2 hours, until very soft. Leave the oven on. Remove and cool the potatoes until they are just slightly warm, then peel the skins off, and puree in a food processor or blender, or pass them through a ricer, and place in a large bowl. You should have about 1 ¼ to 1 ½ cups puree.

Unroll the prepared pie crust and fit it into a 9-inch pie plate. Attractively crimp the edges of the crust. (Or if you've purchased a pre-made pie crust already in the pan, skip this step).

For the filling, in a large bowl, whisk together the eggs and orange zest. Whisk in the pureed sweet potatoes, and then add the sugar, cinnamon, ginger and salt, and whisk into the sweet potato mixture until blended. Slowly whisk in the cream until well combined. Pour the filling into the prepared pie crust.

Bake the pie for about 50 to 60 minutes, until the filling is set. You can test this by inserting a sharp knife near the center; when it comes out clean, the pie is done. The pie will be a bit puffed up when it comes out of the oven, and then sink slightly as it cools.

Cool the pie completely on a wire rack. You can serve immediately, or cover and refrigerate for up to 2 days.

Oh, and while the pie is cooling, whip that cream!

Serve the pie sliced, with whipped cream if desired.

RESTAURANT REVIEW

HEROIC ITALIAN

Merv Hecht

LOBSTER: The lobster ravioli is among the dishes that make Heroic Italian worth a visit.

I've probably walked by the Heroic Italian restaurant in Santa Monica 100 times. I never went in to eat there because it looked like it was just a sandwich place. I couldn't imagine they would have a very good wine list. Boy was I wrong!

The owner emailed me about one of my reviews. He suggested I stop by. So I did, and I was pretty amazed! This is a restaurant which is typical of middle-class restaurants throughout Italy, except it has more menu selections and a much better wine list. It's not as pretentious as many of the Italian restaurants in Los Angeles, but it should be. The food is good and the wine list exceptional.

I went with my two sons so that we could order a number of dishes. We started with the sweet peppers, which were wonderful. I then moved on to the squid in black ink sauce. I've had better in Venice, Italy, but these were good, and it was nice to find them on the menu - I don't know where else one can find that dish in Los Angeles.

Then we shared a clam linguine and an eggplant parmigiana, no stranger to most Italian menus. Also, quite good. We finished up with a Caesar salad which was ordinary. It's hard to find a good Caesar salad in Los Angeles except at Boa on Ocean Avenue. I knew Caesar, after he moved to Tijuana and was the maître'd at a hotel dining room. This is not how he would have made it.

There are a lot of dishes on the menu that I plan to come back for: the pasta carbonara (something I often make at home), the spicy shrimp Diavolo, the veal chop, filet mignon, cioppino, Sicilian cauliflower - well I could just go on and on, but you can see pictures of many of these dishes on their website.

But the big surprise was the wine list. Never since Valentino closed have I seen such a good Italian wine list, and the prices were not crazy like so many lists. We ended up with a Brunello and it was just the right wine in the right place for the right price.

Stop in and see if you agree with me. You might well see me in the corner table with a good bottle of wine on the table.

Locals Night on the Pier

Emily Sawicki

PIER: The City of Santa Monica welcomed locals and visitors alike for this month's Locals Night, featuring children's fun with Books & Cookies at the merry-go-round, interpretive activities from Heal the Bay Aquarium, a live art installation from the Poetry Society of Los Angeles/Typewriters Anonymous, music from Bach to Rock and much more.

of votes counted so far, to state Senator Bob Hertzberg, who received 47.43%. About 20,000 votes separated the two.

"I want to offer my most sincere and humble congratulations to Supervisor-Elect Horvath. The challenges that we face as a County are extraordinary and it will take someone with Lindsey's work ethic to be successful," Hertzberg said in a statement provided by his campaign.

Horvath also took the opportunity to praise her opponent, breaking with the rhetoric that colored the final weeks of the campaign during which Horvath had taken to calling Hertzberg "Big Oil Bob" (Hertzberg's campaign virtually never mentioned Horvath).

"I want to thank Senator Bob Hertzberg for his incredibly generous and kind phone call, for his commitment to public service, and for engaging in this hard fought campaign to make Los Angeles a better place," Horvath said. "I welcome his supporters into the work we will all need to do together. Regardless of who you voted for, I will always work my heart out to represent you and the best interests of our communities."

When it came to the CD11 race to represent residents of Venice, Pacific Palisades, Brentwood, Playa del Rey, Mar Vista and West LA, Darling's campaign conceded following the wave of results published on Thursday afternoon.

Park, whose consistent lead had shrunk with each new wave of ballots counted, was still maintaining an edge over Darling with 52.51% of votes compared to Darling's 47.49%.

"For over a year and a half, I have had the honor of meeting with community groups, elected officials, businesses, organizations, and neighbors of every stripe from across the 11th District," Park said in written statements provided by her campaign. "More than 100 community meetings and town halls later, I am humbled and honored that the constituents of CD11 have placed their trust and confidence in me to usher in a new era. Voters spoke convincingly that they want a different kind of leader and CD11 has sent a message that the Westside is done with 'business as usual' at City Hall."

Park's victory message does not mention her opponent.

Darling, in conceding the race, praised Park.

"I'd like to congratulate Traci Park — she ran record-setting campaigns in both the primary and this general election," the Darling campaign's message stated. "In the wake of the rancor and divisiveness of the last two years and the shocking, damaging attitudes on the leaked tapes, the Westside, and LA in general, are in deep need of healing and unity that transcends race and economic status. I wish Councilmember-elect Park the very best in that crucial work."

Negrete was holding on to the third-place spot in the city council race, a little more than 800 votes above her nearest challenger, Natalya Zernitskaya. That placement secures her seat for another four years on the city's governing board. Negrete had not formally declared victory as of Friday.

— supplying about 2,200 devices in Santa Monica neighborhoods, all regulated by the Santa Monica Department of Transportation.

The existing Phase 2 Pilot Program has been running since July 1, 2021. When it ends on September 30, 2023, it will have run for two years and three months. The plan at that point is to establish a contract model with one or two operators for a minimum of three years, with a total five-year term possible. The City will be begin recruiting its two contract providers in January 2023.

A contract model would give the city more control over operations including the ability to influence rider rates and encourage equity efforts. The contract would also cover operational service levels, penalties and contract termination information.

The loss of Lyft leaves the city without a local bikeshare provider. Metro operates its own bikeshare program with bikes available at several Expo line stations. Veo has a vehicle that is technically a bike but functions predominantly as a sit-down scooter. Wheels also has vehicles that have a seat but no pedals.

Santa Monica officials said they do not plan on making changes to the current provider mix until the pilot programs expires.

"The City intends on sticking with the three remaining shared mobility operators — Spin, Veo, and Wheels — through the term of the existing Pilot Program, and then selecting up to two operators for the following contracted phase," said Communications & Public Information Manager Constance Farrell. "Veo currently operates Class II e-bikes, while Wheels operates sit-down scooters. For the next group of contracted operator(s), the City will seek to ensure that one or both (if there are two operators selected) deploy enough e-bikes to meet community demand. And as mentioned, Metro Bike Share will continue to operate."

to attend" to children living within close proximity to the school, they expressed differing views and understandings as to what exactly that will look like.

"Part of the conversation would be that it's actually a unified school, that it is not two distinct, separate entities of any kind — that it is a unified school to meet all kids' needs," Board Member Jennifer Smith said.

Board Member Laurie Lieberman said that had not been her understanding of the situation, but was not immediately opposed to the possibility.

"Not that I have a problem with it being one school, but I didn't know that we ever discussed that or agreed about that," she said. "It seems to be one possible outcome."

She urged her fellow Board Members to be open to various possibilities for the campus and what type of school would best meet the needs of the community and acknowledged that students from other areas will likely attend as well.

"I mean maybe it will be exactly as it was, but maybe it will become an immersion school or a performing arts school or a STEM school, or an engineering school — it could be anything," she said. "I just want to say that the discussions should be open to what could serve that neighborhood and will probably have to serve more than that only because of the numbers of students, at least right now, in that neighborhood."

The resolution came before the Board following expressions of concern and anger from some parents about how the situation was being handled by the district. It includes a clause stating that a committee of Muir and SMASH parents and staff will be formed to "discuss programs and opportunities for the neighborhood school," putting in writing something Drati has verbally committed to from the beginning.

"The committee will be formed so the discussion is going to be had with all of the parents of the students that will be attending the school or schools," Board President Maria Leon-Vasquez said.

"Let the process take its course, that's the best way," Smith added, to which all members present agreed.

The Board unanimously approved the resolution with a vote of 5-0. Board Member Richard Tahvildaran-Jesswein was not present at the meeting.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 21)

The world will know your name. You'll have fun figuring out how to fit into new situations. You'll delight in figuring out what to offer and making your work accessible. Your talent for understanding the needs of others will put smiles on faces and money in your pocket. Also featured: a significant philanthropic move. Libra and Virgo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 11, 3, 5, 20 and 16.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You'll think about the answers that didn't come, the unreturned call, the email floated out and lost to the digital sea ... Eventually, no answer can be a beautiful answer, though, or a fitting one. Maybe it's just the one that got you here.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You'll encounter the small seeds of discord. Make sure they don't take root. Prevent problems in the future by keeping everything out in the open. Do not bury resentment or it will grow.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You may find yourself in an awkward situation, but don't let that worry you. If you're doing life right, lots of it will be awkward. In any case, getting out of this is as simple as telling the truth.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). The reasons people do what they do are not that mysterious. They usually choose the best option they have. You'll kindly point out options that people might not have thought about and appreciate when they do the same for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). No one gets truly rich by reaching a certain number of a commodity like dollars or gold. True abundance is a state of mind. One definition of wealth: valuing highly what is already yours.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Your actions are well known to you, unknown to many -- and it's fine to keep it this way. Operating on a need-to-know basis is a smart plan. Who needs to know? Trust your instinct about this today, as it's right-on.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The situation didn't seem to involve you, but you paid attention anyway and now you're glad you did. You'll be ready when it's time to make a decision. Your best guess will be based on firsthand information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Don't talk about it, even to yourself, or you might talk yourself right out of it. Just do it and see what happens. Action begets action. Action changes something. Also, action changes everything.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The most valuable thing the day has to offer is the chance to build a good relationship. It will be worthwhile for you to deviate from your original plan to take advantage of a spontaneous opportunity to connect.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It excites you to be around strong personalities. There will be a tendency to gravitate toward the intimidating, impressive and charming. It is important for you to get ready and center yourself so you don't get thrown off balance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The good fortune will need to be cultivated. It will take an hour or two. Conversation, a share of heart and service, cleaning, clearing -- all ways to open a path for good luck to rush in.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Dissatisfaction is a key part of the human experience, without which there would be no progress. So if you're not thrilled with the outcome, it might be just the opportunity you need to revise, improve or invent to move things forward.
