Failed dome project paves the path for new pickleball courts

PICKLE PADEL PAW: Second time's a charm. The site at 1318 4th Street has proved problematic for potential installations.

Like a banger driving an ace into the backcourt, a local pickleball business has beat out the competition to open a new facility in Downtown Santa Monica.

A combined effort from Santa Monica's pickleball community led by Stephanie McCaffrey of the Promenade's Picklepop has been awarded the space that was originally going to feature the 360-degree immersive Haibu dome. The Downtown Santa Monica, Inc. (DTSM) board of directors was informed of the decision during the monthly meeting in November.

A Request for Proposals (RFP) appeared on the DTSM website in late August, for "Immersive Outdoor Temporary Use (1318 4th Street)" — the address of the Parking Structure 3 site — after the Haibu project ran into difficulties with funding. There was a unanimous vote to move ahead with that activation in November of last year after a presentation to the DTSM board of directors.

The concept that has now been awarded this space is a combination of pickleball courts, padel courts and a "luxury dog park" and has been crafted from the collaborative efforts of Jonathan Neeter, owner of the Pickleball Center at 2505 Wilshire Blvd, Mary Pat Faley, owner and CEO at Pickletown at 1431 Lincoln Blvd and McCaffrey.

According to the group, which calls itself Pickle Padel Paw, they intend to partner with local food and beverage operators, including Heavy Handed, Santa Monica Brewing and Thirst Trap Cocktails. Pickle Padel Paw beat New York-based CityPickle in a process that has not been without controversy.

A "selection" committee consisting of Martin Ronzio-Garcia, DTSM Business & Community Development Manager, together with three members of City staff from the Economic Development Manager's team made a decision to in fact recommend CityPickle, not Pickle Padel Paw and each business was notified accordingly.

The proposals were then seen by DTSM's own Marketing & Business Development Committee, made up of Julia Ladd, Lucian Tudor, Bruce Fairty, Josh Gilman, Berta Negari and Edna Galindo.

Galindo is in fact the property manager for Jeff Appel, who owns the building at 1231 Third Street, where PicklePop is located (the former site of the Adidas store). She apparently recused herself from the presentation to the committee.

"We talked about the diversity of uses and the committee and had a really great point, which is that risk comes in many forms, and there's a risk of dedicating the site entirely to pickleball, as opposed to diversification, which would be pickleball, padel, and then also the dog park," said Andrew Thomas, CEO of DTSM.

In short, after this meeting, the offer to CityPickle was rescinded and given to Pickle Padel Paw. Unlike instances in the past, including the selection of Covered 6 and not long after, the selection of Legion, the process of the committee narrowing down the contenders before a final vote is taken after the top two or three actually present to the directors, was not followed and the board's vote last week only served as a formality.

"With the security, we had the committee just for that, and this time we did practical [sic] the same thing. It just was a pre-screening before coming in front of that committee, which we did with the security as well. I think that's the easiest way to explain it," Lucian Tudor, DTSM board member, responded when asked why both pickleball organizations had not been permitted to present to the board.

"It's hard to speak about how excited we are for this opportunity ... but I think if I had to sum it up, I would say that we all have put blood, sweat, tears, capital, everything we have, into activating community [sic] within this city," McCaffrey said at the meeting.

"I think with three of us already here, operating pickleball sites on their own, we started to ask [our] customer base ... what do you want to try? What's going to get you out there, and what's going to trigger you to bring more people ... and that's how we arrive at the conclusion that this form and variation of activities would be the absolute best thing for our business, the best thing for our city," she said.

The proposal includes two 68 ft by 35 ft padel courts, four 60 ft by 30 ft pickleball courts, beer garden seating, a food stand area, a "premium dog park" and a bathroom area. Dogdrop, a venture capital backed dog daycare center founded in Los Angeles, is set to be the operational advisor of the canine component. And according to Pickle Padel Paw, they estimate a projected total annual revenue for the concept to be $2.9million.

The demolition of Parking Structure 3, located on 4th Street between Santa Monica Blvd and Arizona Ave, began in March 2022 following a failed legal effort to stop the project. Since 2018, the City has been working on a plan to demolish the 50-year-old parking garage and replace it with a multi-level affordable housing project, which would include ground floor retail and subterranean parking. However, since demolition was completed in November 2022, the site has remained empty amid continued concern over the local economy.

Black apology statement now permanent fixture at City Hall

CITY HALL: The City of Santa Monica's apology to Black residents and their descendants now lives permanently outside of City Hall.

THOMAS LEFFLER
SMDP Staff Writer

A step forward in citywide equity was made this past week, as a permanent reminder of past pain and work to be done is now outside of Santa Monica City Hall.

Now just steps from the front doors lies a plaque inscribed with the city's statement of apology to Santa Monica's Black residents and their descendants, placed on the two-year anniversary of the statement's adoption. In November 2022, City Council adopted the statement and made Racial Justice, Equity & Social Diversity one of its strategic priorities.

At the plaque unveiling ceremony, members of the Committee for Racial Justice (CRJ) spoke of what the occasion means to them, with city officials lauding the group for its push to make the plaque happen.

"They are some of the people who really got the motor running on this particular commitment to our community, and it really means a lot to have community members who are willing to get together in their personal time and think about what the community needs, and really fight to advance this," Santa Monica Equity and Inclusion Manager Lisa Parson said.

The CRJ was given recognition on the plaque, which reads out the 2022 apology statement acknowledging "over a century of racial injustice and discrimination against African Americans that have resulted in systemically racist policies." The full apology, available on the city's website, tracks injustice from de facto segregation of the city's first African American settlement in the early 1900s to racial exclusion on city zoning laws.

To commemorate the plaque, CRJ member Angela Scott wrote a poem entitled "We Are Santa Monica Black Unapologetically" and was joined at the podium by fellow members Joanna Berlin and Robbie Jones.

"This plaque reflects that people acknowledge that there was harm done, and I think that's a very good thing because everybody wants to sweep things under the rug when they can," Berlin said. "We are living still in times where it is very difficult to be Black in this country … even in Santa Monica … we still have a lot of work to do."

That difficulty reared its head again this month, as several students in Santa Monica reported receiving racist text messages invoking the ugly history of slavery.

"You have been selected to pick cotton at the nearest plantation … with your bags packed, our executive slaves will come pick you up in a black and white truck," the anonymous text read in part.

Jones, speaking on behalf of CRJ and her "beloved" community, stated that the texts were "tragic" but that Santa Monica was "not going back" to bleak times.

"When I started this fight … I was sick and tired of being sick and tired," Jones said. "Now, (I have) a little bit of hope as we move forward."

Moving forward continues with the city's Equity Plan, the culmination of the work done within the justice, equity and diversity strategic priority. The plan is anticipated to be presented to City Council in early 2025.

"As a city, we acknowledge that decades of racist and inequitable policies have caused pain and negative outcomes for our Black community and other people of color, and seek to continue to identify and overturn these policies and correct these past mistakes whenever we can," Mayor Phil Brock added.

Holidays at the Lions Club

As the holidays are fast approaching, the Santa Monica Pacific Palisades Lion Club (SMPPL) celebrated an early Thanksgiving thanks to Chef Anne with her festive turkey dinner and decorations.

The SMPPL were very fortunate to have Cynthia Sirota and her son Garrett from the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) West Los Angeles as our guest speakers. We've heard from a wide variety of outstanding service organizations and their representatives at our meetings, but this was especially memorable and moving as Garrett shared his personal story, which led to their involvement with NAMI.

He took us from his first diagnosis at UCLA, through his ever-changing experiences and his multiple diagnoses during his 17-year journey. As a result of his faith, determination and hard work he is now completing a graduate degree and working toward his LMFT, while also serving as a peer counselor with NAMI. He was truly inspirational.

Cynthia then shared her experience as his mother, learning to listen, be patient, offer support and project strength to help him move forward. She was feeling confused, afraid and alone, which led her to discover NAMI 12 years ago. They gave her the resources, comfort and support she needed to understand what was happening to her son and how she could be there for him. She said that the thing she did at NAMI was take a 12-week course and cried though most of it.

Cynthia shared that NAMI was the result of two mothers whose children had both been diagnosed with schizophrenia seeking support from each other and realizing there had to be other families dealing with similar issues. They opened their backyards for meetings, and it didn't take long before more than 200 people attended. They decided it was time to create a service organization to help more families find reliable information and the support system they needed. It became NAMI.

In addition to our speakers, some Lions shared what a great time they had at Cirque du Soliel, having everyone looking forward to our next social event in the spring. We reviewed the busy holiday season we have coming up - bell ringing for the Salvation Army at Bristol Farms on November 26th, holiday sing-a-long with members of the Salvation Army band on December 4th, delivering holiday baked goods and cheer to veterans at Fisher House at the VA on December 5th, and gathering for our Club's annual holiday party at Tony P's on December 8th.

To close out the evening, Lions Gail and Susan shared some of the details about our Community Recognition Lunch to be held at the Santa Monica YMCA on February 22nd. They also announced our honorees, Eula Fritz, from Santa Monica, and Sharon Kilbride, from the Pacific Palisades. They are two remarkable women that have made their communities stronger because of their dedication and passion every day.

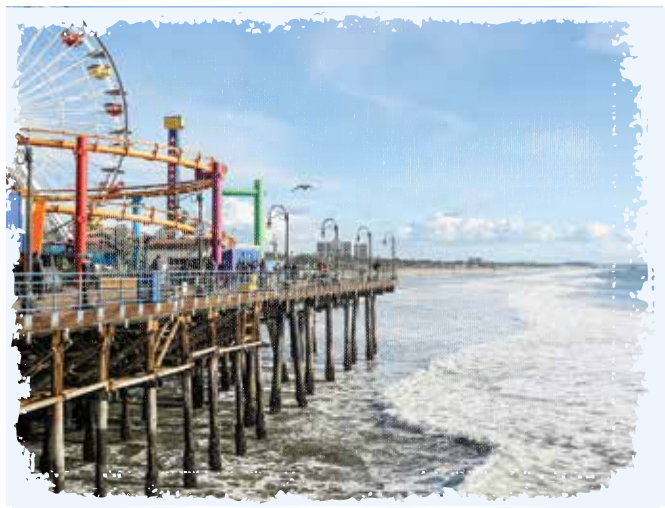

If you are interested in joining any of our activities or being our guest to check out a Lions dinner meeting, please let Kingsley know at 310-454-2960 or smpplionsclub@gmail.com. Our next dinner meeting is Wednesday, December 4th, at 6:00 pm at the SM Elks Lodge. You can also learn more about the SMPP Lions Club from our Facebook, Instagram and website.

Why cranberry sauce is America's least favorite Thanksgiving dish - and 5 creative ways to use it

MICHELLE GOTH
Associated Press

There is always that one dish on the Thanksgiving table - overlooked while the mashed potatoes and gravy steal the spotlight. Surprisingly, this much-maligned side dish has been a part of American tradition for centuries and holds endless possibilities beyond its original purpose, perfectly suited to be reinvented in unexpected ways.

Despite its deep roots in Thanksgiving history, this dish remains one of the most polarizing items on the table today. What is this least popular Thanksgiving dish? Cranberry sauce.

HOW CRANBERRY SAUCE BECAME A THANKSGIVING STAPLE

Cranberry sauce has been part of American cuisine for centuries. Native Americans used cranberries in cooking and medicine, and early European settlers followed suit, incorporating the berries into sauces and preserves.

By the 19th century, cranberry sauce became a Thanksgiving tradition, although recipes varied by region. The introduction of canned cranberry sauce in the 20th century made it even more popular, cementing its spot as an expected accompaniment for Thanksgiving turkey on tables across the country.

Those who do enjoy cranberry sauce probably have a strong opinion about what form is acceptable. Some people prefer canned cranberry sauce for its nostalgic jiggle, while others insist that fresh, homemade cranberry sauce is the only way to go. Homemade whole berry sauce is the top choice for many, with its texture and flavor offering something truly special.

A 2021 survey by the grocery delivery service Instacart found that cranberry sauce is the least favorite Thanksgiving dish, with 29% of American adults saying they hate it and nearly 50% calling it disgusting. This makes cranberry sauce the most polarizing and the most disliked dish on the Thanksgiving table. Even though it ranks as the least favorite dish, omitting cranberry sauce from the holiday meal is still considered a bit of a Thanksgiving faux pas.

Regardless of what kind of cranberry sauce graces the table, its lack of popularity guarantees leftovers. But do not let those leftovers go to waste; there are plenty of creative and delicious ways to use cranberry sauce beyond the Thanksgiving table.

CREATIVE USES FOR LEFTOVER CRANBERRY SAUCE

Leftover cranberry sauce? There is no need to despair. Here are some fun, delicious and inventive ways to give those leftovers a new purpose.

CRANBERRY GRILLED CHEESE

Cranberry sauce is the perfect addition to a grilled cheese sandwich. Layer sharp cheddar or brie cheese, turkey leftovers and a spoonful of cranberry sauce between two slices of sourdough bread. The tart cranberry cuts through the richness of the cheese for a perfectly balanced bite. To feed a crowd, consider making a casserole dish of turkey cranberry sliders with leftover sauce and turkey meat.

CRANBERRY VINAIGRETTE

To make a simple salad dressing, grab a mason jar and add a tablespoon of leftover cranberry sauce. Pour in a splash of white balsamic vinegar and an equal portion of olive oil. Add pinches of fresh herbs, salt and pepper. Secure the lid, shake well and drizzle the zesty cranberry vinaigrette over an autumn salad with lettuce, Gorgonzola cheese, pecans and dried cranberries.

CRANBERRY BBQ SAUCE

For an easy homemade barbecue sauce, mix leftover cranberry sauce with ketchup or chili sauce, a dash of hot sauce or Worcestershire sauce, and a bit of brown sugar. The result is a tangy barbecue sauce that pairs beautifully with cocktail meatballs, roasted chicken or pork chops. Guests will never guess that the base of your homemade barbecue sauce was the leftover cranberry sauce from Thanksgiving.

CRANBERRY YOGURT PARFAIT

For a quick breakfast or snack, layer cranberry sauce with vanilla Greek yogurt and granola for a simple yet elegant autumn parfait. The sweetness of the granola and the tanginess of the cranberry sauce make for a great flavor balance. For bonus points, add a drizzle of maple syrup and pecans.

COCKTAIL MIXER

Yes, cranberry sauce can be used in cocktails. To make a festive drink, shake a generous spoonful of cranberry sauce with vodka, a splash of orange juice and a squeeze of simple syrup. Add ice and a fresh rosemary sprig, and the result is a tart, refreshing cocktail perfect for the holiday season.

CELEBRATING CRANBERRY SAUCE BEYOND THANKSGIVING

For centuries, cranberry sauce has been a staple on the American Thanksgiving table. While it continues to be viewed as a traditional holiday dish by most Americans, an emerging trend shows chefs, food bloggers and home cooks finding new ways to incorporate cranberry sauce into various recipes throughout the year.

Cranberry sauce may never steal the spotlight during Thanksgiving dinner, where traditional dishes like mashed potatoes, buttery rolls and pies often take center stage. However, its creative uses can elevate it as a standout ingredient in the days that follow.

As Thanksgiving cleanup commences and a bowl of leftover sauce remains, there is no need to worry. This underdog simply requires a bit of creativity to shine.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 25)

Chance flirts with you, flipping on the electrical current throughout your year. You'll find a rhythm of connection in many relationships, each one unexpected and meaningful, but one particularly influential in this fresh chapter. More highlights: a new passion project gains momentum, financial gains from clever decisions, and peace arrives in the form of closure. Cancer and Leo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 20, 33, 5, 14 and 29.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Acceptance doesn't mean surrendering your values, but it might mean recognizing that not everyone shares them. Because you're present to friends and strangers alike, you'll get out of your comfort zone. One gesture opens a new world.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Knowing your strengths without needing to prove them, you'll walk with quiet assurance and let your actions speak louder than words. People notice your deep confidence. It's magnetic without trying.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll give something up so you can really appreciate what you have. While you welcome the opportunity to lighten your load, you'd rather be the one to choose what goes into the donation box.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Drop the word "I" from your conversation and magic will unfold. You're inherently captivating, so there's no need to talk about yourself, only to be yourself. That will do all the talking for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Progress rarely occurs in a straight line. Today, there will be detours and dead ends, but every twist has something to teach. Keep moving forward on the scenic route. Small delights abound.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Nature's design deepens your understanding of what it means to be part of life's intricate web. You'll affect and be affected by every other being. You'll experience life's wisdom firsthand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). If the rules are not written down, spoken or communicated explicitly, then the only way to find out what they are is to break them. Rule-breaking also shows you the actual rules as opposed to the theoretical and idealized version.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Focus on your own needs and goals. When you take care of yourself, you're stronger in all your relationships. A moment of reflection keeps you on track. Pause to acknowledge what you're giving and taking, as well as how far you've come.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Intuition is your inner compass, guiding you in ways logic can't always explain. You'll tune into your instincts and let them have a voice. You may find answers that your mind has yet to see.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Persistence isn't about relentless pushing; it's about figuring out how to keep going with the least amount of drama. What might make your way easier, more joyful, interesting, friendly, gentle or appealing? Progress doesn't have to be so laborious.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Biomimicry is the art of learning from life's forms and processes. Nature's wisdom will spark innovation for you today. Let your curiosity lead the way, guiding you toward designs that respect and renew.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Whenever there's an outcome expected and a person responsible, that's work, and don't you know it. Today's work will take forms that are invisible to those who don't understand everything involved in pulling it off. Feel free to give them a hint.
